Fruit prices rose two per cent on average since December. Since January, 1972, the vegetable index has increased more than 16 per cent and the fruit index 11 per cent.

Lesser price increases were reported for bread, corn flakes, cake mixes, ice cream, jelly powder, jam, tea and instant coffee. Ground coffee and peanut butter were less expensive in some areas as special prices went into effect and soup, baby food and sugar also showed decreases, the statistics bureau said.

Restaurant charges increased 0.6 per cent in January as higher prices went into effect in many cities.

Since January of 1972 the entire food index has advanced 10 per cent.

Shelter costs increased with a rise of 0.7 per cent in the cost of owning a home. Main factor in the household operation index increase was a rise of 3.9 per cent in the fuel and lighting index as higher prices for electricity arose in Toronto, Hamilton, Ont., South Ste. Marie, Ont., and Calgary, domestic gas prices rose in Calgary and Vancouver and fuel oil brought higher prices in a number of cities across the country.

Higher alcohol prices in some areas moved the tobacco and alcohol index, six per cent of consumer spending, to 135.2 from 134.7.

Prisons Full

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Saying 550 prisoners have no place to sleep, prison director Louie Wainwright has closed Florida's prison system to newcomers for the second time in little more than a year. Wainwright notified Florida's 67 sheriffs Thursday that he would accept no more prisoners.

Cambodia Raids Resumed

SAIGON (AP) — Despite a unilateral ceasefire proclaimed last week by President Lon Nol, United States planes have resumed strikes in Cambodia, U.S. officials disclosed today. The U.S. command refused to confirm or deny the disclosure and referred all queries to the Pacific Command in Honolulu.

Military Men Defied

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — President Juan M. Bordaberry today defied army and air force generals who threatened to overthrow an elected Uruguayan government for the first time in 40 years.

Drug Reactions Common

TORONTO (CP) — Up to one-third of patients in hospital have unexpected and undesired allergic-type reactions to some drugs they are given and pharmacists should be doing more research into this problem, an Ottawa medical professor said today. Dr. William M. MacLean, director of drug information and education at Ottawa General Hospital said "the incidence of drug adverse reactions . . . far surpassed our expectations."

Newspaper Bombed

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — An explosion at a weekly newspaper office here Wednesday night was "an act of intimidation" because of stories the paper had written on crime in this area, Gerard MacNeil, managing editor of the Dartmouth Free Press, said Thursday. No one was injured in the explosion.

Marks Still in Demand

BONN (AP) — The rush to swap United States dollars for marks continued without letup today. West Germany's central bank bought between $700 million and $1 billion in the first hour of trading on the Frankfurt exchange, dealers estimated. The Bonn government accepted the decision to begin buying U.S. currency so that the value of the mark would not be forced up. It was also adamant against revealing the mark upward, the action that the U.S. government wants it to take.

Little Profit for Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Mel Watkins, University of Toronto economist, said Thursday Canada will get little money in the "fast buck" $9 billion Mackenzie Valley pipeline project. He told members of the Toronto Waffle left wing group most profit from the pipeline would go to huge United States-based companies.

Scientists Oppose Consuming

OTTAWA (CP) — Stopping short of urging a no-growth economy, the Science Council of Canada says the country should start moving from a consumer society to a conserver society and lead the world toward a fairer distribution of earth resources.

A council report released today calls for better resource management and cautions that Canada is just one small but rich community in a global village threatened by pollution, badly used resources, crowding and "the irreconcilable extremes of poverty and affluence."

"As a country which has been lavishly endowed and which has always subscribed to a policy of helping the less fortunate," Canada will want to play a major role in helping poorer countries, the council says.

"We cannot, then, afford to misuse those resources that we will need to share with others, nor can we afford to let others misuse them.

"We cannot continue to endorse continental or global resource policies which will contribute only to the disparity between rich nations and the poor. A small number of nations now consume a large proportion of the earth's resources."

Individual Canadians, their government, institutions and industries should "begin the transition from a consumer society preoccupied with reserve exploitation to a conserver society engaged in more constructive endeavors."

Warnings Ignored

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Ecologists may have to become involved in politics if they are to have a part in determining the extent of development of natural resources, a Queen's University biology professor warned Thursday.

Dr. Fred Cooke, an executive of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, told a group of students that governments and businesses are not heeding the warning from biologists that the environment is rapidly being destroyed.

Food Leads Price Climb

OTTAWA (CP) — Increasing food prices have been leading the way recently in the upward march of all consumer prices, Statistics Canada experts told the special Commons committee on food prices Thursday.

"In the 12 months ending in December, 1972, food was responsible for 45 per cent of the advances in the total consumer price index," the statistics bureau said in a brief to the committee.

A surge of food prices in the last six months accounts for "55 per cent of the rise in the index as a whole," the brief added.

Food prices tend to "exert a very important influence" on the index, which measures almost the total range of consumer spending, Statistics Canada said.

During the 1970 supermarket "price war," food prices were brought a pause in upward price movements. But with the price war over the advance has been resumed and "the upward push of food prices has been playing a major role."

Sylvia Ostry, chief statistician, presented the brief to the committee and, along with several price experts from the bureau, fielded questions on how Statistics Canada goes about collecting the material for the various monthly reports it makes on prices.

But most committee attempts to dig into just what is causing food price increases were turned aside because the bureau does not collect the sort of information some MPs were seeking.

Alf Gleave (NDP—Saskatoon-Biggar) asked whether any government agency looks into what happens to various food products from "the farm gate" to the shopping cart. Had anyone involved in politics if they are to have a part in determining the extent of development of natural resources, a Queen's University biology professor warned Thursday.

Dr. Fred Cooke, an executive of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, told a group of students that governments and businesses are not heeding the warning from biologists that the environment is rapidly being destroyed.

Fire Chief's Estimate

God Knows How Many Were Cremated

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP) — "God knows how many were cremated," Alameda Fire Chief Ernest Servente said, surveying the ruins of an apartment house transformed into a inferno in the crash of a U.S. Navy jet fighter. As many as 20 may have died, he estimated.

Searchers recovered eight bodies and part of a ninth by late Thursday from the still-smouldering rubble of the four-story 27-unit Tahoe Apartments here, across the bay from San Francisco.

"There's a good chance that many people were incinerated in certain areas by the intense fire" in the disaster Wednesday night, said Roland W. Prahl, Alameda County chief deputy coroner.

Frank Reynolds, owner of the 45-year-old apartment house, said 36 units were occupied and that 27 persons might have been living there at the time of the crash. The building manager, Edward Motta, who escaped with his wife when the plane hit, said he believes up to 25 persons were in the building.

Eyewitnesses reported seeing only a few persons escape the building before it exploded, sending flames high into the sky.

Flaming debris set fire to adjoining apartment buildings after the 20-ton A-7 Corsair crashed.

At least 24 persons were hurt. Searchers sorted through the night and Thursday. Some of them collapsed from fatigue.

Their faces blackened by soot and dripping with sweat, the searchers turned over debris with pitchforks and shovels. A bulldozer showed material aside. Cranes moved heavier debris. Ambulances and hearses stood by.

Some reports said the plane was on fire before it crashed, but the navy could not confirm it.

The jet's pilot and only occupant, Lieut. Robert Lee Ward, 28, of Cary, N.C., was on a training flight at the time. He still was unaccounted for Thursday night.

Navy Cmdr. William D. Collins said military investigators were certain Ward did not eject from the plane because they found his ejector seat handle in the ruins.

Crash Brings Hit-run Charge

An east and driver was charged Thursday after his truck tractor sideswiped a car on Dundas St. West.

Francis Price, 37, of 150 Farley Ave., faces charges of failing to remain at the scene of an accident and careless driving.

He was westbound at about 4 p.m. when he struck a car driven by Rosa Georgeson, 18, of 175 Bleecker Ave., as it was passing him in the other direction.

Mr. Price abandoned his tractor at the accident scene but was picked up later.

No one was injured but Mr. Geefsma's car sustained $800 damage. Mr. Price's truck, $100.

Man Injured In Rear-ender

For the second straight day, an accident at the corner of Bridge Street and Macdonald Ave. has resulted in someone being taken to Belleville General Hospital.

George Brown, 54, of 14 Second St., is recovering from whiplash and bruises suffered when his car was struck from the rear by another vehicle.

The other driver, John Kenneth Gilbert, 20, of 10 Bleecker Ave., slid on the slippery road surface and was unable to stop the stop sign on Macdonald. She was charged.

On Wednesday, a Tyendinaga Township man, Joan Ann Sine., suffered bruises after her car was struck by another vehicle that missed a stop sign on Macdonald. She was charged.

Lone Cars In Accidents

TWEED (Special) — An elderly Sidney Centre man, Harry Cecil Hagerman, 79, of RR 4 Stirling, was treated for cuts and bruises on Saturday afternoon after his car went out of control on the Ridge Road and slammed into a tree.

Mr. Hagerman was treated at the scene of Briggs and Madleson in Stirling.

The accident, about one mile west of Highway 62, occurred as Mr. Hagerman swerved to miss a dog crossing the road. Damage to the 1965 model car was estimated at $450.

In another one-car accident during the noon hour Thursday, an item by Jim B. Cosgrove, 21, of RR 4 Havelock went out of control on Highway 7 three miles west of Marmora and hit a tree. The driver escaped injury.

Industrial Commission To Re-examine Role

By MIKE PATERSON
Staff Reporter

An optimistic new Belleville Industrial Commission is beginning its term with a self-appraisal and an opportunity to redefine its role in the community.

At last night's annual meeting, conducted by Mayor Robin Jeffrey, prime issue of debate was the lack of a clearly defined role for the commission and ways in which its members felt their role should be expanded.

Reinstalled commission director, Douglas Forbes, manager of the main Belleville branch of the Bank of Montreal, said he and other directors had experienced little satisfaction as directors. "We really didn't know what our role was," he said.

Opening a round - table discussion of the issues, he added that the Industrial Commissioner, Fred Bemis, lacked a definitive job description. "Also we didn't hear much about existing industries," said Mr. Forbes.

He felt the commission should continue in its present form but with more separation from "the political side of city government."

Forbes suggested the director-ate be made up of committee chairmen and appointment of the commissioner for longer than one-year terms. He also suggested three committees be set up to fulfil roles related to finance and administration, land and its development and public relations and advertising.

New vice-chairman, Robert Aitken, general manager of Allied Chemical Canada Ltd., said, "What we're really out to do is create new and better jobs for our own people and ones that will bring in people to spend money locally."

"Until we do that," he said, "we won't achieve a thing."

New Industrial Commission chairman, Bruce Nickson of Corby Distilleries Ltd. agreed. "Our only real consideration should be finding jobs — we should get into the economic development field such as tourism."

Mr. Nickson also said, "We are now competitive with other centres in serviced land and we have a new industry committee that regards Belleville very favorably."

"We are looking forward to a very good economy," he said. "We did know what to do but until recently we didn't have anything to sell." Mr. Nickson said that in the past, many potential developers and industrialists had been brought into the Belleville area but had been deterred by high land prices.

Alderman Jack Ireland said the commission's name should be changed to Development Commission.

"The scope has to change— we need a whole new ball of wax," he said. "We have to think of things like water-front development and urban renewal."

Outcome of the discussions was a motion instructing the secretariat to report in 30 days on the aims, goals and directions of the Industrial Commission. The possibility of name change lies in the director-ate's report which will be presented at a general meeting next month.

Elected to the board of directors at last night's meeting at the Four Seasons Motor Hotel were Bruce Nickson of Corby Distilleries Ltd. Robert Aitken of Allied Chemical Canada Ltd. Bruce Curtis now retired, formerly of the Royal Bank of Canada, Dick Lumbers of Lumbers Studio Douglas Forbes of the Bank of Montreal and James Marker of W. T. Hawkins Ltd. Ex-officio members of the director-ate are Mayor Robin Jeffrey, Alderman Bev Corbet and Alderman Jack Ireland. Mr. Nickson was appointed chairman and Mr. Aitken vice-chairman.

The first meeting of the new board is scheduled for Friday, Feb. 16 at which the commission's new role and possible name change will be discussed.

Dental Developments Promise New Comfort

About one-third of us are frightened of dentists — frightened enough to stay away.

But, says the Ontario Dental Association, the fear is groundless because painless dentistry is almost here.

"The old image of the dentist as a man who has to inflict pain on his patients while filling or extracting teeth should soon be a thing of the past," says a release from the ODA, prepared for the Dental Health Week, being observed this week.

Fear of dentists was needlessly planted during childhood and many of today's adults do not realize the tremendous improvements that have taken place, says the ODA.

High - speed drills, improved techniques and new furnishings which eliminates the old dental office image have helped patients overcome their fear.

While a visit to the dentist will probably never be a joyful experience, early and prompt treatment before problems become severe will keep discomfort to a minimum dentists say.

New techniques that may eliminate the basic causes of dental disease are on the horizon.

A British dentist, Geoffrey Smith, reports development of a vaccine which could reduce tooth decay by 90 per cent. If later testing equals initial results. The vaccine is given by four shots in the mouth, followed by a booster shot and then annual inoculations.

Dental scientists are also looking at an enzyme that appears to attack and break up bacteria in the plaque which forms on teeth and leads to decay.

In other parts of the world, methods of blocking out pain have been reported as successful. In the Soviet Union, an electrical anesthetic machine called Elon-1 has reduced up to 80 per cent the pain associated with dental drilling. The device operates by reducing the pain signal from the tooth to the brain, using a light plastic clip attached to the patient's ear.

Acupuncture, reported from China to provide painless dental treatment, is also under investigation. The ODA says dental scientists are looking into the possibility of bringing the procedure to the Western world.

$38,000 Allocated For Winter Works

PICTON — A total of $38,600 has been allocated for the following winter works projects announced for this riding by James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward - Lennox.

An archeological study at Outlet Park will increase knowledge of early inhabitants of the area and provide employment for one man. The study is a continuation of other investigations by the ministry of natural resources.

Two men will be employed in the construction of eight vault privies at Outlet Park.

At Glenora, two men will be hired to dispose of dead and hazardous trees, especially elms in connection with the research station.

At Point Petre, work will be done to improve conditions for upland game, particularly rabbits. Two men will be hired for this work.

In Napanee, the location of boathouses and private docks will be established by a two-man team. Nesting boxes also will be built at Napanee for distribution throughout the area as a measure of waterfowl management.

Two men have been hired to carry out the Beaver Act enforcing it with respect to parts of the riding to produce furbearers. Such subjects as number of beaver lodges and suitable level of houses will be examined. This study will employ two men.

In late January, four men completed the construction and installation of eight vault toilets at Outlet Park. The cost of this project including the purchase of vaults and materials, was $14,700.

MPP Announces Seasonal Jobs

PICTON — James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox, has announced seasonal employment projects scheduled this year for the Prince Edward-Lennox riding.

The programs include a predator control project involving eight employees, two of them in the Napanee Chief Ranger division. Cost of this program for the Napanee division will be $1,300. It will continue until the end of March.

One person will be employed as a fish scale reader at the Napanee Chief Ranger office until the end of March. This will be done at a cost of $1,600. Scales can be aged by using a microscope and the reader counts the rings on the scale to determine the age of the fish.

A technician will be hired to collect fish and lamprey samples and data from commercial fishermen in Lake Ontario and the Bay of Quinte. This employee will work from Napanee until the end of March at a cost of $2,200.

A Napanee warehouseman will be hired at a cost of $2,200 to clean equipment and repair tools and light equipment. Warehousing and snow shovelling will be among his duties.

Guest Preacher

Rev. T. Rex Norman, Bay of Quinte District secretary of the Canadian Bible Society, will be the guest preacher at Bridge Street United Church's 11 a.m. service this Sunday. At 12:15 p.m. he will speak at a campaign organizational meeting in the church. The campaign is to raise $100,000 for the translation, production and distribution of Bibles throughout the world.

Queen Elizabeth Park Quiet Oasis

PICTON — Queen Elizabeth Park in the 1790s several roads converged at the head of Picton Bay, including a portage to Lake Ontario. The town became a natural shipping and distribution centre for the peninsula and by 1811 a small community had been well established.

The settlement was named Hallowell in tribute to a Loyalist settler from Massachusetts and it grew swiftly after the end of the 18th century as more settlers made the harbor accessible.

In the period from 1871 to 1875, the Rev. William Macaulay laid out an adjacent village site which he called Picton. It became the judicial and administrative centre of the District of Prince Edward in 1831. The two communities were amalgamated in 1837 and incorporated as the town of Picton.

Laws No Answer to Snowmobile Control, Committee Is Told

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — "Don't make laws you can't enforce' capsulized general opinion when area snowmobilers and motorbikers met with Ontario's select committee on motorized snow vehicles and all - terrain vehicles here last night.

Town councillor Jack Evans gained heavy applause when he urged the committee to avoid bogging down the sports in endless legislation. He observed that one brief presented recommended snowmobilers should wear fluorescent, inflatable vests.

Mr. Evans reasoned that such precautions would grow burdensome and stated that because people can drown in water, eventually, they might not be alloyed to swim.

James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward - Lennox, reinforced the councillor's stand when he said, "I am personally concerned that we just don't legislate ourselves out of existence."

The MPP added he dislikes too much "regimentation" and good manners and common sense cannot be legislated for snowmobilers.

Brian York, spokesman for the Picton Bay Snow Riders Association, increase from 3 cents and it grew swiftly after the 1814 when the end of hostilities had prompted "a super reaction."

Mr. York said the persons affected by this increase have no voice and should be permitted to join in planning for trails.

Snowmobiles put less wear and tear on the roads than other motor vehicles, making the registration increase unfair. Also, some snowmobile owners use their machines only on their own property and should not pay the high fee.

"We request legislation to correct this sorry state of discrimination against snowmobiles and the people using them," declared Mr. York.

George Wright, safety officer with the Picton Police Department told the committee a town bylaw regulating the operation of snowmobiles will be amended to prohibit sidewalk travel. The original bylaw barred the machines only from Main Street. And it stipulated a speed limit of 15 miles an hour at all other streets. Snowmobilers can cross Main Street.

He said, "We just can't touch a snowmobile with a police cruiser" when asked the number of convictions recorded for snow machine operators.

Constable Wright indicated, however, that there is no problem in Picton with the operation of snow vehicles and snowmobilers are generally highly co-operative with police.

Constable Donald Watt, traffic safety officer with the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police presented a 16-point brief which provoked close scrutiny by one committee member who demanded to know if there had been any "interchange of ideas" in the preparation of the recommendations.

He said he found several "kind of unusual" and although he did not specify, he said those recommendations were not found in ordinary police briefs.

The committee member probed Constable Watt and suggested, "Maybe you should be made corporal."

Trenton Police safety officer Roy Miller also presented a brief recommending safety communities. In co-operation with the local Rotary Club, Ice, persons have completed such a program in Trenton to date this season. The committee expressed interest in how this type of training was so successfully implemented.

Further briefs were given by Snowdrifters Club and The Lonesome Riders of Belleville.

Generally it was agreed snowmobiles should carry registration decals on each side for easy identification.

Most persists addressing the committee felt helmets should be mandatory and supported safety training courses for operation. A dual headlight system for machines also was mentioned by several persons. Enthusiasm for the development of trails ran high.

James Ives, conservation officer for Prince Edward, informed the committee that he has been told snowmobilers are chasing jack rabbits in teams, then grabbing them by the ears.

On one occasion, four years ago a story was told of a snowmobiler who ran over a coyote 20 times the left his machine atop it while he finished killing it with an axe. Because there was no evidence no action and other clearing jobs. Some of the trails through it now being used to pay two men who are cutting and burning brush along township roads.

The approaches to the bridge are in bad condition, Councillor Bob Drummond told council, and the lack of guard rails make the bridge dangerous for children and fishermen.

The village council broke its silence on proposed donations to $25 each. It made a donation of $50 to assist the recently burned Dolsee Public Library replace books.

Trails from Marmora and Lake townships council regarding rebuilding of Highway 14 from Stirling to Marmora could do five times the damage a motorcycle might wreak on the paths.

More to Go To Vietnam

TRENTON — This Saturday, Feb. 10, a second contingent of Canadian servicemen will be flown from CFB Trenton to Saigon, Vietnam as part of a four - nation observer force in that war-torn country, Thursday afternoon. A crew of three pilot Captain Don Johnny of Belleville, left from the base here for Tokyo, Japan, to await the Saturday arrival of a 437 Squadron 707 bearing the peace observing contingent. Saturday the aircraft, piloted by Captain Ronald Day of Trenton, and a second crew of 10, will leave for Montreal at 10 a.m., return to Trenton by 3 p.m. and fly to Tokyo at 5 p.m. The first flight, bearing 231 observers, left Trenton arriving at Saigon, Jan. 29.

Dump Permit Expires Soon

MARMORA (Special) — The temporary permit for the old Marmora waste disposal site will expire March 31 and a representative of the Waste Management Branch of the Ministry of the Environment has notified Village Feb. 14 to review the situation. The matter will be discussed at that time.

The village's application for a permit from federal government's Local Initiatives Program was refused, as council will save some of the $39,300 the project would have grant.

The money will be used to make repairs on the old Bessence ice surface and other clearing jobs. Some of the $39,300 grant is now being used to pay two men who are cutting and burning brush along township roads.

The Minimum Wage goes up again.

One of the better things about working in Ontario is the protection you get under the Employment Standards Act. Now we've raised the Minimum Wage again.

As of February 1, 1973 the Minimum Wage is going up:

General Industry — $1.90/hour
Construction Industry — $2.05/hour
Students under 18 years of age — $1.45/hour

If your wage depends on the established Minimum get the whole story on the new Minimum Wages and how the Act protects you, by writing or phoning.

Peking Interlude

Remember the suggestion, when the Chinese table-tennis team was here, that the visitors played rather beneath their full capacity so as not to show up the home team unduly.

It was all rather unnerving at the "Don't shoot the plano player — he is doing his best" syndrome.

In any event we have the impression that the Chinese, reared on exercise as well as rice — and compulsory exercise at that, as part of the work day at the plant or farm — are for the most part in super-fit condition. Fit enough at least to play or run rings around any foreigner willing to take them on.

And there was The Globe and Mail's man in Peking, John Burns, taking part in the annual six-mile spring festival foot race — and without official permission for heaven's sake. Still nobody compained; indeed Burns was cheered all the way and finished at the end of it all. He finished the course, but came in 1,165th out of 1,500 contestants.

Not a bad effort really, yet as Burns points but he ended up behind many a stalwart in his 40s and 50s compared with his youthful 28. And he acknowledges the support of two worthies who fell into step with him, sacrificing their own chances just to urge him on. This strikes us as the slightly patronising aspect of the home competitors, so sure of their own expertise that it grates slightly — but only slightly, for after all it was a lot more pleasant than the hostility that might have greeted such an intrusion by a foreigner in Chinese life some years ago. It was all in the spirit of the contemporary warm relations between Ottawa and Peking. Only a few weeks ago two young Canadian women from our embassy in Peking received high praise from Chinese officials for their part in rescuing a youngster who fell through some ice.

What it all means in terms of Canadian fitness is something else again. If writer Burns merits an 'A' for effort (it had all started when his interpreter told him he was putting on weight, which had the effect of prodding him into some hard training), where does it leave Canadians generally in the fitness stakes? Way down the list, we fear.

Entertainment World

Toronto ranks with the best in world entertainment spots, attracting the world's finest artistes and catering to all tastes.

Of late the city has had such artistes as Rex Harrison and Debbie Reynolds, and Siobhan McKenna is also in town with the Irish Arts Theatre and celebrated violinist Yehudi Menuhin was there for a recent concert. Another great performer now appearing is Jose Greco and the city's own symphony orchestra recently presented a program of "Family Pops."

Even more popular level the Ding-a-Ling Sisters from the Dean Martin show have been appearing at a motor hotel club and they have now been succeeded by none other than that old trouper from a long time ago, Dick Haymes. Wasn't he in Springtime in the Rockies, with Betty Grable? Well, that's reaching back a bit isn't it?

Meanwhile, others from the film world have passed on — like movie bad guy Edward G. Robinson and J. Carrol Naish with-in the past month. Many a veteran thrilled soldiers on, and their names are part of the folklore here when they visit our shores.

Fire Threat

Fires in new homes are a rare enough phenomenon — but they do occur, as witness the recent outbreak at a new bungalow in Montrose Road which is in Sidney Township about two miles west of the city limits.

The owners had moved into their new home little more than a month ago, on December 31.

Some weeks ago there was a similar occurrence in the Rednersville area, when a woman was forced to flee a new dwelling.

Whether we live in homes that are old or new, vigilance is always necessary to guard against the threat of fire.

Cochrane MP Out on A Limb Again

Liberals, Not NDP, In Driver's Seat Says Ralph Stewart

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The way the government has been tailoring its legislation and even its votes in the Commons to suit the New Democrats what Ralph Stewart, Liberal MP for Northern Ontario's Cochrane riding said the other day in the House had to be sheer heresy.

But there it is on the Hansard record for all to read, although for some unknown reason, few seemed to spot it, and those who did said little or nothing about it.

Mr. Stewart was talking about what he called "the kind of games we are playing up to now" in the Commons with the Liberals and the NDP holding hands to keep themselves in office. In the days when this was most called for, largely during the regime of Leslie Frost, the policy of government was non-interference.

With a different attitude the planning problem at least might have been overcome.

And eventually, of course, government has to resort to a form of force anyway.

Of the other areas concerned the inequality of revenues was the most the round service. Some dormitory towns particularly were hard hit.

Then the restricted assessment together with the much greatly increased support payments being given by the province were much to meet the problems.

Then when we move into the service fields there will always be an argument as to just how much of an improvement, if any, regional government actually is.

With police, for example, it is to be suspected that the large forces we now have in many of the regions are really not, as compared with the smaller, more intimate bodies.

And so on down the line.

But need it does seem as though it is too late. You can't see the system being reversed. But it is much the case here as in our community life inevitably is disappearing.

Task of the Mailmen

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am very disconcerted with the citizens of Belleville in regard to the Postal strike. It seems that a majority of people took a very cynical and selfish attitude towards the letter-carriers union. I am sure most of our good citizens had voiced their opinions on how say from friends, or statements made on a local, open-line radio show.

It amazes me to think that so many people take for granted that on most occasions they can expect mail delivery to their door. Yet, when the letter carriers want better working conditions they shout up and down and insult the unions' efforts to give their men what they've asked for, having worked for a year without a contract.

A point was made that the old-age pensioners depend on their cheques in order to survive. Yet, it is these same old folks the letter-carriers depend on their jobs to survive also?

I cannot understand the indignation displayed by our citizens over the strike. It's a shame they don't seem to be more concerned with the unemployment figures of Belleville. Maybe the answer is in pocket book nerve and not of that causes as much uproar as the postal strike's pocket line had the government been forced to do so for the jobless in this city.

In closing I wish that all of the citizens would take a little time to think of the mail delivery they take for granted so much next time they open their mailboxes or get a letter.

Regional Government: Some Still Have Doubts

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

In retrospect, as mentioned here the other day, one can see that if there had been sufficient foresight perhaps the regional government program which has destroyed so many of our communities might not have been necessary.

A need for good planning was the number one reason for starting the program. Then along with this there was a need for better sharing of revenues, and more efficiency in some services such as sewage and police.

If there had been more of a disposition towards action on the part of the province the question of planning quite well might have been met.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

25 YEARS AGO

February 5, 1926

The Thurlow township Junior Farmers and Junior Institute met at Cannifton when officers for the new year were elected. New president for the Junior Farmers is Ralph Swan and Allen Lott as vice president, Roy Treverton, secretary and Howard Elliott, assistant. Directors are Bill Leeming, Bruce McPherson, Earl Martin Jr., and Arthur Marshall with George Cherry as auditor.

There is a distinct possibility of there being a Queen's Own parade next Christmas. Although the festive season is hardly here it is under arrange for one year, the Retail Merchants' section of the Chamber of Commerce are deeply involved in plans for the coming Yule, under the chairmanship of Bill Wills.

February 9, 1931

Speaking to an open meeting of the Women's Canadian Club in the Sunday School room of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the well known soldier-traveller, Major H. G. Scott, former British Intelligence member and now liaison officer with the Dept. of National Defence and United Nations armies, declared here in a brilliant address that the Victorian national outlook had flung the greatest challenge and finest opportunity to a great race. This challenge is being answered by Anglo-Saxons who are now parliamentary record, and get the picture of a rather unorthodox sort of Liberal.

Among his parliamentary exploits he:

* Blasted Industry Trade and Commerce staffs both at home and abroad as "weak, handkerchief-in-sleeve dandies" ashamed to be known as salesmen, pouting that they're not "common peddlers," but "commissioners" if you please.
* Called for former State Secretary Pelletier's resignation on grounds that he had "loaded the department with hacks and spooks, weirds and beards, Maoists, communists and every variety of radical out on the revolutionary lunatic fringe."
* Faulted what he called "the philosophy of this government in subscribing to the crazy proposition that everybody's free to do his own thing at the taxpayer's expense."
* Said he'd vote — and much more — strong stuff.

But of this Stewart is a two-time winner at the polls with good majorities, and he "speaks" handkerchief-in-sleeve dandies are ashamed to be known as salesmen, pouting that they're not "common peddlers," but "commissioners" if you please.

Called for former State Secretary Pelletier's resignation on grounds that he had "loaded the department with hacks and spooks, weirds and beards, Maoists, communists and every variety of radical out on the revolutionary lunatic fringe."

Minimum Wage or Poverty?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

We note the recent raise in the minimum wage, but is it enough to meet the needs of today's life? I don't think so.

On a 40 hour week, $1.00 per hour will allow a pay packet of $72. Try to head calculating and suggests that, after deductions, this will allow a take-home of approximately $60.

The minimum wage scale does offer protection of a sort. It gives the unskilled labor a break, although a very small one. It also gives industry a governmental-sponsored right to take advantage of labor and keep rates down. Especially in non-organized operations where the principle can be 'take it or leave it'.

We have a vast number of workers who, for one reason or another, have to take it. They can't afford to leave it.

I don't think the minimum scale is realistic. In view of today's costs all factors of a rough $60. per week can mean an awful lot of bean meals in the week especially for a family with only one wage earner. Pants for Joe or a dress for Susie are hard to come by. It also means the entertainment of moonlighting — a practice we have been trying to curb. Even poorly-paid have to get it somewhere and a lot of the time tend to resort to one or more part-time jobs. This is unfair all around and should not be necessary.

I remember one plant with a minimum wage of $2.80 per hour as far back as 1947. This for pushing a broom or what have you. Of course, this was through union negotiating but the point is it offered a liveable wage.

Industry's cost figure, in most cases, can afford more and still take care of the stockholder and the profit sheet. This is indicated by plants whose contracts are union negotiated.

There will always be unskilled labor with which to be a minimum wage but it seems wrong to feel good about legislation which keeps them at the poverty level.

LIP Grant Is Denied

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I was indeed sorry to learn that winter has been unkind to the people of Madoc in particular, also, by suggestion, that it has been unkind to the people of Belleville. Plans to build a Hastings Medical Centre with the aid of a LIP grant have been turned down by the federal government.

At first glance it might appear that this refusal represents a callous attitude on the part of the government. But let us look at it a little closer.

According to the newspaper report a group of volunteers was incorporated to raise the cash needed for the erection of this centre. Approximately $100,000 or $22,000 on hand, with the promise of another $2,000 in pledges and donations, a total of $24,000. Application for a LIP grant for construction resulted in estimates ranging from $65,000 to $75,000. Where did they feel could build the centre on their own for? $65,000 or $75,000 for a LIP grant for $17,000.

Right here is where someone the group chose to ignore all hence rules of regulations inherent in LIP, agricultural and general. The purpose of LIP is to provide work for persons who are "registered as unemployed".

This group of volunteers were very disturbed, and quite disappointed. I myself would be disappointed if I were one of them, but I would be disappointed and very angry if I spent the government's money to involve themselves to be conned into giving me money under false circumstances. What we are looking at here is a project that is not needed (or else it's of almost paid for anyway) that is not eligible for the conveniences of the medical profession (at no cost to them) which will cost members of any reduced costs to the profession.

Mr. Watson has indicated that regardless of a LIP grant the project will be finished anyway. This indicates the group has money, or at least access to it. So why should the public be taxed to build the hall?

If it appears the public purse is likely to be milked again, I, for one, would protest. I will also be writing to Mr. Mr. Starr, Mr. Diefenbaker and any other source that comes to mind, in I read it in this paper, we are about to be played once again for suckers.

Volunteer Drivers

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to publicly thank those who responded so quickly to a request from the Volunteer Bureau for drivers to take elderly citizens to the Post Office to cast their votes on Monday morning the recent postal strike. Over 50 cars in all took duty and the next to drive those who were unable to vote. This is one aspect of community service that is always needed in a city and I hope we have no cur at their disposal and can provide work for all.

So kindness and courtesy of others to

CP News Roundup

Churches Displease Indians

SADDLE LAKE, Alta. (CP) — Action by the United and Anglican churches in support of the rights of an Indian woman who married a non-Indian in Alberta has resulted in the chief and council of the Saddle Lake Indian reserve asking the United Church to remove its minister here.

Chief Joe Cardinal said Thursday a special meeting of the council Wednesday approved a resolution asking that the United Church restrict its co-reserve activities to religion and not to "fool around" with the Lavell case.

Jeanette Corbiere Lavell, an Ojibwa woman from Toronto, lost her treaty rights when she married and the federal Indian affairs department, through the justice department, is contesting an Ontario Supreme Court ruling that the Indian Act contravenes the Canadian Bill of Rights and discriminates against Indian women.

The case, to be heard later this month in the Supreme Court of Canada, has become the focus of attention by Indians across the country who consider the Ontario ruling a direct threat to the Indian Act under which they receive certain rights and special status.

Both the Anglican and United churches have indicated support for Mrs. Lavell while the Roman Catholic Church has remained silent on the issue.

Chief Cardinal said there was considerable concern among the 76 Indian families who attend the United Church on the reserve that the Roman Catholic Indians believe the United Church's stand reflected their views.

"This could cause a division among our people."

Officials of the Alberta conference of the United Church, to whom the request was made, were not available for comment.

Plan Jails

TORONTO (CP) — Construction will begin on two new jails in the east and west ends of Metropolitan Toronto this year to replace part of the Don Jail, described as shabby, congested and poorly lit by an Ontario Supreme Court grand jury.

Robbed Nude

TORONTO (CP) — A naked man was delighted Wednesday night when the car he was driving was stopped by police.

He was en route to the police station anyhow to report that clothes and wallet had been stolen by a woman he met downtown and whose house he had been visiting.

A patrol car had been sent to the general area after a resident had heard shouts for help.

Massage Parlor Ruled Bawdy House

TORONTO (CP) — Two women who operated a massage parlor here were called "nothing but prostitutes" by Judge Crawford Guest Thursday.

He convicted Jane Brooks, 38, and Theresa Kalbfarz, 28, both of Toronto, on charges of keeping a common bawdy house, fined them each $1,000 and placed them on six months' probation.

In sentencing the women, Judge Guest said the massages they gave consisted of "massaging male sexual organs to bring about masturbation."

"Evidence shows this was a very lucrative operation and the massage parlor was nothing but a front, a red herring across the trail," the judge said.

THOMAS WELLS

Curbs Remain

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Thomas Wells reaffirmed Thursday the strictness of Ontario's conflict-of-interest legislation following advice from the government's legal advisers.

A. G. Gillespie, education director of the Metropolitan Toronto school board, had asked for clarification after five trustees found themselves faced with apparent conflicts of interest.

In a letter to Mr. Gillespie, the minister said a trustee may not discuss or vote on money matters in an employment contracts—individual or collective—between the trustee's school board and a relative living at his or her home.

Besides money matters, Mr. Wells said "there may be other issues in the course of negotiations which fall into the same category" and trustees should exercise good judgment.

May Move

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says foreign charter airlines who would normally fly out of Toronto have threatened to move their base to Niagara Falls, N.Y., because the Canadian Transport Commission (CTC) has dallied too long in setting charter prices to Europe.

By summer there may be 10 airlines flying out of Niagara Falls carrying 300,000 people, the newspaper says.

Counter Plan

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — A counter-proposal for a regional government area was presented at a public meeting Thursday night to keep Cobourg and Port Hope as the centre of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham.

Cobourg, Port Hope and surrounding areas are opposing inclusion in an Oshawa region, announced by the province in December.

Consultant John Hubicki, hired by Cobourg to work out the plan, told 300 persons it calls for six municipalities in the region.

Newcastle would include Clarke Township, Port Hope would include Hope Township, Cobourg the rest of Hamilton Township, and Colborne would include Cramahe and Haldimand Townships.

The plan would cover a population of 85,000 and increase to 138,000 by the year 200. Mr. Hubicki said.

Welfare Cut

TORONTO (CP) — The relaxing of unemployment insurance regulations, which enabled people to receive those benefits instead of welfare, has resulted in Metropolitan Toronto spending about $6 million less than the estimated figure for welfare assistance in 1972.

CN Deficit

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian National Railways incurred a $35-million deficit in 1972, after paying more than $20 million in debt charges, a spokesman for the Crown railways said Thursday.

The deficit is part of CN's operating loss, which was $54.8 million in 1972, after debt charges totalling $68.3 million.

Hooker Stays

TORONTO (CP) — Xaviera Hollander—best selling author of The Happy Hooker—has been allowed to stay in Canada at least until Feb. 26.

A senior immigration official will review her case then in the light of further evidence about her alleged conviction, in the United States for prostitution.

Israeli Influence in Africa Curbed by Libyan Oil Money

TRIPOLI, Libya (Reuter) — Armed with huge revenues from its oil exports to the West, Libya is reported to be intensifying a financial and diplomatic campaign to eliminate Israeli influence in black Africa.

Five countries—Uganda, Chad, Niger, Congo and Malawi—severed relations with Israel and diplomatic sources suggest more countries, especially in western Africa, may also cut their ties.

Libya is tight-lipped about the money it slips to those countries which have broken with Israel but one diplomat in Tripoli said Israel is fighting a losing battle.

"If Israel has the money and the know-how, Libya is in possession of these and other important elements which Israel does not, ... Islam and being African," he said.

Libya started to chase Israelis from the continent shortly after the 1969 revolution that brought head of state Muammar Kaddafi to power.

Libya pledged full support to African liberation movements and expressed readiness to help African countries economically.

The big break came in Uganda as former president Milton Obote was ousted by President Idi Amin. The two presidents—both Moslems—quickly developed friendly relations.

Seven days after the first Ugandan ambassador was installed in Tripoli, Amin closed the Israeli embassy in Kampala on March 30, 1972.

Diplomatic sources said this Libyan action had a profound effect on other African countries which had problems similar to those faced by Uganda.

In December, Libya made a $3 million gift to Moslems in Uganda. Libyan a n d Egyptian experts now are working on development projects there.

Chad was a more spectacular success. In August, 1971, President Francois Tombalbaye accused Libya of encouraging Moslem rebels in Chad and severed relations with Tripoli. The relations were soon restored through the good offices of President Hamani Diori of Niger. Chad severed its relations with Israel last November and signed an agreement of friendship and co-operation with Libya.

104 Years Old

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Joseph Deason, oldest living resident of this city, is 104 today, but says he has no special recipe for longevity.

"I worked, had a big family and made my home," says Mr. Deason, 10 of whose children are living. His wife died in 1950.

With a son-in-law, Mr. Deason still lives in the house he built in 1905.

Hospital Said Running Obstetricians' Monopoly

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Nixon said Thursday North York General Hospital's consistent refusal to allow more obstetricians on its staff has assured its eight practising obstetricians an annual salary of $71,000.

He said the hospital is operating as a closed shop to ensure profits for the only few on its staff.

He made the statement after learning of another delay in the case of Dr. Jack Sheriton who has been charged privileges at the hospital five times in eight years. His case was to be heard Feb. 20 by the Ontario Hospital Appeal Board but has been postponed.

The hospital says recent mail strikes in Toronto have caused delays in the presentation of its case.

Mr. Nixon said:

"Because of (the eight doctor's) monopoly, their charges for delivery vary from $255 to $700, well above the Ontario Medical Association fee of $175. It is apparently impossible to have the service of a specialist for the recommended OMA price.

Taxes Cut

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Prince Edward Island government presented Islanders with a little relief Thursday night in a budget for the 1973-74 fiscal year that included a decrease in the rate of real property taxation.

Post Office Late Delivering Own Ad

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — The subject of the Canada Post Office advertisement was how to speed up delivery by using the new postal code.

The advertisement was to be mailed last Thursday in the nearby community of Allston, where it was to be used in the weekly Allston Herald.

Unfortunately, t h e Herald's deadline night publishing deadline came and went without arrival of the advertisement.

The newspaper left a quarter page almost blank except for this brief explanation:

"This space is empty because Canada Post Office did not get the material for their own advertisement here by Tuesday night, although it was mailed last Thursday by first class mail."

David Willis, newspaper editor, said the advertisement turned up Wednesday.

And, he noted the address did not include Allston's new postal code.

The first question you're going to ask is, what is it?

The second. How is it going to simplify my life?

O.K., to answer the first part. In any conventional ignition system the mechanical breaker points may be the cause of some problems. Knowing this, Chrysler engineers developed a solid-state electronic system (all 6 & 8 cyl. engines) that eliminates the need for breaker points and condenser, and their resulting maintenance headaches.

Now for what it can do for your car and your wallet.

For starters your car is going to start better at mileage levels when mechanical systems normally start to deteriorate.

DODGE BUILDS IN THE SOLID DIFFERENCE

What will it mean to your pocketbook? Because there are no points to wear out, no condenser to replace, the cost of tune-ups drops considerably.

New front disc brakes, (except Dart with 6 cylinder engines), unibody construction, torsion-bar suspension (except Colt) and new emission control systems are among the impressive list.

Innovative engineering plus extra care in every detail, make us believe your new Dodge is the best Dodge we've ever built.

Extra Care in Engineering... it makes the difference.

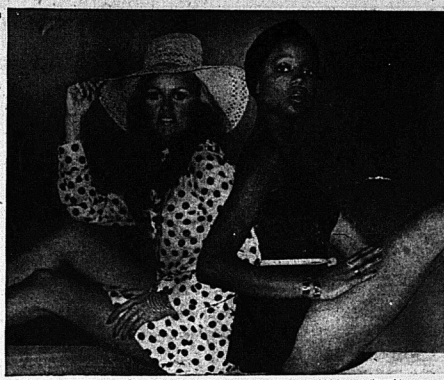
IODE Celebrates Seventy-Third Birthday

February 13 marks the 73rd birthday of IODE. Founded in Canada in 1900, the IODE has chapters in every province and Territory.

The initials IODE mean many things. To Indian and Eskimo mothers in isolated villages the IODE's gift of layettes and layette means a better start for a new baby; to the children of the Middle East, Hong Kong and Korea, IODE means new clothing, warm blankets, powdered milk and x-ray equipment. Canadian and Commonwealth students can receive IODE scholarships, bursaries and special awards. Through IODE Canadian and West Indian school children receive books for the school library, sports equipment and teaching aids; Ugandan refugees arriving in Canada are welcomed and given a helping hand in a strange country.



Competition was keen among Canadian scholars for the IODE War Memorial scholarships with 86 students applying; fifteen scholarships for post-graduate study were awarded with a total value of $56,000.

Approximately $1-million is raised and spent annually and in addition IODE members give hours of voluntary service to hospitals and institutions, "Head Start" and Safety programs.

Junior chapter members have been busy making and buying toys and supplies for their new project 1973 — Toys for Northern Tots.

A float depicting the national scope of the Order was entered in the Grey Cup Parade in Hamilton, Ontario — a new venture for IODE.

In many communities IODE members will celebrate the Order's 73rd birthday with IODE Week. They will proclaim their chapter projects and actively seek new members. Any Canadian woman or girl is eligible for membership. There is a special category of membership for women interested in the work of the IODE who are not yet Canadian citizens.

'Games Night' Celebrated

Harvey Bailey came close to pinning the tail on the donkey at the Games Night for the Quinte White Cane Club held at the Recreation Centre.

Floyd Reid presided and Wilma Hawley read the birthdays for January and February. The birthday song was sung for Mel Buckingham, Roy Payne, Earl Chapman and Pat Barwick.

Women of Tabernacle United Church served refreshments. Mel Buckingham expressed thanks.

Conveners reports were given by Mrs. E. Anderson, Mrs. A. Sine and Mrs. H. Richards. Mrs. D. Frost reported for the Hall committee.

Cupid Strikes

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — (AP) Merchant seaman Gottfried Brisman went ashore on a Friday to buy a scarf for his mother and was so smitten by the salesgirl that he married her on Monday. Her girl - friend and one of Brinkman's shipmates, who met at a reception party, also decided to splice — but a bit later.

Clothes Become 'Livable' But Demure and Feminine

NEW YORK (CP) — Victor Costa, designer for Suzy Perrette, hit the dress fashion nail on the head when he said he has "avoided the kind of dressing-do which makes a dress look great on a model strolling down a runway but impossible to handle sitting down on a squashy sofa, climbing stairs or getting into a taxi."

For too long women have put up with just such clothes or else have fallen into the do-your-own-thing clutter that masqueraded as fashion for several seasons.

This spring there's a definite change in the air. You still have a choice. Costa says you may look demure in a navy double-breasted dress or daring in a backless halter dress in flowered crepe. But everything is soft, feminine and in good taste. Good taste is back again. Ladies are ladies, without feeling obliged to apologize.

There's a definite influence of Molyneux and Mainbocher. As fashion expert, Eleanor Lambert reported at the recent press showings. Capt. Edward Molyneux was the famous London-born designer who, in 1919, opened a salon in Paris and over the years gained worldwide fame for clothes based on simplicity and understatement. It was he who made the dress a real wardrobe item, to stand on its own. Mainbocher, born in Chicago, opened his Paris salon in 1930. In 1940 he was responsible, among other firsts, for the revolutionary unstructured basic dress.

All the designers have their spring 1973 favorite dress silhouette but simplicity is the keynote. As Marty Sarocco, designing for Mollie Parnis Boutique, says: "The most feminine women in the room this spring will be the one who looks the least overdressed." So the daytime dress story includes various versions of the simple shirtwaist dress, the slim shift dress and the chemise, the clinging sweater dress and the two-piece dress with suit overtones.

New looks and details in spring dresses include: elasticized waistlines; sleeves; cream color; monocromatic effects; two-piece styles; unconstructed jackets and unbottoned, turned-back cuffs.

Dress silhouettes and new details are spilling from the spring collections. Include Oscar de la Renta's short-sleeved yellow cotton shirtdress, with big patch pockets and open-collar neckline. John Anthony's monochromatic shirtwaisters in a cherry red sheer voile pleated shirtdress and matching long scarf tie. In Toronto, Pat McDonagh Associates have made the shirtwaist one of their two dress styles. The other is a soft blouse with pleated skirt, in printed sheers. Pat's top shirtdress is in gabardine, short-sleeved and buttoned.

So for spring you should find scores of girlish shirtwaists, chemises and even softly flowing tents. It is to be a demure spring, pastel pretty and devoid of all those ethnic influences and gypsy rebels of a few years ago. Whether the designers' interest in dresses will actually spill over to the pants-loving public is another matter. But the fact that designers and the ready-to-wear houses are making dresses to the spring hilt.

Red Cross Loans Crutches

MARMORA — Crutches were the most common article lent to persons in the Marmora, Springbrook, Deloro and Marmora Township area during the year 1972 by the Sickroom Equipment Loan Service of the Red Cross Society Marmora Branch.

During the annual report, it was also noted that wheel chairs and walkers were the next most often loaned.

One wheel chair was donated to the Leach Cupboard by a generous man who appreciated the Society's assistance when he needed it.

Egg Quickies Noted For Special Hot Lunches

Young people from toddlers to teens benefit from hot lunches served with the proper nutrition in eggs. The following suggestions may be quickly prepared by mother or a responsible youngster for that rush lunch when the school crowd bursts into the kitchen.

EGG-IN-A-HOLE

Use single slices of bread, or use cheese sandwiches. Cut a circle with a coke cutter from the centre of the required number of bread slices or sandwiches. Place bread and circles on lightly buttered moderately hot frying pan or grill. Break an egg into each hole, season as desired and cook until underside of egg is lightly browned. Turn and cook other side to desired degree. Serve hot with catsup, chili sauce or pickle relish and a crisp salad for a quickly prepared satisfying lunch.

"SOUPER" EGGS

Heat undiluted vegetable or other soup in a frying pan until bubbly. Lower heat and carefully slip 3 or 4 eggs into soup. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and any desired herb seasoning. Cover pan with lid and cook over low heat until eggs are set to desired degree. Serve on buttered toast or split tea biscuits with Waldorf salad (apple, celery and walnuts).

Good Buys in Utility Birds

Supermarkets occasionally feature Utility Grade roasting chickens and turkeys at attractive prices, lower than for Grades A or B. Food shoppers may hesitate to buy this bargain because they think it is an inferior product. Food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food, say this appearance is the only area in which the Utility Grade is inferior.

Utility Grade chicken or turkey has broken skin or some part, such as the leg or wing, has been accidentally removed during processing. These birds must qualify for Canada Grade B and some may be Canada Grade A, the best grade commonly available.

The Utility Grade bird, although less than perfect in appearance, is well fleshed and makes good eating for family meals. This grade is ideal for turkey or chicken casseroles, sandwiches, or salads.

Ann Landers

Ann's Readers Shocked By Her Dancing Advice

Dear Readers: All of you out there who have been dancing cheek-to-cheek, breast-to-chest, belly-to-belly and knee-to-knee —stop it immediately. I am changing my advice. I told a husband who had criticized his wife for this "indecent" posture that he ought to clean up his mind—that obviously he considered dancing the vertical expression of a horizontal idea.

From Beaumont, Texas: Your advice to the Houston man on dancing cheek-to-cheek, breast-to-chest, belly-to-belly and knee-to-knee was idiotic. Most guys will get as close as they can and need to be pushed back a little. A married woman who doesn't reserve the close stuff for her husband is asking for trouble—and she usually gets it. —Let Down

Omaha: The kind of dancing described by the man in Houston is called "slow dancing" by teen-agers and has done more to bond them up, rein than the dance Pill. Your answer was a calla. shocker. You are showing. Annie old girl. Get with it or turn in your suit.—High School Dance Chaperone

From San Jose: You really bombed out in your answer to the Houston Husband. Dancing cheek to cheek can excite people and anyone who doesn't know it is sick or naive. Or both.—Seen Plenty

From Des Moines: My grandmother used to say, "When two people are dancing, if you can't throw a cat between them they are sure to end up in the hay loft." Please change your advice, Ann Landers. A lot of people who read your column keep the clippings of their favorites in the family library, next to the Bible.—Corny But Hip

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a busy man. From the minute he walks into the door at night until he falls asleep he is either receiving a phone call or making one.

I work hard at preparing attractive meals. I've broken my neck trying to please him in every way known to man with the children. We can't even get through grace without a telephone interruption.

I have begged my husband to get an unlisted phone. He says he will not. I suspect this problem became so irritating last week that I gave up. I told my husband that from now on he can help himself, cafeteria style, and take his dinner to the table by the telephone. He took my suggestion. Now the phone rings and I get no dinner. I feel guilty and I need some advice.—Jangled Nerves

Dear Jangled: How sad that your husband can't find 20 minutes a day for his family. Of course he is a severely neurotic and he has a pathetic set of priorities. Too bad you blew up, honey. Invite him back to the table and make the best of it. If you're smart you could profit from counselling, he could, but of course he will never be able to find the time—or the cents it takes. Then he'll have plenty of time—for regrets, self-recrimination and kicking himself in the pants.

Dear Dear Abby: What is the proper etiquette for a wedding reception? Should the bride and groom receive the guests in the receiving line? Should they circulate among the guests? Should they sit at the head table? Should they do all of the above?—Mrs. Know-It-All

Dear Mrs. Know-It-All: Yes.

Dear Cora: Consider it changed.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Is every nagging wife unbearable?

NO, not the wife who nags as a matter of course. This might be her form of protest against the "lack of the genes" that made her a woman and her husband a man. Don't be surprised that she is not happy as a woman and a wife; but she may resent it that the determination of sex is completely out of her hands as far as individual is involved. She nags to signal her unconscious disapproval; her husband may misread his by heeding her out of context.

Are teenagers too busy for hobbies?

NO; and many of the busiest teenagers do have hobbies. On the other hand, some adolescents who are always complaining that "there's nothing to do around this dull town" are those that they have too much homework, dates, etc. to take up a hobby. Usually, these are those who look upon a hobby as something to be avoided like the plague as a sort of snickfest; they don't realize that a hobby can help a youngster find what he wants to do with his life.

Could a windfall prove disastrous?

YES; just ask lottery or sweepstakes winners how a sudden flood of money affected their lives, and you would be surprised at the number who will say "It had never occurred to me before." Actually, the never-ending appeals for handouts, the changed life-styles were in the majority. Not unphenomenal were the divorces or separations that their windfall had upset personal values to such an extent that the big pile of money was the straw that broke the camel's back.

Local Seeks Woman Chairman

TORONTO (CP) — Labor Minister Fern Guindon has been asked to appoint a woman as chairman of an arbitration board involved in a dispute between Ottawa Civic Hospital and the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE).

The request was contained in a letter from Beverly McCauley, president of CUPE Ottawa Local 208.

The union "requests in strongest terms you end the long standing discriminatory practice of appointing only males as chairmen of arbitration boards" under the Ontario Hospital Disputes Arbitration Act, the letter said.

"There are capable, qualified women who are ready available."

Gilbert Levine, research director for CUPE, said Wednesday no women has ever been appointed as chairman of an arbitration board in Ontario.

However, Laurie Sabia of St. Catharines is now acting as chairman of a board dealing with a grievance relating to maternity leave involving CUPE and the regional government of Niagara Falls. Her choice was by voluntary agreement of the parties.

The Ottawa dispute, involving about 1,200 employees, is over the terms of a new contract. The previous one expired Dec. 31, 1972.

CUPE says the names of four women chairmen have been submitted but each has been rejected.

Children Hide In TV World

TORONTO (CP) — Television has weaned a new breed of children who, when faced with failure, may withdraw from reality and seek comfort in the tool-of-emotional world, a New York producer said here Wednesday.

Samuel Gibbon, senior producer at the Children Television Workshop which launched Sesame Street, said a baby from its earliest days is drawn to the light and sound of the television set.

He spoke to the second International Symposium of Learning Problems sponsored by the ministry of education and the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education.

A child sees a simpler world. The people speak more cheerly, often in mood-setting music. The child soaks up the stereotypes and learns to anticipate their actions, Mr. Gibbon said.

He said the child experiences daily two worlds—a blend of dreams, and fantasy which create a puzzle about what reality is.

"Teachers who are over 30 are faced with a different child than the children they knew a few years ago," he said.

Dr. Vivian Horner, a New York professor of education and research director for the Children's Television Workshop, said television can model behavior.

"Things that happen on TV in the United States seem to gain some super-credibility."

It is on the basis that television education programs can be made to work, she said. "You can set the child up."

Dr. Vera Nowakowski of the Ontario Educational Communications Authority said television will be used more frequently in the classroom.

It will be the teacher's responsibility to share in what the TV picture is only part of viewing, she told the symposium.

Square Dancers Hold Elections

Square dancing is the same but elections were the game at the Trenton Pairs and Squares January 30 get together.

The following are the new executive for 1973: president, Jack and Muriel Fleming; secretary, Lionel and Janice Bovay; treasurer, Jim and Gloria Lawrence; social conveners, Ray and Anne Smith.

Upcoming activities are a fun trip to Port Credit on February 24 and a St. Valentine Party at Ameliasburgh Hall on February 23.

Regular club dancing is held Tuesday evening and class dancing Thursday evening, under the direction of caller — Ernie Dempster, at College St. School, Trenton.

Visitors and fellow dancers are welcome.

The Experts Say Refrigerators Efficient When Instructions Read

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadians, on the average, purchase a new refrigerator every 14 years—and hardly ever bother to read the instruction booklet.

"We provide a use and care booklet with each of our models and experience a high percentage of it," Barr Hall, product manager for Canadian General Electric, said in an interview.

He went on to outline some of the ways of making more efficient use of the refrigerator and freezer compartment.

"Housewives can save time with the groceries and throw open the refrigerator and freezer doors while they put them away," he said. "While the doors are open for five to 10 minutes, all the cold air comes rushing out."

He recommended turning the refrigerator up to maximum for a few hours to compensate for this loss and to facilitate faster freezing of the newly-purchased food.

"But don't leave it that way for more than eight or 10 hours because this puts a strain on the compressor," he said.

Odors in a refrigerator are basically caused by food that is not wrapped properly or by spills that have not been cleaned up.

Mr. Hall said food to be frozen should be tightly wrapped in freezer-weight foil to avoid freezer burns.

Spills should be wiped up immediately, particularly in the freezer compartment where they can freeze. The whole unit would then have to be defrosted to remove the spilled food.

Mr. Hall warned against using a wet hand with a wet cloth to remove freezer spills, particularly in frost-free freezer compartments where the temperature is always about zero and the wet hand may stick to the cold metal.

Large plastic bags full of frozen vegetables such as peas can be a hazard because they tend to get ripped open by sharp edges and the peas can spill down the back of the freezer compartment into the fan and up in the evaporator coil.

He also warned against using sharp objects to chip off ice when defrosting the freezer compartment. These objects can slip and puncture the aluminum lining and the whole unit is shot-wreath.

"Once you puncture those tubes, you've ruined your refrigerator."

As for frozen foods, Mr. Hall said that fresh vegetables and fruit frozen straight from the garden can provide better taste and nutrition than canned or preserved fruit and vegetables.

"When you want to freeze room-temperature foods, space them around the freezer so that the cold air circulates and freezes them quickly."

Barbecues have a tendency to buy and freeze a lot of bread. He described this as wasteful use of valuable freezer space unless one possesses a chest freezer.

Successful Living
Play the Field—Be Sure—
Marriage Is Commitment

By DORIS CLARK

"But why won't you marry me?" the gentle voice pleaded. "There isn't anyone else, is there?"

"Oh, Marty', the girl sighed, "there must be!"

I dare say Miss Marty seems too true to be funny. So many young people hang on to whomever comes along because they are afraid there won't be anyone else.

The best answer I can think of is to wait long enough, mix well enough, grow mature enough that you aren't committing yourself for life to the wrong person.

* * *

Dear Doris: Please tell me how to have better communications and get down to the nitty gritty with one's partner.

I have had a gentleman friend to whom I feel committed for six years but I still don't know whether I'm coming or going. We are in our 40's. He wants a fine person but when it comes to talking about "it" he puts on a defensive attitude and it is difficult to just chat. — Dumb Dora.

Dear Dora: A defensive attitude, did you say? I'd say read the signs and either accept him for a life-time friend, and no more, or look for greener pastures.

My guess is he does not want the responsibility of a wife. You are making him uncomfy just as it is. However, just to consult a shy or secretive thing detained him from popping the question long ago. I'm sending along the 20 useful leaflets, "On Being Taken For Granted" and "How to Suffer in Silence!"

Somebody has to start first, when it comes to breaking what my English aunt called "old fuddy duddy" ...

* * *

Dear Doris: Faithful Fan was looking for "Lonesome Valley." This is a favorite song at children's camps. The kids in my class loved to sing it before the bell began the day's work. I am supplying both the melody and the words. — Happy Man.

Dear Doris: This is for Faithful Fan. She asked for a poem on an old Kingston Trio record. I found it here are words in the song "The Reverend Mr. Black." When the Reverend is bullied and struck by a lumberjack, he turns the other cheek and says:

"You got to walk that lonesome valley.
You got to walk it by yourself."

Dear Mary Linda, Mrs. P.C. N.F., E. B., J.V., K.G., Mrs. F. K. and another faithful Reader:

Thank you, all of you. We now have the complete song, which consists of three verses. We have forwarded the copy to Faithful Fan. He even have one reader who is willing to give her the vocal record she has of "Lonesome Valley". Who says people aren't generous and helpful? Dear Readers, you never let me down!

Winter Works Grants Await Okay by House

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberals and Conservatives tangled in the Commons over federal financial policy Thursday while the provinces lined up waiting for delayed winter works money.

Roland Comtois, parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister John Turner, said continued debate was delaying already-late winter works payments to the provinces, who need them to relieve unemployment.

New Brunswick and Nova Scotia were waiting for $3 million each, Newfoundland for $5 million and Manitoba would show up this week for its share.

Meanwhile, the Senate gave third reading to a bill, passage of which released checks for about 49,000 unemployment insurance claimants.

The bill removed the $800 million ceiling on the amount the government may advance the Unemployment Insurance Commission, which government said ran out of money at midnight Wednesday after senators balked at quick passage of the bill, passed Tuesday by the Commons.

The cheques were mailed a day later than scheduled.

The Commons debate Thursday kept its origins in a Conservative procedural victory Wednesday when they won the right to debate item by item the miscellaneous estimates committee report on $18.2 billion in extra funds sought by the government.

The government had hoped to have the report accepted quickly so it could introduce legislation to appropriate the $1.29 billion.

The first item the Conservatives focussed on was $250 million for a proposed three-year winter works program.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) led the attack with a motion to restrict the allocation to $75 million covering only 1973-74.

The government proposal is to spread the $250 million over three years—$75 million this winter, $120 million next winter and $55 million in 1975-76—but to get approval now for the whole amount.

The proposed program would operate year-round, providing employment assistance for provincial and municipal projects.

Thursday's debate, while centring on winter works, also touched on matters as disparate as state of the country's sewers, mentioned by Adrien Lambert (DC—Bellechasse).

New Democratic and Social Credit members were critical in their comments in the tide of Conservative rhetoric. Mr. Lambert and other Social Credit members wanted more money for winter works—$250 million was only a drop in the bucket.

Harold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said the program should be geared to benefit small communities as well as large centres.

The Conservatives indicated they intend to press the debate, the latter item in the report, including a request for $464 million.

The government wants this amount to cover provincial general's warrants issued while the House was not in session to keep the unemployment insurance account solvent.

Another personal, financial matter was touched on as Revenue Minister Robert Stanbury who said there might be an extension of the April 30 deadline for filing income tax returns.

Agriculture Federation Splits Over Marketing of Feed Grain

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Agriculture (CFA) ended its four-day annual meeting Thursday with agreement on many farm issues and sharp division on one.

Central sore spot was a dispute between Quebec and the Prairies over feed grain marketing.

A 13-member delegation from l'Union des Producteurs Agricoles (UPA) walked out of the final session after rejecting a temporary formula aimed at levelling feed grain costs between the Prairies and central Canada. They bowed grudgingly to the formula Wednesday.

The union, which represents all 32,000 Quebec farmers, said the formula, upon reconsideration, would make their costs for barley, oats and feed wheat equal to the export price.

That price often is more than what is paid for feed by Prairie livestock men—the price Quebecers argue is the proper one for them.

Westerners supported the formula, but with some reluctance. Why, many argued, should feed grain be shipped east under a controlled price when it could be used more efficiently for livestock feed on the Prairies.

Despite that, all agreed that a healthy country-wide livestock industry is important and that central Canadians should pay a realistic price for feed. The UPA walked out over the interpretation of a realistic price.

But a Quebec union spokesman said the move was made primarily to embarrass the CFA into solving the feed grain question. The UPA would return if the issue was resolved to their satisfaction.

Francois Dagenais, economist for the UPA, said the group left the meeting to protest that "there is a free market for livestock in Canada, but a controlled market for grain.

"We want equity. That's it."

The wheat board now sells Prairie feed grain in central Canada at prices competitive with imported U.S. corn. The rate, like international prices, are often higher than on the Prairies.

Mr. Dagneais added, however, that the UPA would continue to pay dues to the national CFA—Canada's biggest farm pressure group—and that the Quebec union will "probably be back next year." A general union meeting in "about two months" would decide.

CFA President Charles Munro, re-elected to his fifth one-year term in the $18,000-a-year position, described the Quebec move as a power play.

The feed grain problem had been on "top of the plate" at every CFA annual meeting for the last nine years. It would never be solved by farmers themselves. Unfortunately, the final answer was up to the government.

Otto Lang, minister responsible for the wheat board, promised just such a decision in a speech Wednesday. He reaffirmed a government commitment to solve the dispute by July 31, even if it did not meet the satisfaction of all farmers.

One step under consideration was relaxation of absolute wheat board control over interprovincial feed grain marketing, a step that would give certain Canadian livestock men a chance to buy feed for about the same cost as westerners pay.

Transportation and other subsidies to offset handling and storage costs of feed grain moving east also would be included.

Main point of agreement during the meeting came on the question of food costs. The CFA will appear before a special Commons inquiry studying rising food prices March 13 to point out that "food remains the best buy for most consumers."

Define Aboriginal Rights Trudeau Asks Opposition

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau invited opposition parties Thursday to define the aboriginal rights of Indians and Eskimos and bring the issue before Parliament for a vote.

"We are a minority government and we would be bound by that decision," the prime minister told reporters.

In the Commons, Mr. Trudeau announced a government study of the legal rights of Indians and promised a policy statement on them "in a couple of months."

Mr. Trudeau said he still considers aboriginal rights—a native claim to land by long occupation—"as a very vague concept."

But if the Conservatives, the New Democrats and Social Credit members of the Commons would define these rights and decide how many millions of dollars should be paid to nontreaty Indians and Eskimos, they could take it to Parliament for a final settlement.

Earlier, Mr. Trudeau told the House he was quoted "reasonably accurately" in reports of his meeting Wednesday with the Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs.

The prime minister said then that Indians had more legal claims than he had believed and the government policy paper on Indians was published in 1969.

But he emphasized he was talking about legal rights, not aboriginal rights.

He said the Nisht in his think-tank on the result of exchanges with the Indians, their written submissions and the policy memorandum.

OTTAWA (CP) — A rough parliamentary ride being given Finance Minister John Turner at the moment is deliberately designed to expose weaknesses in his budget before he brings down his new one on Feb. 19.

And this likely will continue throughout next week.

"What we want to do," says one Conservative MP, "is to get people questioning his credibility as an economic and fiscal forecaster."

The opposition got some unexpected help earlier this week when Mr. Turner told the Commons that "I have never been in the business of forecasting."

"This is going to be some budget," said Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming), to the delight of other opposition MPs.

As soon as Mr. Turner announced his budget date, the barrage began. Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield served to on what he called the highest than expected government revenues, and demanded to know why a surplus was allowed to develop "despite the unemployment situation."

Only in the exchange, Mr. Stanfield was suggesting that the budget forecasts were away off the mark. Mr. Turner was accusing the Opposition leader of leaving "a misleading impression" by using pre-budget figures and by picking out only part of total federal accounts, which show a deficit.

In later questioning, Mr. Stanfield was to go after Mr. Turner's prediction that "the growth of jobs should be considerably larger than last year." He said that there were 334,000 new jobs in 1971 but only 228,000 in 1972.

And then he took issue with Mr. Turner's May 8 prediction that the rate of economic growth in 1973 would be between six and 6½ per cent The Conservative Leader said what he was doing."

Stanfield, point to a growth-rate in the range of five to 5¾ per cent.

Again, the finance minister said it was too early to suggest an accurate growth rate for the year ending March 31.

Oddly, the minister seems to be facing a more difficult time with the May 8 budget than he did in the budget debate which followed it at the time.

Since he came to Ottawa in 1967, Mr. Stanfield seems to have adopted finance ministers as his favorite target. During the long debate on tax reform debates, he devoted more time to former Conservative minister E. J. Benson than all other cabinet ministers combined. He travelled Canada firing blasts at the "incompetent" minister.

One of Mr. Stanfield's more charitable remarks during that period was that "Mr. Benson really has an impossible job—even if he does what he was doing."

Now he has been quoted as saying that "one year of Turner is worse than four of Benson."

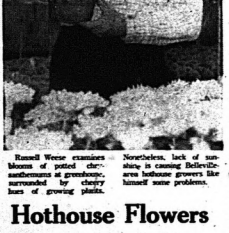
Churches Combine For Rally

Five different denominations representing eight churches in Belleville and Trenton will join forces for a jointly sponsored KEY 73 rally to be held at the Belleville Wesleyan Church on Tuesday evening, Feb. 13 at eight o'clock.

The eight churches are the Wesleyan Methodist at Belleville and Trenton, Salvation Army of Belleville and Trenton, the First Methodist Church, the Standard Church and Church of the Nazarene of Trenton.

Guest preacher for the ecumenical service will be Rev. Neil Hightower of Toronto who is superintendent of the Central Canada District of the Church of the Nazarene. The Belleville Salvation Army Band will provide the music.

Found Guilty Of Possession



A Belleville youth charged with possession of hashish admitted in court Thursday he used his metal pipe to smoke the drug two days before he was caught.

David Karl Gerow said the pipe — confiscated during an RCMP raid last Nov. 20 — was his, although he denied owning three others found in the 34 Great St. James Street house he shared with several other persons.

All four pipes were sent to a Toronto lab where they were found to contain traces of cannabis resin (hashish).

The youth was sentenced Feb. 19 when he faces another trial for attempted break and enter. He was earlier convicted of possession of stolen property and a pre-sentence report was ordered.

Hothouse Flowers Pine for Sunshine

For winter, the weather's been wonderful.

It's also been woeful for that small but select group of people on whom the rest of the population relies to color the drabbest time of year — the commercial greenhouse operators.

The big problem is sunshine — or rather, its absence.

While its been one of the mildest, snow-free winters — some say it's also been one of the dullest. Few days of unstained sunshine have broken the overcast.

An old-fashioned sunshine, even in scientific age, is still what makes the blossoms grow best, say the growers.

"...about all in all, it's about the worst season I remember really," says Russ Barber for 20 years operator of Barber's Greenhouses on Highway 37 near Mountain View — a business he's been in more than 30 years to his grandfather.

Says Russell Weese, whose greenhouses are located further south off the highway: "This years the first he has had to grow anything we've had in a long time."

Mr. Weese, like Mr. Barber has been in the business for decades, starting with his father back in the 1930s.

Both growers explain that the prolonged absence of natural sunlight affects the moisture content of plants and flowers grown indoors.

The makeup of plants, like people, benefits from the sun's rays, — only more so.

Without sunshine, the result for plants is weaker specimens, poorer in quality.

"Even though you keep the heat up, it isn't the same," says Mr. Barber. "You don't realize what the difference is without sunshine."

Both growers — whose business output at this time of year includes chrysanthemums, potted plants, carnations for the Belleville area's retail market — indicate the problem is widespread.

There have been difficulties getting flowers from other areas — including by weather into Ontario and U. S. sources.

And scarcity means higher prices. He estimates roses may be costing up to 25 per cent more to buy wholesale — an increase that inevitably has to be passed along to the consumer.

Some hothouse over-all business will be affected can only be conjectured — like the y-to-day, which usually sheds see many sunlight almost, one as the days lengthen.

"Definitely we should get quite a fair amount of sunshine," said Mr. Barber as he examined another blossy shies. "Whether we do or not remains to be seen."

Down She Goes

Three youngsters were the only permanent audience in attendance yesterday as 100-year-old St. Agnes Manor toppled to the ground. Seldom had so much controversy surrounded the demolition of a building. Protest groups and picket lines had called for manifold postponements but too late. The building permit was issued and the 79-unit highrise apartment building slated for the site conformed to zoning bylaws. The Quinte Planning Board has suggested placement of a holding bylaw for Belleville that would restrict reoccurrence of similar controversy until the official plan is finished.

Authority Executive Has Large Turnover

Like many municipal councils in the Quinte area, the Moira River Conservation Authority this year has seen a big percentage turnover of members.

Out of a total membership of 21, the authority has eight new members which officials said was the greatest single year change since the authority was formed in 1947.

Bowing out from active participation in the authority this year are eight members, two at the annual meeting at Canniton Thursday were presented with plaques of appreciation for services of their years of service.

New authority members this year are Alderman Stu Meeks and Mr. Bert Frink of Tweed, Sidney township J. W. Hamilton, Thurlow Gary Martin of Richmond township Tom Gillett of Marmora and Lake, Ray Burris of Madoc village and Ed Alexander of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe.

The new Marmora and Lake representative has been Gillett a professional geologist who has settled in the Marmora area after holding jobs in mining and industry in South Africa and the United States. Ray Burris of Madoc is operator of a sports goods store and had had a long interest in conservation.

Youth and Father Jailed for Theft

Simon Martel of RR2, Trenton, was sent to reformatory for 18 months Thursday when Judge J. L. Clendenning pondered sentence on convictions of breaking break and enter, attempted break and enter and public mischief.

The day before, his father, Cpl. Steve Martel of the Canadian Armed Forces, was given a seven-year prison sentence in Montreal after a general Court Marshal found him guilty of three charges of theft and one of assaulting a police officer.

A younger brother, Michel, was sent to a Toronto rehabilitation centre Thursday for his part in two break-in attempts with Simon in Belleville and Bayside. The brothers are not allowed to associate for the next three years.

Noting Simon's previous record, which included two theft convictions, Judge Clendenning said it was apparent the 18-year-old youth is "really not prepared to comply with the wishes of the court in any great degree."

In addition to the 16 months, he also assigned a one-year under-supervision term after which Simon's behavior will decide his future.

The youth pleaded guilty in provincial court to attempting to break into IMP Appliances last Nov. 28, breaking into Cherney's Furniture World on Jan 3, and reporting his car stolen when he fled Bolton's Plaza when a police officer spotted him and Michel inside the vehicle there shortly.

Cpl. Martel was found guilty of stealing $12,189.79 worth of money orders from a St. Hubert, Que., post office last June 2. In addition he was in the CFB St. Hubert exchange store and took a number of items including tape players and watches.

The money orders, along with a quantity of stamps, were discovered in the car's trunk. Cpl. Martel's Bayview Trailer Park home and his provincial police were arresting officer for the IMP attempt.

A joint investigation followed involving Constable Brian Skinner of Belleville and Constable Hubert city police and military police. On June 21 Cpl. Martel was arrested at his home Nov. 23.

Part of the exchange store merchandise was recovered from the trailer while the remaining items were found in Belleville and other locations.

During the arrest, a scuffle ensued and Cpl. Martel was charged with assaulting a Quebec police officer.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls Thursday.

9:05 a.m. . . . Vacant house at Victoria and William for the second day in a row, vandals started a fire, this time in a room off the kitchen; no damage was done, fire had been hauled up.

1:51 p.m. . . . Hostess Building, St. Paul St.; faulty alarm.

Inspector Asks Cleanup Bylaw

Sidney Township Council last night was asked to consider a maintenance bylaw at the request of the township's building inspector George Caves.

Mr. Caves, in his inspection role, said he was running into problems maintaining township residents to keep an appearance that property is "safe, clean condition."

He told council had run into problems before but there was not a legal leg to stand on with no maintenance bylaws existing in the township.

The inspector also property-tize bylaw from Trenton if offered it to council. would it be considered? Send information.

The Trenton model, described by Mr. Caves as "A good one, almost foolproof," requires yards and buildings to be kept in safe and clean condition.

"If someone has a shed for equipment which we consider is a poor repair we could ask for it to be remodelled with the backing of such a bylaw," said Mr. Caves.

The bylaw orders that if after 10 days' notice a property is not cleaned the municipality is to complete the job and charge the owner with the cost.

If the owner fails to pay costs following 30 days, it will be added to his tax bill, and further, any person violating the bylaw will be subject to a penalty of $100 for the first offence and no more than $200 for subsequent offences.

It is expected a decision will be made at the March 5 meeting of council.

Conservation Authority Head Favors More Northern Projects

Future long - range projects for the Moira River Conservation Authority should be the provision of more protection and conservation areas north of Highway 7 and the construction of the Bend Bay dam upstream from Moira Lake.

This is the recommendation of Guy Hughes, Tweed, who Thursday was elected chairman of the authority at its annual meeting held at Canniton.

Mr. Hughes, former reeve of Tweed, succeeds James Spry of Rawdon who had headed the authority for the past two years.

Mr. Hughes noted that the immediate main project for the authority is the construction of the long-talked-of ice control dam for Belleville, which he hoped could be completed within a reasonable time.

But, he said, the authority should not lose sight of the Bend Bay dam project west of Moira Lake which he said was a "natural reservoir site.

The need for additional reservoir capacity on the Moira would become more important in the future.

The report recommended two dams across the Moira — one 63 feet high and 380 feet long and the other 45 feet high and 980 feet long across a dry channel.

Estimated cost of the two structures, exclusive of land costs and engineering fees, was estimated at $1,300,000 back in 1950, which Mr. Hughes admitted would be considerably more today.

But, he said, this should not discourage authority members. In the Metropolitan Toronto area, the authority there seldom considered a project costing less than $1-million.

Referring to conservation areas, Mr. Hughes said practically all such facilities owned by the authority were south of Highway 7.

As these areas saw heavier use in more frapid decision on most authority projects.

The reorganization also recognized by the province.

Mr. Murray replied that as far as he was concerned the Eastern Region should be the number one region in the province.

Snow Trails Requested

PICTON — The taxation system in Ontario leans towards unconditional grants usually based on population and needs and no way raised from snowmobile registration fees may not necessarily be directed into snowmobiling or sport.

A member of the Ontario select committee on motorized snow vehicles and all-terrain vehicles last night told snowmobilers funds are needed "in a common pool" instead of being turned back to their sources.

Several club representatives and individuals suggested monies raised through the 500 per cent increase in registration fees this year could be used in part by the government in developing snowmobile trails.

Charges Dropped

At about 5 p.m. last Aug. 17, Glen Ross Harrison walked into the office of B and H Motors' owner Jack Dodson and asked if he could test drive a 1965 Mustang for sale on the lot.

Mr. Dodson gave his okay, adding he would be in the office until 7 p.m.

Unfortunately for Mr. Dodson, the car was not retrieved until several days later — in Lindsay.

But Thursday in provincial court, Judge J. L. Clendenning dismissed the charge when no proof was forthcoming that Mr. Harrison had been in possession of the car during the time it was missing.

Mr. Harrison was last seen at the car dealer an hour after he took it out when a policeman noticed the Mustang parked on North Front Street.

Testimony revealed the 47-year-old Lindsay resident also booked a room at the Belvedere Hotel the next day, but the car was not spotted.

Another charge of failing to appear for court was withdrawn after the Crown was unable to produce witnesses.

Negotiations Continue

Contract negotiations between the city and union representatives for Belleville firemen and city hall workers are under way as preparations proceed for determining the 1973 city budget.

Wages and the term of the contract are two of the items under negotiation. Firemen currently have a two - year contract while that of the city hall workers' is for one year.

The city police contract, also up for renewal this year, is negotiated by the city police commission.

Authority Assests Top $1 Million

The Moira River Conservation Authority has assets of more than $1-million it was revealed in its auditor's report for 1972.

The authority capital fund balance sheet shows assets of $928,028 in conservation areas, historical sites and water project schemes, with another $122,460 invested in properties acquired for the purposes of reforestation. The total is $1,-094,628.

The authority has more than 16,000 acres of reforestation land on which over 2.5 million trees have been planted.

Authority members at their annual meeting Thursday approved a 1973 budget of $188,-678, of which $30,000 will be raised by levy against the 17-member municipalities. The local levy is up $2,000 from $28,000 last year, mainly as the result of reduced provincial grants for 1973.

The city of Belleville this year will pay a local levy of $17,115 to the authority. Thurlow township is the next largest contributor and this year will pay $4,115. Sidney township will pay $1,956 and Hungerford $1,246.

Local levies against municipalities are based on the equalized assessment for the purpose of the municipality in the watershed.

Author'y Resources Manager Jeff Dudley and David Murray, liaison officer for the conservation branch of the Ministry of Natural Resources, outlined the aims of the department in its program for regional reorganization of authorities.

Mr. Murray said the intent was to decentralize decision-making authority on all but major projects and would result in more rapid decision

Dateline Trenton

Three Trenton police constables, Gerry Burch, Leonard Thompson and Lynn Brydon attended the funeral of Toronto police Constable Leslie Mallard gunned down while questioning a bank robbery suspect in Toronto last week.

Property Protection

Using piledriver, work gang limits protective wall around harbor rim of site which may become Belleville's first high-style residential development. Plans to build nine-storey condominium complex on Bay of Quinte waterfront received endorsation from citizen groups this week at Quinte Planning Board subdivisionate committee meeting. Steel wall is to protect site from water erosion.

Intelligencer Sports

It,s A Mad, Mad Baseball World

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose was angry, Ron Reed was incensed, And Frank Dale said he was ready to pinch Marvin Miller in the nose.

It was just a mad, mad, mad world Thursday after club owners said they would delay spring training until contract matters were settled with the Major League Baseball Players Association.

"If there's another strike, the players' association won't get my support," snapped Rose, Cincinnati Reds' outfielder. "Last year's strike cost me $7,000 and a chance for 200 hits."

"It's the same old mickey Mouse stuff," was the reaction of Reed, Atlanta Braves pitcher. "I don't know what's going on. I don't know if the owners are trying to scare us or what."

Dale, president of the Reds, did a slow burn at the sudden turn of events. He leveled criticism at Miller, the players' representative in the bitter talks.

"I always liked the guy and felt that he was extremely capable," said Dale. "But right now, I'd like to punch him in the nose."

While commissioner Bowie Kuhn spoke optimistically for an early settlement in the contract, the 24 teams temporarily locked out by baseball's management Feb. 14 to the 26. That's the time pitchers and catchers report.

Kuhn tempered the announcement with one of his own: "It's a routine matter—mainly a case of logistics—and shouldn't be blown out of proportion."

Later, while at a baseball dinner in Cincinnati, Kuhn reported: "Both sides are trying to avoid a strike. The owners would like to make it a three-year contract this time. They need three years of peace. The players need three years of peace. And I need three years of peace."

Kuhn, of course, referred to baseball's first strike in history last year—a 13-day affair that cost the players a chunk of pay and, wiped out 86 major league games.

The owners claimed they had made a landmark proposal to the players in an effort to settle negotiations. John Gaherin, representing the owners, said the offer called for arbitration in settling salary disputes between individual players and clubs.

Gaherin also said that the club owners proposed a three-year pact covering all matters in the dispute. There was no word from Miller on any of these matters, however. He refused to discuss the situation with reporters.

Marlies Down Petes 8-6

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Toronto Marlboros scored two goals within four seconds late in the third period to defeat Peterborough Petes 8-6 in the only Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game Thursday night.

The victory for the league leaders, before 4,209 fans, gave them a 19-point lead over second-place Peterborough, which has three games in hand. The teams play a return engagement in Toronto tonight.

Glenn Goldup led the Toronto attack with two goals and three assists. Terry Marvin also had two goals for the winners with single markers by Brad Winton, Tom Edur, John Hughes and Kevin Ledue adding the others.

Petes never led in the game but twice came from behind. In the last at 12:36 of the third period which deadlocked the score 6-6. However, Winton beat Allen Miller, marking the seventh five at 15:51 and Goldup followed with the insurance goal at 15:56.

The teams were tied 2-2 after the first period and Toronto led 5-4 at the end of the second.

In other games tonight, Sudbury visits Kitchener, Oshawa is at Ottawa and London at Sault Ste. Marie.

PLAYERS TOLD TO WAIT

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves following orders from National League president Chub Feeney, Thursday advised players scheduled to report for spring training Feb. 23 not to report until further notice. A spokesman for the team said the order was being sent to each major league team to prevent the start of spring training before owners and players reach agreement on basic contract stipulations.

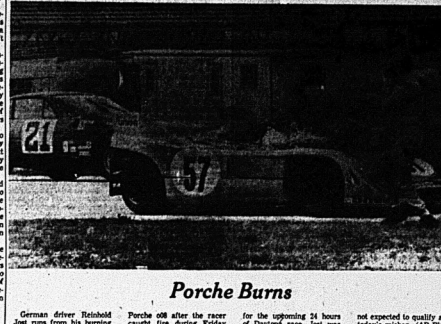
Lyle Eyes Boxing Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Undefeated Ron Lyle, an ex-convict with his eyes on the world heavyweight championship, makes his Madison Square Garden debut tonight against veteran Jerry Quarry, who 20 months ago smashed the jaw of another highly-touted fighter.

"I won't be another MacFarlane," says Lyle, who is a 7-to-5 favorite to win his 20th straight fight as a pro.

Mac Foster came into the Garden on Sept. 27, 1970, with a pro record of 24 knockouts in 24 fights and was stopped in six rounds by Quarry, who later wrecked Foster's career.

Whether Quarry is the same fighter now as when he beat Foster is just one of many questions which will be answered by the scheduled 12-rounder.



Lyle, who will be 31 next Monday, will have some home-town vocal support, with a crowd of 400 people from the Denver area in attendance.

The fight also will be broadcast on cable available to the Colorado State Penitentiary at Canon City, where Lyle served 7½ years for second degree murder before his release on Nov. 22, 1969.

Lyle will get a guarantee of $15,000 against an option of 26 per cent of the gate while Quarry, fighting for the second time since jinking retirement plans announced last July, will get $25,000 against 27½ per cent.

Lyle, who knocked out U.S. Olympian Duane Bobick in two rounds in compiling a 25-4 amateur record, has knocked out 17 pro opponents including the last on 11.

The 27-year-old Quarry has a 46-5-4 record, with 38 knockouts.

Ontario Curling

Savage Holds Upper Hand

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Paul Savage of Toronto holds the upper hand today in his quest for a second Ontario curling championship. And a close call Thursday may help him stay alert enough to retain the advantage.

"That may be just what we needed to smarten us up and keep us out there the rest of the way," Savage said after he was forced to an extra end before downing his fellow Toronto rink Bill Ecve and Bob Neely.

Coombe has a 3-1 record after his upset in the third round Thursday morning by Ken Buchan of London, 7-6. Buchan also is 3-1 along with Bruce Coleman of Toronto and Jim Waite of St. Thomas.

Savage has already beaten Buchan, Coleman and Waite and he set Glen Corner's record back to 2-2 when he beat the Bramptonrink 8-7 with a last-rock takeout in the extra end of his fourth-round match.

"No, I don't want to have another cliffhanger like that," said Savage after he survived the showdown with Corner.

Savage had stolen two on the 11th end to go in front 7-4 but allowed Corner to score three in the 12th and force the extra end.

In the third round, Savage defeated previously unbeaten Coleman rink 7-2. Brown beat Grant 10-6, Corner downed Secord 8-5 and Waite whipped Koulik 12-5.

Koulik and Brown have 1-3 records while Grant and Secord are winless in four rounds.

Savage should have an easy time going against Koulik in the fifth round this afternoon and Secord tonight, unless Koulik regains the form which made him the crowd favorite Wednesday.

Koulik beat Brown in the first round, forced Coombe to an extra end before going down in the second and then collapsed against Waite's opposition to steal several ends.

In other fourth-round matches, Coombe beat Brown 9-7, Coleman whipped Paul Koulik of St. Catharines 11-5, Buchan beat Ray Grant of Unionville 10-9 in an extra end and Waite whipped Gerald Secord of Etobicoke 11-5.

In the third round, Savage defeated Coleman rink 7-2, Brown beat Grant 10-6, Corner downed Secord 8-5 and Waite whipped Koulik 12-5.

Miller Queries Names

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — "Who are those other unknowns up there?" asked young Allen Miller, surveying the second-round leaders of the $160,000 Bob Hope-Desert Classic golf tournament.

Miller, 24-year-old sophomore pro from Pensacola, Fla., drew laughs with his question Thursday. The five names with his at the top of the list have won approximately 180 tournaments. Miller has yet to win and he had to qualify for this 90-hole tournament on Monday.

Atop the list was Jack Nicklaus, whose two-under-par 70 at the Tamarisk Country Club put him 10 under par at 134 for the tournament.

Two strokes back were veterans Gay Brewer, Billy Casper and Doug Sanders. Arnold Palmer, who has 60 tournament victories, was tied for third place with Miller at 137.

The six leaders played 6,883-yard Tamarisk Country Club Thursday after opening rounds at 6,500-yard Indian Wells. Weather and easiest of the four courses played in the Desert Classic.

Sanders and Palmer had 65 at Tamarisk, where Miller shot 67, Casper 68 and Brewer 70.

The leaders moved over to 6,911-yard La Quinta Country Club, the longest of the courses, today. They'll finish up Saturday and Sunday at Bermuda Dunes, 6,778 yards.

Nicklaus, who had a 66 at Indian Wells, agreed that the real leaders of the tournament can't be identified until they've played all four courses.

"Anybody who has played Indian Wells should be in better shape than the others," he said. Toronto's George Knudson also had a 70 Thursday and a 36-hole score of 141, just seven strokes behind the leaders.

Ben Kern of Toronto was another pace Cleveland Caveliers to a 136-132 victory over Atlanta Hawks in National Basketball Association action Thursday night.

In the only other games, Phoenix Suns romped 125-112 against Seattle SuperSonics and Golden State Warriors downed Portland Trail Blazers 123-111.

Barry Clemens, however was winds up this 90-hole event when he clinched in with a 70-145.

Nicklaus is two strokes ahead of the pace he believes necessary to win this tournament.

"Three-forty-five is usually the target here," he said. "I'd feel in a pretty good position if I could average 69."

"I played well and made a couple," he said, adding that even if he had putted as well when he shot 71 at Indian Wells, "it might have been better than 66 there."

Cleveland Clips Hawks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Austin Carr dunked 38 points and Johnny Johnson added 22 more to pace Cleveland Cavaliers to a 136-132 victory over Atlanta Hawks in National Basketball Association action Thursday night.

In the only other games, Phoenix Suns romped 125-112 against Seattle SuperSonics and Golden State Warriors downed Portland Trail Blazers 123-111.

Barry Clemens, however was the difference in the five-minute overtime, scoring six points including the basket that put he Cavaliers in front for keeps.

Phoenix showed plenty of defence in the first period, holding Seattle to 12 points and opening a 22-point lead over the Sonics. The Suns never relinquished the coast to their victory, despite 21 points by Seattle's Spencer Haywood. Charlie Scott had 28 for Phoenix.

CFL Meeting In Final Day

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Football League owners, in the final day of bargaining at their annual meeting, were expected to be in the limelight here today on two Eastern Football Conference decisions and possibly discuss expansion into the United States.

The EFC playoff format and an expanded schedule to 16 games from 14 were high on the agenda. And while expansion is not on the meeting list all CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur said Thursday there was a possibility the item could be introduced under new business.

John Bassett, owner of the EFC's Toronto Argonauts who is pressing for expansion of franchises into the U.S., said the matter was mentioned "indirectly" but that no official discussion took place.

The owners Thursday approved extra revenue for preseason training camps and games for veterans and increased the winner's share of the Grey Cup by $1,000 a man to $3,000, but they rejected a bid to add one Canadian player to each team's roster.

The presentations were made by the CFL Players' Association.

The roster strength of the nine CFL teams will remain this year at 28 but more than 15 of them being imports. Last year's annual meeting changed to the present ratio from 18 Canadians and 14 imports.

The players' association wanted reinstated the Canadian lopped of the roster last year, but not at the expense of the added import.

The Grey Cup prize, in addition to the $3,000 a man raise, increased for the losers to $2,000 from $1,500.

Along with the expanded championship money, the CFL meetings agreed to pay rookie players $20 a day during the preseason training camp, half of which will be repaid the club if the player makes the team.

Those not signed now but will not be asked to return any portion of the expense money.

The business of deciding what constitutes a veteran player was left up to the individual clubs. Gaudaur said. Any player excluded from the category, who feels he should have been included, can carry his complaint to the CFL office.

The 1973 season, the clubs have the right to judge the manner in which the rookies are handled, Gaudaur said. "And the players' association has agreed to this."

Discussion on the EFC adopting a sudden-death playoff system, endorsed by the Western Conference last season after a 0-0 tie in the Grey Cup game between the two clubs, is expected to be brought up by Eastern clubs could "more thoroughly consider some financial information" made available Thursday at their annual meeting.

And if Ralph Sazio, general manager of the Grey Cup champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats has his say, the old system will be retained in the East.

Sazio, noting the 1972 EFC final with Ottawa Rough Riders, said the comeback by Hamilton in the second game to win the conference title added to the playoffs suspense and thrills fans had come to expect.

Hunter Says

'Cats Due to Conquer Slump

By AL ZARAS
Staff Sportswriter

"We're due to come out of this slump," said Belleville Bobcats' coach Moe Hunter, "we haven't even gotten a roll or a bounce in our last five games."

The Belleville Metro Junior "B" entry have been having some trouble putting the winning combination of goals into their opponents nets over the past five games -- all of which they have lost.

"We should have won the last two home games," said Hunter, "but then, they only played hockey in the third period." The 'Cats lost their last two games at the Memorial Arena to Peterborough and Pickering by 5-4 and 4-3 finals.

The Bobcats, who have not lost two in a row before the five game slump brought on by the 5-4 loss to the Lions, hit the home ice against second place Toronto Nats Wednesday tonight in the hope of breaking the back of their winless stretch.

Though the 'Cats have not taken on the Nats since the early stages of regular season play, they hold a good record against the Toronto club. The "Tempestuous Tabbies" defeated the Nats 5-3 on home ice. At the Lambton Arena, Wayne McGregor provided the tie-up goal at the 19.59 mark of the third period to earn a 4-4 draw for the 'Cats.

The Bobcats, who hold down a 14-12-5 won-lost-tie record fill the fifth slot in the league standings trailing Oshawa Legionaires by a three point margin. With five games remaining in their regular season the 'Cats can still pull ahead into fourth and avoid meeting the first place Peterborough club in the finals.

Coach Moe Hunter will be getting back to his basic lines against the Nats tonight, shifting Rick Meagher from right wing where he played against Pickering, to his customary centre spot. Paul Lavender and Ken Holmes will be the team scoring leaders' sidekicks.

Mark Coates will be filling in the centre spot for Brian Cousins who will be unable to play due to previous commitments at Queen's University. Andy Heath will hold down Coates' right hand side while Lavoilla call up Jim Richardson will skate along the left wing.

"We definitely want Richardson to bolster us," said Hunter, "every time we've called him up, along with Joey Edwards, or Peter Smrke, they've played good games for us. If the juveniles are beat in their playoffs, they'll be figuring us on to their OMHA juvenile cards."

The previously cancelled Peterborough game Sunday has been re-scheduled for the Keene Arena on the same date at 4:30 p.m. Coach Hunter is not particularly happy with the situation, however, as he said that he "can't believe that Peterborough can't supply ice. I can't believe they can't get Memorial Arena. . .

"Last time, they shoved us into a rink where they didn't clean the ice between periods. The ice cleaning machine broke down between both periods after only doing two circuits of the ice.

"The condition of the ice was soft. It was like playing hockey in the bay, and it's not conducive to a faster skating hockey club."

Teachers Tally

Doug Jodoin of the Teachers counts his first of two goals as he beats Reid Dairy netminder John Gunter. Jodoin's tallies were instrumental in helping the Teachers to a 4-0 victory over their Quinte Hockey League rivals. The win gives them a 2-0 lead in the best of seven semi - final series with Reids.

Wilson Tykes League Pennant Winners

The Wilson Concrete tykes completed their Trent Valley Mite League regular season play, with a 16-0 victory over Bancroft to come out of the season with a 7-0-1 won-lost-tie record.

The Wilson tykes, who are now midway through their season "won't start the playoffs for a couple of weeks" according to team manager Peter Anderson.

The league pennant winners will take on third place Madoc tykes in a best of three playdowns to decide who will meet the winner of the Wellington-Bancroft series.

The league, which was set up by people in Wellington this year according to Anderson, will have a one-game championship final.

Botly Coaches Reid's

Lloyd Botly has assumed some of the coaching duties for the Belleville Quintes this season in what has been a lacklustre season to date. Undismayed, he agreed to coach Reids Dairy in their Quinte Hockey League semi-final series.

"Well, it figures," he laughed after Reids were beaten 4-0 by the Teachers Thursday night for their second loss in as many playoff games.

The loss was more readily attributable to an overdose of goaltending than a lack of coaching, however. Teachers' Casey Soden displayed the netminding form that made him the league's top goalie as he blocked the Dairymen.

"I thought we outplayed them the first two periods, but we were shooting high on him (Soden) and you can't do it," said Botly.

Bruce Racicot scored in the second period to give the Teachers a 1-0 lead before Doug Jodoin salted away a pair of third period markers for the winners. The final Teachers' tally came from Brian MacKenzie, while Phil Meeks had a pair of assists.

The third game in the best of seven series is slated for 8:15 p.m. next Thursday. Central Taxi forfeited the other semi-final series when they withdrew from the league following a 5-1 loss to Belvedere Hotel.

Every service is open to criticism — so here is my beef.

Since Monday Feb. 5, you charge 70 cents per week for your paper claiming a raise for paper boy which amounted to only ½ cent per customer per day.

Since your paper has been taken over by a large newspaper syndicate, your paper for local news, especially Sports, has rapidly declined.

For example Thursday Feb. 8 paper contained Sports on five separate pages surrounded or dwarfed by advertisements which I presume pay premium rates for this section of the paper.

I counted 18 sports articles and 22 advertisements (your bread and butter). The sports covered approximately 225 square inches while the ads covered 1,050 square inches — approximately a ratio of 3 to 1.

I know I am in no position to criticize your policy but when I read Sports, I would like Sports which are not shortened to make room for advertising.

I hope I have not offended anyone in the Sports Department—because I blame your superiors, who are dollar conscious.

I hope Eric continues to talk to me and shows no bad feelings.

City Leagues Will Not Meet

Frank Wiles, president of the Gas House Hockey League, said that the league's executive has "decided that we won't be playing the Quinte Hockey League series this year" as had been proposed earlier in the season.

Instead of the inter-league game, the Gas House League will hold a benefit game for Wayne Lewcyzk, a Moira Johnson player who was injured in a team practice when he was hit by a puncuck. Lewcyzk fell to the ice, hitting his head and causing a coma.

A week ago yesterday, Lewcyzk had an operation to relieve the pressure on his brain according to Grant Thompson, a member of the league executive.

The Gas House League will field an all-star team composed of the second to last place teams. The team will take on the leagues pennant winner, Jim's Pizza.

Jets Turn Back Houston Bid

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The match-up in Houston pre-dicted will be close, and expec-ted it was for their Aeros.

Winnipeg Jets scored past Houston 3-1 in the first of back-to-back meetings in the Texas city in what the locals hoped would put their favorites in a contending spot to overtake the World Hockey Associations Western Division leaders.

The two clubs play again tonight at Houston, but instead of closing within a point of the Jets, the Aeros now find themselves with a five-point deficit to make up.

Elsewhere, New York Raiders got solid goaltending from Pete Donnelly in the game to prevail 3-2 over Ottawa Nationals and move into third place in the East ahead of Quebec Les Nordiques who dropped a 5-2 decision in Chicago to the Cougars.

In the only other contest, most of the action led to the penalty box as Los Angeles where the Sharks defeated Minnesota's Fighting Saints 3-1.

Player-coach Bobby Hull fired the winner before 7,462 Houston fans at 12:32 of the third period that opened a 2-0 Winnipeg lead. Murray Hall tallied for the Aeros about three minutes later, but Norm Beaudin, unassisted into an uninvited goal with 23 seconds remaining in the game, locked up the Jets' victory.

And the Aeros, notched 10-4 in the opening period, held a territorial edge through the remainder of the game with a 17-11 advantage in each of the final two periods and 38-33 overall.

But they weren't able to exploit Jets goalie Joe Daley who helped his own cause by shoveling a Houston rebound to Smaltz who relayed to Hull for the winning score.

The Raiders blew an early 2-0 lead in front of 2,123 Ottawa fans and only Donnelly kept them in the game after Gene Peacosh finally notched the winner on a power play at 14:09 of the third period.

The Cougars took a 4-0 lead in front of 3,174 home fans before J. C. Tremblay and Francois Lacombe put Quebec back in the game. Rick Morris with two, Bob Whitlock and Bob Liddington built the Chicago lead for goalie Jim McLeod.

Jim Bernelecq put the game out of reach with his sixth of the season at 1:12 of the third, just 14 seconds after Lacombe had scored.

Gary Veneruzzo's two goals in the third period steered the Sharks into a 3-0 lead in a game punctuated by numerous penalties.

Dick Paradise of Minnesota and the Sharks' Terry Slater had a slugfest in the scoreless first period. The second period was delayed for a fistfit between Saints' Bob MacMillan and Ralph MacSweyn.

Robert Provides Own Entertainment

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hockey is a form of entertainment, so Punch Imlach obviously had a few wags shaking their heads late last season, when he traded Eddie (Clear the Track, Here Comes) Shack to Pittsburgh Penguins for one Rene Robert.

Few could bring National League fans to the edge of their seats quicker than Fast Eddie, his legs churning like pistons as he raced up the ice bowling over team-mates and opposition alike without regard for sweater colors.

In return, the Buffalo Sabres got a still-to-be proven winger who had scored a total of seven goals in 52 NHL games with Pittsburgh and Toronto Maple Leafs.

In 54 games this year, Robert has more than justified Imlach's faith. He scored two goals Thursday night and Dave Dryden posted his third shutout of the year as the Sabres blanked visiting California Golden Seals 4-0.

Robert's goals, both in the third period, were his 31st and 32nd of the season and gave him 66 points, surpassing his French Connection linemates—Gil Perreault and Rick Martin—in both departments.

"Robert is showing all the promise he's always had," enthused Imlach after a recent game. "In fact, his stickhandling and passing ability is overshadowed only by Perreault himself."

"For sure, it's no shame to be overshadowed by Perreault in that phase of the game."

Robert never really had an opportunity to show his class at Toronto or Pittsburgh where his general role was that of a utility player.

Fitting him on a line with Perreault and Martin—both super scorers whose defensive skills were questionable—turned out to be a masterstroke by GM Imlach and coach Joe Crozier.

The line began going both ways, taking much of the defensive pressure off Robert, and the slight winger from Trois-Rivieres, Que., started producing in his own fashion.

Randy Wyrozub and Doug Rombough, the latter recently recalled from Buffalo's American League farm, Cincinnati Swords, tallied first-period goals for the Sabres.

At St. Louis, Leo Nanne and Barry Gibbs scored 44 seconds apart early in the second period to lift Minnesota into a 2-2 tie.

RENE ROBERT

Sabre in Sixth

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo right-winger Rene Robert scored two goals Thursday night in the Sabres' 4-0 shutout of California Golden Seals in Buffalo. The goals gave him 32 for the season and 66 points over-all to move him to third place in the National Hockey League scoring race.

WHA Gets Draft Jump

TORONTO (CP) — Gary Davidson, president of the World Hockey Association, said Thursday night the league intends to get the jump on the National Hockey League by declaring a free draft of all non-pros, graduating juniors and college players beginning Feb. 15.

"We will not tamper with under-age juniors, however," added Davidson of the 20-day free draft that will continue until the WHA conducts its annual player draft March 18.

"The teams running one, two, three and four in their respective divisions will be allowed to take two players in the free draft. The teams running five and six will be allowed to take three.

"On March 18, in a telephone draft . . . we will draft the players not taken in the free draft."

The draft would give WHA teams a jump on the rival NHL clubs in the bidding war for hockey players. The NHL's annual draft is conducted in June.

"We think some of the quality kids will come with us, although we're not likely going to sail for $200,000 deals," Davidson said. "We'll be going after the lesser junior star, trying to sell them on the likelihood that they'll play more in our league faster.

Draper Leads Parade

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mike Draper of Orillia Terriers has replaced Rod Bloomfield of Owen Sound Downtowners as the scoring leader in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series.

Statistics released today show Draper with 52 points, including a league high of 28 goals. Bloomfield, who had a one-point advantage over Draper two weeks ago, shares second with Gary Milroy of Orill.—both with 51 points.

Ernie Miller of Barrie Flyers maintains his commanding lead in the goaltending race with a 2.74 goals-against average. He also has the most shutouts, three.

The statistics include last Sunday's games.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, Feb. 10

Aries (March 21-April 19): Any obligation you undertake is lasting and resistant to any changes. Thunder of long-term effects should give you warning.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Being silly leaves nothing. Accept momentary disappointments in stride. there will be another day with better conditions.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Nobody is quite sure how to take the humor in you. You may think you've kept a secret, but somebody has sensed it and may talk.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Now comes a day of shifting influences for which your reactions vary over a wide range of mood. Makes notes for later use.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Where you have done too much or reached too far, make sure adjustment without delay. and have done with it.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Whatever seemed to be the regular, routine thing to do is like as not out of the question for at least the time being.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Any course you follow has its drawbacks, excluding something else you'd like, poses its own inconvenience.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): Intuition should waken to lead you through an adventurous day. Some of the going is against resistance. Have some fun.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Use your regular haunts as a port of departure and explore the arts and culture about you. Check ahead as you go.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Enterprise based on experience thrive, while arbitrary moves in accord with theory miss their mark. Assume no specific success.

Pisces (Feb. 19 — March 20): Being simple and direct in all expressions helps. Asking favors gets you nowhere, could spoil later opportunities.

Jets' Hull Visits Children

WINNIPEG, Man. (AP) — The little boy in the wheelchair puzzled that a stranger would stop him in chat in the hospital corridor, peered into the smiling blue eyes of the visitor.

"Hello, son," said the stranger. "Do you like hockey?"

The boy replied that he did. "I'm very glad to meet you... the visitor said. "My name is Bobby Hull. Have a happy New Year."

It was the mid-afternoon of a typically hectic day off for Hull, who left the established National Hockey League last summer to sign a long-term, $2.75-million contract as playing coach of Winnipeg Jets in the World Hockey Association.

The unannounced hospital visit was to have been a brief one to present a hockey stick and autographed picture to a paralysed teen-ager. But Hull took the time to autograph pictures for the nurses and the hospital staff, curious passersby and patients. He also stopped in the children's ward. And then chatted briefly with the administrator.

Hull, 34 last week, had just skated through a strenuous practice session at a high school rink. It had been five hours since he left his $165,000 home, starting the day with two pieces of toast. And he knew he was needed at the house to help his wife, Joanne, prepare for a party.

The Hulls live in a 14-room home in the plush Winnipeg suburb of Tuxedo.

On the day in question, she was supervising preparations for the dinner party. The Hulls like to entertain Jets players and team officials, their wives and guests that night, 70 all.

Mrs. Hull understood ... she says that kept Bobby away from home, knowing it is part of the price of being the wife of hockey's Golden Jet.

"I love Winnipeg," she said. "The people make you feel right at home. It seems, though, we haven't had a free minute to ourselves. There's always something to do, someone coming here ... and Bobby's always tell me about these things. I guess it's the newness of it all."

Bobby gave her two days notice on the dinner party.

She evened the score by making him file his own lunch while she helped prepare the prime roast for the party. Also in the kitchen were two cooks and Bobby Hull's mother, Shirley McKay, who was visiting from Malton, Calif.

"I forget to go for the ice," Joanne reminded Bobby, who was due to get the paid pong table. And you've got to call ...

Hull's attention was elsewhere. He pored over his and five children, scurrying in and out of the kitchen area.

Hockey brother, Brett, 8, was watching the preparation of a slab of cold roast beef that his father had placed on a bun. Michelle, 2½, was napping. Blake, 10, who rose at 6 a.m. to skate with his hockey team, was off skating again.

"When I'm away from hockey I enjoy the kids most of all," says Hull. "Over the years I haven't had that much time to spend with them. I really get a kick out of spending time with them ... they give me pleasure."

The three older boys, blonde like their father, play on organized youth teams in the Winnipeg area.

"I almost never miss a game," said Joanne. "I hate it when I do."

Hull is pleased with his move from Chicago to Winnipeg. Here he played 15 seasons and scored 604 goals, second only to Gordie Howe's 786 in 25 seasons.

"It's been a great move for our kids," says Hull. "I was a little skeptical at first. We were concerned in a move dislocating the family that has been in a particular spot for 12 or 12 years. I was somewhat pessimistic about how they would accept the move. But it's been terrific.

"The three older boys are playing more games than I am. They've been taken into the community. The two little ones, for a week or so, wanted to go back to their old house. It wasn't long before they accepted that we were going to be here."

"Life is just a little bit too fast," he says.

"The kids today are growing up with too much knowledge of what's going on. When they're young, they're very impressionable and sometimes they get the wrong idea about life and the people around them.

"I think kids are growing up with somewhat less respect for their parents and their teachers, church officials and whoever else might be involved in trying to show them," Hull said.

"This is the main thing that I think is wrong with the way people live today. When you try to tell them that something is good, it's the newness of it regard for what you tell them. They don't think you know very much at all.

"It's up to us parents to try to guide them as much as we can in the right direction ... to slow them down so they don't know so damn much. I think that's what it is — they know too much ... too soon."

A good deal of Bobby's time is spent with the young "and what I try to do with kids is keep them interested."

"I feel a sport is the great way to do it. Maybe it will help in their beds at a decent hour and maybe they won't drink much and ruin their chances to be someone something."

Relaxing at home is a breath of fresh air for Hull, who keeps a frantic pace during the season, travelling to play, practising, making speech and visiting hospitals.

The return activity that I do other than playing is in return for the good faith WHA has in me and the money that they paid me.

"I made up my mind when I came here that this was going to be a big challenge, not only to myself, but to everybody, and I was going to do all that was possible to make the league go."

Hull came off the 15-game layoff while the validity of his WHA contract was argued in the courts to score 13 goals in his first 25 games. The Jets lead the West Division of the WHA.

"I do find it somewhat touchier to play this year," Hull said.

"I think it's mainly because of the hectic summer I've had, plus all the litigation and not being able to go to training camp ... missing the 15 games, then jumping right into it and trying to play.

"I really haven't gotten the feeling that I'd like to have. It's due to the terrific change in my life after 15 years in Chicago.

"We had training camp at the stadium the last seven or eight years. The scheduling was the same. We played the same cities before the same crowds and travelled the same routes. It's a complete changeover in my life.

"I think the first year is going to be a little tougher for it had a lot of small injuries that I haven't had before but I think it's all due to the delayed start I had."

Coaching the Jets, he says, hasn't been a burden.

Once we started the games, we played just about every other day the first half of the season and I didn't get much of a chance to coach as far as being out on the ice with them in practice session.

"I think you do most of your coaching during practice. As far as changing line mates are concerned, that's no problem. We have a great bunch of guys. Of course, Nick Mickoski has been helping me out on the bench and has done a great job."

Hull hopes to play at least five more seasons but admits:

"I don't know how much longer I will be a player.

He's got a 10-year contract with the Jets with a chance to move into the front office when he wants to retire.

Hull feels the future of the WHA depends on getting more quality players.

"I understand that there are about 62 guys in the National Hockey League who are not signed to long-term contracts.

"No doubt what they are thinking is either one of two things—that they're very interested in playing in the WHA for one reason or another or they're interested in using the WHA as another means in the NHL.

"What we're interested in even more than that is getting some of the real good junior players and build our own Orrs and Espositos.

"There are the type of guys we want to get—guys who don't mind skating and shooting the biscuit around. That's what makes for exciting hockey. What we're looking for is to get more youth and aggressiveness in our league.

"The last thing I want to do is see the league fold. The WHA has been terrific to me.

Robert Hindley, director of player personnel for the Jets, said: "For what Bobby contributes to hockey, I feel we got him cheaply. He's the most unselfish hockey player I've ever met.

"He never says 'no' to anybody—interviews, personal appearances, whatever—anytime of the day or night. It's hurting him physically, no doubt. But he'll have a much better season next year."

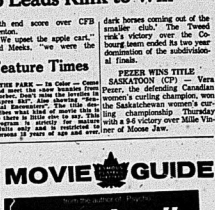
Tweed Skip Leads Rink to Win

The Tweed rink skipped by Jake Hall took all three of their 10 end games in the Colts western subdivisional playdowns over the weekend. The win earned the Tweed rink the right to meet a rink from Kingston for the Ontario Curling Association's division three representation.

The rink which had Reginald Morton, second Howard Meeks, and vice Ted Ray defeated the Cobourg rink 7-6 after curling three extra ends. The Belleville rink out of the Quinte Curling Club were the next to fall at the Trenton Country Club with a 9-8 final.

The Tweed Colts, curlers who have seen the sheets for more than seven years, gained a more decisive victory in their final outing with a 9-4 tenth end score over CFB Trenton.



"We spent the apple cart," said Meeks, "we were the dark horses coming out of the smaller club." The Tweed rink's 9-6 victory over the Cobourg team ended its two year domination of the subdivisional finals.

The Original Knight SOLUNAR TABLES
When To Fish, Hunt Or Hunt

By Mrs. Richard Algie Knight

The schedule of Solunar periods and greater bass has been taken from Mrs. Richard Algie Knight's Solunar Tables.

Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during the periods. If you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times stated and last for an hour and a half or two hours and 15 minutes. The Minor Periods shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Use Eastern Standard Time.

Alaska Pipeline Runs Into Snag

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Alaskan leaders have reacted with shock to a United States appella court ruling which again has sidetracked at least temporarily construction of a pipeline to tap the oil riches of the Arctic Slope.

Opponents of the line hailed the decision as a victory for environmentalists.

The 159-page opinion made public in Washington late Friday overturns a lower-court decision by ruling that an extrawide federal land corridor for the proposed 789-mile oil pipeline violates provisions of the Mineral Leasing Act of 1920.

"This is the worst possible opinion that could have come," said an aide to Alaska Gov. William A. Egan.

The 1920 law specifies that rights-of-way over public lands must be limited to a width of 25 feet on either side of the pipeline.

Hence, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia declared, the 146-foot right-of-way the interior department has proposed granting to Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., is illegal. Alyeska is a consortium of several oil companies with interests in the Prudhoe Bay oil fields of the Arctic Slope.

"Since all parties agree that construction of the proposed 48-inch-diameter pipeline is impossible if all construction work must take place within the width limitations . . . we must enjoin issuance of the special land-use permit until Congress changes the applicable law," the court ruled.

Alyeska declined to predict the effect of the ruling.

The proposed pipeline would run 789 miles from Prudhoe Bay on the North Slope, at the northern tip of Alaska, to the ice-free port of Valdez on the Gulf of Alaska, where the crude oil would be transferred to supertankers for shipment to U.S. markets.

Among those contesting construction were the Wilderness Society, Environmental Defense Fund Inc., and Friends of the Earth.

Also opposed were the Canadian Wildlife Federation and David Anderson, British Columbia Liberal leader.

Anderson commented Friday night that the court ruling means postponement and possible scrapping of the line.

Anderson said in Victoria that the ruling probably means the case will go to the U.S. supreme Court, where the battle will be continued.

"But the fact that we've won in the Court of Appeals makes it unlikely, or more difficult, for them to get the Supreme Court to reverse that decision.

"What it means," said Anderson, is "is that the thing is stopped dead as of now."

Canadians expressed fear that the B.C. coast would be polluted by spills or accidents to ships where the oil from the southern terminus, the warm-water port of Valdez, on Prince William Sound.

Environmental groups argued that the U.S. interior department had not adequately considered the alternative of a Canadian pipeline.

Science Council Split On Mackenzie Projects

OTTAWA (CP) — The chairman of the Science Council of Canada said Friday that the council's call for a slowdown in use of resources does not mean reducing the rate of economic growth.

Roger Gaudry was commenting at a news conference on a council report issued Friday that Canada should start to switch from a consumer society preoccupied with resource exploitation to a conservation society engaged in more constructive endeavors."

L. M. Armstrong, deputy president of the University of British Columbia and chairman of the council's resources committee, said the recommended conserver society could be approached by increased recycling of existing material.

The report calls for a national resource management authority to be set up by the federal and provincial levels of government to develop long range policies and encourage popular participation in decisions.

It urges more research by government, industry and the universities, but cautions against development of the North before sufficient information on the northern environment is available.

But the experts disagreed whether information is adequate to permit current development of the Mackenzie Valley highway and possible future pipelines.

A. E. Pallister, vice-chairman of the council, said the Mackenzie project is a good example of development following research.

But Mr. Armstrong said it was an example of the crash research programs the report advises against.

He said there is a "serious problem" in going ahead with the corridor project without advance information.

But he added: "I don't think it's reasonable to stop it.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Skies will be sunny over the entire province today except for the snowbelt area where snowsqualls will bring a couple of inches of snow. Temperatures will remain about 10 degrees below normal, with a little warming Sunday. Sunday will be sunny in most regions, with flurries expected along the shores of Lake Superior and over the Niagara Peninsula.

Kissinger Opens Talks in Hanoi

SAIGON (AP) — Henry Kissinger opened four days of postwar talks in Hanoi today, while United States and Vietnamese representatives in Saigon made final plans for the release of about 142 American and 2,000 Vietnamese prisoners of war Monday.

President Nixon's chief foreign-affairs adviser landed in an air force jet shortly before noon at Hanoi's Giam Lam Airport, which was heavily damaged last December by U.S. bombers. He was the first ranking U.S. official to set foot in Hanoi in more than a decade.

Kissinger told reporters in Vientiane, Laos, before going to Hanoi that his visit was one "of good will and conciliation." He said that Nixon, "hopes that this visit can inaugurate an entirely new relationship between the United States and North Vietnam."

He said he hopes his consultations with North Vietnamese officials will lead to post-war relations, a lasting peace in Vietnam and a halt to intensified hostilities in Laos, will "usher in an era of peace for all the people of Indochina."

Kissinger said he will take up with Hanoi leadership a cease-fire for Laos. The U.S. defence department has reported "massive offensive actions in both North and South Laos" by Communist forces and U.S. bombers have been launching an average of nearly 300 strikes a day there.

A few hours before Kissinger's arrival in Hanoi, North Vietnam accused the United States of violating the Vietnam peace agreement by continuing air attacks in Laos and Cambodia. A Hanoi radio broadcast cited Article 20 of the agreement, which says that "foreign countries shall put an end to all military activities in Cambodia and Laos."

In Vientiane, Laotian leaders were reported to have discussed with Kissinger the question of a guarantee that an estimated 65,-000 North Vietnamese troops in Laos will be withdrawn after a ceasefire.

Indications a Laotian ceasefire may not be far away came in a Hanoi broadcast today, quoting the Pathet Lao press agency. It said the Pathet Lao and the Vientiane government "will mutually agree on a new date" at the next session of the Laotian peace talks Tuesday. There was no elaboration, however.

Canadians Leaving For Saigon

MONTREAL (CP) The second contingent of Canadian military and civilian personnel to join the ceasefire supervisory commission in Vietnam assembled at League Pointe military base here Friday in preparation for today's departure for Saigon.

The contingent, composed of 115 men from the air, sea and land divisions of the armed forces, and eight external affairs department personnel, will join 161 Canadian members of the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS) who arrived in Vietnam Jan. 29.

An armed forces spokesman said General Jacques Dextraze, chief of defence staff, will be at Montreal International Airport when the armed forces Boeing 707 takes off. Departure was scheduled for 1 p.m. EST.

The aircraft, which carries an extra four-man crew for the 27-hour flight, had scheduled refuelling stops at Anchorage, Alaska, and Tokyo.

The military personnel were briefed Friday on their duties in Vietnam. The U.S., the Viet Cong, North and South Vietnam signed a Vietnam ceasefire agreement Jan. 27 in Paris.

ICCS ceasefire observers in Vietnam have been placed at seven regional headquarters to investigate and report to the Joint Military Commission composed of the four signatories of the agreement.

Ontario Budget Set for April 12

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will bear down its budget April 12, Treasurer John White said today.

Mr. White told a panel discussion on urban development that he and his staff would be devoting "a great deal of time to the subject . . . but after the budget is brought down April 12."

Mr. White and Premier William Davis said recently the budget would be later than usual to give provincial treasury experts a chance to study and incorporate Ontario priorities with those of the federal budget which will be presented Feb. 19.

At a meeting if provincial finance ministers in Ottawa, Mr. White urged a hefty tax cut and a reapportionment of tax funds to give the provinces a bigger share.

Premier Davis has said that without a reapportionment and without tax cuts, Ontario residents can expect substantially higher taxes.

Mr. White was participating in the discussions which highlight this morning's session of the Ontario Progressive Conservative annual meeting.

East Germany Establishes Relations With Britain, France

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany and the West unveil it came to terms with West Germany last December, established diplomatic relations with Britain and France Friday and scheduled diplomatic talks with Japan.

Announcements in London, Paris and East Berlin said representation will be at ambassadorial level. Signing of the French agreement is scheduled for Wednesday.

In London, a foreign office spokesman said ambassadors will be exchanged before ratification of the general relations treaty between the two Germanys, expected this summer.

Japanese officials in Tokyo announced that Japan and East Germany have agreed to start negotiations on diplomatic relations in Moscow in early March.

Japan Keeps Market Closed

BONN (AP) — The world currency crisis and the value of the beleaguered United States dollar dominated discussions today among government leaders and central bankers.

The Japanese government said it was not opening its foreign exchange market for the regular half-day session. A spokesman said Japan feared a flood of dollars from Europe's money markets, the other major speculators can't always sell off their dollars, well closed for the weekend.

The heads of the world's largest central banks prepared for their monthly meeting in Basel, Switzerland. But there was no word what, if anything, they might do to halt the speculation.

Uruguayan President Gives In

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — Rebellious military commanders vowed today to keep the pressure on Uruguay's civilian government even though President Juan M. Bordaberry bowed to their demands and relieved his newly-appointed defence minister.

The army and air force commanders had demanded the ouster of Antonio Francese from the post he had held for only three days, proclaiming they would not obey his orders.

Bordaberry, who for 28 tense hours defied the army and air force generals, late Friday accepted Francese's resignation, giving his 4-star old general only a stunning defeat.

A squadron of 14 tanks and armored personnel carriers were sent byk to their posts after having been dispatched by the generals to a park near Montevideo's presidency.

But the military also announced a list of demands and said that the national police would be removed from the jurisdiction of the interior department and placed under the armed forces.

The crisis developed because the generals had demanded a greater role in combatting alleged political corruption, but felt opposition from the new defence minister was a step in the wrong direction.

U.S. Leaders Issue Call For Monetary Conference

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — United States business leaders and congressmen have called for a high-level international monetary conference to settle the problem caused by the ailing dollar.

The informal expectation in Washington is that unless firm action is taken by European nations during the weekend, followed by a Japanese yen revaluation or satisfactory trade measures — or both — President Nixon may impose an import surcharge.

In the last week such powerful congressional voices as those of Chairman Wilbur Mills of the House of Representatives ways and means committee, and Representative Henry Reuss and senator Jacob Javits—both regarded as influential experts on world money issues—have called for a meeting of finance ministers to resolve the dollar's d i l e m m a and speed up a program of world money reform.

They, and others, have not suggested another devaluation of the dollar to help the United States set its balance of payments on the right path. The dollar was devalued by 11 per cent against the currencies of its major trading partners on Dec. 18, 1971.

Friday night the Chamber of Commerce, representing about five million United States businessmen both in the U.S. and overseas, added its voice to the growing demands for a new monetary conference.

Through its executive vice-president, Arch Booth, it expressed the fear that without such action the alternative would be an import surcharge imposed unilaterally by the United States.

Nixon and Treasury Secretary George S h u l t z are keeping in close touch with their European counterparts this weekend as the latter plan their strategy to try to stem the dollar speculation abroad.

Foreign exchange experts believe that failing strong action by the Europeans the European Common Market central banks will be swamped by more dollars when the foreign exchanges open next week.

"Someone's been blogging the gang!"

Mailmen Advised To Vote No

OTTAWA (CP) — Roger Decarie, national president of the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada, is recommending that union members reject a tentative postal contract settlement reached on weeks ago.

About 28,000 members of the Council of Postal Unions will vote Feb. 13 and 14 on whether to accept the tentative agreement.

The letter carriers union represents 11,000 of the postal workers, while the remainder are members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

Mr. Decarie said Friday that he felt the agreement was not enough to satisfy the needs of members for the next two years. Predicted increases in the cost of living will mean a backward step for the postal workers, he said.

Bomb Scare Halts Train

NAKINA, Ont. (CP) — A man was in custody today after Ontario Provincial Police evacuated a 13-car CNR passenger train following a bomb scare Friday night.

The train—continental resumed its journey to Montreal from Vancouver after police conducted a search that took six hours. No bomb was found and no charges have been laid.

The 150 passengers—many in night clothes—left the train in 25-below-zero weather and were sheltered in the Canadian Legion hall at this northwestern Ontario community of 600 about 230 miles northeast of Thunder Bay, Ont.

Police said a man pulled the emergency cord and jumped off the train as it was leaving here and told a member of the train crew that "the bomb would blow in five minutes."

Family Homeless After Roslin Fire

TWEED (Special) A Roslin area couple and their two children were forced out into below-zero temperatures Friday night when their one-storey home on the Shannonville Gravel Road, a half - mile south of Chisholm's Mills was destroyed by fire.

Members of the Thurlow Volunteer Fire Department answered the call for assistance and were successful in preventing the fire from spreading to two adjoining homes — one of them occupied by Mr. Dean's father.

The Dean home had been recently constructed but exterior finish was still to be applied.

It was the second fire in recent years that the Dean family has been left homeless by fire.

Tweed Fair Board Has New Executive

TWEED (Special) — Stanley Genereaux and Mrs. Oakley Trudeau are the new presidents of the men's and women's divisions of the Tweed Agricultural Society.

The election of the new fair executive was made at the February meeting of the fair board in the Tweed Municipal Building.

Last year William J. Woods headed the men's division of the fair, while Mrs. Woods headed the women's division.

Milton Elliott and Dennis Hunt are vice-presidents with Larry Chantler as secretary - treasurer. For the women, Mrs. Roy Parks and Mrs. Lyman Holmes are vice-presidents, with Mrs. Thomas S. Kelly as secretary-treasurer.

Women's fair division directors are Mrs. Howard Cowtryman, Mrs. B. C. Hunt, Mrs. Thomas Lynn, Mrs. Wilbert Bateman, Mrs. Wilfred LaBarge, Mrs. Sam Dafoe, Mrs. Albert Martin, Mrs. Don Martin, Mrs. Ross Ketcheson, Mrs. T. C. Graham, Mrs. L. Chilly, But Water's There

Quinte Kiwanis Club pool chairman Murray Workman is waiting for the heating system to pick up before he takes a swim. After installing a new filter system at the Belleville Hotel pool, leased by a Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund grant for the Kiwanis swim program, it was found the pool was leaking. Cracks in the pool's floor were repaired Wednesday and filling was completed Friday afternoon. Chlorine has been added and the heating was turned on today. Classes were held today in swimming theory and lifesaving - out of the water on icy land. Mr. Workman said finishing touches could be added before an official opening "in a couple of weeks."

Long Lineups Predicted

Sale of Auto Licences Lags

Sales of new 1973 licence plates is lagging behind other years in Belleville — and across the province.

Local licence issuer George Olsen said today that only about 37 per cent of the 18,000 sets of plates normally issued have been sold so far.

And a release from the Transportation and Communications Ministry says the same percentage applies for all Ontario.

"At this rate drivers can expect long, frustrating lineups to develop as the deadline approaches," said Transportation Minister Gordon Carton.

"I hope that those drivers who have not bought their new plates will recognize the situation and come forward as soon as possible."

Mr. Carton said that in keeping with the practice over the past several years, there will be no extension of the Feb. 28 deadline.

The new-style, multi - year plates are expected to last up to five years. Registration fees will continue to be paid on a yearly basis with validation stickers issued for both owners and licence plates.

He said, however, that if motorists saw to it that their applications were completely filled in the lineup pressure could be reduced.

Tax Tips

For further information, call the District Taxation Office. If you live in a toll area, ask your long-distance operator for ZENITH 6-6000 and your call will be placed without charge.

Q. How will the average taxpayer be affected by recent changes in the tax laws? To be more specific, how has the law changed regarding a typical type of income which will now be taxed, and will the taxpayer also get the benefit of deductions from income which were not allowed in the past?

A. Perhaps the most significant change in tax legislation provides for the introduction of a tax on capital gains. Other types of income which are taxed as of Jan. 1, 1972, include unemployment insurance benefits, adult training allowances, research grants, scholarships or fellowships in excess of $500, payments which an employer contributes on an employee's behalf to a public medical care plan and payments made to income maintenance plan to which an employer has contributed.

Q. What about changes in allowable deductions from income?

A. With regard to deductions from income, the personal exemption has been raised to $1,500 from $1,000 for single persons, and to $2,850 from $2,000 for married persons. In addition, all taxpayers age 65 and over will receive a special exemption of $1,000.

Q. Are there any new deductions which will affect certain groups of taxpayers?

A. Many taxpayers will be interested in new legislation which allows deduction from income for child care expenses, the cost of moving from one job location to another and an employment expense deduction of up to $150 per year. It might also be well to note that changes have been made regarding the limitations contained in the Income Tax Act for charitable donations and for contributions to a Registered Pension Plan or a Registered Retirement Savings Plan. Formerly, a taxpayer could deduct charitable donations from his income to the extent that such donations did not exceed 10 per cent of his net income for the year. For 1972 and subsequent years, the 10 per cent limitation was increased to 20 per cent of net income. With regard to Registered Pension Plans, the maximum deductible contribution was raised from $1,500 to $2,500 and from $2,500 to $4,000 for 20 percent of earned income) for Registered Retirement Savings Plans.

Q. I have not received a T4 slip from one of my employers. Should I file my tax return without it?

A. It is your responsibility to file your income tax return on or before April 30 each year. However before filing your return without a necessary information slip you should make every endeavor to obtain it. Ask your employer for a T4 slip. If you do not receive a reply before the deadline for filing, then in order to avoid being penalized for filing late, send your return with the income and deductions from this employer estimated. Do not leave this income out when calculating your total income, and attach a note to your return explaining that you do not have the T4 slip and giving the name and address of your employer, and, if you have one, your employee number. Unfortunately, the assessment of your return will be delayed pending verification of the amounts estimated by you.

Q. My wife and I are the same age and this year we qualify for age exemption. On my tax form do I claim $1,000 age exemption for me as well as $1,000 for myself?

A. No. The fact that your wife is entitled to claim the $1,000 age exemption if she files her own tax return does not affect the amount you can claim as married exemption.

Snowmobilers Request Crossover

DESERONTO — Snowmobilers in this area want safer ways through the Highway 401 corridor to the main trail networks of Hastings County.

What's needed is either an overpass or underpass at the four-lane freeway, says Deseronto Mayor Ken Reid, president of the snowmobiling Deseronto Trail Blazers. Such a facility would serve snowmobilers from Shannonville to Napanee and the eastern end of Prince Edward County across the Bay of Quinte.

And he hopes to have local MPP's down to view on-the-spot such a suggested underpass next week, says Mr. Hubble.

Snowmobilers in the area feel "hemmed in" by the freeway and now must cross it at the Highway 49 Marysville overpass if they want to hit the widespread inland trails of the Hastings County Forest, he says.

Use of the Marysville overpass can be mutually bothersome to motorists and snowmobilers, and also hazardous, says Mr. Hubble.

Local snowmobilers already have a suggested route for an access above or below the freeway. It's an old and lowance north of here and about 1½ miles east of Highway 49.

Once across Highway 401, snowmobilers could follow other road allowances and trails north to Tweed where they could join up with the 250-mile network of trails operated by the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Association.

Mr. Hubble already has presented the idea to provincial legislators. He was spokesman this week for his ouja club and the Lennox and Addington Snowdrifters at a meeting of the Select Committee on Snowmobiles and All-Terrain Vehicles in Bancroft. The 401 access proposal was part of a brief he presented outlining various complaints of local snowmobilers.

Mr. Hubble said the Ontario government should consider some of the $18 licence fee it charges snowmobile owners for trails where they don't exist.

Other suggestions in the brief called for warning signs at known snowmobile crossings, such as those protecting deer and cattle—when trail networks become properly defined.

Love and Hate!

Snowmobiles are fast becoming one of the sacred cows of the Canadian winter scene. As Inspector Ralph Blatchford of the city police force says in effect, "you either love them or hate them, while others are indifferent."

Almost all that can be said about the machines and the new dimension they have spawned in winter sport has been said, yet it remains a subject of controversy. Of course the sport is here to stay, and it is great for the economy, but it is still very far from merging smoothly into the social and environmental order in a manner that is acceptable to all. Trespassing . . . noise . . . damage to crops . . . not to mention dumping of litter and instances of motel partying (with gas cans on the rug and beer in the bathtub — as documented by one Quebec motel owner) are factors that disturb many.

Belleville's by-law on snowmobiles has been re-drafted for presentation to council shortly, but we wonder just how much enforcement is carried out — how much is even possible — by municipalities. The police cannot be everywhere and unless a complaint is laid by a citizen, say in the case of trespassing — and proved — what can be done? The police would have to be virtually on the spot to observe violations and this is impossible most of the time. We can only hope that the existence of such a by-law will have sufficient deterrent effect to be workable.

In Peterborough recently, the Select Committee on what are grandly designated Motorized Snow Vehicles and All Terrain Vehicles heard an OPP constable, Richard Parrington, term current legislation in the province "a farce." Parrington alluded to contradictory provisions in the legislation and he must have sensed the irony of the whole situation when he pointed out that the OPP detachment itself needed more snowmobiles for proper enforcement of the existing laws.

One community which has no problem enforcing the law is Cobourg. Snowmobiles are prohibited from the urban area completely and when we spoke of "sacred cows" the term has particular meaning in this context. And why? Because the Peterborough hearing received a formal representation from a 18c-man Cobourg group tailing for an end to legislation allowing a municipality to ban snowmobiling outright. There was even hints that the ban would disappear with regional government.

Be that as it may, the ban exists. Council's decision undoubtedly was taken in the interests of the whole community and with the welfare and safety of all citizens in mind. There is a precedent, not in Canada but in France where the manufacture was banned outright for recreational purposes. A lot of Frenchmen are alive today because of such a ban.

* * *

Essentially snowmobiles are for use in the wide open spaces, but even there the environment and interests of the population generally must be considered. The state of Massachusetts has a sensible piece of legislation in this regard: it prohibits operation of snowmobiles within 300 feet of any home without the owner's permission.

For their part the snowmobilers are indeed contributing mightily to the economy. We believe most pursue their interest in the sport responsibly and with consideration for others. One complaint is the $10 registration fee — it is felt that in return government should be doing more to assist in development of trails for the sport.

Questions About Continued Canadian Aid to Uganda

By RICHARD JACKSON

He expels Ugandan Asians with Canada accepting more than 4,000, nationalizes non-native enterprise just about liquidating foreign investment, agitates for other African leaders to take similar action, and all External Affairs Minister Sharp will say, really, is little more than that it is unfortunate.

While all the time, the Canadian International Development Agency, which formerly was the foreign aid arm of External Affairs and is still linked closely, continues its double program of assistance for Uganda.

In Britain, where 20,000 Ugandan Asians have found refuge, Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home first suspended, then cancelled completely $35-million worth of aid to President Amin.

But Mr. Sharp has rationalized the continuation of more than $4-million in aid for Uganda with the explanation that any cutoff of assistance would serve only to "punish the people" while leaving President Amin untouched and unmoved.

Perhaps, except that if the Ugandans realized that their headstrong president, having cost them $24-million in British aid and other millions in American help, would lose them better than another $4-million in Canadian assistance, they might neither leave Idi Amin untouched nor unmoved.

Some time ago, a national opinion poll established that the big majority of the taxpayers public supported foreign aid but it survived and even flourished because the "politicians," largely, were for it . . . perhaps because, for one reason, it let "fringe benefits" of expense-paid junkets to Faraway Places.

But not all politicians are for it.

A prominent and vocal opponent long has been Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, who first came to the House of Commons 27 years ago while some of the younger parliamentarians among the foreign aid-pushers were still in diapers or kindergarten.

Real Caouette deplores foreign aid as not only a waste of funds but a sacrifice of taxpayers.

"The government gives grants and lends millions of dollars at no interest to these so-called underdeveloped countries," he complains, "while denying our own underprivileged people and our municipalities the help they needed."

Currently, according to the Estimates, it is taking an annual $483 - million to keep the International Development Agency in the give-away business.

To Uganda, at the moment it is providing just over $3-million in funds and another $3-million in loans.

It finances the degreeing in agriculture, arts, forestry, medicine and economics of 510 Ugandan students at McGill and the Universities of British Columbia, Guelph, Calgary and Montreal.

The Ugandans itself, along with the grants and loans, the government assigns a staff of Canadian advisers — 14 of the pedients numbering, until recently, 18, to assist in forestry, agriculture and engineering — others, more narrowly based, others out in the country away from the capital, Kampala.

Now only some 50 of these people are left.

It was not that CIDA wanted to pull them out any more than it wanted to cut off aid funds to "punish" Idi Amin.

Oddly enough, the Ugandan president himself who was responsible for the failure to use

Panama Strongman Flexes Anti-U.S. Muscles

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Brigadier-General Omar Torrijos the super-nationalistic strongman of steamy and mosquito Panama, is almost unknown outside of the Caribbean. But the burly president is now in bed with the United States—early Panamanian ownership of the American-owned Panama Canal, is all too well known.

During 1973, the chances are excellent that General Torrijos, the freebooting military dictator, but a product of the anti-American middle class of Panama will be more of a thorn in the flesh of the United States than either Cuba's Castro or Chile's Dr. Allende.

Washington's position on Cuba is ambivalent. President Nixon as with Communist China, is just as likely as not to start negotiations with Fidel Castro. And Cuba's new but steady course to Maritism is viewed with hostility but with no open interference from the Nixon administration.

But the Panama Canal. That's different. The claim by many Americans that the Canal, which cuts through the middle of the republic of Panama as U.S. territory, is inalienably American, smacks of the days of British control of the Suez Canal.

That era ended disastrously in the Suez War of 1956 when an Anglo-French military venture of the Suez Canal which the late President Nasser had nationalized, ended in diplomatic disaster.

There are clear differences in Panama, even if General Torrijos and his mixed civilian and national guard administration demand outright control of the Canal. The late President Lyndon Johnson in power proposed draft treaties to increase Panamanian participation in the Canal which is presently operated by the U.S. corps of engineers and is styled the Panama Canal Zone.

These draft treaties, bolstered by a U.S. presidential commission which recommended a so-called "unified canal system," would radically change the original 1903 treaty with Panama which gives the U.S. sole possession of the Canal Zone until 1999. They also proposed U.S. encroachment in the construction of a second canal through Panama about 10 miles away from the present one. Panama would own the new canal outright.

Strangely enough Torrijos has rejected the draft treaty proposals because they would still leave the Panama Canal operations and its defence in Anglo-American hands, while a new board of five American and five Panamanian would always give the U.S. a majority vote on key decisions affecting future use and ownership of the Canal.

There are other particular ways, both the U.S. and Panama can benefit from the Canal and the republic of Panama were executives of the Caribbean industrialists of President Theodore Roosevelt.

About this issue and U.S. imperialistic methods in the Caribbean in general, President "Teddy" Roosevelt, the "Rough Rider" warrior in the field who helped take Cuba and Puerto Rico from Spain in 1878, said the U.S. should "walk softly and carry a big stick."

Overtones of the similar Suez Canal ownership crisis appear in American and Panamanian positions on the Canal. The Americans say they must own it for defence reasons, especially with Cuba as an armed Marxist camp in the Caribbean, and that Panama doesn't have the engineering talent to run it properly.

With a large assist from an Egyptian consulate opened in 1964 in Panama, General Torrijos followed behind the U.S. that the Suez Canal while open under Egyptian administration, made more money and was more efficient than under foreign ownership. Both sides remain adamant.

Dr. Potter and His Critics

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park

This is politics:

Health minister Dr. Richard Potter is learning something a good many other politicians have learned before: it sometimes doesn't pay to try too hard.

There is quite a bit of yelling for days by the health minister's scalp, both from the public and from inside the legislature.

Among the charges being levied are that he has cut down too sharply on hospital construction, has not curbed excessive charges by doctors, and has not made the best use of medical and hospital facilities.

To one on the inside these charges are unjustified.

Fire a government, yes, perhaps that might be justified.

But, the single act Dr. Potter.

For what the health minister has done is merely to take forceful action in a number of fields in health in which there should have been such action a long time ago.

If at times he has perhaps appeared intolerant of criticism this can at times have been because of poor second-hand impressions. In spirit the health minister is not an arbitrary man.

On other occasions it has been perhaps because an arbitrary measures were absolutely called for —such as in the clamp-down on new hospital construction. And needed because the action was overdue because administrations prior to his had pussyfooted.

The essential fact is that on the merits Dr. Potter has done an outstanding job, and it is regrettable to see the criticism of the abuse he has been getting.

FED UP WITH CITY HALL

Today In History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Charles Darnley, unpopular husband of Mary Queen of Scots, was murdered 395 years ago today—in 1567—while sick with smallpox. The house was blown up by gunpowder but Darnley's body was found in the garden. He had been strangled. Mary's favorite, Bothwell, was charged but acquitted—after which he imprisoned the 5-year-old queen until she married him. When this became known the Scots nobility drove Mary into exile.

1763—Hubert Coffin brought a band in Montreal for the murder of three American hunters who had been killed in the Gaspe Peninsula in 1963.

1876—St. Catharines, Ont., was incorporated as a city.

1841—Upper and Lower Canada were united.

Thoughts on Balanced Diet

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In Thursday's edition you printed an article written by Jean Sharp, the Canadian Press Women's Editor, entitled "Meat Prices High? Change Buying Habits!" It was a very well-written article but, unfortunately, the consumer's viewpoint greatly differs.

I am a conscientious mother who likes to serve well-balanced meals in my household. As the sole supporter I must allo budget strictly so am forced to serve low cost meals.

The clever homemaker should know that her meals do more

Capital Penalty Debate

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Just as A. J. Wood said in a recent letter to the editor, the fact is a recent conversation with our MP Jack Ellis, on this subject, he is of the opinion that capital punishment should be abolished as his conscience dictates to him. Shortly after our conversation, I wrote a letter expressing my feelings in opposition to his, which he welcomed with a letter in response.

The people's feelings, for or against, on this issue will be condensed to one vote by our MP and it is our responsibility to let Mr. Ellis and MPs know our feelings.

If Bill C-84 is left with a 50 - 50 split, because of your lack of speaking out, he will vote as he wishes which is against. With the number of letters that I have spoken to and in a recent tally by the Globe and Mail, most people are in favor of capital punishment. Mr. Ellis assured me that he would vote as his constituents wished if he was convinced of their feelings.

So to the majority of us who want capital punishment, no matter what the reasons, please make our MP know how we feel by letter or wire. The condensed vote reflects the majority.

Editor,

A landslide majority of the people — the taxpayers — the voters on the East Hill did not want the first apartment building that went up on Bridge St. East recently. And they do not want the one that is to go up now. They do not want this law was never commenced in this area. Clearly in this case the "law is an ass".

If Toronto can stop the Spadina Expressway, if the people of Belleville could and did stop the Ontario Municipal Board's decision to our lovely and highly-popular Mall, surely the Mayor and council can stop us all being led by the ludicrous and stupid nose of the OMB.

Plans for Church Union Unveiled

Self-styled Realists Refuse To Recognize Things of Spirit

By REV. G. C. SMYTH

No part of the Gospels is more tender than the section (chapters 13-16) of St. John's containing conversations of our Lord with His apostles before the crucifixion. He knew that His men were to experience the full agony of misunderstanding and persecution. Thus He concluded, "I have said this to you, that in me you may have peace. In the world you have tribulation; but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."

Genuine Christians continue to experience bitter disappointment. The darkness of the world refuses the light of the Gospel. The principle that, in some measure, direct society are dictated by self-styled realists. Jean Vanier refers to them in his paperback that I urge you to get. It is called "Eruption to Hope". He says: "Men have for too long refused the Beatitudes and the Sermon on the Mount. Reason seems to most men to be greater and more productive than the foolishness of the Spirit."

The consequences have always been severe. However, because of the breath - taking strides of science, whereby we are entering a global village in later, Dr. A. C. Forrest reveal- which everybody's eyes look into the eyes of everybody else and there is an instant recision of human feelings everywhere. sensitive souls are experiencing tribulation to an ungreeted degree. Indeed, most prevalent in open and needles. The Lord of Chaos could not be blamed for thinking that he is about to prevail.

Look at the international scene. For more than a decade Americans — whose coins near- trust" — have ruined death the from the skies over Vietnam in the heaviest aerial bombardment ever devised. The cost in lives in North and South Vietnam has been in uncounted tens of thousands.

The conflict is estimated to have cost the United States at least $127 billion and the lives of more than 56,000 servicemen. It has split America, psychologically, as nothing else since the Civil War. Who, won? Where is peace with honor"? Indeed, where is peace?

Look at the political scene inside our own country. The Government of Canada was almost defeated at the polls. A major contributing factor was the attitude of the Prime Min- ego of radical leadership. He causes reactionaries to chuckle as they anticipate a wider swing to "Right" in the next election.

Apply the touchstone of the love of Christ to international problems, and that love will be stronger than any other force since it has created communities of nations in times gone by. Apply the touchstone of the love of Christ to Canadian domestic situations, and, in the language of the New Testament, no man will be master of slave since all are brethren. Apply the touchstone of the love of Christ to everybody with whom we come in contact and to all our undertakings and we will yet see on earth heaven's vision of a holy and happy family.

Jean Vanier has a message that Christians cannot avoid by passing the buck of criticism to others as if we were blameless. He observes, "The young are impatient, and rightly so. They have had enough of those who have given lip service to a God who was obviously not the Living God of love. They have had enough of those who for too long have prayed in their fashionable hats, in front of the most despised of men, crowned with glories and covered with spittle. . . They are desperately impatient for a new experience which gives an absolute in sincerity and rejects all hypocrisy."

The way to the ideal is still through the Church of Christ. The way to dynamic service is still through the Cross of Christ. The victorious and enduring peace is still through the Spirit of Christ. Christianity has not been tried and found wanting. In our generation it has been found particularly hard and not really tried. More to the point, Think of what we are missing. It is more than words can tell. We have Christ's word for it, "In me you may have peace. In the world you have tribulation; but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world".

Bolivian Faith Healer Draws Huge Audiences

LA PAZ, Bolivia (Reuter) — The star attraction is a fair-haired youth in a white suit, striped shirt and colored high-heel shoes.

Thousands of people, invalids and their relatives, lined up all night recently for places in the Hernando Siles football stadium, known as "Brother Julio's" latest spectacular.

For the previous two weeks, free tickets to the spectacular were distributed through the city by Julio's acolytes, known as "deacons."

The crowd applauded—despite instructions not to do so—as Julio made his grand entrance.

He demanded "a profound faith in God" and declared that our bodies can be cured, the miracle must work in our hearts.

An old woman dropped her crutches and took a few tottering steps. "I can walk after five years," she cried.

An old man struggled to his feet, then half walked, half crawled a few yards across the grass towards Julio before collapsing breathless.

A little boy stopped from his wheelchair and shuffled along, immediately surrounded by photographers and television cameramen.

The people went home, and the doctors had their say.

"It is very probable," said one specialist in answering the orders, "that there can be cures of psychosomatic illnesses related to the nervous system."

"But it is very difficult to predict how long the relief will last. Usually it's temporary."

"These are not cures inexplicable by science, even though they may appear extraordinary of supernatural to a majority of people."

Era of Male Sexpot — Tight Suits, Female Sighs

PARIS (AFP) — Pierre Cardin has launched the era of the male sexpot with his new leisure clothes for men shown Friday in L'Espace Cardin, an ultra-modern theatre and leisure centre he has created in an old Paris theatre.

His show, attended by manufacturers who make Cardin's men's clothes under licence in 20 countries, retail store buyers and the press, was a curtain-raiser for the European ready-to-wear salon of men's clothing opening today.

More than 600 manufacturers from all over Europe will be showing men's fashions at the Salon Europeen d'Habillement Masculin for the next three days.

Most of the exhibitors concentrate on sober executive suits with the extra button or slightly wider lapel creating headline news, or on denims and T-shirt.

But not Cardin. He says that as people enjoy longer periods of leisure, clothes for Saturday and Sunday are the second most important thing in a man's life. The first is, of course, getting your girl.

And how those Cardin males give the come-on in the liberated sex with tight-crotch cat suits for skiing and high-waisted beach pants in brilliant colors.

As the models disappeared there was a collective female sigh.

The Cardin leisure clothes are colorful, not brash. Whisky and hazelnut tones are dominant, mixed with white or camel hair colors. All the clothes are lightweight, supple, unlined and unpadded.

Collars are big and drawn up about the ears, coats cut like bathrobes, jackets short and often zipped, shoulders wide, often with leather or vinyl-shoulder pads like those of American football players.

Start Growing Your Begonias

With the month of February, days become noticeably longer. Now is the time to bring begonia tubers out of storage and start them into growth, says R. A. Fleming, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food. By starting the tubers near the end of the month, the plants will be ready to set out in the garden in early June.

Place the tubers, with the concave or sunken part up, in a flat or pot of peat moss. Water sparingly to dampen the peat and set them in a warm location. Covering the flat with newspaper or plastic will help keep the tubers moist. After growth starts, water the new plants more freely.

When the shoots are about 5 inches high, carefully lift each tuber out of the peat moss and place it in a 4- or 5-inch pot. The potting soil should contain 1 part soil, 1 part leaf mold or peat and ½ part sand. Plant the tubers at the same depth as in the flat.

A temperature of 60 degrees, moist air, and moderate light are the best growing conditions for the plants. Under these conditions, tuberous begonias produce strong, stocky plants by May. Avoid rapid produce a plant with more flowers.

Reverend J. M. D. McLeod officiated at the February 3, 1973 wedding of Miss Carol Dyck, Toronto, and Bryan Reimer, Toronto. The couple exchanged their vows in Rednersville United Church. Mrs. Marie Chabot, Belleville, was matron of honor, and Warren — Thomson, brother of the bridegroom, Redneersville, served as best man. A reception followed at the Four Seasons Hotel, with out of town guests attending.

Weather — No Barrier For Successful Meet

Despite the below-zero temperature, forty-four members and friends signed the attendance book at the regular meeting of the Maskoo and District Senior Citizens' Club January 31.

Mr. Kel Kincaid and Mr. Bob Henderson were in attendance to speak to the members regarding a "Consumers Night", which is to be held at the Havana Centre on Thursday evening, February 22nd. A demonstration on the cutting of pork will be put on by the Swift Canadian Company in the interest of Kincaid's IGA. It was decided to sponsor the event. As an added attraction, Miss Canada will be present.

Final plans were made for a bake sale to be held in the Kiwanis Centre on Saturday, February 17, during the Maskoo Winter Carnival.

"Happy Birthday" was sung for those having January birthdays at the monthly meeting. Mrs. O'Riordan, celebrated her birthday this month,but was unable to be present at this meeting.

The next meeting will be held on February 14 at the United Church basement and will take the form of a Valentine box social.

Women Making Mark In Society, and Paper

"Women's Lib' is definitely on the upswing. It may not be as militant as it was at its birth but don't overlook its presence.

Women are becoming more aware of situations that affect them — in their jobs, in their homes, and in the marketplace in many cases they are striking out on their own. With little fear, or hesitation.

Books by Kate Millett, Betty Friedan and Germaine Greer have made their mark on the literary market.

New names are being introduced and among them men have started getting into the movement. A Male Guide to Women's Liberation by Gene Marine is only one.

Others are The Manipulated Man by Esther Vilar, Memoirs of an Ex-Prom Queen by Alix Kates Shulman, and a variety of others available on the book shelves.

It looks like women have become a long way and are even going to go further.

Ties Knot

Bryan Thomson, an executive aid of Robert Nixon, decided to, as he put it, "tie the knot in Redneersville". Mr. Thomson and Carol Dyck recently got married in Redneersville United Church, with a small wedding party and several photographers attending.

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham

OUR CITY ON THE BAY, 1909

"For each age is a dream that is dying, or one that is coming to birth." — O'Shaughnessy.

* * *

How did our city manage transportation in 1909?

Had motor cars come into favor?

"It will be a long time before the horse is superseded by the motor, however much the latter may be gaining in favor," declares a reported for The Daily Intelligencer of that year, and continues:

"Thus the demand for liveries will never cease, and seems, indeed, to be on the increase, judging from the signs of the times . . . the superb roads surrounding Belleville and the beauty of the city itself are conducive to driving as a delightful pastime. As a result the city has a number of first-class liveries.

"One of the best and most accommodating is that of Mr. J. A. Latta, situated at the corner of Bridge and Coleman Streets, and established 30 years ago. The stables are admirably drained and ventilated, and equipped with every modern convenience, while building 30 by 75 feet, "there are 13 horses in livery and the carriage house is filled with latest and most stylish vehicles for light livery, consisting of hacks, coupes, runabouts, etc."

"Another livery stable . . . located in a commodious two-storey frame building on Coleman Street, admirably lighted, heated and ventilated, is owned and conducted by A. Graham, has become one of the most up-to-date establishments of that line of business, and now enjoys a patronage amongst some of the best people of the city. Mr. Graham employs courteous and gentlemanly drivers, and his turnouts are such that they might well be taken for private carriages. Livery agreements are kept to the minute and full reliance can be placed on the word of the manager."

The livery stables of Mr. G. L. Sills on Pinnacle is highly praised. "Every convenience to the livery is an ample building with 40 feet frontage and a depth of 120 feet. Besides this, there is a large boarding stable where a large number of horses are boarded. . . . And extensive trade is done, too, in buying and selling horses. . . . This business was established 20 years ago by H. Crook who retained the proprietorship for three years ago, when Mr. Sills assumed control. Special attention is always given to wedding and funeral orders."

Another auxiliary to livery on Front Street "is McCoy's livery, which was first established in 1888." Mr. A. Asselne maintained a Tremfer Line. It gives "a most efficient service of busses and hacks meeting every train and boat arriving in the city at all hours of the day and night. . .His stage covers 50 miles a day, carrying mails, passengers and express."

To maintain livery service, harness and saddlery establishments were needed and one of "the oldest in the city is that of Mr. James Copeland established in 1883. 46 years ago. . . and carried on in a two-storey stone building at Front Street. . . Special attention is given to light handmade harness of the best grade and quality of leather. . . And still another such establishment, of 47 years belonged to Mr. James Cummins who came from Wexford, Ireland in 1852.

"A coach is imagined, "among the manufacturing industries of Belleville, one of the largest employers of skilled labor and one of real benefit to the City, is The Belleville Iron and Horseshoe Nail Company, Limited, whose large rolling mills are located at the foot of Wharf Street. . . built in the year 1899."

Public Relations Application

Public relations and its application to the WI was the topic of the address given by Mrs. F. Wellman at the regular meeting of the Carnation-Corbyville WI.

Mrs. Wellman said that the aim and ideal of the WI is to discover leadership and to assist with the needs of the community and bring happiness to others. She also advised that regular attendance is the bearer and she urged that members work together.

Progressive court whist was played with Mrs. H. Windsor winning first price and Mrs. E. Moore second.

Mrs. G. Shorey won for the low count.

Ann Landers

Her In-law's Farm Chores Not Their Responsibility

Dear Ann Landers: Most of the letters that appear in your column come from city people. Please print a problem that might be boring to your urban readers, but farm folks need help, too.

My husband and I have been married 15 years. We have five children and we get along fine. The only thorn in my side is my in-laws. They have the farm next to ours and we end up doing all their hard work.

Every morning for 15 years my father-in-law has telephoned my husband before breakfast, or worse, he comes over here in person and tells my husband what to do as if he were a small child. If we are at the breakfast table, my father-in-law pulls up a chair and tells him to "hurry up."

When my in-laws go on vacations we are expected to do all their chores. They expect us to our chores when we go on vacation because they can hardly handle their own. So, when we have town we have to hire help as I feel they should do the same.

My husband has two brothers but they were a lot smarter than he was. They went to college and got away from their parents. It burns me up to listen to my in-laws brag about how comfortable it is to know that the folks have somebody near to help them now that they are getting on in years.

I don't move so please don't suggest it, Ann. Just tell me if there is any way to get a grown man to cut himself loose from his parents so he and his family can lead their own lives.—Dakota Pilot

Dear Dakota: Your problem is as close to insoluble as any I've ever read. Not only is your husband tied up financially with his parents (I'll bet they gave him his farm but wore, he is tied up emotionally in a way that his brothers are not—which is probably why they left and he stayed.

Ask your husband to compromise on one point. He should tell his parents that he can't handle their chores when they take vacations. Suggest that from now on they hire the same man you hire when you go away. If he agrees it will reduce your hostility.

Dear Ann Landers: I am flabbergasted by your reply to the middle-aged woman who resented the waitress who asked, "And what will you girls have?" The irate reader said "girls" has a cheap connotation in England. A "girl'," she said, is a woman who sells her favors. The writer preferred to be called "Madam." You told her that in the United States, a madam is generally thought of as a woman who runs a bordello and in all probability she worked her way up from the street.

When did you get such a dizzy vote? Surely if this were true, business firms would not address us as "Sir" in letters "Dear Madam." How about accepting a cup of tea in the south with a Webster's unabridged dictionary?—Insulted

Dear Ina: Sorry. I plead not guilty. You misread me. What I said was this? If a waitress asked a group of middle-aged American women, "And what will you Madams have?" she would probably receive a very cool reception and a small tip.

Doris' Thoughts Become 'Psyche-freers' for Some

THE FREE PSYCHE

by Robert Ludwig.

Much is heard by inner ears blocked too oft by outer fears.
One has to be receptive attuned and not rejective —
but yes.
Things are seen by inner eyes that answer many outer whys.
To generate perspective
the mood must be reflective — no lets.
For Doris, of the unchained mind,
Gosh, Bob! — You make me blush all over, I'm just a mere social - worker - journalist trying to put a few boughts on paper! Do you suppose they turn out to be psyche - freers for at least some of those who read?

Dear Doris: Do you have any information on child brutality? I need this information for an essay in Business Law. — At A Loss.

* * *

Dear Loss: I'm sending you what I have already written on the subject of battered children, which is of great concern to social workers. That it is also of concern to guilty parents is apparent from the groups springing up under the name "Parents Anonymous", in several Canadian centres.

Usually the parent is taking out on his child some emotional hang-up of his own. He knows this, vaguely, yet finds it almost impossible to control himself when something has upset him.

But you are asking for legal aspects. There are child protection laws in every province and social agencies entrusted with the carrying out of their provisions. Your best bet is to pay a personal visit to the child care agency where you are. Your city clerk or family agency can guide you.

* * *

Dear Doris: This is a genuine cry for help. I have been a widow for four years. We led a very full social life, but it didn't take long for those friends to fade out of my life. A "loner" can become a bit of a drag. Now my lonely life has become more than I can bear.

How do others overcome this dreadful loneliness? How can a widow make friends? — In Love With Life, But Lonely.

Dear In Love With Life: It is difficult to get back into the social swim, when you have become single again. Still, it is not impossible, especially for someone like you who still looks and feels youthful and has a zest for life.

There are places where couples don't dominate the scene. Join a ladies' bowling team. Take an evening course. Enrollment dog is an obedience class. Seek out a club for single people — divorced, widows or separated — in your city or town. Above all, keep in touch with some of those former friends on a woman-to-woman basis. Don't be afraid to invite them for a visit of tea or to some feminine type of social affair.

Can any readers tell us how they've coped with a similar problem?

Meet

The devotional was given by Mrs. Jennie Moffat.

Names Changed

Nova Scotia, a Latin phrase meaning New Scotland, was selected by Sir William Alexander in 1621.

'Frivolous Pink' Used In Valentine's Day Sweets

Whatever your favorite colour the rule of thumb on Valentine's Day pink is perfection. So pink it shall be for some frivolous fancies created to delight a Valentine's Day party. But no need for a big bash, no need at all. Why not just the man in your life and another congenial couple to share the sweetness of the day?

First off, make or buy an angel cake. Then get busy and frost same with pink tinted seven minute frosting. New decorate the frosted angel cake with:

1 package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
2 tbsps. vegetable shortening

Combine ingredients in top of double boiler melt over hot, not boiling, water. Spread evenly with back of spoon on aluminum foil-lined 15x10x1-inch pan. Chill until firm, approximately 20—minutes. Invert carefully on waxed paper-lined cookie sheet. Gently peel off foil. Using heart-shaped cookie cutter, 2 inches at widest point, cut 22 hearts. Using heart - shaped cookie cutter, 2½ inches across at widest point, cut 2 hearts. Refill until firm enough to handle, about 3 minutes.

The hearts can also decorate this:

PRETTY ALMOND BAVARIAN

1 can (14 oz. or 13 oz.) sour red pitted cherries (water packed)
1-3 cup sugar
½ cup plus 2 3-cup evaporated milk, divided
1 tsp. almond extract
Red food coloring
Chocolate Hearts

Drain cherries, measure liquid, adding water if necessary to measure 1 cup.

Mix together gelatine and sugar in saucepan stir in cherry liquid. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatine and sugar are dissolved. Remove from heat cool slightly, then stir in ½ cup of the evaporated milk and almond extract. Chill until mixture is slightly thicker than unbeaten egg white.

Meanwhile, chill remaining two-thirds cup of the evaporated milk in freezer tray of refrigerator until ice crystals form around edges. Turn into chilled bowl and whip with rotary beater or high speed of electric mixer until milk is stiff. Stir cherries into gelatine mixture, then fold into evaporated milk. Add a few drops of red food coloring. Turn into 8-inch square pan and chill until firm.

STRAWBERRY EDELWEISS MOLD

2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
2 cups orange juice, divided
¼ cup sugar
Swiss-style strawberry yogurt
¼ cup maraschino cherry syrup
½ cup finely chopped maraschinos
½ cup cut orange sections
Edelweiss cherries
¼ cup flaked coconut

Sprinkle gelatine over 1 cup orange juice in saucepan. Place over low heat stir constantly until gelatine dissolves, 3 or 4 minutes. Remove from heat and stir until dissolved. Stir in yogurt, remaining orange juice and remaining ingredients. Chill until slightly thickened. Turn into 5-cup mold. Chill until firm. Unmold, serving slices. Chill mold first.

Make eight servings of a delightful party or celebration special.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Do husbands delight in a night out?

ONCE in a while, perhaps; but not all husbands really want a regular night out every week, say: A husband, for instance, might be pleased to forgo his weekly Friday night poker game. Not that he doesn't like being with the boys and playing cards; he just likes being with his wife more. He may only go out every week not only because it is expected of him by his cronies, but also because he believes his wife wants him out of the house, too.

Should kids be shooed outside?

WELL, the little things ought to be encouraged to go outside and play with other children. Not only will Mother be better off for not having her youngsters underfoot all day, but also they will develop new contacts outside the home circle. The children will then broaden their outlook, and both they and other members of the same household will learn to enjoy each other more both as part of the same family and as independent human beings.

Is anger 'good' for depression?

NOT chronic, serious depression, at any rate. Someone who is severely depressed needs medical attention. Don't go sticking a pin in an individual who is in a common, ordinary blue mood either, even if he looks as if all he needs is a "good shaking up." Yet, don't rule out self-induced anger. Once a person realizes how futile it is to feel sorry for himself, he might lift his spirits after getting angry at himself.

CP News Roundup

Bay Ridges Home Hit By Waves

BAY RIDGES, Ont. (CP) — Dorothy Robinson, 65, may be forced out of her beach home here because of the pounding waves of Lake Ontario.

"I have had my bags packed for a week," said Miss Robinson. "I have been afraid the waves might break down one of the cement blocks in the cellar and it would completely flood out and come right up into the house."

Learning of Miss Robinsons plight, the Pickering Township fire chief, Don Lynde, organized a group of volunteers who built a sandbag dike Tuesday in an attempt to prevent the lake from completely flooding the basement.

Members of the Red Cross, Metropolitan Toronto Conservation Authority and students from Ajax high school aided Chief Lynde in his efforts. A local contractor who was working nearby used his front-end loader to scrape up loads of sand from the beach. Water levels in the lake are up about a foot from their normal level at this time of year.

Teachers Face Layoffs

TORONTO (CP) — Scarborough borough may have to lay off as many as 300 of its board of education employees because of provincial spending ceilings.

A. S. Taylor, Scarborough education director, reported to borough trustees that the ceilings imposed by the government mean the borough will have to chop $2.5 million from its current budget.

Five other public boards of education across Metropolitan Toronto face similar predicaments. The six boards must chop $24.2 million from their 1973 operating budgets. Scarborough is the first board to complete a staff study on the impact of the ceilings.

Comeback?

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — James Hoffa, the former Teamsters union president who was jailed for jury tampering and mail fraud, said here Friday he intends to take over the presidency of a Detroit Teamsters local if he can get federal approval.

Hoffa made his statements in an interview prior to a dinner here Friday. Hoffa will be 60 on Feb. 14.

Studies Case

EDMONTON (CP) — Attorney-General Merv Leitch said Friday he is studying the entire file on the Bob Neville murder case which led to the conviction of Keith Latta of Kingston, Ont.

The case began June 12, 1971 when Mr. Neville, a travel agent, was found murdered in his downtown office.

Mr. Latta, a former business associate of Mr. Neville, was arrested and convicted of the murder. His appeal was turned down by the Supreme Court of Canada.

Edmonton City police said earlier this week they have virtually closed the case after an attempt was made to reopen the matter on a claim that a Brazilian had been paid to shoot Mr. Neville.

Pork Costly

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians have picked the wrong time to develop a growing taste for pork.

James Rollings, sales manager of the Ontario Pork Producers Marketing Board, said Friday that countries such as Japan are bidding for Canadian pork at a time when domestic consumption is higher.

Pork prices may have reached a temporary high but it isn't likely to become a budget meat.

Mr. Rollings said farmers are producing a record 20 million pounds of pork a week but that's not enough to satisfy the demand.

Cut Voting Age

OTTAWA (CP) — In a rare move Friday that took almost every MP present by surprise, the Commons gave unanimous approval in principle to a private member's bill that would lower the voting age in Indian band council elections to 18 from 21.

The bill will now be referred to the standing committee on Indian affairs for consideration and consultation with Indian associations.

Maurice Foster (L—Algoma) introduced the bill, saying that it was a contradiction for the government to allow young Indians to vote in federal and provincial elections but forbid them the vote in council elections.

He said the change would give voting rights to more than 30,000 people.

FRANK McMAHON

Backed Nixon

WASHINGTON (CP) — If you're a Canadian with strong feelings concerning United States politics, it's legal to put your money where your opinions are.

One Canadian who did so was Frank McMahon. The oilman, financier and horse owner who was born in Moyle, B.C., and resides in Calgary, Vancouver and Palm Beach, Fla., backed President Nixon in the Nov. 7 presidential election.

Animal Wolf

Police would not release the man's identity because they said no crime had been committed.

An autopsy showed the animal was a wolf and not a German shepherd as originally believed. The animal had been shot in the head.

B.C. NDP Budget Conservative

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier Dave Barrett, in bringing down a budget Friday he labelled "cautious," demonstrated that his New Democratic Party government has a conservative streak.

After only seven months in office, the government introduced a budget calling for a record spending of $1,718,900,001, a jump of $266,945,670 from the 1972-73 fiscal year.

To meet this expenditure largely for programs to fight unemployment and social problems, the government estimated revenue of $1,722,215,000. Mr. Barrett told the legislature this was allowing for a growth of 10.5 per cent to 11 per cent in revenue even though all evidence pointed to growth in the next fiscal year of 13 to 13.5 per cent.

"This is a very cautious budget," the 42-year-old premier said. Opposition leaders tended to agree with him.

Mr. Anderson said it appeared the NDP government had given the primary industries another year before carrying through on an election promise and making them pay a bigger shot of the tax burden.

"But basically, I thought it was a good budget, not a stupid budget. In reality it was a Social Credit budget—a bit more honest and a lot more analytical, but a Social Credit budget all the same."

The Social Credit government was defeated last Aug. 30 by the NDP after 20 years in power under W. A. C. Bennett.

Social Credit house leader Frank Richter agreed with the Liberal leader that the NDP brought nothing by Mr. Bennett, who is vacationing.

"It's merely a Social Credit budget and I'm surprised there hasn't been some innovations," Mr. Richter said.

Derril Warren, Progressive Conservative leader, who does not have a seat in the legislature, called it a "social worker's budget," which means, he added, one in which dollars cure all of people's problems.

The budget did have some harsh things for the business community, however, in the form of an increase in the corporate income tax rate to 12 per cent from 10, a 30-per-cent increase in petroleum royalties and a new tax of one-tenth of one per cent on a company's utilized capital, similar to that already in effect in Ontario and Quebec.

There were no increases in personal income taxes.

Mr. Barrett reaffirmed his government's intention to have resource industries make a larger contribution to provincial development but offered no specifics. He said his administration "will not be stampeded into doing things, but will permit a business-like manner" another note of caution.

Education continued to take the largest share of the provincial budget, with expenditures increasing to $486,652,000 for a one-year increase of $45,586,000. The largest one-year increase is in the department of rehabilitation and social improvement where the annual increase is $90,189,000.

Saskatchewan Budget Aims at Expansion

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan New Democratic Party government brought down a balanced budget Friday, calling for expenditures of $722.8 million and promising solid programs to develop the province and stem the population drain.

The budget, which contains personal and corporate income tax increases announced earlier, calls for revenues of $722.7 million which would result in a modest surplus of $535,000 for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

The budget represents an increase in spending of $88 million and much of that is earmarked for agriculture which has received priority from the government.

Finance Minister Elwood Cowley announced that another $20 million will be advanced to the land bank commission for land purchases.

In addition, a new FarmStart program will be given an initial funding of $15 million. That program involves loans of up to $60,000 to allow farmers to diversify operations into livestock production.

The major spending is for health and education.

Public health receives $186.7 million, an increase of about $8 million over the previous year, and education gets $112.2 million, a decrease of some $5 million.

Mr. Cowley said the budget is intended to arrest the rural-urban shift by making it possible for the small farmer to survive; to involve the government in the development of primary resources; and to aid the development of secondary industry.

As previously announced in the throne speech, the government will embark on a program of mineral investigation and evaluation, and will form a Crown corporation to explore for oil and gas.

Wildlife Conference To Aid Endangered Species

WASHINGTON (CP) — A conference of 80 countries, with Canadians playing a leading role, convenes here Monday in an effort to save endangered species of wildlife and plants from extinction.

The aim is to reach international agreement banning the export, import and transit of such species on the theory that if such trade is abolished, much of the destruction will cease.

One Canadian involved in preparations gave an example:

"In the United States, it's illegal to shoot alligators—yet the trade goes on in alligator shoes and bags. If the trade was stopped, the hunting would stop."

Poaching in the elephant areas of Africa was another example, he said.

"As long as a country allows imports of ivory, the poaching will continue."

There's Enough Grain--Whelan

DUNNVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan cautioned livestock farmers Friday against panic buying of feed grain in the face of heavy world demand for the product.

"Be assured that we do have enough feed grain to meet our demand," he told the Haldimand Federation of Agriculture.

"Don't be panicked into paying too much."

He also warned Prairie feed grain producers not to hold out for prices that were unreasonably high.

"Those who have grain to sell should settle for a reasonable profit. Then your profit and put back will produce more.

"If you gouge today, your customers will be bankrupt tomorrow."

Feed grain prices have risen sharply in the past few months following serious crop failures and droughts in many parts of the world. The Canadian wheat board is the sole selling agent for Prairie grain, but farmers don't have to deliver the product until they feel they can get a satisfactory price.

He urged farmers again to "grow grain to best hell."

This Snowmobile Cruise Is All Business

Arnold Boomhour is strictly on business when he snowmobiles across Quinte winter landscape. As special law enforcement officer for Natural Resources Ministry, he regularly checks known deer territory in patrols aimed at discouraging poaching.

Arnold Boomhour

He's One Reason For Wary Poachers

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reprter

Some others obviously don't.

Arnold is special law enforcement officer who patrols deer country in the Tweed forest district for the Natural Resources Ministry.

The others are poachers.

Statistics are beginning to show maybe why illegal hunters have reason to shy off when Arnold is on the deer trails.

Ministry officials at Tweed report that complaints of illegal deer-hunting have been halved from a year ago.

Conservation Officer Dave Atkinson credits the drop to increased support from the public in areas popular with poachers — and also to the effectiveness of Arnold Boomhour's investigations.

The decline, in complaints comes at a welcome time — when fear of dwindling deer herds is concerning authorities and conservationists across the province.

Poachers, says Officer Atkinson, are "starting to realize people aren't going to stand for this uncontrolled killing of deer. And they also know Arnold is on the job . . .

This is the second winter — the season most favored by poachers because of less daylight, fewer people on back roads and in the woods — that Arnold has had the task of special enforcement.

Chief trouble spots continue to be deer yards — fairly compact areas of good winter forage where deer congregate every year to wait out the winter.

Such areas in Hastings County's Tudor township and Elzingham and Sheffield townships in neighboring Lennox and Addington county are top target areas for poachers.

While some deer are killed mainly to provide extra meat for poachers, a large percentage of the illegally-slaughtered venison is poached purely for money — finding illegal markets as far away as Ontario and Ottawa, say ministry officials.

Whatever success he may have had on the job, says Arnold, he credits to citizen cooperation in furnishing complaints and information.

"Johnny public is my right arm," he says.

The drop in complaints he also credits to public recognition — a public that is becoming more aware of the necessity to protect wildlife.

"People realize that the deer are their responsibility too, and they have to protect them," he says.

Despite often long, unreliable hours, the work is personally rewarding, he says.

The energetic 37 - year - old Calabar native is himself a convinced conservationist and keen outdoorsman who believes wildlife must be protected.

"Much of it is on the decline. If we don't put a stop to this business of poaching we could have a pretty bare north country," he says.

Using both truck and snowmobile — often cruising the bush in darkness if called on a nighttime complaint — he sometimes works seven days a week, assisting regular ministry officers in the fight against illegal deer killers.

It's not all just patrol work. In fact, says Arnold, he has yet to meet up with a poacher on the spot. Much of his time is spent on investigations — tracking down leads on the whereabouts of poached venison, and poachers.

Last year his investigations resulted in 38 convictions for poaching. In one case, fines totalled more than $1,500.

Between patrols and investigations enforcement has seen him ranging anywhere from Calabogie to Prince Edward County.

Picton Industry Still In ODC Negotiations

PICTON — Skylight Homes, a Toronto company which manufacturers plastic boats for sale in development countries is expected to sign a lease with Loch Slov Holding in the next few weeks.

The industry then could begin operations at Loch Slov industrial park adjacent to Prince Edward Heights.

Prince Edward director of economic development William Duggan said yesterday the company has been negotiating steadily with the Ontario Development Corporation in recent weeks.

Wolf Attacks Sheep, Dogs

Rabies Quarantine on Farm

QUEENSBORO — Federal veterinary authorities are keeping close watch on this area after imposing a quarantine on an entire flock of sheep savaged by a coyote which has now proven to be rabid.

The sheep are owned by a farmer whose wife says wolves are on the increase in the area and she is afraid to let her children out alone since more of the animals may be rabid.

Scene of the incident was the farm of Ken Sexsmith, at this Elsiver township hamlet, 10 miles north of Highway 7.

More than 50 sheep are under quarantine after one was killed outright and others bitten when the coyote found its way into a barn open pen during the pre-dawn hours of last Monday.

It was shot after it had also attacked two family dogs and entered a summer kitchen adjoining the Sexsmith home.

Dr. J. F. McCorquodale, Belleville - area federal veterinarian, said yesterday the quarantine was imposed after tests later this week revealed the wolf was rabid.

The sheep may be quarantined for 60 days or more, he said. So also will be one of the Sexsmith dogs and the dog of a neighbor which encountered the animal, earlier the same night.

Dr. McCorquodale said a close watch will be kept on the area in the next few days since it is possible other domestic and farm animals may have had contact with the coyote. If so, other cases of rabies could be reported.

A Natural Resources Ministry official from Tweed was scheduled to visit the Sexsmith farm today to evaluate possible loss suffered by the owner of the flock. Recent provincial legislation has replaced the age-old Ontario wolf bounty payments with a compensation measure for wolf damage to livestock.

The wolf was shot after Mr. Sexsmith was awakened as it attacked a hound in the barn, pursuing it into the summer kitchen where a second family dog, aroused by the commotion had pushed open the door.

Grabbing a 22-calibre rifle, Mr. Sexsmith wounded the wolf, sending it fleeing across the barnyard into a hayloft. Mrs. Sexsmith meantime had called the family's son-in-law, Howard Ramsay, who lives nearby. He hurried to the scene with a shotgun to shoot the rabid animal.

Worried that his sheep — which he had penned indoors for the winter — may have also been attacked, Mr. Sexsmith checked the building and found one dead, another badly injured and others bitten and roughed up. The wolf had apparently gone entry through a small opening in the pen door.

Suspecting the coyote may have been rabid he called in ministry officials from Tweed forest district offices who in turn called on Dr. McCorquodale. The carcass was dispatched to Hull for laboratory tests.

Mrs. Sexsmith said the animal earlier had been chased from the neighboring farm of Roy Rollins, where it had aroused the household after attacking the family dog.

She said since the incident she has been scared to permit her three children — aged 10 to 15 years — to walk roads or fields in the vicinity of the farm, because there may be other rabid wolves in the neighborhood.

The number of wolves now in the area appears "far worse this year" than in past winters.

"There isn't a night you go out you don't hear them," she said.

More Aid For Snowmobile Trails?

MARMORA — It's been a week in which Quinte - area snowmobilers had a chance to directly confront political sources with their problems.

And Gordon Bennett is optimistic the results may be a beneficial provincial government response.

Mr. Bennett can speak with some authority.

He is president of the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council, sponsor of a network of snowmobile trails through central Hastings County. Its total 356 miles "may be the largest in the province, certainly in Southern Ontario," he says.

The council was among various organizations and individuals which voiced opinions on the recreation at Bancroft and Pictou this week before the legislature's Committee on Snowmobiles and All-Terrain vehicles.

Mr. Bennett said committee members "were generally interested and I'm hopeful that this will prompt a positive response from government on what no longer "is a minority sport" but also an industry that generates a lot of revenue."

The fact the committee was appointed is indicative the government is "plugged in to snowmobiling problems," said Mr. Bennett. It showed provincial authorities have been listened to growing demands for action on safety factors — and reminders of drawnobsters that some of the tax revenue they create be turned back in facilities.

Besides a $10 operating licence fee, sportsmen pay sales tax on their machines, and all necessary equipment and clothing, he noted.

The tourist council's brief to the committee at Bancroft included recommendations that government funds be allocated for preparation, maintenance and advertising of trails rail for public or non-profit organizations.

The Hastings network is a prime example of local initiative, he felt.

Launched in 1968, when the council joined with nine townships in central Hastings, its trails — which now range from Tweed to the Coe Hill area — were begun with the help of a small volunteer labor. Such voluntary help has "petered out" and the organization "must be prepared to hire any work done" in maintaining the 350 mile network.

Mr. Bennett estimates it now would cost about $10,000 a year to do "a pretty good" maintenance job on the trails.

While snowmobiling and a tourist council could provide some of the funds, "we'd like to see a good part of it coming from the province," said Mr. Bennett.

Any such funds should be handled by an elected body — likely drawn from local participating municipal councils.

Trails could also be created on much of the province's Crown land with the Natural Resources Ministry an ideal agency for such an undertaking, felt Mr. Bennett.

The tourist council told the committee "extensive, attractive trails" should be made available to snowmobilers "to discourage the use of roads and lakes where most . . . accidents are occurring." Private enterprise should also be encouraged to take advantage of the business opportunity by creating supplementary facilities.

Locally it felt Hastings County "possesses great potential" as a snowmobile recreation area "and every effort should be made to develop it as such."

There have been many legislature committees on many topics. But will the council's and other suggestions being heard?

They were, the committee was told by Bennett, who also presented the committee with a resolution from the council proferred the snowmobile committee across the province, evoke positive government response.

Reiterates Mr. Bennett: "If the interest shown by the committee is any indication . . . I think they will make recommendations and that the government will act on them."

"I personally can't see why they wouldn't. I was encouraged, and I think others were too."

Arnold Boomhour keeps regular zurveillance of deer areas. Much time also is spent by special wildlife law enforcement officer, answering and investigating complaints on illegal killing of Quinte area's big game.

Local Syrup Producers Hear Booster Methods

The use of nitrogen for fertilization of maple trees to boost sap production was outlined to members of the Quinte Brabch of the Ontario Syrup Producers at their annual meeting Friday.

Speaker for the meeting at Westminster Church which attracted about 40 Quinte area producers was Ernest Done of the Natural Resources Ministry.

Mr. Dane said fertilizing maple tree with ammonium during the early summer was one way of boosting the spring sap run and increasing syrup production.

Walter Humphreys outlined activities of the Provincial Syrup Producers and also told producers how they could boost revenue by providing organized tours of their syrup facilities and by group talks.

Field Group Names Officers

Other officers are Miss D. Young, vice-president; Miss M. Fisher, secretary Miss G. Lazier, treasurer.

They were named at the group's January meeting at which the speaker was Bill Porter, of Prescott, who demonstrated a recently-developed detergent, claimed as completely biodegradable and non - polluting.

Discussed by the meeting was the wolf control program in Quebec and the Canadian Nature Federation study on this subject. Summer openings for naturalists in Algonquin Park awards for high school students by the Canadian National Sportsmen's shows and the signing of a petition on humane trapping methods were also topics.

It was decided to support with a donation, the work of conservationist George Wood-house of Elmwood Dr., east of Belleville, in maintaining a pond for wild ducks.

Free Parking Experiment For Downtown

Downtown shoppers will be offered free parking soon on an experimental basis.

For one month from Feb. 15 the board of management of the Belleville Downtown Association will pay for the first hour of parking for any car in the Municipal parking lot at Campbell and Pinnacle streets, says Alderman Roger Porter, BDA president.

If this proves successful, the project will be continued and expanded to include the "Den Hen lot on Front, St., and later the lot behind downtown stores.

This is the first project of the board of management of its downtown improvement area scheme, said Ald. Porter.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call this morning:

3:45 a.m. 271 Bleecker Ave. Fire in a storage room on the main floor.

Too Young to Compete

Teacher Reta Pyear's Grade 2 and 3 class at Belleville's Queen Alexandra School were too young to enter the schools' poster competition for Dental Health Week. But most went ahead anyway and were rightly proud of their work shown here. Dental Health Week ends today with a display on dental care at the Quinte Mall.

Club Plans Art Contest

PICTON — An art contest has been planned by the Prince Edward Hack and Hunt Club to promote local interest in the organization. A committee was named this week to organize the event which may be held in conjunction with the Prince Edward spring horse show. Chairman is Mary Leversedge. Picton, art teacher at Queen Elizabeth school.

After Barrage

Flyers Leave Victors

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

After scoring 13 goals in the first two periods, Vancouver Canucks and Philadelphia Flyers seemed to be pointing for a National Hockey League record Friday night, but in the third period it was obvious the teams had shot their bolt.

The Flyers emerged victorious, 10-3, to pad their second-place position in the Western Division, while in Atlanta, the Flames bowed 4-3 to Chicago Black Hawks and squandered a chance to vault alone into second place ahead of St. Louis Blues and Minnesota North Stars.

The NHL record for most goals in one game was established back in 1920, when Montreal Canadiens defeated the old Toronto St. Pats 14-7, so the high-scoring game in Vancouver fell seven short of the number needed to erase the old mark.

Bobby Clarke shared scoring honors for the winners with Rick MacLeish and Ross Lonsberry, each picking up two goals. Clarke is in third place in the individual scoring race, three points behind Jean Ratelle of the Hawks, who has 77 points as runner-up to leader Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins.

The game in Vancouver also produced plenty of rough play with the Canucks' diminutive Bobby Schmautz squaring off against the Flyers' Andre Dupont and Dave Schultz. Schmautz eventually drew a game misconduct, as did Vancouver's John Wright and Dan Saleski of Philadelphia.

There were 101 minutes in penalties arrested during the game, 99 in the first two periods.

Chicago's victory enabled the Hawks to maintain an 11-point edge over Philadelphia in the Western Division standings and they have a game in hand.

The visiting Hawks needed a rally to wipe out a 3-0 Atlanta lead, however. Dennis Hull sparked the comeback with a pair of goals in the third period that helped second the Flames down to their fourth consecutive defeat.

Milt Schmidt's goal at 12:06 of the final period tied the score at 3-3 and Hull's second of the game, at 16:13 was the winner. It was his 29th of the season.

Rally Off

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian International winter rally started Friday night with 75 crews braving for the first stop over in Ontario today.

In Ottawa, the two-man teams will have a 10-hour rest before returning to Toronto Saturday for the 836km ladies dia tric north of Kingston.

The first team down the ramp was Gene Henderson and Ken Pogue, both of Dearborn, Mich., in a Jeep.

Starting second was the crew of Scotland's Andrew Cowan, a professional rallyist, and John Bellefleur of Toronto, in a Ford. Last year's winners, Jean Paul Perusse and Lee Bartholomew, both of Laval, Que., left from the 19th position in a Fiat.

Rallymaster Bill Davies of Toronto said, "Most of the route has a light covering of snow, probably not enough to cause problems . . . just enough to hide the ice."

The rally, with 34 Canadians, covers 1,100 miles of secondary roads in eastern Ontario.

CFL's East Goes To Sudden Death Finals

TORONTO (CP) — Playoffs in the Eastern Football Conference will be sudden-death this year, Jack Gaudaur, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, said Friday.

Previously, the EFC had played a sudden-death semi-final and a two-game, total-points final.

Gaudaur, at a news conference that the EFC will use the new system on a one-year trial basis. The Western Football Conference used it last year and likely will again this year.

"It should be noted that the EFC has determined it will follow the same pricing concept as adopted by the WFC last year," Gaudaur said following the wind up of the CFL annual meetings.

"For the semi-final game it will be a $10, $8 and $5 price scale and for the final it will be $12, $10 and $6."

A factor in the decision was a general commitment made in discussions with the Canadian Football League Players Association last year that the EFC would be a sudden-death conceptt if the experience in the West determined that the West would continue.

The WFC has decided the sudden-death format is superior to its former system where there was a sudden-death semi-final and a best-of-three final.

Regular season playoff salaries will be the same in both conferences. Players on the first-place team—it receives a bye into the final—will get $600 each, second-place finishers will get $500 and losers $500.

Each player on the winning team in the final will get $800 and the losers $600 each.

Thursday, he said the Grey Cup winners will receive $3,000 each, runner-up finishers $2,000 and the losers $2,000 each, up from $1,200.

That would mean the Grey Cup winners will earn an extra $4,400.

The EFC has also decided to increase its schedule to 16 games from 14 in 1974. The two extra games will be between EFC clubs—there will be no extension of the interconference schedule.

Last year, with the WFC going to sudden-death, Western clubs had a two-week rest before the EFC's final. Eastern teams had just a one-week rest.

Asked how the new Eastern system would affect that, Gaudaur said there was a lot of discussion between league general managers.

"To me, I have felt there is something lost with a two-week wait, for example, in the Grey Cup Bowl, where you get to the end of the National Football League playoffs then there's a two-week gap.

"There seems to be a lack of continuity . . . I would be concerned with a two-week gap. I think in an alternative year we could move the Grey Cup up a week.

However, this year the decision was made to make the change."

Expansion into the United States was expected to be a topic at the meetings. Two Buffalo businessmen have indicated interest in establishing a club there, Gaudaur said it wasn't discussed.

Canadians Diving Well

ADELAIDE (Reuter) — Canadians Pat McGregor and Lindy Cubbert filled the second and third positions in the Australian women's high board championships here Friday night.

Miss McGregor was just beaten for first place by Australian Madeleine Everett, after leading the field in the earlier stages of the event.

Marlies Prove Worth vs Petes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros decided to prove themselves this week.

The Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league leaders have heard some National Hockey League scouts have said Peterborough Pats and Oshawa 67s rate higher because of the teams in their division.

So the rookie-laden Marlies went into Peterborough Thursday night and beat the 67-ers for their first win this season on Peterborough ice in four starts.

And when the Petes visited Maple Leaf Gardens Friday night, they were mauled 11-1 as the Marlies ran up an 8-0 lead and extended their margin over the second-place club to 12 points.

The 67s, who thumped Oshawa Generals 13-3 at home, to move to within a point of Peterborough, get their chance Sunday at the Gardens.

In other games, London Knights hammered Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 10-1 at the Sault as Steve Langdon scored three goals and rookie Rick Bourbonnais paced the Rangers with three goals as they beat Sudbury Wolves 6-2 in Kitchener.

"Kitchener and the Wolves have a return match tonight at Sudbury while in Sunday's other games, Hamilton is at St. Catharines, the Petes visit the Generals at Oshawa, London is at Sudbury and the Rangers travel to Toronto.

"It's by far our biggest week of the season," Marlie coach George Armstrong said before Friday night's game. "We can take a big step towards a first-place finish and also show what we can do against the very best competition."

Armstrong said his "kids wanted to prove something, both to themselves and the Petes."

Peter Marrin, Brad Winton, Kevin Devine, Glenn Goldup and Mark Howe were the other Marlie marksmen.

Rick Chinnick ruined Palmateer's shutout bid.

Three goals each by Blake Dunlop and Jim Turnbull did most of the damage at Oshawa as the 67s bombarded two Oshawa goalies with 46 shots.

All but one of the 67s' goals were scored against Lew Moore who replaced Rick St. Croix after he was injured in the first period.

Dennis Potvin scored twice for the 67s with Peter and David Lee, Derek Smith, Bruce Baker and Jim Cowell getting the others. Rick Middleton, Don Seiling and Bill Lockhead replied for the Generals.

At Kitchener, Joe Fortunato, Tony White and Paul Evans were the other Ranger scorers while Rick Hansen and Mike Marsen tallied for the Wolves who led 2-1 going into the first period.

Dennis Ververgaert, Dennis Maruk, Reg Thomas, Terry Martin, Peter Tighe, Lou Nanne and Joe Kelly were the other London scorers as the Knights piled up period leads of 2-0 and 6-0 and ran the count to 7-0 in the third before Carl Fabrelli counted for the Greyhounds.

Celtics Hurting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What's wrong with Boston Celtics, the National Basketball Association's defending champions?

Boston, with Havlicek hobbling through 31 minutes and making only two of 12 field goal attempts, defeated Detroit 104-86. Los Angeles lost West after only four minutes and bowed to Milwaukee Bucks 120-98 as two National Basketball Association division leaders played host Friday night.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Baltimore Bullets dumped Buffalo Braves 101-95, Chicago Bulls took Cleveland Braves 103-97, Kansas City-Omaha Kings defeated Houston Rockets 121-116 and Portland Trailblazers helped Philadelphia set an NBA record, beating the Braves 116-93.

Havlicek is hurting, still favoring an aching knee. "I had no movement at all," the Celtic star said. "This is a game-to-game thing. Sometimes I feel all right and sometimes I don't."

Alberta Oiler's Norris Earns Shutout

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Alberta Oilers and Cincinnati Nationals did something for the first time this season and even goaltender Jack Norris got into the act in two World Hockey Association games Friday.

Norris recorded his first shutout of the year as the Oilers blanked Minnesota Fighting Saints 6-0 before 2,304 fans in Edmonton. For the Oilers, it was their initial win over the Saints in three games.

In Boston, the Nationals got two goals apiece fro m Tom Simpson and Jack Gibson in a 7-4 triumph over New England Whalers during a rare weekday afternoon game. The Nationals hadn't defeated the Whalers in five previous matches.

The Oilers who moved within two points of Los Angeles Sharks and fourth and last playoff position in the western division, scored three powerplay goals each while they were shorthanded.

Jim Harrison boosted his season's total to 26 with a powerplay goal in the first period and a shorthanded one late in the third with team-mate Al Hamilton in the penalty box. Ed Joyal also beat Minnesota goalie Mike Curran with Hamilton.

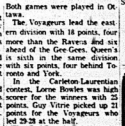
Curran stopped 33 shots and held the Oilers to a 2-0 lead, picked up in the first period, after the wrong goalie was given him in a four-goal third period.

Norris stopped 27 shots, 10 in each of the second and third periods.



The fifth-place Nationals, five points away from a playoff berth in the eastern division, outscored the Whalers 3-2 in the next period to clinch their 21st win of the year.

Terry Caffery starred for New England with two goals, his 31st and 32nd, alone with two assists. Tom Webster got his 40th goal and two assists, Gerry Ehman and Larry Pleau completing the scoring.

Travellers Lose Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Laurentian Voyageurs lost their perfect record Friday night as Ottawa Gee-Gees dominated the boards and got 18 points from Vic Chandler to defeat Queen's Golden Gaels 84-68.

Both games were played in Ottawa.

The Voyageurs lead the east division with 18 points, four more than the Ravens and six ahead of the Gee Gees. Queen's is sixth in the division with six points, four behind Toronto and York.

In the Carleton-Laurentian game, Gary Bowles was high scorer for the winners with 25 points. Guy Vitre picked up 21 points for the Voyageurs who led 29-28 at the half.

Rangers Lose Lead To Remparts in Third

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For a while Friday night Drummondville Rangers had fans of Quebec's Remparts squirming in their seats.

There they were, the last place Rangers, recipients of all 5 and 10-2 beatings earlier this season, leading the league champs 6-4 with only one period left.

The fantasy shattered in the third period however, as the Remparts scored seven goals en route to an 11-6 win.

In other Quebec Junior Hockey League games Friday, Sorel Black Hawks whipped Sherbrooke Beavers 9-5, Cornwall Royals dumped Shawinigan Bruins 8-3 and Laval Nationals trimped Montreal rookies 7-5.

In Sorel, four players had two goals each to key the Black Hawks' win. Denis Desgagnes, Michel Deziel, Jacques Cornetto and Serge Gamelin had two goals apiece. Michel Bergeron added a single.

Dwayne Byers had two goals for Sherbrooke with singles going to Francois Rochon, Mario Desjardins and Raymond Lefebvre.

Gilles Therrien's three-goal performance, two coming in the final period, carried Laval to its win over Montreal.

Denis Martel and Bernard Rochefort scored for the Nationals while Andre St. Laurent, with two, and Mario Tremblay replied for Montreal.

Cornwall has a 41 first-place lead and then hung on for the win.

John Hazar, Al Sims, Yvan Boullion and Blair MacDonald scored for Royals while Guy Dolbec and Claude Arvisais were the Shawinigan marksmen.

In the next scheduled league game tonight, Sorel plays host to Laval. Quebec travels to Shawinigan, Sherbrooke entertains Drummondville and Montreal is at home to Cornwall.

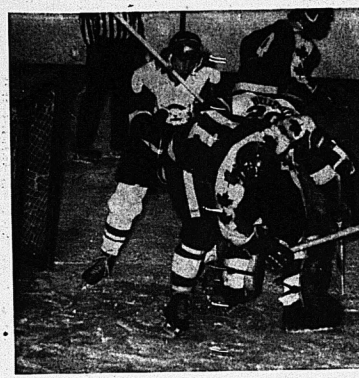
Decloe Withdraws

BOSTON (AP) — Boston University reported Friday that sophomore hockey star Dick Decloe of Mississauga, Ont., has withdrawn from school to play junior hockey in Canada.



Decloe, 19, reportedly was declared ineligible by the Eastern College Athletic Conference for allegedly educational expenses while playing hockey before enrolling at BU. The Terriers had to forefeit 11 victories in which Decloe played.

"I really hate to leave Boston University, but I hope to eventually play professional hockey and I'm eligible for the pro draft this year," Decloe said, before going home.

Coach Cromie

Gives Meagher Star Status

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

If Bobcats' centre Rick Meagher wants a back thumping for the game he played against the second place Toronto Young Nationals Friday night, he needn't go looking for Belleville Metro Junior "B" fans. The centre could head straight for the Nats' dressing room and receive a warm welcome from Toronto's coach Chuck Cromie.

Cromie had nothing but praises to sing for the Cats middleman on the Ken Holmes-Meagher-Paul Lavender line, but he did not leave centre Mark Coates out of his distribution of the accolades. "Both those guys are super hockey players," said the Nats' coach.

"I like Meagher," said Cromie, "he doesn't lose his cool; he's a leader. The only way to stop him is to gun him, otherwise, any time that he's on the ice, he's dynamite."

The two Belleville centres equally shared the four goals that beat Nats' goaltender John Sidey as Meagher potted the 'Cats' starter goals of the first and third periods, while Coates supplied the second frame tally and the final Bobcats' goal of the game.

The unhappy part of the story was not on the scoreboard, however, as the fifth place Belleville club suffered their sixth consecutive loss of the season.

Nats' winger Brian Willon scored at the 18:39 mark of the final third to give the Toronto club a 5-4 victory over the Bobcats. The go ahead goal came as Willon took a pass from Brian Burtch, skated around goalie Bob Moore's net and tucked the puck behind the 'Cats' netminder's leg curled around the post. Moore said after the game that the shot "went off the fat pad".

RICK MEAGHER

The Nats-Cats series came out even with last night's result as both teams have one victory and a tie to their credit. The Belleville club defeated Toronto 5-3 on home ice in mid October in a game which saw five glove shorn engagements along with a misconduct to Nats' defenceman Bob Palmer.

But neither Moe Hunter nor Cromie dwelt on the past, as both agreed, though in separate dressing rooms, that the game was a good one to watch with approximately 1000 fans at Memorial Arena.

When asked if he had anything to say about the game, Bobcats' coach Moe Hunter, in his usual understating manner, said, "No, it was a pretty good hockey game."

Cromie, on the other hand, forgot to ring his own chimes saying "they (the Bobcats) played a wil of a game. They kept coming back. It was an exciting game up and down, and to end hockey."

The two clubs did not hesitate to use the corners or the boards in the hard hitting battle which only saw referee Keith McDonald hand out three majors. Meagher and defenceman Dave Shand started a fight in the corner and ended it with five minute respites in the penalty box. Bobcats' right winger Andy Bickcats received a misconduct penalty after he vocally disagreed with an elbowing call in the second period.

Though Meagher started the game's scoring within the final minute of play in the first period, the Bobcats had to play catch-up hockey after the Kent Jackson- Shand, Warren Holmes, and Bob Palmer put the Nats ahead each time the Cats scored.

Both Shand and Palmer played go-getter games for the Nats earning tallies as a result. Palmer consistently peppered point shots at Moore as the Nats used their defenceman's blue line passing to keep the Belleville netminder off balance. Palmer's goal from fellow blueliner Jackson came after he took a pass and drove the puck low past a spread-eagled Moore.

Though Bobcats' Meagher hit the post on a second period drive, the centre's third period tally exhibited solid offensive know-how. Meagher beat Nats' Shand at his blue line and came straight down centre Sidey's alley, deked to the right and neatly potted the puck behind Sidey's back on the left.

Coates, however, perhaps exhibited the most single minded scoring effort as he was held up by Shand while fighting for the puck in the third period. The 'Cats centre broke loose, put his stick on the puck, momentarily floating in front of Sidey, and fired it between the goalie's legs for the 4-4 tie-up.

Despite the losses the Bobcats have taken in their past six outings, they have been only soundly defeated by Peterborough, whom they play on Sunday at Keene, and Oshawa. The Lions trampled the 'Cats 8-1 in Peterborough while the Legionaires took a 7-4 decision from Belleville. Their other four games were lost by one goal margins.

Russ Dean, trainer of the Bobcats, perhaps set the right mood for the upcoming four games the club plays, when he said, "They're going to hear from the 'Cats before this season is over".

Sellars Does Turn For the Worst

Toronto Young Nationals left winger Doug Sellars did a new version of "loop the loop" in Friday night's Metro Junior "B" hockey game against the Belleville Bobcats. The winger's drive to Bobcats' goalie Bob Moore's net failed to materialize in a score, though it did provide Sellars with a different perspective from Moore's back of the fame of hockey. Sellars' team, however, didn't roll for the loss as they defeated the fifth place 'Cats 5-4.

Dafoe Goes Down for Stop

Lancers' goalie Greg Dafoe, sprawls to make save on Brockville point blast in Ontario College Athletic Association hockey action Friday night. Bulls forward, Jeff Fleming, waits to bang home rebound that didn't come as Loyalist defenceman, Dave Ferguson, covers in front of net. The home town Lancers defeated St. Lawrence College of Brockville 6-4.

Lancers Trim Bull's Horns

By MIKE BRADSHAW

The Loyalist Lancers took another step in their bid to move into second place in Ontario College Athletic Association eastern competition.

The Lancers downed the Brockville Bulls 6-4 Friday night in a loosely played hockey game.

Brockville drew first blood with Gary Warringer scoring 9 seconds into the first period. Loyalist appeared disrupted by the scrambly nature of the hockey during the first 8 minutes of the opening frame.

Coach Bruce Cameron speculated "We are capable of playing much better hockey than what we showed tonight. Whenever we play there we tend to play their type of hockey. They try to intimidate us with elbowing, slashing, tripping, everything in the book. We just end up scrambling."

Left-winger Brian Remington was top goal getter for the home team with two, including what proved to be the game winner at 1:09 of the second period.

Remington, a mid - season acquisition for Loyalist, has scored three goals and added one assist in the last two games. His linemate, right-winger Barry Baastrup, set the winger up on both goals.

Baastrup's three assists added to his trio of goals scored against Algonquin last week. When questioned about the

Tom Jones, Jeff Fleming, and Warringer, with his second goal of the night, replied for the cellar dwelling Bulls.

Jason Aims with Elders

Archery Family Sport

EDMONTON (CP) — Archery is a fast-growing sport that can become a family tradition, says Grace Drake of Sydney, Australia.

She should know. She's been pulling bow strings for more than 30 years and has 3 daughter and six-year-old grandson who have taken to the quiver.

Mrs. Drake, 64, is four-times winners of the Australian women's target championship and three-times winner of the Jubilee Trophy for the best all-round Australian archer. She was here to visit with her daughter, Donnella Bryce and grandson Jason.

"A lot of people feel archery is a test of strength and a proof of masculinity," she said in an interview, "but it's not."

Given the proper bow, with correct pull weight, women can compete with men as equals, she said. Also, it's a good sport for children because they have to learn to follow the rules and not shoot where they please.

"You're never too young for this sport."

Her daughter first used a bow and arrow when she was three, and went on to become the Australian junior girls' champion.

The key to success and enjoyment in archery, Mrs. Drake said, is concentration and discipline.

The sport has grown immensely in Edmonton, said Gordon Hyland, an active member of the Edmonton Archers' Club. About two years ago, the club issued 12 memberships, and now has 90 out—most of them family memberships.

"It's really catching on," he said.

Club members shoot throughout the summer on a 30-target field course in the country and in a high school gymnasium during winter.

Hyland said a beginner's archery set costs from $100. Club memberships are $25 a year for singles and $30 a year for families.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, Feb. 11

Aries (March 21-April 19): Make your proper showing at the community's regular Sunday morning ceremonies, then pursue some adventurous outing or visit.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Love and sentiment dominate the day. There is little that can go out of focus if you express the best of yourself.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Cherished personal hopes promise developments, perhaps fulfillment. Get out of your accustomed routines, join the larger world.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): It is time for generous social fun and amenities. Unexpected visitors are part of the range of possible happenings.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): The spotlight of public attention is on your rivals, or if you're lucky, your mate or partner. Use the chance for relaxation.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 23): Despite all resolutions, things pile up so you are as busy as can be throughout the entire day. Promote romantic contacts.

Libra (Sept. 24-Oct. 22): This morning finds you in your element, alert and open to fresh ideas, willing to speak out gracefully. By all means, do so.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Time out for self-expression, social expansion, pleasant personal matters. There's a thought stirring about business.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be up and about early to catch the fun and good times of the day. Your most ordinary routine can be interesting.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Give up on research, make it a full day Sunday. If you haven't a full family situation, visit one, be useful.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): For once it may seem that you have nothing to do. Make this a loafing holiday. You may learn something priceless.

Pisces (Feb. 19 — March 20): Somewhere in the course of doing for others you have to find time to do for yourself, plus some extra rest.

Golden Handshake

LEDBURY, England (CP) — Cab driver Sid Wood's received the largest tip of his life three days after winning a prize in a private taxi business in Herefordshire. One of his regular clients, Peter Hunt, has left him £30,000 (about $48,000) in his will — a reward for all his kindness and attention, she wrote. She always hired Wood's cab to go shopping in the town.

Contract Bridge

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

A Critical Guess
South decides.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♥ K 3 2
♦ 10
♣ K 10 8 6 3

WEST
♠ K 10 6 4
♥ 10 8 4
♦ Q 7 3 7 6
♣ 6

EAST
♠ 7 5
♥ Q 7 6 5 2
♦ 8 5 3 2
♣ Q 7 3

SOUTH
♠ Q J 8
♥ A 9 6
♦ A K 6
♣ A J 3 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 NT	Pass	6 ♣

Opening lead — queen of diamonds.

Here is a typical case from multiple team match where, at all five tables, the final contract was six clubs and where every declarer missed the target. In each case, South led the ♦ Q and won early in the play and later lost a heart and a trump to the down one.

But the slam could have been made — and should have been made — by declarer's postponing his trump lesde until he was in a better position to judge when and how to tackle the suit.

Best play is to win the diamond lead and return the jack of spades. Let's assume West plays low — he may have just that — in which case the jack wins.

South then cashes the king of diamonds, discarding a heart on dummy's ace, ruffs a diamond, cashes the K-A of hearts, and ruffs a heart to produce this position:

	North
	♠ A 9 3 2
	♥ K
	♣ K 10 8 6 3
West	East
♠ K 10 6 4	♠ 7
♥ 10 8 4	♥ Q
♦ Q 7 3	♦ 9
♣ 6	♣ Q 7 3
South
♠ Q J 8
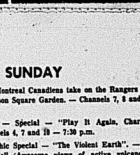
♦ A J 3 5

Now declarer cashes the king of clubs and continues with a low club, ruffing with his nine queens, confident of making the slam — whether or not the finesse succeeds.



If West produces the queen, he is endplayed, for he must either lead a spade from the king or yield a ruff and discard to declarer's other suit. If the trump finesse succeeds, of course equally sure of the slam.

Knowles Unable To Get Date Set For Pension Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The government steadfastly declined Friday to say when it will introduce a bill increasing old-age pensions or how much the increase will be.

But he rejected a suggestion from Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) that to retaliate the NDP join the Conservatives in voting against government supplementary estimates—in effect, a vote of non-confidence.

In reply to the Conservative suggestion, Mr. Knowles told the Commons his party has assurances that the Liberals intend to give old-age pensioners a substantial boost over the basic $82.88 they now receive each month.

The Conservatives, he said, apparently will not go beyond a $10-a-month raise.

Mr. Knowles said his party wants the basic pension raised to $150 a month and made retroactive to Jan. 1.

The NDP also wants the pension paid to persons at age 60 or at least paid to both husband and wife after one of them reaches age 65.

"Now why should we throw them people (the Liberals) out when we are still trying to get the government like it, freer them while we have no promise at all from the Conservatives?" he asked.

The Commons was debating a government request for extra funds for the health and welfare department. The Conservatives moved amendments to cut three of the figures down to $1 apiece, but, according to Mr. Nielsen, the amendments were not to the programs could be debated.

Budget Defeat Not Sure

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite mounting speculation that the minority Liberal government is plunging into a political crisis with its Feb. 19 budget, opposition financial critics clearly don't see an inevitable defeat.

"The government would have no trouble in presenting budget legislation in a way that would get NDP support," says Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West).

The New Democratic Party's financial spokesman, Max Saltsman (Waterloo), goes even further.

What started the talk of an impending crisis was a strong hint from Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield that his party would oppose the government's proposed legislation—left over from the last budget—to give certain tax concessions to corporations. He says they would be ineffective in creating new investment.

With the NDP stoutly opposed to these "corporate rip-offs," there were immediate suggestions—some from politicians themselves—that the government faced imminent danger. There was no way the NDP could vote for this legislation, and if the Conservatives opposed it on a "too little, too late" basis, that would be the end of the minority Parliament.

Not at all, says Mr. Saltsman.

"The government has all sorts of options, and it is obviously aware of the dangers. If they bring in a package of goodies, roll them up in one legislative package with the corporate cuts, it will be impossible for us to vote against it."

"And even if they do it separately after the budget has been passed, the defeat of a ways and means motion like this wouldn't necessarily bring them down.

"They would be in a position to go to the business community and say 'We tried to give you these concessions and the Tories wouldn't let us.' I don't think the Tories would put themselves in that position."

Mr. Lambert thinks that if the Liberals end up in a political crisis over the budget it will be because they want to.

"It might be something they might wish, providing the budget contains sufficient attractions. It's entirely up to them."

Women Want Tax Rescinded On Used Goods Sold to Poor

TORONTO (CP) — Women delegates to the annual conference of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party endorsed a proposal Friday to rescind the sales tax on used goods sold to poor people.

The proposal by Vera Dickerson of North Bay was accepted after a brief debate by members of the party's newly-formed women's association.

Mrs. Dickerson said her proposal was directed at outlets operated by service clubs and organizations, such as the Salvation Army, where used articles and clothing are sold to the needy for a nominal sum.

New Bell Application For Rate Boost Ready

OTTAWA (CP) — Less than a year after its last rate increase, Bell Canada is involved in another application to increase the prices it charges for telephone services.

And as soon as the Canadian transport commission decides on the current application, it will face yet a third Bell Canada request for price increases—this one effective next year.

The public hearing on the current application began Jan. 18. Final arguments will be offered beginning Tuesday. A decision is expected next month.

As usual, there have been opponents expressing scepticism about Bell assertions that more money is urgently required to keep up with ever-increasing demands for telephone service.

And, as usual, Bell delegates had bushels of statistics to back their argument that telephone service will go rapidly downhill without the rate increase.

After going since 1958 without a rate increase, Bell Canada in 1969 sought an increase that would have given it $83.6 million more a year in revenue. But the commission awarded it increases worth only $27.5 million.

In 1970, it got $22.5 million out of $30 million sought. And in May, 1972, it was awarded $47.2 million of a requested $78.1 million.

The latest applications, one for increases effective this year and one for increases effective Jan. 1, 1974, would provide $121 million more in revenue over the two years. Revenues would increase by $36 million this year.

PCs Hold Convention

Ontario's Three Wise Men Advised to 'Start Listening'

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's policy secretaries, sometimes called the three wise men, portrayed themselves Friday as catalysts in the task of streamlining government and making it more responsive to people's needs.

But at least one of the 1,400 delegates to the annual conference of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party, first in three years, disagreed.

Pat Ford, a Hamilton alderman, broke the convention's opening day calm by sternly lecturing the three secretaries on the province's regional government policies for the Hamilton-Burlington-Halton area.

"You people have got to start listening," she warned, adding that the proposal to divide Hamilton and Burlington hamstrained the party's credibility in the area to the point where "we could be completely wiped out" in the next election.

Her outburst came before about 100 delegates attending a panel discussion in a small convention room of the Four Seasons Sheraton Hotel, called to give the secretaries a chance to explain their role in the government process.

Mr. Stanfield closes the convention at noon Sunday with a major address. Today's sessions feature debates on a wide variety of issues, including economic nationalism and urban development, and a battle for the post of party president between incumbent Alan Eagleson and Shirley Marrison, president of the party's university organization.

Joyce Bowerman, wife of an Oshawa doctor, became the first president of the women's association in elections Friday. She defeated Frances MacOdrum, a Brockville alderman who has held the post in an acting capacity since last April while awaiting the formal birth of the group Friday.

Members of the women's association held the spotlight Friday as they approved motions to bring more riding delegates to their meetings by reducing the limit on membership, and to seek a ban on sales tax on used articles sold to the poor.

Toronto Mayor David Crombie spoke to the women about the financial plight of Canada's major cities, saying he intends to organize a conference of Canadian mayors to seek more money from the federal and provincial governments. He said he intends to begin the drive for the conference at executive meetings in Winnipeg Wednesday of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

The provincial secretaries saw their role in a restructured government system as leading to policies that would anticipate future changes, rather than reacting to changes as they occur.

Oshawa Harbor Plan Approved

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand has approved in principle a $2.5-million plan for development of the Oshawa harbor, says Ed Broadbent, member of Parliament for Oshawa-Whitby.

Mr. Broadbent in the first phase of a scheme outlined in a department of public works proposal in December.

LaMarsh Fearful Of Chaos

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian political system will be destroyed unless there is a majority government and an overhaul of Parliament soon, Judy LaMarsh said Thursday.

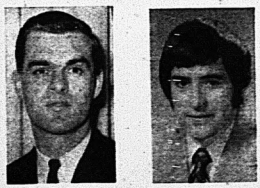
Canadians have gradually plunged themselves into a despairing disillusionment with their leaders and institutions, she said. Since 1968 the public has pursued a mirage—the Trudeau charisma—while not caring about the real, but dull issues of unemployment and economic progress.

She said:

"Trudeau surrounded himself with a query layered hierarchy of intellectuals. He knows only the great issues. He doesn't know what being out of work means and the sycophants around him don't let him find out."



If the Liberals want to win the next election, they had better "kick their lumps in a new confidence defeat in the House of Commons.

"Sugar Gentin" its coming budget to please the New Democratic Party and hang on a little longer would be suicidal.

Miss LaMarsh said, All integrity would be lost in the wheeling and dealing.

Money Markets Close To Cool Dollar Crisis

Dollar Crisis

A blackboard in a Frankfurt, Germany, money exchange shows that the U.S. dollar hit the floor level of 3.1500 German marks Friday (top line, first column.) As the two-week-old dollar crisis continued, the West German central bank bought $1.8 billion in unwanted U.S. currency Friday to stem an attack by money traders. (AP Photo)

BONN (AP) — Most foreign-exchange markets were closed around the world today in an effort to cool off the United States dollar crisis. There was widespread speculation that there would soon be an international meeting, similar to the 1971 Smithsonian conference in Washington, to work out a new schedule of exchange rates for the non-Communist world's major currencies.

Sources in Base, Switzerland, where the heads of the major central banks held their monthly meeting Sunday, said the Japanese were pressing for such a conference this week in Paris.

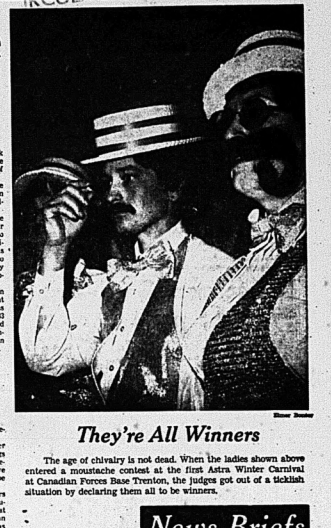
Tokyo was reported under increasing pressure from the United States to revalue the yen upward. But the Japanese government was waiting for West Germany and the rest of the Common Market countries to act, and the Germans continued to insist they would not increase the value of the mark unilaterally.

Although West Germany's official foreign-currency exchange was closed, trading continued on Frankfurt's open money market. Dealers said they expected the dollar to settle at 3.15 marks which the West German government is pledged to maintain under the Smithsonian Agreement.

A statement by Chancellor Willy Brandt's government Sunday appeared to rule out an upward revaluation of the mark or an upward float of the mark against the dollar. But sources in financial circles believed the Bonn and Tokyo governments would permit changes as part of a general realignment of the world's currencies.

The German, British and Italian finance ministers met Sunday night in Paris with Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France and Paul Volcker, U.S. treasury undersecretary for monetary affairs. Volcker came to Paris after a swing through Tokyo, London, Bonn and Rome to discuss the monetary situation.

There was no word on what, if anything, was decided at the meeting.



Japan and Germany have so far refused to revalue their currencies upward unilaterally because that would make their exports more expensive in foreign markets.

But the currency speculation could be partially solved by an upward revaluation of the mark and yen, a devaluation of the dollar, or some combination of the two.

The major official exchange markets closed were those in London, Paris and Tokyo in addition to Frankfurt.

In Switzerland, where the market was open, the dollar dropped to a new low, down as 2.51½ Swiss francs from Friday's close of 2.56¼. This means an American wanting to buy Swiss francs had to pay about 31 1-3 cents today as opposed to about 30 cents Friday.

Should the West German mark eventually be pegged at three to the dollar, this means Americans will have to pay 33 1-3 cents for a mark as opposed to 31 1-3 cents set by the Smithsonian agreement signed in Washington in December, 1971.

They're All Winners

Yen Rate Behind Exchange Problem

LONDON (CP) — West German Finance Minister Helmut Schmidt recently borrowed an English slang phrase to describe his country's role in the latest series of severe disruptions in international currency markets.

"We are just carrying the can for the Americans and the Japanese," he said.

In many respects the events which led to the current turmoil, forcing most of the world's leading foreign exchange markets to close today, bear out his statement.

Most analysts here contend that the failure to agree on a realistic dollar-Japanese yen exchange rate in December, 1971, when Western currencies were realigned, is at least partly responsible for the present instability.

The crisis took place in three waves following the announcement early in the year of a worsening American payments deficit in 1972 and the likelihood that this would continue in 1973.

First, the big international companies, many of them American, with spare funds in a number of centres around the world, began to shift out of dollars—a currency they had begun to distrust.

Then banks began to cover their foreign exchange holdings against the risk of a dollar devaluation, taking up speculative positions themselves in the hope of profit.

Finally, private speculators with spare funds in the European market realized that something was afoot and began to follow the big money. It was only at the end of last week that private speculators finally began buying West German marks on a large scale, financial sources say.

But logically, it was the central bank of Japan which should have been buying up the dollars which the German bank had to take in to prevent the U.S. currency from falling through its official floor.

143 Americans Released By Hanoi and Viet Cong

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong released 143 United States prisoners of war today, the first to be freed under the Vietnam ceasefire agreement. The North Vietnamese freed 116 Americans in Hanoi and the Viet Cong released 27 Americans north of Saigon after an 11-hour delay.

The POWs freed by Hanoi arrived in three U.S. Air Force hospital planes at Clark Air Base in the Philippines. There were 26 men aboard the first plane, 38 on the second and 37 on the third.

The 19 servicemen and eight civilians freed by the Viet Cong were flown by U.S. helicopters from Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon, to the South Vietnamese capital where they transferred to an air force hospital plane for the flight to Clark Base.

Their release left 341 U.S. prisoners held in North Vietnamese hands, 56 in South Vietnam and seven in Laos, information furnished by the North Vietnamese shows. Those still held in North Vietnam are expected to be freed at two-week intervals in groups of about the same size as today.

There was no word when two Canadians held by the Communists will be released. They are Marc Cayer, 29, of St. Raymond, Quebec, a freelance cameraman for the South Vietnam, during the 1968 Tet offensive and Lloyd Oppel, 28, of Courtenay, B.C., missionary captured last October in Laos.

"We are honored at the opportunity to serve our country under difficult circumstances ... God Bless America," said the first POW to step down on Philippine soil, Navy Capt. Jeremiah A. Denton Jr. of Virginia Beach, Va.

The second man out of the C-141 was the first U.S. flyer downed in North Vietnam, Lt. Cmdr. Everett Alvarez Jr. of Santa Clara, Calif., a prisoner since Aug. 5, 1964. Despite his long captivity, he walked briskly down the ramp and smiled broadly as he shook hands with Admiral Noel Gayler the commander in chief of U.S. forces in the Pacific.

Greeting the men with Gayler was Lt. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of the 13th Air Force, and several thousand base personnel and their families were on hand to cheer the arrivals.

One of the POWs limped as he walked from the plane. Another had his arm in a sling. But many of the spectators agreed that the men seemed in surprisingly good shape considering the years they had spent in captivity.

As each plane arrived, the men were quickly loaded into hospital buses and taken to the base hospital for a thorough checkup.

North Vietnamese Go Home Defiant

BIEN HOA, Vietnam (AP) — North Vietnamese prisoners leaving their prison compound today after years of captivity carried only their blankets and their crutches home to Hanoi.

They refused to take any personal baggage or souvenirs of any kind," said a United States officer as the 200 war prisoners were loaded onto trucks for the journey to the airport. These are real hard-core guys."

Heads bowed under floppy hats or sometimes an enormous bandage, they were marched out of the barbed-wire enclosure and down the road five abreast at a brisk pace in the scorching noonday heat.

Several carried crippled buddies on their backs. Others were blind or had an empty sleeve or pant leg.

For hours these maimed and crippled leftovers of war held up the long-awaited release of U.S. prisoners by staging a sitdown strike in their compounds.

South Vietnamese officials said the 200 North Vietnamese and 735 Viet Cong prisoners scheduled for release steadfastly refused to believe that the Communist members on the four-party Joint Military Commission were "for real."

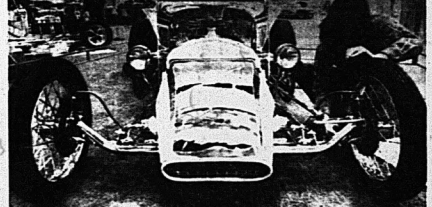
Staten Island Gas Tank Fiery Tomb for 40 Men

NEW YORK (AP) — Saturday's huge liquid gas storage explosion was turned in a fiery tomb for 40 men. The disaster was not associated with the escape of the product but with the repairs under way at the Staten Island installation, Fire Chief Vincent T. O'Hagan says.

O'Hagan's statement Sunday left unanswered the central question: What caused the supposedly-empty $1 million tank to erupt in flames Saturday and its 150-foot dome to fall in an avalanche of concrete and steel?

"We don't know if it started in an explosion," one fire official said. "But there was an explosion." However, a spokesman for the owner company said: "We have no knowledge of an explosion."

Witnesses reported hearing a hissing noise, but none described the sound as a blast.



By early today, 36 bodies had been placed in temporary pine coffins and lifted by crane from the soot-blackened pit 61 feet deep. Many were burned beyond recognition. Autopsies showed some died of smoke inhalation.

Firemen with air hammers broke through concrete slabs and chunks of ice overnight in an effort to find 14 others.

Opened by Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. in 1958, the 600,000-barrel tank stored natural gas in its more compact liquid state at 260 degrees below zero. The gas was revaporized during peak winter demand periods.

The tank, embedded in a mound of fill about six storeys high, was purged of the gas more than nine months ago to allow workmen to repair some "rough spots" in a plastic-like insulation described as non-flammable.

Texas Eastern said three safety inspectors in its employ and 37 workmen employed by a Newark, N.J., construction company were inside the structure at the time of the accident Saturday.

Storm Hits Maritimes

HALIFAX (CP) — A storm which dumped more than 17 inches of snow and played havoc with automobile travel was tapering off early today, a Maritimes weather office spokesman said. Schools were closed today in Halifax and Moncton, N.B. and air traffic was delayed as workmen attempted to clear runways.

Still Negotiating

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — President Juan M. Bordaberry and his rebel generals continued negotiations today as Uurguay's government crisis went into its sixth day. The army and air force commanders, who began the power struggle to save an anti-corruption campaign they have been waging, were reported considering new concessions from the president.

Nine-year-olds Shot

BELFAST (AP) — Two nine-year-old girls were hit by stray bullets and gunmen in a speeding car opened up on men standing on a street corner in Belfast Sunday while bombing blasts shook towns across Northern Ireland. In a weekend of continued violence, a school teacher and a girl who died in an explosion in County Down were identified as Irish Republican Army volunteers killed by their own bomb.

Stanfield Hungry Too

TORONTO (CP) — With a third of his audience waiting to eat, Conservative leader Robert Stanfield stripped Saturday "I'm hungry — for power." Mr. Stanfield was speaking after a luncheon Party officials had expected about 1,000 to attend, but 1,300 turned up. The hotel was unable to provide the extra meals, and the overflow crowd was waiting for the speech to end so they could go to restaurants for their meal.

Canadians Are Hustled From Airport to Bed

SAIGON (CP) — The last of the Canadian supervisory troops arrived here early today and were quickly hustled off to bed.

"We learned from the first flight," said a Canadian military spokesman who went to nearby Tan Son Nhut air base to meet the 121 new arrivals.

The first flight arrived about two weeks ago, also in the early hours of Monday morning after one 24-hour flight from Montreal.

"Some of us were still recuperating several days later," the spokesman said.

The new arrivals, bring the Canadian military contingent up to its authorized strength of 242. The remainder of the 290-man force went in made up of external affairs personnel, some of whom have not yet arrived.

Congratulations, Kerri

Winner of Group II in the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 99 public speaking contest, Kerri Thompson, 12, in Grade 7 at Park Dale Public School, is congratulated by her parents, Ken and Joyce Thompson of 32 Ashley Heights, Belleville.

Speaking Finalists Selected at Legion

It must have been a little bit lonely up on the Royal Canadian Legion Hall stage Saturday speaking to a near-capacity audience. If it was, it was never let on by the grades 4 to 8 entrants in the Legion's public speaking contest.

Organizers were happily surprised by strong participation from students in the Group I grades 4 to 6 category. Fourteen area schools were represented by 48 entrants whose topics ranged from the Ice Age to Martians, from a summer camping holiday to statements on pollution and drugs.

Self - confidence and often sophisticated presentation were the order of the day. Judges found some speakers difficult to hear but remarked that the entrants had all prepared their material thoroughly. Realism was often evident in well - considered topics on modern times.

First prize in Group I went to Tim Nuttall, 11, a grade 6 student at Sir Winston Churchill School, whose topic was Light and Sun. Laugh-In's ringy-dingy telephone operator technique gave Martha Vincent, 10, in grade 5 at Rednersville Public School, the opportunity for an impressive effort that led into her speech on her choice of an occupation. Her presentation won her second place. Group I third place went to Donna Hannah, 11, in grade 6 at Harry J. Clarke Public School, for consideration of illegal drug use.

Group II - 12 entrants in the Group II grades 8 to 8 competition represented five area schools. Kerri Thompson, 12, in grade 7 at Park Dale Public School, won first place with a well - informed argument that Canada was first Confederation sandbanks. The role and activities of Sir John A. Macdonald was the topic of Kendall Clarex' speech which gained him second place. In third place was Jim Kendal, 13, in grade 8 at Harmony Public School.

Senior contest groups were led by acting-Mayor Lisa Vincent, sister of Group I second place-winner Martha Vincent, a student at Belleville Collegiate Institute will go to the zone competition in the grades 8 and 10 category and Sandra LaChapelle of Centennial Secondary School will go on to compete in the grades 11 to 13 category.

Judges were Ken Bird, a retired public school principal, Miss Myrtle Reed, speech teacher at Ontario School for the Deaf, Bruce Hunter, an English teacher at Centennial Secondary School and Mrs. D. A. Ellis, an English teacher at Centennial Secondary School, who replaced Mr. Bird for the Group II session.

The three - five - minute presentations were timed by Royal Canadian Legion Branch 99 president R. H. Vaughan, and chairman for the contest was Bill McConnell of Centennial Secondary School.

Group winners will represent their area in zone competitions at Marmora, Saturday March 3. The series of eliminations continue through Peterborough and Perth to the provincial finals in Sarnia. Marie over the Easter weekend, April 20-22.

Cold Leaving, Snow Coming

The Quinte district lay in the icy grip of sub-zero temperatures overnight, but relief is on the way, says the duty forecaster at CFB Trenton.

Belleville thermometers hit a low of 5 last night, with Trenton one degree colder. In the north, temperatures plunged to 30 below at Madoc, 35 below at Tweed and 40 below in Tweed.

Sunny skies and a moderating trend toward Belleville temperatures to 4 above by about 9 a.m. and the Trenton forecaster said it could get as high as 20 degrees.

A high pressure area that moved into the district at the end of last week and hovered here overnight, with cold spell, said the forecaster. It's moving out now, and moderating temperatures will follow until Wednesday.

"It should get up to 30 degrees tomorrow," said the forecaster.

A storm is building up in the American west, he said, and should bring snow to the Quinte district about Wednesday.

Winner

Tim Nuttall, 11, is presented his winner's certificate for Group I of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 99 public speaking contest by contest chairman Bill McConnell of Centennial Secondary School. Tim is in grade 6 at Sir Winston Churchill School.

Two Cars Burned In Gasoline Fire

TRENTON — An explosion followed by a roaring fire resulted in the loss of two late model cars and considerable damage to the gas bar beside the 1967 Restaurant on the north side of Highway 401 just west of here before noon Saturday. Total property loss would amount to $8,500, police reported.

A chain reaction occurred when a car skidded on the ice covered approach to the service island smashing two of the gasoline pumps installed on it.

When raw gasoline spewed out all over the place a car being refuelled at the time and the vehicle that hit the pumps both caught fire. They were both destroyed in a matter of minutes.

While the area around the gas bar was covered with flames both car drivers, John Daniel Fish, 330 Sudows Ave., Watertown, Ont., and Romeo Vaillancourt, Hull, Que., here managed to jump clear and escape without injury.

The Trenton fire crew who made the long run in the snow with their apparatus arrived in time to douse the burning remains with chemicals.

Funeral

FRANK WOOD
Trenton

The funeral of Frank Wood, Quinte Hotel, Trenton, was held Thursday, Feb. 8 from the Weaver Funeral Home with service conducted by Rev. Canon H. Caswell of St. George's Church. Interment was in Mount Evergreen Cemetery.

Born in Murray township, the deceased was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wood and was a lifetime resident of the Quinte area. He had been in failing health for some time.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Sherman (Florence) Patrick, RR1 Cerrying Place, a brother, Jack Wood predeceased him.

Pedestrian Killed

TRENTON — A resident of RR1, Trenton was the victim of a fatal accident early Sunday morning on the Wooler Road north of the 401 overpass.

He was walking on the road a short distance away from his home when he was hit by a car, police reported.

Apparently there were witnesses to the incident which left a car parked on the side of the road facing north near the scene of the accident. Provincial police of the Brighton detachment, corporals B. Hunt and Ray Noble said they would appreciate hearing from them as soon as possible they could provide more details for their investigation.

The driver of the car involved, Gary Ronald Lowe, 18, of RR1, Trenton, told police he noticed a car parked on the side of the road with people sitting in it as he attempted to be of assistance to the injured man at the scene. "The car took off when I approached it," he informed police. According to police the Lowe vehicle was travelling south in the same direction the man was walking when the accident occurred.

Mr. Katuchun was married with three daughters. One of the daughters lives at home with her mother.

Nothing Fishy About Win

Presence of big lobster representative was only thing fishy about Nova Scotia team emerging as over-all winners of CFB Trenton Astra Winter Carnival during weekend. Giant, man - made lobster was mascot of Maritime team which won contest as best all-round team entry from Canadian provinces — and later paraded, led by Sgt. J. Bigney with carnival's princess Mrs. Murray Ratchford, also from Nova Scotia.

Hair-Raisers!

For this trio CFB Trenton's Astra winter carnival was a hair-raising event that brought special recognition, Winner of the carnival's moustache - growing contest was Wally Evelyn, of Manitoba flanked by Robert Hicks, Sgt. Bigney and Mrs. Murray Ratchford. Nova Scotia.

Nova Scotia Is Tops At Astra Winter Carnival

TRENTON — The first Astra Winter Carnival held at CFB Trenton ended in noisy colorful celebrations Saturday night following a week-long program of parades, demonstrations and imaginative competitions.

The undertaking, according to Carnival co-ordinator Maj. J. A. Macdougall attained its objective of the planners to provide activity to arouse everyone's interest as well as fun and amusement to offset that depressing period between winter and spring.

The climax of the carnival was the crowning of carnival Queen Mrs. Murray (Donalda) Ratchford, who represented Nova Scotia in the contest. Incidentally her husband placed third in the men's moustache growing contest.

In fact, personnel vying for Nova Scotia amassed more points than any of the representatives of the other nine provinces competing throughout the carnival in the great variety of events for both men and women. Official representative, Sgt. J. Bigney accepted the trophy on behalf of the winning Nova Scotia team. The team from Ontario, with Sgt. D. Bullis as the representative, placed second as total point getters.

The western provinces will be remembered for moustache growing prowess with Wally Evelyn of Manitoba taking first prize and Robby Robertson of Saskatchewan finishing in second place.

Snowmobiler Charged

A car - snowmobile accident on Forest Hill Crescent shortly after 4 p.m. Saturday resulted in charges against the snowmobiler.

Charged with having no insurance and no current licence plate was Robert Edward Donovan, 20, 5 Tracey St., Belleville.

After collision with a car, driven by Leslie W. Backus, 34, of 21 Forest Hill Crescent, Mr. Donovan was taken to Belleville General Hospital where he was examined for a possible hip injury and released.

Bomb Threat Grounds Jet

TRENTON — Canadian Forces 707 flight en route to Saigon Saturday from Montreal and CFB Trenton, was delayed 2½ hours while military explosive experts here searched for a purported bomb.

Shortly before landing at Trenton after picking up 121 Canadian Forces personnel (a second peace-keeping contingent to Vietnam) pilot Captain Ronald Day, of Trenton was advised a bomb threat had been received. Military spokesmen reported at 12:40 p.m. Saturday, someone called Montreal Air Canada by telephone, reporting an explosive device had been placed on the jet.

Montreal police and RCMP were alerted.

The plane landed here, taxiing to an isolated section of the runway near Number 10 hanger where the passengers and crew disembarked.

A thorough search of the craft by an explosives team was followed by removal of baggage to the hangar. Each man claimed his own in front of anything suspicious, while larger freight was undergoing similar treatment.

No bomb was found.

A second 707 was then loaded, departing for Tokyo, Japan, where it was met by Captain Don Johnny of Belleville and a second crew from CFB Trenton, waiting there since Thursday to complete the final leg to Saigon.

A base spokesman this morning said the first 707 was left behind because of servicing problems found on the flight from Montreal. Mechanical difficulties were only minor he said but because a vast distance involved such precautions are routine.

Next Week For Scouts

Feb. 22 is Lord Baden-Powell of Gilwell's birthday and focal point for Scout - Guide Week Feb. 18 to 25.

For area Scouts, Guides, Rangers, Venturers, Cubs and Brownies it will be a week of special activities, church parades, father - and - son banquets, paper and bottle drives and hikes. There will be open meetings at most groups.

Scout - Guide Week will also see the inauguration of a new group, the 19th Belleville Scout Group at Shannonville. On-ganized in co-operation with Chief Earl Hill of Tyendinaga Reserve, it will offer scouting activities to children in the western part of the reserve.

The investiture of leaders, presentation of the charter and dedication of the flag for the new group will take place at Holy Trinity Church, Shannonville, at 2 p.m. Feb. 25.

A hobby show will be open to the public at Holloway St. United Church Friday Feb. 23 and in Trenton a "step-out" group will give a public performance at the Trenton High School Auditorium, Wednesday Feb. 21, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Indians Should Decide on Vote

TYENDINAGE RESERVE — The principle of lowering the voting age to 18 years in Indian - reserve council elections may be sound but should not be approved before Indians themselves have been consulted.

So says Chief Earl Hill of the Bay of Quinte Mohawks here.

The chief was commenting on a Commons move Friday that gave unanimous approval in principle to a private member's bill that would lower the voting age in local reserve elections from 21 — the same as in federal and provincial elections.

The bill will now be referred to the standing committee on Indian affairs for consideration and consultation with Indian associations.

Chief Hill said such consultation is necessary. In the past too much legislation involving indian affairs had been approved without considering the views of Indian people, he said.

The chief said he agreed with the intent of the bill. He also felt it would receive the consent of the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians.

The Quince Mohawks are members of the association, which represents about 20,000 Indians in Ontario.

The next council elections — which are held every two years here—will be this December.

During the Commons debate on the bill — introduced by Maurice Foster (L-Algoma)— Les Marchand, (L - Kamloops-Cariboo) the only full-blooded Indian MP said he thought voting was an area in which many Indian people have been wronged. It was incidcrous that young people could vote in federal and provincial elections and not for their reserve councils, he said.

Q. I have heard a great deal in recent months about tax reform and how I may be affected by it. Is there any one area which will concern everyone?

A. Changes that have been made in the allowable personal exemptions will affect all of us when we file 1972 income tax returns in the early part of 1973.

Q. In what way have the personal exemptions been changed for the taxpayer who is married and has no dependents. What personal exemptions will be allowed?

A. The personal exemption allowed to a single or unmarried taxpayer without dependents has been increased as of January 1, 1972, from $1,000 to $1,500.

Q. What personal exemption will a taxpayer be entitled to for the year 1972 if he is a married man who supported his wife during the year?

A. Every taxpayer is entitled to a basic exemption of $1,500 regardless of his marital status. Where a married man supported his wife and her income for the year was not more than $250, the taxpayer would be allowed an additional personal exemption of $1,350. In this case, of course, the married taxpayer's total personal exemptions would amount to $2,850.

Q. What is the situation if a wife had income greater than $250? How would the husband then determine his married exemption?

A. If the wife's income for the year is greater than $250, the husband would calculate his married exemption by subtracting the amount of her income from $1,500. For example, if the wife's income for the year was $900, the husband would be allowed a married exemption of $700. If the wife's income was over $1,500, she may not be claimed as a dependant by her husband.

Q. I understand that elderly taxpayers are allowed an additional personal exemption if they meet certain age requirements. How does this operate or how were the requirements changed in the year 1972?

A. There has been a basic change in what we generally call the age exemption. In 1971, for example, if a taxpayer was at least 70 years of age at any time in that year, he was entitled to an exemption of $500. Beginning with the year 1972, if a taxpayer was at least 65 years of age in the taxation year, he is allowed, in addition to any other personal exemptions he might claim, an age exemption of $1,000.

Q. Please explain what exemptions are allowed for dependent children in my tax return for the 1972 tax year.

A. The basic rules regarding the amount of the personal exemptions for dependent children remain as they were in the past. In other words, if a child is under 16 years of age at the end of the year, the person who claims the child as a dependent will be allowed an exemption of $300 for that child. On the other hand, if a wholly dependent was 16 years of age or over at the end of a taxation year, the allowable personal exemption for such a child would be $526.

Redistribution Issue

Whither the concept of participatory democracy? We may credit Prime Minister Trudeau with having started it all — but where has it led him, let alone the general public? Has Mr. Trudeau been listening all these years, to a public now more keenly aware of its political rights? The short answer is: before the election, no; after the election, yes, to some extent at least.

But even with the government making some pretence that it is cognizant of the public's wishes, does it make any difference, really? We may make all the noise we like, but Parliament makes the final decisions — and not always to our liking. After all, if we cannot prevent the demolition of a fine old piece of Canadiana, right here in our own midst (and after all there were sound enough reasons for this step, including fire hazard) it is even more difficult to divert a government from its chosen path. It is the old "ride in the affairs of men" at work and there is no stopping that.

These thoughts come to mind in connection with the petition of Madoc deputy reeve Kel Kincaid and others protesting the voter redistribution plan that would virtually abolish Hastings riding. Under this plan, Madoc, the village of Tweed, and Marmora would be severed from Hastings and joined to Lennox, Frontenac and Addington centred on Napanee. But as Mr. Kincaid points out, the ties of these communities are with Hastings — for shopping, hospital care and in virtually every other respect. As Mr. Kincaid put it at a recent meeting in Madoc, "What in the world have we in common with Napanee?"

So where do the petitioners go from there? Will their protest have any power to supersede the commissioners' thinking on redistribution? As one spokesman at the meeting said, "we don't want this county divided," and we have to agree with him. We are not averse to change when it seems desirable, but at the same time it must be realized that our ties of history, kinship and sentiment lie very much within the existing boundaries.

If the petition is to have any real effect, it will have to be widely representative of community and county feeling. The more signatures the better and if it can be dramatized by the petitioners' presence on Parliament Hill so much the better. As it is, Conservative MP for Dauphin — and national Progressive Conservative spokesman on redistribution, told the meeting that from past experience they should not expect "that you will get everything you want." Not very encouraging, but it is in line with our general feeling of scepticism regarding government receptiveness to public desires. Governments operate on the premise that the public has given them a mandate to govern — and if it doesn't like it, too bad. Let us hope that in this us, we may be proved wrong. The petitioners have a solid, common sense case and th redistribution people should listen.

Rubble and Memories

As the demolition of St. Agnes Manor proceeds apace, a small but important segment of Belleville's history disappears into limbo.

Some time before the present fate of the structure was even contemplated we recalled its former status as a school — in pre-World War I days — and the fact that Beatrice Lillie, the celebrated Toronto-born actress and comedienne, was a student there.

We pointed out that Miss Lillie devotes a page or two to her Belleville schooldays in her autobiography, Every Other Inch A Lady. She came here from Cobourg where her mother taught music. We mentioned also that the former school gets a mention in the biographical sketch of Miss Lillie in the British Who's Who.

At one time we suggested that a plaque be erected, outlining the building's history and the fact that Miss Lillie attended school there.

Now all this is so much rubble — and memories. We wonder if word of its fate has filtered across to Britain where we understand Miss Lillie, now elderly, makes her home.

Ukrainians Continue To Maintain Their Identity In Canada

HARRON
By JOHN D. HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Last weekend in Winnipeg Canadian-Ukrainians produced an important but little-publicized festival of Ukrainian arts, literature and history.

They did this as Ukrainian communities abroad have done since 1918, to remind their community and the world of the one-time existence of a separate Ukrainian culture and political entity in Europe.

This is saying something, bearing in mind Canada had the World Estonian Festival in Toronto last summer and that other Baltic communities, independent social democracies up recently as 1939, constantly bear witness to their once independent existence in Europe.

This year's Ukrainian festival in Winnipeg, the seat of Ukrainian culture and people in Canada, drew on the nationwide resources of Ukrainian Canadians at a time when the Soviet Union itself is seriously re - assessing the failure of its program to produce a single Soviet social society.

It never did work, bearing in mind the way non-Russian nationalities were absorbed into the U.S.S.R. always by military conquest, and with ruthless efforts to exterminate language, history and national leadership. There are about 100 nationalities in the U.S.S.R. and its so-called "Federated Socialist Republics." These include, besides the huge Ukraine whose geography dominates European Russia, the Soviet Baltic communities of Estonians, Latvians, and Lithuanians, Jews, as well as little-known Islamic and Central Asian nationalities like the Uzbeks, Turkmen, Tadzhiks, Azerbaijanis and Armenians.

When the Soviet Union was invaded by Nazi Germany in June, 1941, the leaders and many of the intelligentsia of these Soviet nationalities who had survived the brutal Stalinist purges of the 1930s, went over to the German side.

In the case of the Ukrainians, they hoped Germany in 1941 as in 1918, would permit the formation of an independent Ukrainian State, along the lines of the once large medieval kingdom with its capital in Kiev.

These liaisons with Nazi Germany were disastrous, since Hitler's racist planners had less regard for the Soviet Union's "subject peoples" than did Moscow. Nevertheless, entire divisions of dissident Soviet nationalities, including Ukrainians and many of the Central Asian races were formed within the German Army and SS.

They dissolved on Germany's defeat and many of their leaders, including General Vlasov, their chief, were handed back to the Russians and all were executed immediately as traitors to the U.S.S.R.

This is a grim, twisted and totally cruel legacy from which nationalities which should be separate countries, have had to state their case. The Ukrainians in the Soviet Union do not even have the dignity of separate nation-states within the Communist work which Eastern European Slavic countries maintain —Poland, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia.

The persecution of Soviet Jews has brought into world view Moscow's bankrupt and oppressive policies toward her non-Russian nationalities. All the nationalities restive under Soviet rule are small compared to the Ukrainians who have a population of nearly 41 millions nearly a distinct, viable, state.

In Winnipeg last week, there was no sense of disloyalty or alienation from Canada, just a reminder in the world of the obliteration of a Ukrainian European homeland by Russia.

"Otis has an energy crisis every time I mention finishing the rumpus room."

The Great Canadian Snowmobile Controversy

Brockville Recorder and Times

Pollution Probe has called for separate legislation to control trespassing snowmobilers with increased fines and a clause that would make snowmobile operators liable for damage and danger caused by their machines.

This was the substance of a brief presented to an Ontario Legislature committee studying snowmobiles and other 'all-terrain vehicles. The Pollution Probe people said snowmobilers endanger vegetation and small animals by compacting it in the cover which normally insulates them against cold. On the other hand, snowmobilers claimed the travelling through the bush made trails for deer and other animals that made it possible for them to escape dog packs.

Some of the opponents of snowmobiles are asking the government to impound vehicles of snowmobilers caught trespassing. Another brief suggests tax reductions for farmers who allow snowmobile trails on their farms. Another called for training courses and licensing of drivers and the mandatory use of safety equipment.

We would agree with the suggestion that separate legislation is needed to control snowmobiles and that fines for trespassing should be made heavier and the drivers of the vehicles held liable for damage to farm lands and crops.

One group of farmers appearing before the committee complained that some snowmobilers left doors for lane and reverted to burning the homes of people who complained to police about trespassing. The burning takes place after midnight. There have been similar complaints in the Brockville area about early morning cavorts of snowmobilers, not only in rural areas but in town areas. Some have been caught by police and have been found to have been drinking heavily.

Farmers have complained bitterly about damage done to winter wheat crops. One farmer claims damage of at least $4,000 was suffered to his wheat crop by irresponsible snowmobilers. Other farmers claim it is almost impossible to catch the culprits because by the time police arrive the snowmobilers are long gone. And a farmer uses a gun to threaten them, as some have done, they are liable to a fine for using a threatening weapon. Some snowmobilers have been shot by frustrated farmers.

There is no doubt the snowmobile is a useful machine, as well as a "fun" machine. It provides a boon for the small recreation and perhaps has done more to head off keep families at home than any other pleasure machine. But it is also a machine that, by the unthinking few, however, are making them an increasing menace. Not unlike the automobile, the drivers of some of the irresponsible seem to think they need a little bone in them before they can enjoy themselves. The results are sometimes tragic.

Rules and regulations have been laid down for these vehicles but that one sees vividly latest constantly is the age limit. It is a common sight to see youngsters of eight and 10 driving them alongside roads. There should be some limits and regulations across the province and the onus of responsibility placed on the snowmobiler.

* * *

By James Duff in
The Montreal Gazette

On his small farm near Ravendon, about 25 miles north of Montreal, retired Canadian Army major Lawrence Pitney runs for his gun every time he hears a snowmobile on his property.

"I'll plug them. If they come across my land, I'll blast them off their machines," says the 75 - year - old veteran of two world wars, his voice rising.

Pitney says he has had to force the issue on assault or public mischief charges five times since snowmobiling began using his land seven years ago. He was given three 2 specified sentences of six months each for blasting outboard racing sledders just two years ago.

As far as he knows he's never hit anyone, but one shot broke his leg when his machine ran into a wire stretching across a road cut. Pitney's property, he says, is now posted "all over my land by now," said the veteran of the Ypres salient. "I've had to fight for it, you know."

Not everyone picks up a shotgun in the drive of a snowmobile these days. But there are those who have decided to take neither the machine nor the driver with quiet grace.

A year ago, brother Richard Parrot was nearly in let fly with a shotgun blast of salt at any snowmobiler who had the foolishness or the nerve to cross his property.

This year, his shotgun languished in a closet.

"What's the use of trying? They come back every time you kick them off, twice as many as before," he said, sighing gently, "sighed the portly owner of the Gardner Lodge on Lac Superieur, 15 miles east of St. Jovite.

In fact, Parizeau has given the president of the local snowmobile club permission for club members to cut across a corner of his 150-acre lot.

"He promised me he'd stay on the trail. If I said no, how could I stop them?"

Parrot still hates the machines, and refuses to allow their riders to stay at his lodge.

"I could allow them; I could make a fortune booking snowmobile caravans into the lodge, but it's just not worth the trouble.

"I was talking to another motel owner the other day. He said he rented a room to a fellow on a snowmobile, and when he looked again, there were 20 others with him. They dumped their gas cans on the rug, the beer in the bathtub, and went off all night long."

Parizeau even refuses to serve drinks to people not registered at his lodge because he doesn't want to attract the sledding crowd.

A Lifetime And Those Who Give It Meaning

The Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Many times in our lives we wait until it is too late to thank the many people who have contributed to our success, be it great or small.

I would like to take this opportunity through the "Letters to the Editor" to thank them, now and all.

Although they are too numerous to list here, and shome have passed on, I would like to name just a few.

First of all, there are the good Sisters of Saint Michaels, where I received my training, especially Sister Mary Avita, Mother Leonore, Mother Theresa, etc.

Secondly, I would like to mention also, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Grant.

Thirdly, someone who has been an endless source of assistance and tuition, Miss Dorothy Grant, Organist at Saint Michael's Church for more years than she would like me to mention.

The words are few, but I wish to express my sincere and unending thanks to all.

Alexander Selkirk, prototype of Robinson Crusoe, set sail for England 264 years ago today—in 1709—after being rescued from Juan Fernandez Island. He had not been shipwrecked but marooned but had left his ship after a quarrel with the captain. He lived alone for more than four years, wild goats being his only companions, before being picked up by explorer William Dampier, then on a privateering voyage. Selkirk reached England late in 1711, with $800 (about $2,000 prize money in his pocket. He tried living as a hermit at a Scottish home, then he eloped with a local girl. He later went back to sea again.

Uncertainty Over Health Councils

By DON O'BEARN
Queen's Park

Another controversy appears to be shaping up in the health field.

About the only question would seem to be just when it will break.

The conflict, when it does arrive, will be over health councils; new local bodies which the government intends it should be establishing some time ago and which it now is getting ready to set up.

It still is not at all certain just what form these health councils will take and how they will be instituted.

But one certainty would appear to be that they will stick in the craw of a good many people.

From the explanations given to date it appears that what the government has in mind are some form of co-ordinating agencies which will aim at getting more efficiency in local health and social services and particularly at the elimination of duplication.

The machinery, or even the concept, of these bodies has not been made clear to date.

But the hope is that they will cover a broad spectrum.

In the throne speech Frank Miller of Muskoka, parliamentary assistant to minister of health, mentioned these as among agencies that would be now involved in local health services:

General practioners, medical officers of health, dentists, specialists (psychiatrists, etc.), children's aid societies, the Victorian Order of Nurses, hospitals, nursing homes, chronic hospitals, optometrists, chiropractors, Society for Crippled Children and others.

Presumably that is now somehow or other to get all these people working together, co-ordinate their efforts and put them down where they overlap.

There can be no question of the worth of the objective. And the hope is it should mean some improvements.

But on the realities there exists a feeling that there is a lot of haggling and bickering.

Many of the groups in the health field are now well entrenched. And they won't bend easily.

Agriculture In Canada

By DON O'BEARN
Queen's Park

Today we urbanites are inclined to forget about farms.

At one time the backbone of the province, we now tend to look on it as a representative of a day past. A man on the side of a farm is looked upon with amuse, eyes our great, boomtown industrialists.

The OFA brief had some figures in it which are revealing to us who live in cities and belief.

It is true that the actual farm population in recent years is now approximately 50 per cent of the population was rural.

But in the five are two producers and the impact they make on the economy is very striking.

To get a few examples;

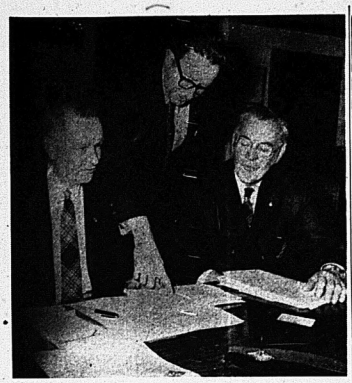
Food processing employs over 150,000 people and pays over a $1 billion in wages.

One-fifth of the gross value of shipments from our manufacturing comes from processed goods of farm origin.

And nearly one-third of Canada's exports of agriculture moves into export.

Our agricultural industry absorbs much of it may have shrunk somewhat in the number actually employed on the farm, is a very important part of the country's health.

But with that one has to wonder if we pay enough attention to it.



The industry does have problems.

One of them is the high cost of mechanization today; and along with that the growth of vertical integration.

Farming today needs big capital investment.

But at the same time it is very essential to us. And one of the major problems of government must be to see that somehow the means for this investment is available to it.

Airmen Reunite

Racing at Fairgrounds May Move to Fridays

The traditional Saturday evening harness racing at the Belleville fairgrounds will be switched to Friday, if a request from Quinte Exhibition and Raceway is approved by the city parks board.

The request from the local harness racing officials is for a switch to Friday nights for 29 racing dates with three additional dates on holiday Mondays. The Monday holiday dates would see afternoon racing.

The reason for the requested change to Friday racing stems from the introduction of van equipped with accounting and recording machinery and this will be possible only if a workable circuit of raceways can be scheduled by the provincial and federal governing organizations.

At the moment, Belleville and Peterborough both have Saturday dates but since Peterborough has year-round racing and Belleville only 20 summer meets. Belleville is being asked to make the change.

Local raceways manager Everett Gowsell in a letter to the parks board said Belleville officials were not too enthusiastic about the change.

However, there was need for co-operation and it was suggested the charges could be beneficial in other ways.

If racing is to be continued in Belleville, local racing authorities will be obliged to adjust to racing industry requirements, it was stated.

Tentative approval for the change in racing dates has already been given local raceway officials, while the parks board at its meeting on Thursday of this week is being asked to officially approve the requested dates.

Babysitting Requirements Parents' Responsibility

Finding a babysitter is still a problem for which parents wish there was an easier solution.

Parents should brief the babysitter before leaving. At the same time they should let their children know exactly who the babysitter will be and what position she will hold in their absence.

Who should the babysitter be? Someone who likes children and who is prepared to handle the responsibility of your child. It's always a good idea to ask for credentials and character references.

When your babysitter does arrive, try to give her all the information that she may need regarding the children, the pets, and general household procedures. Don't forget phone numbers where parents or relatives can be reached in case of emergency as well as hospital, fire and police phone numbers.

Much is involved in hiring a babysitter and in being a babysitter.

For babysitters it is suggested to take a babysitter's kit which might encourage a child to use his own initiative and creativity in making something. It could include paper, pencils, crayons, yarn and guessing games.

In fact, just using your imagination and letting the child use his child make the job easier.

Surprise Party For Anniversary

Friends and relatives recently surprised Mr. and Mrs. Earl Beatty of Thomasburg on their 25th wedding anniversary.

Indian Slides Shown

The Mountain View Women's Institute was treated to slides of India at their recent February meeting.

Mrs. John Smith introduced Mr. and Mrs. Brown, Belleville who spent six months in India where Mr. Brown gave advisory assistance in a manufacturing concern. During their six month stay the Browns informed the members it rained once.

It was decided to cater to the Medical Secretaries' Convention in June.

The Institute will also send $25 to the Save the Children's Fund.

Roll call at the meeting, with Mrs. Wilfred Morley as hostess, included bringing an article from a foreign land.

Insurance Against Divorce?

NEW YORK (CP) — You can buy insurance to protect your car, your house and even your life against burglary, fire, theft and such natural calamities as flood and earthquake.

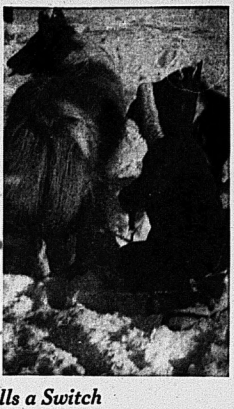
How about insurance against that other natural calamity—divorce?

State Senator Donald Halperin, Brooklyn Democrat, thinks so much of the idea that he is submitting to the New York state legislature in Albany a bill to set up a commission to study the idea.

"It's as logical as protecting oneself with accident, fire or life insurance," says Halperin, who thinks the legislation has a good chance of consideration because of public pressure.

The idea is that a couple would take out divorce insurance upon marriage. The insurance would be used primarily to insure adequate child support in the event of a divorce. But, if the marriage proved to be a lasting one, the protection could be extended to other uses.

Halperin's proposal has generated interest among feminists, lawyers and legislators and such organizations as NOISE, the National Organization to Improve Support Enforcement, founded a year or so ago to improve the concept of child support.



NOISE has a mailing list of more than 7,000 interested men and women and works closely with groups active in the fields of divorce, alimony and child support.

The founder of NOISE is Diana Du Broff, a 42-year-old grandmother and a fellow of the Academy of Matrimonial Lawyers, who says her organization's aim is "to alleviate the suffering of the silent, middle income woman."

A number of middle-class women, she said, are forced to go on welfare because they receive little support when divorced husbands and have no training for work.

Divorce insurance "could be something like a trust fund, taken out by the couple, or by their parents, as a nest egg. The parents might be interested because grandparents are sometimes faced with the support of children if the couple splits up."

Consumers' Association Protests Air Fares

OTTAWA Consumers' Association of Canada protested a regulation recently introduced by the Canadian Transport Commission which prevents foreign owned air companies from charging lower fares for overseas flights originating in Canada than those set by domestic carriers. Maryon Breehin, CAC President said, "This means the total elimination of competition in Canada resulting in unnecessarily high fares to travellers using the advance booking charter arrangement." While CAC is concerned that the excellent safety record of Canadian carriers be maintained, the Association considers the monopoly situation allowed by the recent regulation totally unnecessary and unfair.

In a letter to the Honorable Jean Marchand, Minister of Transport, CAC urged a thorough investigation of the costs involved in charter services offered by Canadian carriers to ensure that prices charged reflect these costs and do not allow excessive profits to carriers at the expense of the Canadian public.

CAC also registered its concern over the high cost of domestic air service compared to fares charged for overseas charter flights. "Because the costs of domestic travel are so high, Canadians will use their travel dollars for holidaying in foreign countries while the federal government continues to spend tax dollars in a futile attempt to encourage Canadians to see Canada first," Mrs. Breehin stated.

The Consumers' Association is continuing its efforts to bring about a more equitable fare structure for Canadians travelling by air within Canada and overseas.

Start Geraniums Now for May

Many gardeners use geraniums to provide bright splashes of color during the summer. To obtain enough geraniums for planting in May, take cuttings from the parent plants this month, says R. A. Fleming, horticultural specialist, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Watch overwintered plants carefully for signs of new growth. Then begin to water them more frequently.

When the shoots are about 4 to 5 inches long, cut them from the parent plant with a sharp knife. Dip each cutting in a fungus powder such as captanor sulphur and root it in sand or a mixture of coarse sand and peat. Keep the rooting medium damp, but do not saturate it with water.

Put several cuttings in each pot and place them in a bright window, protected from direct sunlight. In 3 to 4 weeks, the cuttings should have roots about 2 inches long. Then transplant the young plants into individual pots, using a rich potting soil. Grow the plants until you are ready to set them outside in late May.

Regular feedings with a liquid fertilizer will help produce strong healthy plants for your early summer garden.

Angels Charm in Public — But Raise Devil at Home

Dear Ann Landers: I was inspired to write this letter when I read the comments of the man complaining mother who said her teen-age daughter is "charming, gracious, sweet and easy-going — everywhere but at home."

I am no longer a teen-ager—I am 20 now—but I would like to cite the problem in reverse. It's my mother who is charming, gracious, sweet and easy-going to everyone except her immediate family. At home she is forever griping, complaining, criticizing, and acting all-around obnoxious. This is not my imagination, Ann. My father and brothers are also aware of her split personality.

So please publish my letter and give a daughter — Equal Time

Dear Equal: "Split personalities" are not the private property of teen-age daughters or their mothers. Two-faced behavior can be found in husbands, sons—any person who reserves his most charming personality for outsiders. I call these people "Jekyll and Hyde streets angels." Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Neither you nor V.F. in Washington did much to advance the cause for women's rights.

Did you know that if a woman is raped on a dark street in New York she cannot press charges unless she has a witness who will testify in court that she was forcibly overcome? In New York, the courts assume that a raped woman tantalized or seduced the male until she can prove otherwise.

In some states, if a husband comes home and finds a man in bed with his wife he can shoot them both. This is considered a "passion shooting." If a woman catches her husband in bed with another woman and shoots them she is charged with murder.

So don't come crying to us Women's Libbers for help, Ann, when your husband beats you or refuses to give you money. Or when your women friends don't get your vote because you were too pro-male to help their case.— J.S. and T.V. of N.Y.

Dear J.S. and T.V.: I am neither pro- nor anti-Women's Lib. I am strongly in favor of women getting salaries and promotions commensurate with their ability. I am against discrimination based on color, creed or sex.

I am, however, opposed to loud-mouthed females who try to push their way into all-male clubs where they are not welcome. Men do not belong every place—and neither do women.

'Hat' Is Where It's At For Spring Fashion

The quieter, more conservative mood of ready-to-wear clothes, the revived interest of the classics, the urge for a new prettier, feminine personality have moved the lens of fashion upward, focusing on the hat.

There are five influences that dominate the hat picture for spring.

The return of the dress as a major fashion, heralds the return of the hat to the big time fashion scene. To top off spring's soft, lady-like dresses, straws in the wind are often lacy, shiny and wide-brimmed.

Pants, the fashion that won't give up, are softer, wider, more feminine. To compliment the new pant silhouettes, there is great variety in hats that provide pant costumes with a more sophisticated character.

Casual fabrics like denim, poplin, felt, jersey, gingham as well as a variety of straws, abound in crisp and flowy trimmed silhouettes for the pants scene.

The brimmed trend has influenced everything that is worn on the street, in the bedroom, at the beach. And hats with the look take their cue from there. Little peaked hats open brown turbans, newsboy caps will be everywhere. The traditional tennis colors white, red, navy — together or separately — will be predominant all spring and summer long.

The suit revival is at hand. Suit looks, whether put together from separates or bought as complete units, have the crisp, tailored feeling of all the classics.

The hats that complete them, although tailored and simple make their bow to femininity in interesting shapes, unusual prints, and the light-fingered touch of trims like a single flower, ribbons, feathery fronds, stitching and draping.

Every mouth-watering color you might dream up is here to tempt the hot customer this spring, lovely lime greens, tangy lemons, luscious peaches, pink strawberries, whipped cream white and dozens of other tasty flavors are apparent in felt, straw, fabric.

These are the delightful pastels that will help you ease up early to wear with fur coats, and continue into summer. I

Successful Living
Prime Marriage Problem
Lack of Communication

By DORIS CLARK

"In premarital relationships you don't hear of too many people having sexual problems. Once they start having a day-to-day intimate relationship, the problems begin."

This was the statement of an expert on family life education. He pointed out that during dating and courting periods, there is "novelty, excitement and a high level of perfume physical attraction."

Once married, the problem of communication becomes apparent. When the man appears in the morning he isn't. But he says that women are not the only ones that need to be shown they are loved. Many men want their wife to be talked into affection.

* * *

Dear Doris: Having read No More Four Terrible Years promptly me, to beg for help as well. My husband is home with me only for 7½ months and I'd hate to have them extend to four!

I'm desperate, as I'm pregnant with my first child. My husband is very good to me, but he's a workaholic. He's a good provider, but he's never home. He's a good father, but he's never home. He's a good husband, but he's never home.

I'm afraid that when the baby comes, he won't even know it's his. Please help me. — Desperate

Dear Desperate: Your husband is not the only man who is a workaholic. Many men are so involved in their work that they neglect their wives and children. Please tell your husband that you need him and the baby needs him. Tell him you are afraid he will not even know the baby when it arrives. Tell him you are afraid he will not even know you when it arrives.

Dear Doris: You asked if you had any antique readers who had the words to "The Picture That Is Turned Toward The Wall". Well, I am 66 years old and I quite an antique but I am enclosing the words. — H.M.

Dear Doris: I hope I am not an antique (at 67) but I do have a very old book of old songs and among them the one you wanted. It belonged to my mother who would be 96 if she were alive. I have the music as well. — Mrs. S.L.C.

Dear Mrs. H. M., Mrs. S. L. C., Mrs. A. F., P. T. and Others: Thank you. The pathetic little poem practically had me in tears.

It seems "the loving lassie" walked off with never a word to anybody, and never came back. Father couldn't forgive her but mother, as mothers will, "prays to see her child once more".

A fan melodramatist isn't it? But now we have copies and if anyone wants to write in for one, just send the usual 20 cents and a stamped envelope and it's yours.

Post-bloom Care For Amaryllis

Keep you amaryllis in good growing condition after it has bloomed, says John Hughes, Farm Ministry of Agriculture and Food. This strengthens the bulb for next season's flowering.

The plant can be grown continuously or with a rest period. In the continuous growth method, plants are kept growing all year. Feed the plant every two weeks with a good fertilizer. Amaryllis grown this way will flower at any time of the year.

With a rest period, plants bloom more evenly, and often flower before producing any leaves. After the last threat of frost, set the plant outdoors in a shade location for the summer. Fertilize and water regularly to keep the foliage growing well. Bring the plant indoors just before frost in the fall and repot in fertile soil containing some leaf mold. Remember to leave the upper third of the bulb above the soil line.

Keep bulbs in a cool dark location. Amaryllis require at least two months dormancy before the bulbs are forced into bloom.

Pigs

Don't berate pigs.

They are said to be among the most intelligent of animals.

Studies are underway to determine their intelligence quota and to understand their mating habits.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Why can't parents be firm?

BASICALLY because they are afraid their child will dislike them. Parents, of course, should be patient with a youngster, but a child wants to know where he stands and when he should look to for guidance and direction. Parents who claim they are being lenient because they love their child are very often more concerned about how their child will regard them than they are about the youngster's well-being.

Is nosiness a sign of friendliness?

THAT depends on the person who wants to know what you paid for your fur coat, or where you intend to spend your vacation, etc. Generally you can tell if the individual is asking because he is interested as a friend and not merely building up a backlog of gossip ammunition. You can ask yourself what you would do in his place. Your reaction to his query must tell you whether the questioner wants to be friendly or just nosy.

Are marriage clinics helpful?

YES; but there are limits. Usually it is best for both a husband and wife to attend. If one person refuses to go, that implies that he or she thinks the trouble the marriage is experiencing is the other person's fault. Couples, too, should make an earnest attempt to clear up their problem. Many times a husband and wife will fail in their efforts because they hold back, expecting a marital clinic to do all the work of reconciliation.

Palmer Ends Drought

..PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — The long, long victory drought is broken. Arnold Palmer is a winner again.

"Ah, yes," Palmer said Sunday when asked if this was a victory for the old folks. At the 43-year-old pro from Pennsylvania added: "I feel pretty damn young right now."

The weather was cold, wet and windy for the final round of the $160,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic at Bermuda Dunes Country club.

Palmer had not won a tournament in 18 months before his final round of 69 produced a two-stroke triumph over the man who replaced him as golf's king, Jack Nicklaus, and 23-year-old Johnny Miller.

Nicklaus, who led or shared the lead all the way until the first hole of the last round of the 90-hole marathon, and Miller matched par on the rain-drenched course.

Palmer's fifth Bob Hope classic triumph was his 70th all-time pro victory, including 61 on the U.S. tour.

"After going so long, and having such a bad, disappointing year last season ... wondering if I'd ever win again, sure, I thought about it. I wouldn't be telling the truth if I said anything different."

Palmer went ahead of Nicklaus by sinking an eight-foot birdie put on the first green. Nicklaus three-putted from 35 feet away.

Nicklaus had about a 30-foot putt for an eagle on the 18th hole that everyone thought would force a playoff. The ball grazed the hole and Nicklaus said: "I thought I'd made it but it didn't go in."

Palmer then drilled a seven footer into the cup for a birdie, eliminating all chance of Miller or anyone else following to catch him.

Palmer, who had rounds of 71-66-63-68-69, 17 under par, collected $22,000. Nicklaus and Miller each won $14,000.

Two Toronto golfers finished in the money. George Knudson finished 74—338, 15 strokes behind the winner, and earned $970. Another seven strokes back was Ben Kern who took $264.

German Girl Wins Title

COLOGNE, West Germany (AP) — Christine Errath, 16, of East Germany became the youngest girl ever to win the European figure-skating title when she swept to victory in Saturday's free-skating competition.

The pretty brunette, who drew a laugh from reporters by telling her post-victory news conference she plans to write sports for a living, scored 341.14 points to 330.65 for Jean Scott of Britain and 328.53 for Karin Han of Switzerland, who had left after the compulsory figures.

Miss Errath will compete in the world championships at Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, starting in 10 days, where she raises Karen Magnussen of Vancouver and Janet Lynn of the United States as among the most dangerous competitors.

"I'll try to keep up with them and perhaps I'll succeed," she said.

Champion In Gear

Fittipaldi led from start to finish in his Lotus for his second triumph in the 1973 world drivers championship, having won the opening event in Argentina two weeks ago.

The Brazilian star now has an 18-point maximum from the first two races in the series and already looks well on the way to retaining the crown he won last year.

Fittipaldi defeated 1971 world champion Jackie Stewart of Britain, who was second in a Tyrrell Ford, with New Zealander Denny Hulme third in a McLaren.

Ferguson Leads Braves to Victory

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hull Festivals had a rare moment in the Central Junior Hockey League sun collapsed Sunday when Pat Hahn of Pembroke Lumber Kings set a league scoring record.

Hull had managed to win for only the sixth time in 50 league games by beating Nepean Raiders 5-2 in Hull.

But at the same time, Hahn was scoring three times in an 8-3 Pembroke victory over Smiths Falls Bears, raising his total to 66 for the season.

The record was established at 65 in the 1964-65 season by Gilles Roy of Hull Hawks.

In the third game of a full schedule, Sunday, Brockville Braves bounced into third place by beating second-ranked Ottawa Ravens 4-1.

Michel Brisebois scored twice for Hull, defeated 41 times this year, while Pierre Dagenais, Jean-Pierre Menard and Earl Moulton scored once each. Maurice Leger and Jim Kirkpatrick scored for Nepean.

And, as Pembroke registered its 20th straight game undefeated as league leaders, Terry Conroy, Paul Sawyer, Bob Wright, Gord Barrett and Barry Gannon added to Hahn's total. He also has 45 assists for 111 points.

The Smiths Falls goals, enough to give them a 3-0 lead up to the 10-minute mark of the first period, went to Don Robertson, Bob Richardson and Des Allen.

But with all the other excitement, the fireworks came in Ottawa after Dave Wilson of Brockville and Ottawa goalie Rocky Menard collided when Menard wandered out of his goal to clear the puck in the second period.

When it all was settled, Menard, Wilson, Dave Scott of Brockville and Danny McKay of Ottawa were out of the game with misconducts and Brian Kerfoot was in goal for the Rangers.

The only action tonight has Ottawa at Nepean.

Gray Faces Test In Tonight's Fight

TORONTO (CP) — Fifteen rounds or less will determine the lifestyle of Toronto's Clyde Gray for the immediate future when he takes on Eddie Blay of Ghana tonight for the Commonwealth welterweight boxing title.

The confident 25-year-old native of Windsor, N.S., looks on the bout as a stepping stone to better things—if not in Canada, at least in Europe where the crown means something.

"I want the title," Gray said during the weekend. "It may not mean much in Canada, but it means a lot in Europe. More fights, more money."

A solid puncher, the Toronto bricklayer is expected to be throwing knockout punches early in the fight but says "I can go 15 rounds with no problem."

Blay, who fights out of Italy, has never been off his feet and in 39 fights has 31 wins—19 by knockout, three losses and five draws.

The Ghanian, who abandoned a painting career to box, has been promised $11,000 for the fight—about twice as much as Gray.

But Gray's manager, Irv Ungerman, said his plans call for a world title bout for Gray in Toronto and his main concern is to see if his fighter can draw the crowds here.

"If he can't, then we sure as hell can't guarantee $75,000 or $100,000 for (Jose) Napoles to fight here."

Both fighters have their sights set on a championship fight with the Mexican.

Sparks, 40, hasn't fought in more than a year. He has suffered five losses in 43 fights.

Four bouts have been chartered to bring Summerhayes' supporters in from Brantford as the aggressive puncher attempts to rest the light heavy laurels from Sparks.

Summerhayes, who has never been knocked out, has won 16 and drawn one of 22 pro fights.

Centennial Wins Wrestling Title

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

Though it is difficult to up set approximately 200 pounds of experienced wrestler, Centennial's Geof MacKey did just that in the unlimited weight class at the Bay of Quinte wrestling championship meet Saturday.

MacKey won the gold medal in his weight class, defeating Napanee's Bill Vinet de Sliss to help his team to a Bay of Quinte championship. The first the school has won since wrestling began at Centennial five years ago.

With only two wrestlers in the unlimited category, this one and only match of the day was the championship match.

"I weighed 206 when I started wrestling at the beginning of the year," said the novice MacKey, "and I've just been taking off weight since. I'm 193 now."

MacKey did not have a great deal of experience on the mats this year due to the fact that only Napanee has a wrestler in the unlimited weight class. "I only had two regular season bouts," said MacKey, "and three when we went to a tournament in Merlin Ireal. I won one and lost the other two there." The Centennial wrestler had earlier in the season lost a bout to van de Sliss by a pin.

MacKey gave a great deal of the credit for the knowledge he has about the sport to fellow wrestler John Dwornik who "helped me a lot, showed me moves, and gave me encouragement."

Dwornik, the Centennial wrestler who won the gold medal in the 130 pound weight class, disclaimed credit for MacKey's wrestling ability, saying "the coach should get most of the credit. I just talk. When I find out that a wrestler has a problem, I try to help."

Dwornik, who has been on the mats for five years, also said that "the coaches are trying to start a wrestling club at Bayside," to allow wrestlers to gain more mat time and thus more experience. That's why we don't do so well at all Ontario championships."

We only wrestle during one season, while wrestlers in Toronto have clubs were they wrestle all year round."

Centennial Secondary which had nine wrestlers in the finals, is in championship bouts and three in the consolation, while Quinte had the reverse order of appearance. Quinte ran on top of the Saints by four with 81½ to 77½ team points.

Wally Uhrynuk, Saints' wrestling coach, said after the meet, that he didn't "know what I'm doing wrong. We've been using the same things, five or six years ago, we lost by one point, last year we lost by nine points. But we'll get our turn one of these years."

"It's funny that we're wrestling the same way, with the same style," said the Bay of Quinte coaching conference after viewing the meet under National College Athletic Association rules.

Whatever rules the meet was held under, it did not take away from the tone of the meet, or the organization of the meet. Most of the bouts were competitive while the Quinte students, who helped Uhrynuk run it worked quickly and efficiently.

"They deserve credit for the job they did," said Uhrynuk, "we'll be counting on some of them at COSSA next week."

The Bay of Quinte championship meet did not go on without mishap, however, as the Napanee wrestlers ended up at Centennial when "the coaches got the school mixed up" according to 194 pound wrestler Peter Hawley.

"We had to jog the two and a half or three miles to Quinte," said Hawley, but that only gave me a bad disposition for my matches."

Hawley's bad disposition proved to be useful for his team's point standing as he won the gold medal over Centennial's Paul Colotelo,

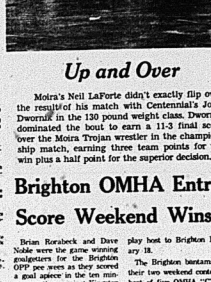
BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Fastball League, with two five-team divisions and a 36-game schedule, was formed here Sunday.

The new league will have Burlington, Welland, New Niagara Falls and Woodstock in its east division and Kitchener, London, Toronto, St. Catharines and Oshawa in the west.

The world-champion Rich mond Hill Dynes decided against entering the OFL and will remain in the Toronto and District Senior League.



The OFL will open its sched uled 36-game season in August 26. The first two teams in each division will play a best-of-five semi-final series with the two survivors competing in a best-of-five series for the league championship.

Pressure's Always On

Orillia Goalie Hot

If Moira's Neil LaForte appears to be in a tight squeeze, it could be that Centennial's John Dwornik is putting on a bit of pressure. The two wrestlers saw mat action at the Bay of Quinte Championships in which the Centennial Chargers won the title and the right of representation at the COSSA finals. LaForte and Dwornik, fighting in the 130 pound class, went the three regulation rounds according to National College Athletic Association rules.

Up and Over

Moira's Neil LaForte didn't exactly flip over the result of his match with Centennial's John Dwornik in the 130 pound weight class. Dwornik dominated the bout to earn a 11-3 final score over the Moira Trojan wrestler in the championship match, earning three team points for the win plus a half point for the superior decision.

Quintes Beaten with Own Stick

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

There's nothing like being beaten by your own stick as the Belleville Quintes' Karl Bagnell can testify.

The Belleville Senior "A" hockey team had to lend Orillia Terrier goalie Jean Louis Levasseur one of their goalie's sticks as the netminder's own defensive weapon was somewhere between himself and Tulsa.

The borrowed lumber wielded by Levasseur held the Quintes to a scoreless three periods to earn the Terriers a 4-0 victory, their second over the Belleville club this weekend.

Perhaps Levasseur was following a newly discovered winning formula, as he said he "borrowed one last night too" when the Tulsa 67'er defeated Omaha of the Central Hockey League in the United States 2-0. The goalie played three games over 17 days for the Toronto Maple Leafs's farm club, returning to Orillia only to travel to another shutout win"in Belleville Sunday.

The Oilers lost the other two games Levasseur saw time in — though he only played during the third period in the first contest, and only allowed one goal in the second. He was put into the Tulsa net after only six minutes of the second game had elapsed.

Levasseur performed well in the Terrier nets, 2000 miles away from his previous shutout location, as one of the players in Orillia dressing room quipped after the game. The Terriers' goalie put the stop on several shots by Belleville Cornell interval, times from in front of the net to earn his shutout.

Levasseur didn't withstand as many shots on his net as he might have as the Quintes seemed to have a tendency to stay out of the goalie's territory. At one point in the second period, George Godson and Al Ferguson of the Quintes situation, came over the blue line with the puck but failed to even get a shot away. Godson never got back to the scrum's left though his pursuit by the Terriers' defenceman Ray Dupont was not tight.

Quintes' goalie, Karl Bagnell, despite allowing four goals, did a creditable job in the Belleville net for the Terriers. He on Quintes' three scrimmage. Bagnell put the stop on a terrors of shots by left winger Grant Moore to save further scoreboard humiliation.

Peterborough Twists Bobcats' Tails

KEENE (Special) — The Belleville Bobcats have met the Peterborough Lions four times so their Metro Junior "B" season this year and each time the 'Cats have come home with their tails tucked between their legs.

The "Tempestuous Tabbies" seem to have lost their winning snart as they dropped an 8-4 decision to the Lions Sunday for their seventh straight loss.

The Lions' Peter Pulbuhl led the first place club with two second period goals while singles tallies came from centre Bob Wasson, right winger Gord Duncan, Jack Scriver, Ken Saunders, Steve McGillis, and Bill Davis.

Bobcats' coach Moe Hunter was dissatisfied with his team's performance saying everybody was going at 75 per cent of their ability." When asked the reason for their lacadaisical performance, Hunter said "that, you'd have to ask them, not me. We made a few mistakes — like letting them score goals."

The game was a fast end to end contest according to Bobcats' Holmes and Dwayne Dayton, both of whom scored the forward out of the slot.

The Quintes did not play solo,Rational hockey against the fast skating, quick passing Terriers' club. Bagnell suffered the consequences of this on the Terriers' third goal, as Garrie Vaughan and Hank Monteith carrying the puck on a lead pass from Charlie Cipolla came over the blue line with Greg Marchen.

the only Quintes defenceman back. Bagnell was beaten by Vaughan from in front of the net, as Marchen was unable to stop the pass from Monteith on the wing.

Immediately before this Terriers scoring sequence the three Quintes' forwards could have been found behind Orillia's net digging for the puck.

Playing coach Doug Kilch er, however, said after the game, that the first place Terriers had not scored as many goals as they had on the Belleville club in Friday's 7-3 victory because "the Quintes played a better game here than they did Orillia. They played right on top of you."

The defenceman was unhappy with his own team's performance as he said that "we'll have to tighten up or get hammered in Barrie Wednesday." Kelcher, however, gave credit to two Quintes' defencemen, "Bolly is a smart defenceman, while Marchen is the best in the league."

The shots on net by the two Senior "A" teams were near: ly even at 27-28 with the Terriers having the one shot advantage. Keith Wright, Mike Draper, and Gary Milroy, all of whom scored goals in Orillia's 12-1 victory of the last place Quintes Friday night, tallied against the Quintes Sunday.

Bearcats Move Ahead

Bearcats hold a one-point lead atop the Northern Electric hockey league following a 6-5 win Sunday over Rebels.

Scoring for Rebels, who entered the game one point ahead of Bearcats, were Larry Lazenby and Doug Mc-Cory with two goals each and Dwight Rathwell with one.

Next week's schedule completes the season.

Brighton OMHA Entries Score Weekend Wins

Brian Roraback and Dave Noble were the game winning goalgetters for the Brighton OPP pee wees as they scored a goal apiece in the ten minute overtime against Kingston Fort Henry Sunday.

The goals by the right winger and the centre early in the overtime period gave the OPP team a 3-1 victory and a tie in the best of three OMHA "C" division playdowns. The club had lost the opener by a 4-3 decision in Brighton Saturday. The Kingston team, having won the coin toss for the choice of location for the final game, will play host to Brighton February 18.

The Brighton bantams split their two weekend contests in best of five OMHA "C" division playdowns. Brighton defeated Kingston Fort Henry 6-1 Saturday but were bombed 11-1 Sunday.

The Brighton midgets were eliminated from the "C" division playdowns after absorbing a 4-3 loss over the weekend. The midgets' loss wipe the third straight in the best of five competition.

Rangers Upset After Habs Rebound for Tie

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York Rangers, who tied a club record Saturday winning their 39th straight game, figure to settle for a tie Sunday and locked on the face of a loss.

"It was like we had lost," said all-star defenceman Brad Park after Montreal Canadiens rallied in the third period for a 2-2 tie to maintain a four-point lead over the Rangers in the National Hockey League's East Division race.

The Canadiens appeared set to roll over and die through most of the game until Frank Mahovlich brought them alive early in the third on the power play and Chuck Lefley scored with his team shorthanded at the 16:47 mark.

Mahovlich's score ended New York's shutout a streak of 255 minutes and 53 seconds, stretching over three games and parts of two others.

"Mahovlich's goal gave them a lift," said Emile Francis, Rangers general manager-coach. "But we had no one to blame but ourselves for the tying goal."

Savage Rink Wins Ontario Title

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Paul Savage goes back to the Canadian curling championship next month a little older, a little wiser and with an impressive winning record in Ontario competition.

The Toronto skip emerged from the provincial final Saturday with a 6-5 victory over Bill Tetley of Sudbury to win his second trip to the national championship March 5-10 in Edmonton.

Savage was 22, the youngest Ontario skip ever, when he represented the province at Winnipeg in 1970 and was the province's schoolboy representative in 1965.

"I finished 4-6 at Winnipeg but I think the experience I picked up then should help me to do better this time," said the 25-year-old Toronto salesman after he beat defending champion Gord Ellett of Ottawa 8-5 in the eighth round to clinch the title.

"I've got a strong rink this trip," he said, after declining to compare them with his 1970 team-mates.

"We've got good sweeping and we all work well together so I hope we can do better than in 1970."

With Savage for the second season are Ron Green and the second Ed Werenich, both 25. Third Bob Thompson, 24, joined the rink this season after competing last year in his native Saskatoon.

About the only thing Savage left unproven was whether or not his rink has the ability to come from behind. They were seldom in serious trouble requiring more than one stone in the final-round robin.

Savage headed into the final three rounds Saturday with Coombe and Ken Buchan of London in close contention with one loss each.

But then both Coombe and Buchan were upset in the seventh round and Savage had only to beat Coombe in the 10-end Ray Grant of Unionville in the sixth.

Coombe missed with his last rock in the 11th end and left Savage a draw for the four which clinched the 8-5 decision and London title.

Buchan finished as runner-up with seven wins and two losses. Tetley, Ellett and Toronto's Barry Coleman of Toronto were next at 6-3 and Coombe finished 5-4.

Paul Kotik of St. Catharines and Gerry Cosier of Brampton each won 4-5, Ted Brown of Kingston won 3-6, Grant Hall of Sarnia and Second of Ridgetown never won.

After the title was decided in the eighth round, few curlers treated the final round seriously, simply going through the motions. Only two ends were reduced to 10-ends from the usual 12 for the last round.

Savage ran out his string by beating Grant 7-5 while Waite defeated Coombe 6-4. Buchan defeated Brown 6-4. Cosier defeated Tetley 6-4 and Kotik whipped Second 11-4.

Austrians Sweep Ski Meet

From AP-Reuter

ABETONE, Italy (CP) — Austrians swept the men's and women's events in Monica Kaserer took over from Anne Marie Proell Sunday to complete an Austrian weekend sweep of World Cup skiing events with a victory in the giant slalom.

The 21-year-old Miss Kaserer covered the course in one minute 44.64 seconds to defeat Proell Riedl of West Germany and Sandra Poulsen of the two United States, timed in 1:45.11 and 1:45.81 respectively.

Miss Proell, who leads the World Cup standings, was eighth in 1:47.27 after winning her fifth consecutive downhill race at St. Moritz, Switzerland, the day before.

With seven races remaining, she has a commanding lead in her quest for a third consecutive World Cup with 223 points to the 155 of Miss Kaserer and 111 for third-place Rosi Mittermaier of West Germany. Miss Mittermaier was fourth in Sunday's race in 1:45.92.

The only Canadians completing the course were Judy Crawford of Ucluelet, B.C., in 1:50.15, and Kathy Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., 31st in 1:59.30.

Australian girls took the first three places in Saturday's downhill as Miss Proell won in 1:58.9. Miss Riedl was 0.09 of a second behind and Miss Poulsen 0.11 behind. Miss Kreiner was in the deep snow after recording the fourth-fastest intermediate time.

Austrian men took seven of the top eight places in the World Cup downhill at St. Moritz Sunday as Karl Cordin won the event in 2:06.06.

Dave Cowan of Nelson, B.C., 12th in 2:10.36 and Mike Culver of Montreal 17th in 2:11.75 as fresh snow, wind and poor visibility slowed down a number of the favourites and upset the times.

The race, last downhill event of the season, left David Zwilling of Austria and Roland Collombin of Switzerland tied for first place in the cup standings, two points ahead of Gustavo Thoeni of Italy.

Royals Lose to Montreal

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Third-period heroics played a major part in three of the four Quebec Senior A. Hockey League games played Sunday.

In two of the games, Quebec Remparts and Montreal Red, White and Blue scored three straight goals to tie and win, respectively.

In the other, Sorel Black Hawks fired 19 goals to add to their 8-2 second-period lead en route to an 18-5 victory over Laval Nationals.

Montreal's three straight goals erased a 4-2 deficit and, as Royals while Quebec's three straight erased a 4-1 deficit and earned the Remparts a tie with Shawinigan Bruins.

Mario Tremblay scored twice for Montreal, but it was Yvon Daigle's marker with only 10 seconds left in regulation time which gave victory to the Red, White and Blue. Jean-Guy Dubuc and Jean-Luc Phaneuf also scored single goals for the winners while Stuart Davison, with two, Dave Rooke and Glen McDonald replied for the Royals.

Wild Weekend For World Hockey Entries

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goaltender Pete Donnelly of New York Raiders was so embarrassed he couldn't know what to think.

One wonders how Gavin Kirk of Ottawa Nationals felt after he failed to score on Donnelly minus his stick—during the embarrassing situation?

Then how about Minnesota Fighting Saints who blew a five-goal lead and eventually lost 7-5 to Alberta Oilers?

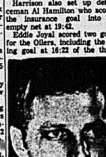
In other games, Winnipeg Jets blanked Los Angeles Sharks 3-0, New England Whalers tied Quebec Nordiques 2-2 and Philadelphia Blazers whipped Cleveland Crusaders 6-1.

Saturday scores were: Winnipeg 6, Los Angeles 3; Ottawa 7, New England 4; Cleveland 8, New York 4; Chicago 3, Houston 9; Philadelphia 6, Quebec 4.



In the New York-Ottawa encounter before 7,723 fans, the Raiders were leading 3-2 early in the third period when Kirk had his chance to tie the score.

He raced in alone on Donnelly but lost the puck out of his stick. Donnelly swung at the puck, retrieved it and splattered his stick.

"I just dove at the puck and I got it," said the 155-pound netminder.

Coach Camille Henry said: "We were lucky to get away with it."

Martin led the Chicago attack with two goals and three assists and Hull had four points on two goals and two assists as the Hawks defeated the Flyers 7-2.

Hull moved in to fourth place in National Hockey League scoring with his points.

Terriers Hold On

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barrie Flyers are still going great guns but still getting rough treatment from the Kingston Oilrills Terriers for the lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings.

The Flyers extended their winning streak to 10 games Sunday, posting a 3-2 home-ice victory over the previous Kingston Aces. But the Terriers, meanwhile, were in trouble—whipping the Quintes 4-0 to maintain their two-point standings edge over Barrie.

In the only other weekend contest, Oak Hornets handed visiting Brantford Foresters a 5-3 defeat Saturday.

Something's got to give, and it could happen when leader Barrie travels to Kingston Saturday night.

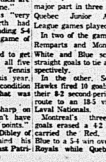
American Copies Belkin's Style

TORONTO (CP) — When Harold Solomon was a junior, he saw Canada's Mike Belkin using a two-fisted backhand at a tennis tournament at Orlando, Fla.

"I wasn't strong enough to hit a good backhand with one hand and I watched Belkin and envied his style," Solomon said recently after staging off three successive points to win his opening-round singles match Sunday in the $50,000 Toronto International tennis tournament.

Solomon, a five-foot, 5½-inch member of last year's championship United States Davis Cup team, said his backhand shots were instrumental in keeping the ball in play as he struggled past Roy Barth of San Diego, Calif., 4-6, 7-6, 6-3.



"I've had a lot of problems getting used to indoor courts," said Solomon, "I have no confidence in my game when serving . . . but I used the backhand to keep the ball in play so I wasn't try for passing shots which are the best part of my game."

He attributed he was "very frustrated" when Barth had three match points on his serve and 40-15 in the 10th game of the second set.

Barth, who has failed to get past the first round in all five World Championship Tennis tournaments so far this year, said he lacked match confidence and was "pressing—that was mostly my problem."

If I was really sharp on match play, I wouldn't have choked on those match points."

Tries for Takeout

Booth Captures Second Crown

Canadian Forces Base Trenton Curling Club was very much to the fore in the Victoria and Grey Bonspiel at the Quinte Curling Club over the weekend.

Some 16 teams entered the knock-out bonspiel but CFB teams came to the least in the first event. Sunday's final games lined up last year's winner Gib Booth and his team against another CFB team under Don Mulvale.

Runners-up were Don Mulvale's team with John Belle, Frank LaBelle and Mike Brown.

The Quinte Curling Club was out in the second event with Art Barnon's team consisting of Goldie Livingstone, Fred Mrand and Fenton Worrell. Dan Cowley was skipper of the second event runners-up, another Quinte team.

Rollins Foiled By Kingston

Rollins peewee majors failed to wrap up their opening OMHA "AA" playdown series as they dropped a 5-2 verdict to Kingston Church Athletic League. The loss leaves the Belleville team with a 1-1 lead in the best of five series.

The next game in the series will be played the next Saturday in Kingston beginning at 11.30 a.m.

Dixie Takes Playdown Win

The Dixie Lee Fried Chicken peewee minors won the first game of their OMHA triple "A" playdowns against Kingston Church Athletic League, defeating the CAL team 3-2.

Eric Dirkiemen outshot the Kingston club 21-18 in the first game of the best of five playdowns. Kevin Dickey and Mike Thompson provided the CAL markers.

Towers Prove Old Adage

Towers Novice hockey team proved the old sports adage that "the game isn't over 'til the final whistle blows" on Saturdays 8-4 exhibition win over Prescott.

Towers trailed 4-1 heading into the final period, but scored seven uncontested goals to defeat the home team.

Tim Jaques tallied the winner after some nifty stick-handling by Danny Rose set him up on the play. Bobby Wolfe had a pair of goals for Belleville with the others going to Louis Crawford, Lawrence Hanlon, Dana Meadow, Tony Parks and Greg Harwood.

Tykes Split OMHA Bouts

Jamie Johnston, Tim Mulroney, Dave Meagher, and Wilson scored single goals for the Belleville OMHA team entry against Picton while Johnston scored Wilson's only tally against Kingston Sunday.

Kinsmen Lose

Kinsmen Club goalie Mark Meehan fanned a shutout against Camp Borden bantam majors in the Centennial tournament Saturday but failed to do the same for the Brampton "A" bantams.

Sandy Waterson provided the Kinsmen with three goals in their 4-0 win over Camp Borden while Jay Skelly supplied a single tally.

In Saturday's second tournament contest, Bob Thompson, Kelvin Pope, and Paul Hyman's bantam tallies were not enough to overcome the Brampton team who defeated the Belleville club 4-3.

Hill Proves Double Threat

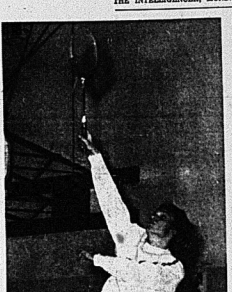
In one of the largest draws ever, with 10 clubs and 115 entries represented, Sydenham Club was strongly represented in the finals by Greg Hill and Rusty Basarab.

In two tightly contested games Hill beat Basarab to take the men's singles trophy and the pair teamed up in the men's doubles to beat Trenton- Bellevilles Doug Carmichael and Rich Danziger 15-2, 15-3.



John Geale and Gail Moffat of Cobourg made a strong duo to steal the mixed doubles trophy from Sydenham's Hill and K. Huffman in a narrow third game 15-13 win.

Belleville's Sue Smith made it to the women's singles final round in the event 12-2, 11-5, by the strong performance of Beverly Wiley from Whitby.

Beverly Wiley took her second trophy in the women's doubles. Wiley's teammate Marg Smith she gained victory for Whitby over Cobourgers Helen Miller and Shirley Harrison, 15-3, 15-2.

Consolation playoffs gave three trophies to Belleville. Len Clesver and Sue Smith took the mixed doubles consolation, and Kay Sneddon the ladies singles.

Men's consolation went to Larry Adams of Kingston, men's doubles consolation to Francis Kwan and Paul Sharrock of Whitby and women's doubles to Betsy Campbell and Jane Machin of Kingston.

'It's for the Bird'

Greg Hill of Sydenham just missed a third win in the Central Ontario Badminton Association C-Tournament Saturday. He took trophies for the Men's Singles and Men's Doubles, only miss by a hair taking the Mixed Doubles as well, in the one - day competition held at Centennial Secondary School.

Imperials Out

The Belleville Blake Kerr Imperials team lost Saturday's contest 4-2, while dropping a 9-3 decision to the Kingston club Sunday.

The Imperials "were simply outclassed by Kingston" according to team manager Jerry Murphy in the game in Kingston Sunday. "There is no way that the city of Belleville can compete in triple "A" competition," said Murphy, "no possible way." The 9-3 score doesn't mean, however, that we were outclassed that much, because the team played hard enough."

Local Drivers Cop Two Wins

Two Belleville drivers picked up wins Saturday at Frontenac Downs. John Adams guided Rose's Sister to victory on the Kingston track, while Larry Zehedee added a victory behind Flying John.

The feature race was won by Brian Rose, owned by Ruth Ferguson of Picton and driven by Chris Storms.

Loyalist Teams Troubled

By Mike bradshaw

Saturday proved to be disastrous for the Loyalist College Ontario College Athletic Association representatives.

In the final match of the season, in Oshawa, the Loyalist girls' volleyball team took seven of their 10 games on five from Durham College of Oshawa and two of five from Algonquin College of Ottawa.

It was necessary however for the Loyalist girls to win four of five games against Algonquin to finish in first place in the OCAA eastern division and make it into all-Ontario College playdowns.

Following their five straight victories over last place Durham, the Loyalist team dropped the opening game against Algonquin 15-7.

The Lancers girls turned the tables on the Algonquin Cats in the second and third games, however, beating them 15-10 and 15-11 respectively.

The Loyalist Lancers comeback hopes were crushed in the final two games as the Cats squeezed past them 15-12 in both matches. The girls finished the season in second, one point behind the Algonquin Cats.

Loyalist Coach Sharon Correll said "I'm a little disappointed we couldn't have gone all the way, but I'm really proud of the showing the girls made this season. They're a great bunch of girls and they did very well considering this is their first season in the league."

In Loyalist hockey action, the third place Lancers dropped their first game in their last seven starts on to the fourth-place Sir Sanford Fleming Saturday in Peterborough.

"We had a lot more chances to score than they did," said Lancers' coach Bruce Corcoran, "but Pat Hogan, the Peterborough goalie, made some fantastic saves."

Peterborough led 2-1 at the end of the first period getting goals from Bruce Osbourne and Terry Sheets with Rod Mallory replying for Loyalist. The Lancers Dave Ferguson scored the only goal of the second period evening things up at 2-2.

Loyalist went ahead 3-2 in the third with Eugene Berrol scoring. Randy Oke quickly replied for Peterborough, making it 3-3.

Then at 19:40 of the final frame, Terry MacGregor scored to put Sir Sanford Fleming ahead 4-3. The loss was the first to Peterborough in three meetings this season.

In a less dramatic contest, the Loyalist basketball team defeated the Sir Sanford Fleming. The Peterborough squad led 42-24 at half-time but pulled away in the second half with a 53-33 scoreboard lawdown.

Dick Batton with 35 points, Herm Jansen (23) and Brad Patterson (20) were high scorers for Sir Sanford Flemin. Top gunners for the Lancers were Bill Kyle with 29 and Ed Goody with 11.

Boyd Collects

The Pot O' Gold draw at Sunday's OHA Senior A hockey game was won by Boyd MacKinnor of Belleville. The 13-year-old youth collected $27 as his share of the 50-50 draw.

Phone Rates Vary Widely

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP) — What price telephone service?

Like many things Canadian, it varies drastically depending on where you live. Canadians are among the world's most talkative telephone users, with most 12 million phones and an average of about 800 calls a person annually.

It may cost as little as $2.60 a month flat rate for a private home line in Rorketon, Man., or as much as $60 for similar service in Cloverdale, B.C.

Having a phone put in your home can cost as little as $3 in Manitoba and Saskatchewan or as much as $11—down to $22 if Bell Canada has its way—in Quebec and Ontario.

Telephone rates are set on the basis of the number of other phones you can reach from yours without paying a toll charge. There are 33 rural that tiny Rorketon. 100 phones connected to a cooperative basic service cheaper than Cloverdale, with its network of suburban communities around Vancouver.

There are no other differences. Here are examples of monthly basic rates for private home telephone in communities which all have telephone dialing, touch-tone and 10,000:

Glace Bay, N.S., $5.60; Caraquet, N.B., $5.10; Exeter, Ont., $4.90; Flin Flon, Man., $3.25; North Battleford, Sask., $3.45; Lloydminster, Alta., and Creston, B.C., $3.60; Prince Rupert, B.C., $4.70.

These variations, turned up in a Cross-Canada Survey of rates by The Canadian Press, illustrate another big factor: whether the telephone company is privately owned or operated by government.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have government-run systems—and the lowest rates.

New attention has been centered on rates because of applications by Bell Canada, the giant in the private field, for a two-phase increase in its charges to customers both for basic flat rates and a string of service charges from installation to repair to appliance placing calls. It is Bell's fourth such move in five years.

The first-phase application for Bell, which serves Ontario, Labrador and the Northwest Territories, now is before the regulatory Canadian transport commission. It is for rate increases to be put into effect as soon as possible this year.

The second phase is an application for even higher rates to start Jan. 1, 1980.

Success for Bell is expected to mean a string of similar rate-increase moves by private companies in Eastern Canada, companies in which Bell holds control or majority interest.

Bell Canada, the giant, runs the complex show that is involved in Bell, which serves Ontario, Labrador and the Northwest Territories, now is before the regulatory Canadian transport commission. It is for rate increases to be put into effect as soon as possible this year.

The second phase is an application for even higher rates to start Jan. 1, 1980.

Success for Bell is expected to mean a string of similar rate-increase moves by private companies in Eastern Canada, companies in which Bell holds control or majority interest.

Bell Canada, the giant, runs the complex show that is involved in the Bell applications, and almost all of it for Quebec. The federally-incorporated Canadian company owns almost 11 of Newfoundland Telephone Co., the majority share ownership of Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. Ltd., serving Nova Scotia which in turn controls 51 Island Telephone Co. Ltd. serving Prince Edward Island. Bell also owns 30.1 per cent of New Brunswick Telephone Co. Ltd.

The Canadian National Telecommunications serves rural Newfoundland. Quebec Telephone, more than half owned by Anglo-Canadian Telephone Co., a subsidiary of General Telephone and Electric Corp. of the U.S., has 40 quarterly-settled parts of Quebec province.

The situation in British Columbia, where the system is owned by Canadian Pacific, is a bit up-in the air.

British Columbia Telephone Co. is under notice by Premier David Barrett, whose New Democratic Party has applied Social Credit last summer, that the government intends to take over. Since it is a Crown corporation, set up in 1973, B. C. Telephone has had the highest user charges in the country.

Bell's proposed two-step increases, if approved in full, would put it ahead of B.C. Telephone.

The monthly rate for that single home line in Exeter, Ont., would rise to $4.85 from the present $4.30 in 1974 and $5.25 in subsequent years if approved Bell's proposed rates.

And the home installation charge, as mentioned, would rise to $25 from the present $11.

Spokesmen for the telephone companies, government-run as well as private, warn against current simple rate comparisons from area to area.

A company owned by a provincial government can avoid federal corporation income tax. Bell estimates in its latest application that 1972 tax changes federally and in Ontario and Quebec will mean an increased tab for it of about $13 million in 1979.

Users of telephone services seem willing to accept that it costs more per unit to string lines through sparsely-populated mountains in British Columbia than it does across populous Ontario flatlands. But there appears to be growing doubt about just how rates are set and whether there are easy book-keeping arrangements that make private phone company's revenue picture look a little bleak while its non-regulated subsidiary flies high in profits.

For example, in deciding B.C. Telephone's most recent rate increase, the federal transport commission said it could not find justification for all of the difference between B.C. rates and those in other parts of Canada, despite company arguments about high construction costs and light population density only in the Vancouver-Victoria area.

The commission also took note of telephone customer complaints about poor service and fouled-up billings, requiring the company to file a special report on them.

Bell Canada, B. C. Telephone and Canadian National communications go before the telecommunications committee of the federal transport commission this month to make rate changes. The other companies, because they are incorporated provincially, apply to various provincial regulatory boards.

The links between B. C. Telephone and its supply and service affiliates were investigated at the transport commission hearings held in two 1971 rate increases.

The commission sought an overall increase of 14.8 per cent in its rates. It wound up with an increase of about 12 per cent. Part of the reason given by the commission for dissatisfaction over B. C. Telephone was the failure of affiliates Dominion Directory Co. Ltd., and Canadian Telephone Supplies Ltd. from commission felt sure B. C. Telephone could get more economical service from other companies.

But it did say that company equipment dealings with Automatic Electric (Canada) Ltd., and Lenkurt Electric (Canada) Ltd. "appeared to provide prices generally as low or lower than those paid by other customers of these suppliers.

Consumer advocate Jim Lyon here Bell less than it asked in 1972, and the company returned this year, arguing that climbing labor costs and inflation necessary to seek an adjustment.

Both the Quebec and Ontario governments have intervened in the Bell applications, the former on behalf of consumers and the latter on behalf of the province.

Can't Nurse

TORONTO (CP) — Dorothy Thomson of Lewis Scotia, said Sunday she was turned down in Canadian nursing schools because of poor Grade 12 subjects, pediatric and psychiatric courses.

Miss Thomson received six 70 per cent in the subjects pediatrics but it was the standard of the school courses, even though by Scottish standards she had a high school graduate, and pass four social biology courses for $53 each at night school, that she said.

"It is sheer discrimination," Mrs. Thomson said. "They're saying after after I trained for 2½ years that I can't be in Ontario nurse who trains for me.

"Their attitude is you don't count if you're not born in Ontario."

40-Year Maximum

ROME (AP) — Italy abolished the death penalty in 1889. The government has proposed a new law to do away with life imprisonment, setting the maximum at 40 years.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

TUESDAY, FEB. 13

Aries (March 21-April 19): Early hours bring out any competitive or quarrelsome tendencies among associates—your serenity determines the outcome.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Enthusiasm seems lacking, so you must do your work on faith and according to plan, without forcing issues.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Casual contacts bring you interesting trivia, perhaps—the answer to a long-standing question. Get in touch with energetic types.

Virgo (June 21-July 22): Whatever travel you do should be started early. You can persuade everybody into going along with any coherent plan.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Wise special consideration for the feelings of those about you press forward vigorously with personal plans.

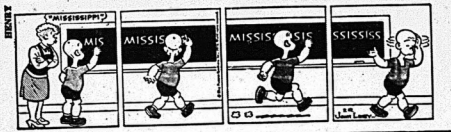
Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 21): Diligent handling of routines, continuing projects, brings exceptionally good results. Nothing can be safely rushed.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Nothing is going to be easy or simple. Start early and stay with the main thread of the day's business and those already involved.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get-rich-quick ideas float freely —see that you aren't taken in. Be firm and persistent in dealing with younger people.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your more fluent personal energy lacks a convenient or satisfying outlet, at least during early hours.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be held and to the point if you must declare yourself, or present any argument. Your surprise is not shared by others.



Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Events move rapidly, perhaps with deceptive smoothness. Expect some discrepancy between what is promised and what is likely.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Small talk gets to be a medium of expressing diverse attitudes. Serious talk is almost certain to drift into argument.

Injections Now Stop Hay Fever

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Why talk about hay fever now if mid-August is the time when it starts to bother folks? Because you can do some thing about hay fever now that you can't do when the ragweed and grass pollen season approaches.

Desensitization treatment for hay fever (and other pollen) is usually worth a try, may not be perfect, but it builds up a partial tolerance to the pollen or other allergens.

There isn't any quick way to do it. It is a process of giving small but gradually increased injections of extracts of the pollen or whatever else bothers you.

Trying to do this when the hay fever season has begun, or is about to begin, is seldom successful. You no longer have time to build up the tolerance you need.

So that's why I'm reminding readers that if they want to get through the hay fever season more comfortably, now is the time to start treatment with an allergist or your personal physician.

This is called "pre-seasonal desensitization." If started later, it may mean more frequent injections to accomplish results. But if the injection program is started well ahead of the pollen season, a year-round program can be used. This means that an appropriate dose of the extract may be given at less frequent intervals, yet the desensitizing effect is maintained. Under such a plan, injections may be once a month rather than two or three times a week as is necessary for hurry-up results.

True, some cost is involved in such treatment, but there is an economic factor to be considered if you don't have it—lost time from work, not to mention the misery of sneezing, the wet, plugged nose, the teary eyes.

One word of caution: while desensitization can do a great deal to make you more comfortable, it does not mean that you really work. It helped basically. You will be able to stand more pollen with less discomfort than before, but it does not mean you can expose yourself to large amounts of pollen without suffering the consequences. Don't think you can tramp through fields of autumn ragweed with impunity. Be thankful for the protection you can get, but don't abuse it. Don't tempt fate.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A friend believes hitting a person lightly in the bath water for relief of arthritis and rheumatic pains, sore back, etc. Is that okay to use, or can it be harmful if used too often?—H.R.

No harm. But the value probably rests just in the heat of the water and not the epsom salts. Indeed, friend probably would get just as much good from plain bath water of the same temperature.

Heat, whether moist or dry, in well-proved means of easing arthritic pain and relaxing the muscles that become tense from the pain. It's the heat that helps, whether from water packs, paraffin baths, or climate. Of course, heat isn't the whole story. Medications are necessary in a good many cases.

Liberals Dance to NDP Tune

TORONTO (CP) — Federal Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and Ontario Premier William Davis attacked the federal government's record on unemployment during the Ontario Progressive Conservative party's three-day convention which ended here Sunday.

In his keynote speech Saturday night, Mr. Davis said Ontario was the only province in Canada to reduce unemployment last year, and that the provincial rate will drop again this year.

Besides attacking unemployment, in a luncheon speech at the closing session Sunday, Mr. Stanfield said that Parliament has become a daily spectacle of the Liberal monkey dancing to the tune of the organ-grinder of the New Democratic Party.

As delegates cheered, Mr. Stanfield said it was better to vote the minority Liberal government out of office than to "nag, harass and intimidate an already weak and timid government."

In his Sunday speech, Mr. Stanfield said he expected the federal budget next week would contain "substantial reductions in personal income tax and significant increases in payments to old-age pensioners and others."

"There may also be some kind of final repentance to the government's long and stubborn refusal to face the challenge to Canadian economic and cultural independence," he said.

The Opposition leader said Ontario has shown through leadership that high national unemployment is not necessary.

Ontario's initiative "to improve the circumstance of its people and the conditions of its economy," was the sole reason why unemployment was down in the province, Mr. Stanfield said.

"It proves that the economy, like the Canadian people, will respond to intelligent leadership and direction," but Ottawa's Liberal government had deliberately created economic growth and expanded the rate of unemployment, said the Conservative leader.

Mr. Davis said Saturday that while Canada's jobless level had remained constant in the last two years, Ontario experienced a decline in 1972 to 4.4 per cent from 5.2 per cent in 1971. He predicted levels will continue to drop in 1973.

Man Charged

NAKINA, Ont. (CP) — A 45-year-old Winnipeg man has been charged with public mischief in connection with a bomb hoax aboard a CNR passenger train Friday night at Nakina, about 150 miles northeast of Thunder Bay.

Provincial police identified the man as Roland Hayes. He was to appear in court today.

Bail Registry

In an interview published Saturday, he expressed belief that a major problem in operation the liberalized Bail Reform Act is that police and courts cannot get enough information on people who are already on bail when they are arrested.

Sabotage

TORONTO (CP) — The strike by elevator constructors came home to residents of 20 apartment buildings here after six elevators were sabotaged Friday.

Residents now must climb as many as 36 flights of stairs and Barry Lyon, vice-president of marketing for Markborough Properties Ltd., owner of the buildings, said it is uncertain when the elevators can be fixed. The men who fix them have been on strike for five months.

Killed by Cable

OTTAWA (CP) — In Ottawa woman, searching for the body of her brother who drowned in an unretrievable accident a week, was killed herself in a freak — like mishap Saturday.

Joan Wilkinson, 26, died instantly when she ran into a steel cable stretched across the Jock River south of Ottawa. The incident occurred less than a quarter of a mile from the spot where her brother, Kenneth Lewis, 22, drowned Wednesday when his snowmobile plunged into a stretch of open water.

Mrs. Wilkinson had been checking holes cut by police in an attempt to locate her brother's body.

ALAN MacEACHEN

Budget Defeat Means Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — The government would quit and be entitled to call an election if it were defeated in Parliament over the Feb. 19 federal budget, Liberal House Leader Allan MacEachen says.

Interviewed Friday for the CTV television network's Sunday program Question Period, Mr. MacEachen said he felt the minority government had received enough expressions of confidence in the Commons since the session began Jan. 4 to be entitled to a dissolution.

Power would not likely be transferred to the Conservative party, which has 107 seats to the Liberals 109, without a general election won by the Conservative party.

West Neglected

TORONTO (CP) — The Liberal party's poor showing in Western Canada was the result of the failure of Liberals in Ottawa to prove they want to be the government of all of Canada, Prime Minister Trudeau said Sunday.

In an interview on CBC's Weekend television program, Mr. Trudeau said:

"I think we haven't applied ourselves in the West as we have applied ourselves over the past two years in Quebec, to prove to the people of Quebec that the government in Ottawa is really their government."

Suspect Held

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Police said Sunday one man has been arrested and a warrant is out for a second man in last Monday's gunfunon-ridden bank robbery attempt here.

Claude Vercure, 21, a fourth-year student at McGill University, was arrested in Montreal Saturday and returned here by police said. A spokesman said the man had been questioned by police last Monday night and released at that time.

Mercure, whose home is in Cornwall, was charged with attempting to rob a Bank of Montreal branch here with an offensive weapon.

He is charged with armed robbery of bank manager Robert Evans and of Robert Robertson, the assistant manager, and the theft of a car and clothing from Emile Burton, a Cornwall resident.

The same offences were listed on the warrant issued for Donald Wayne Wolfe, 23, of Exeter, Ont.

12 Executed

KAMPALA (AP) — Firing squads executed 12 Ugandans before the people of their home districts Saturday, revealing what a military spokesman called "a lesson in the dangers of guerrilla activity" in Uganda.

The 12 were sentenced last week by a military tribunal.

SST Danger

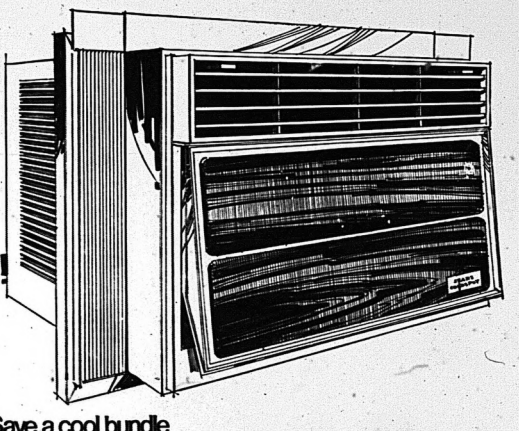
WASHINGTON (AP) — The launching of large fleets of supersonic transport (SST) airliners might kill 200 Americans a year and give 1,000 skin cancer, a special panel of the National Academy of Sciences said Sunday.

The report, released by the academy's environmental studies board, said the exhausts of large numbers of SSTs might inevitably destroy the earth's protective shield of ozone gas and permit increased ultraviolet radiation to bombard the earth's surface.

Overexposure to ultraviolet rays from the sun can cause skin cancer, particularly among the white males, the panel noted.

Wives Organize

TORONTO (CP) — About 1,000 members of Toronto policemen met Sunday to pressure legislators into tougher laws concerning capital punishment, gun control, bail, parole and two-man police cars.



The action, warmed by the recent shooting deaths of Constables James Lothian and Lorne Maitland Fernwell Canada's first organization for policemen's wives and will act on behalf of their husbands who are forbidden to engage in politics.

Alaska To Ask Pipe Review

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Alaska will ask the United States Supreme Court to review a lower-court ruling that has blocked construction of the trans-Alaskan oil pipeline, Gov. William Egan says.

The state also will ask the Interior department to shift to Alaska control of the 789-mile pipeline corridor from the Arctic North Slope to the southern port of Valdez, Egan said Monday.

Meanwhile, Alaska Senators Ted Stevens and Mike Gravel said they plan to introduce legislation to permit construction of the line.

The lower court ruled that the proposed 150-foot right of way for the line violated the Mineral Leasing Act of 1920. Under the act, rights of way must be no wider than 50 feet.

A spokesman for Gravel said the senator is considering three legislative approaches to undo the bonds holding down construction of the line to pipe crude oil from the new fields of the North Slope.

One would be to amend the 1920 law. The second would be to authorize a specific exception for Alyeska, a consortium of oil firms. The third would give the interior secretary authority to grant a wide right of way.

Egan said he, state Attorney-General John Havelock and Charles Herbert, Alaska's natural resources commissioner, will go to Washington to meet interior department and congressional leaders and try to plan a way to get clearance for the line.

Egan said the state's appeal to the Supreme Court will concentrate on refusal by the lower court to rule on environmental issues in the case.

The court split 4 to 3 in declining to rule on policy questions brought up by three national environmental groups. More than two years ago, the groups started the case by obtaining a district court injunction against construction. It was based on the national Environmental Policy Act.

The circuit court said that the environmental questions were not "ripe" for determination because the court blocked construction on the basis of the Minerals Leasing Act.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A disturbance travelling from Kansas to extreme northwestern Ontario will control a slow progression beyond the central Great Lakes today and Wednesday. Increasing cloud followed by occasional snow is expected to reach southwestern Ontario early tonight and will cover all of eastern Wednesday. With temperatures near the freezing mark overland the lower Great Lakes Wednesday, the precipitation will be wet snow or drizzle and accumulations are expected to be light.

And It's Not Even Spring

Lambs are a perennial symbol of spring — but they come in winter arrivals. He prefers the traditional springtime setting.

Clint Brown gazed this mile from the sheep pen an airing on his Point Anne-area farm yesterday. The lamb was born in mid-January, the earliest arrival for a lamb for this farmer in a life-long job of sheep-raising, and one of three so far this winter to arrive unexpectedly, since Clint's breeding practices doesn't aim for winter arrivals. He prefers the traditional springtime setting.

Mailmen Voting On Pact

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal workers will decide today and Wednesday whether to endorse or reject a tentative contract settlement worked out three weeks ago between union and government negotiators.

As voting began the 28,000 members of the Council of Postal Unions were weighing statements by their leaders for and against the proposals.

Results of the vote are expected Thursday or Friday.

Acceptance of the tentative agreement will mean an end to threats of a legal nationwide postal strike until 1975. Contract talks began a year ago and the last working agreement expired in March.

James McCall, a co-chairman of the council, said Monday he was hoping for a heavy turnout by the postal workers.

Our Dollar Floats

U.S. Devaluation May Aid Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie says that if, as expected, the Canadian dollar retains rough parity with the devalued U.S. dollar, sales to the United States will not be damaged and exporters to other countries will face a brighter future.

Following the announcement in Washington Monday night of the 10-per-cent devaluation, Finance Minister John Turner reaffirmed that the Canadian dollar will continue to float on international money markets as it has since May 31, 1970.

But he refused any immediate comment on the U.S. devaluation.

Mr. Gillespie said after the announcement that if the Canadian dollar stays linked at near-equality with the U.S. dollar, transactions between the two countries will not be directly affected, since goods flowing across the border will retain their relative values.

But in other countries, particularly in Europe and Japan, Canada should benefit in a lower-valued Canadian dollar makes Canadian exports less expensive and easier to sell, Mr. Gillespie said.

On the other hand, Canadian consumers could face higher prices for imports.

The trade minister said the devaluation, along with the increased value of the Japanese yen and the relative rise in European currencies, would help U.S. and Canadian exporters gain the access they have been seeking in the rich Japanese and European markets.

The shake-up would also help forge a new international monetary system, he said.

Mr. Turner said he received about 20-minutes advance warning of the Washington move by a telephone call from U.S. Treasury Secretary George Shultz, though he had also talked to Mr. Shultz earlier Monday.

"We'll be spending the night pondering the action before making any statement," he said.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis said he sees no serious threat to Canada from the devaluation, and predicted the Canadian dollar will remain about the same relationship to the U.S. dollar.

In New York, the Canadian dollar was up 9-32 at $1.00 9-32 in terms of U.S. currency at the close of trading Monday, and has hovered about par for weeks.

Mr. Lewis said he does not expect any further U.S. action at the moment but, given what he called the Nixon administration's trend to protectionism, the possibility could not be ruled out.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield was unavailable for comment. But Conservative finance critic Marcel Lambert called it fortuitious that the Canadian dollar is floating.

He said he would view with alarm any increase in the value of the Canadian dollar relative to the U.S. as a result of the devaluation.

After the last U.S. devaluation, in December, 1971, the Canadian dollar settled down to about par with the U.S. dollar.

U.S. Dollar Cut 10 Pct. As Japan's Yen Floats

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States announced Monday night a further 10-per-cent devaluation of the American dollar in a move to halt rampant international currency speculation.

In Ottawa, Finance Minister John Turner confirmed that the Canadian dollar will continue to float, or find its own value on foreign-exchange markets. Turner had been advised in advance of the U.S. decision. Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie predicted the Canadian dollar will follow the drop of the U.S. dollar in relation to other currencies.

The Japanese yen will join the list of floating currencies, it was announced, and is expected to undergo a change larger than the 10 per cent in relation to the American dollar. Floating currencies are expected to follow the American dollar downward in relation to the few major currencies still being pegged.

Treasury Secretary George Shultz, flanked by an array of Nixon administration officials, made the devaluation announcement at a hastily-summoned news conference in the White House building.

When the U.S. last devalued its currency in December, 1971—an effective devaluation of 8.57 per cent—the Canadian dollar followed more or less in step despite the publicly-expressed anticipation of U.S. officials that it would not fall as far.

The drop in the value of the U.S. currency is designed to improve the position of U.S. exportsin foreign markets and to make foreign imports to the U.S. more expensive, thus helping to correct a stubborn imbalance in American trade and payments with its major trading partners.

The devaluation will be achieved formally by raising the official price of gold to $42.22 from its current $38 an ounce. Although this will take an act of Congress, the dollar depreciation will take place immediately. The finance ministry said the Bank of Japan might intervene if the yen floats to an over-valued level.

World Currency Experts Ponder Results of Move

LONDON (AP) — Most foreign exchange markets remained closed today as governments around the world assessed the likely impact of the devaluation of the United States dollar.

The West German government welcomed Washington's action but said it would not revalue the mark upward.

The other currencies—now attracting holders of dollars, the Japanese yen, was freed to find its value according to the demands of the market. France float will last for some months.

The London foreign exchange market reopened today, but all other major currency markets were closed for the second day. Reopening of the Tokyo, Paris and Frankfurt exchanges was announced for Wednesday.

The British pound opened in London at $2.48 U.S., a jump of 10 cents—or just more than four per cent—in its value since Friday's closing. But, within an hour, it dropped to $2.45.

Finance ministers of the nine Common Market countries scheduled a meeting in Brussels this afternoon to discuss the international monetary situation.

One of the nine ministers, Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France, expressed approval of the devaluation, but the Paris financial and business community was fearful.

"The devaluation mustn't be taken as a sign of U.S. weakness," said one French banker, adding that he expected the United States to be tough from now onwards."

Generally, however, officials of foreign governments withheld comments while they studied the situation.

Trade Winds Planned

Nixon Wants U.S. To Get Fair Shake

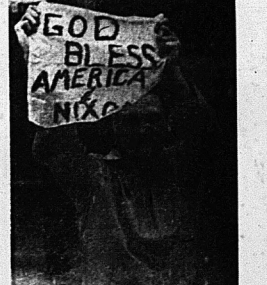
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said today he will seek trade legislation to lower as well as increase the barriers "to get a fairer" shake for America abroad.

In conversation about 12 hours after the United States devalued the dollar by 10 per cent, Nixon said the tough trade legislation is needed to "get other nations away from their discriminatory policies."

"Devaluation of the dollar . . . is at best only a temporary solution," he said of the dollar, the president said.

He added that "trade legislation must follow."

Nixon's remarks came as photographers and reporters were ushered into his office to record the start of a meeting between Nixon and Treasury Secretary George Shultz.



The president, in his conversation with Shultz, said that "for a great majority of the American people, the 10-per-cent devaluation "does not affect the value of their dollar."

Then, talking to Shultz but with phrases obviously intended for reporters to hear, the president turned to trade legislation.

He gave no specifics on the legislative proposals but said he was "not talking about another round of lowering barriers."

"We must go up as well as down," he said, because that is "the only way to get a fair shake for American abroad."

"Only by being able to go up" in some trade categories "will we be able to get others to come down," he said.

His Sentiments

A prisoner of war from Hanoi holds up a hand-made sign immediately after he stepped off the C-141 which brought him from North Vietnam to Clark Air Base in the Philippines Monday.

American PoWs Enjoy First Day of Freedom

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — The newly-released United States prisoners of war were signing valentines today, swapping war stories and enjoying hot showers and U.S. food as officials worked to prepare them for a quick trip home.

The 142 men who arrived here Monday following their release in Hanoi and the jungles of South Vietnam woke just after dawn to begin their first full day of freedom.

The day was filled with medical checks, administrative processing, calls home and mesmerizing for new uniforms to get ready for a flight, possibly Thursday or Friday, to Travis Air Force Base in California.

Medical officers at Clark's 536-bed hospital where the men were being processed said the returnees were in high spirits and in generally good physical condition.

Despite the routine of processing, the wards were described as scenes of exuberance with the men enjoying the heady feeling of being back among their own after years in confinement.

One source said a number of men were signing valentines for school children on this sprawling American base to thank them for the numerous colorful "Welcome Home" signs they put on the hospital walls.

Despite previous warnings the men would not want to talk about their prison experiences, medical officers said many stayed up until 4 a.m. exchanging tales about their confinement and the return of freedom.

Some of the men had not had a hot shower in nearly nine years, and doctors reported the men going back into the showers three or four times to lather away the prison grime.

A returnee said he knew of no U.S. PoWs wounded by the B-52 bombing raids on Hanoi last December but said one tremendous concussion knocked a big hunk of plaster from a ceiling and it hit one guy on the head.

There were also stories of harsh treatment at the hands of North Vietnamese captors.

One man was made to lie in a rice paddy for more than 24 hours with only his face sticking out of the water. Another had salt rubbed in burn wounds he suffered when he was shot down. Another said he knew of cases where men were hung by their hands.

Agnew Wants to Be Tough on Deserters

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew says the United States must be "particularly hard and tough" on deserters who fled to avoid service in Vietnam.

"It almost makes one ill to hear about how deserters say they fled from an immoral war," Agnew said about 200 persons at a Republican dinner here Monday night.

He said his feelings on amnesty were reaffirmed early Monday when he watched the first U.S. prisoners of war arrive at Clark Air Base in the Philippines.

"Those are the men who are the heroes of the war, not those who fled from their duty," Agnew said. "We must be particularly hard and tough in our treatment of deserters."

Ottawa Refuses Grant Request

City hall's bid for a federal Local Initiatives Program Grant involving four city departments has been turned down.

The submission, for a total $60,300, would have helped finance various project by the parks, recreation, police and public works departments.

At the same time, city treasurer Frank Morrell confirmed today, provincial work-incentive grants totalling almost $60,000 — and mainly involving the same departments — have been approved.

End result is that senior government funding of most of the various schemes planned has been halved. The projects will be fragmented, while others may not be undertaken.

The LIP submission requested funding for:

— Recreation department work on outdoor skating rinks and five program directors for community school programs.

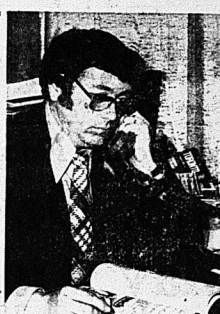
Parks projects for deadtree removal, tree - pruning, spring cleaning of greenbelts, painting and repairs to parks buildings.

— Public works hiring of draftsmen to complete a street inventory and various repairs to city hall.

Police department clerical assistance for projects including updating information systems, preparation of a new training material and a workload study.

The LIP application would have created an estimated 108 man weeks of work, Mr. Morrell said.

The Ontario government grants, totalling $67,071, approved under the provincial-municipal incentive program include these programs, said Mr. Morrell:



A parks improvement program; police department clerical assistance; recreation-access improvements and clerical help in the city's treasury, clerk's department and legal departments.

The LIP turndown followed an earlier unsuccessful bid to have a museum addition to the downtown Belleville - Corby Public Library, also quality for a federal grant in December, Mr. Morrell noted.

The expansion project, estimated to cost $256,500 had just commenced when application for a $62,900 LIP grant was submitted, said Mr. Morrell.

However, he noted, the project already was under way and is being funded under a federal - provincial - municipal special development loan. Since the project already was under way — and being assisted from senior government LIP officials decided such a grant would not generate any extra employment.

Following this, application for grants in other Belleville city other projects was made, said the treasurer.

OMB Rules on Development

The Ontario Municipal Board has allowed an appeal from a decision on the Sidney Street development.

Evidence indicated there were no problems with regard to septic tanks or well water.

The OMB agreed with the appellant's argument that the severance does result in "infilling" being the last portion of the H.S.R. Plan and for that reason the decision of the committee of adjustment was confirmed.

In a third special against a Sidney committee of adjustment decision denying severance for a lot owned by Roger Drake, on concession II near Wallbridge - Loyalist Road to the east side of the committee decision.

Mr. Drake applied for consent to sever a lot with 85-foot frontage leaving him with a lot having the same frontage and slightly greater depth.

The appellant obtained a building permit since the resulting two lots are of sufficient area and has all but completed a second home on the property.

The Board allowed Mr. Drake's appeal and set aside the committee of adjustment decision denying severance.

Possession Brings Jail

COBOURG (Staff) — Two Belleville men convicted of possession of 28 pounds of marihuana for the purpose of trafficking were handed prison sentences in provincial court here Monday.

David Christopher will serve 12 months and David Brumwell six months. Christopher was also given an additional six-month indeterminate sentence, and Brummel three months indeterminate.

The pair was arrested last October along with Steve Watson and William Dufour of Belleville while they were driving to Toronto.

A jury charge was laid against the four after police discovered 28 pounds of locally grown marijuana in the car.

It was later discovered that Watson had an additional 28 pounds in his Highway 2 home. He pleaded guilty last month to a charge of possession for the purpose of trafficking and was sentenced to 12 months plus 18 months indeterminate.

Dufour, who claimed he was a hitchhiker in the car, was acquitted Jan. 22.

Industrial Commissioner A Man of Many Secrets

By MIKE PATERSON
Staff Reporter

One of the hottest seats in Belleville is occupied by a man whose role in relation to local industry and development is almost paternal.

Fred BDEMIS, Belleville Industrial Commissioner, advises and encourages industrialists, buys them lunch and provides an information service. He strives to attract developers to Belleville and serves those already established.

"I've had calls at 10 and 11 at night Saturday and Sunday," he said. "I'm on call 24 hours a day — it's a demand situation."

Always on the alert for companies that may be looking for new industrial sites, Mr. Bemis draws his leads from information provided by the international banking and industrial development departments of banks, federal and provincial governments, railroads and even interested citizens. "Other companies come directly to me because of their own marketing studies or through contacts working on their behalf," he said.

Secrecy is essential when it comes to dealings with a company that is considering a move to Belleville. The first comment figure of the city often starts in Mr. Bemis' office. Negotiations for tight - lipped secrecy. Sometimes even his wife isn't told. A company's identity until arrangements are nearly complete.

Industrial Commission vice-chairman Hank Aukes said at Thursday night's annual commission meeting that any out - of - province company is often scared its own property will be expropriated if it's known it's looking at Belleville.

The appellant obtained a building permit since the resulting two lots are of sufficient area and has all but completed a second home on the property.

The Board allowed Mr. Drake's appeal and set aside the committee of adjustment decision denying severance.

Mr. Bemis begins rough map layouts of the property involved and examines to see if all the needs of the proposed industry can be met. If necessary it will make applications to the provincial government, and I try to assist the firm's people in meeting other requirements in the city who could help by explaining their reactions to Belleville."

Not all interested companies are successful. "I've had inquiries from companies that would have employed 500 or more employees," said Mr. Bemis, "but could considerably larger than we could initially handle.

"About the greatest employee demands we could handle now are probably around 200 to 250, based on Canada Manpower rolls and the people available for work — bearing in mind specific skill requirements," he said.

"Another company may seek 100 or 150 acres and may pose problems," he said. "I've have inquiries asking for up to 1,000 acres.

"We also have to make sure we have the necessary water and sewer capabilities that will be needed," said Mr. Bemis.

He said rail service could be provided in Belleville's northwest industrial park, an important factor for some industries.

"But by and large I've found similarities seems seem to be attracted to one another," he said. "Most of the companies we've moved to Belleville are light to medium manufacturers. Firms with a good blend of personnel and they are sure that fit well into our community.

The Ontario department of the environment had taken pollution controls and the city and certain policies that it tried to operate within while it operates in Mr. Bemis. "It's all being done to improve the esthetic appeal of industrial parks.

"Industrial parks can be attractive," he said.

"It's up to the community — and Belleville is keeping up esthetic standards in a well planned industrial park."

Mr. Bemis pointed out that a well - planned industrial park can be easier to service. "Also we're not top - heavy with any single type of industry — with a diversified industry anything affecting a close-down of it will not affect the whole community," he said. He estimates that less than one per cent of all the people he's talked to become genuine prospects, and said there was no way to pre-classify inquiries.

"Yes, at times it is frustrating — as a lot of work for no results," he said. "But when I do see results they're of such a scope as to be very satisfying."

To Mr. Bemis, however, "a job created is a job created."

"It doesn't matter if it's in an old or new industry," he said. So much of his time is spent behind closed doors with information about potential developers and city government programs.

We also offer a research facility to developers so if an individual firm will qualify for a particular government program or not, and provide general information about industry. If a question is asked about its capabilities," said Mr. Bemis. "Most industries that consider Belleville are engineering and are able to direct inquiries to proper sources.

As well as making information available to developers, Mr. Bemis makes information available to Belleville residents about local industry. He compiles information and statistics for publication such as the Financial Post and for the city's information file. He also speaks at schools and supplies many students with theses with information.

Mr. Bemis has a strong belief in the need for controlled development. "I don't believe that anything for anyone's sake is the answer — but there is no way we can stop it," he said. "Once jobs aren't available people will move to find work.

When the manufacturer looking for industry finds them the plant will close down," he said.

"We need to attract industries consistent with our present environment — we don't want those that will create an imbalance in our community." Towards this end Mr. Bemis finds lists of information and promotional publications from industries that have already set up plants in Belleville. That, he believes, is the most straightforward way to make Belleville's potential known.

"But the key is people," he said. "We have to attract an industrial site — most of all it is people who are moving facilities, shopping areas and theatres."

Indoor Auctions Are Well Attended

The rural auction with tables set up on the farm lawn provides excitement in the summer months but indoor sales at Wellington community auction hall are now at the peak of popularity.

Bloomfield auctioneer John J. Ryan conducts these lively sales each weekend, selling new and used furniture, antiques, dishes and numerous other items.

Last Saturday's sale drew a capacity crowd that watched enthusiastically as an 1848 J. J. Pratt Ansonia organ sold for more than $300. A copper kettle, several crocks, wicker chairs and a pair of spring skates were among other antique items sold.

Buyers also stepped forward for newer furniture pieces such as a china cabinet, a coffee table and a chesterfield suite.

Auctions in Prince Edward have gained steadily in popularity in recent years and many antique dealers and enthusiasts scout the sales for bargains stored in drive sheds and barns.

Milk cans which once were a common sight at the farmer's roadside stand now are prized as novelty containers for milkweed and dried rushes and other decorative flowers.

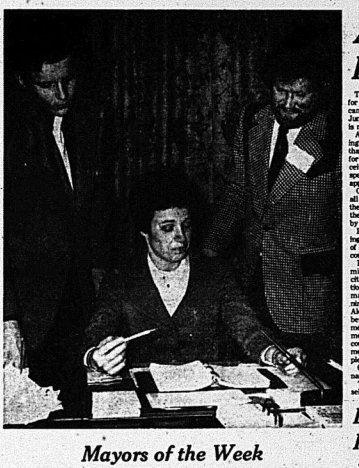
Similarly, horse collars tossed aside by the farmer with the advent of the machine age now have arrived as "in" frames for mirrors. Frequently the hames used on a work team are found around the stellar for added authenticity.

The bow "spreaders" used in team harness have become collectors' items as well as colorful glass rosettes found on old bridles.

Old clocks are a conversation piece in many rural sales since they can be placed attractively in modern decors. A gingerbread clock was sold in Wellington last Saturday as well as two mantle clocks.

Dishes create interest and admiration at most sales and antique collectors are swift to spot the "priceless" pieces offered for sale.

Crocks have gained new popularity and still well at most auctions. Five were sold by John Ryan at Saturday's sale, one of them a Picton crock.



Wellington's weekend auctions have allowed sale addicts to continue their enjoyment of bidding and buying despite winter weather.

Special Board Meeting Set

BLOOMFIELD — The next regular meeting of the Prince Edward County board of education on Monday, February 26, at 8 p.m. will be held in the lecture room of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute where members of the ERAS (Education Researches Association System) committee will talk with trustees.

The meeting, open to all interested persons will be held at the school to provide extra seating room for parents, students and audiences invited to listen to members of the ERAS committee.

Director of ERAS, D. S. Lawless of Toronto has stated that one of the particular objectives is a continuing discussion with pilot boards. The Prince Edward County board of education was selected in the ERAS pilot program.

Mayors of the Week

The Rotary Club of Belleville's mayors of the week program is at it again for four weeks, with two students each week accompanying Mayor Robin Jeffrey as she conducts city business. The two mayors for this week are Tim Sexsmith from Bayside Secondary School and Carl Isenberg from Loyalist College.

John Ryan: What Am I Bid?

Guidance Counsellors Said Urgently Needed

Guidance, the secondary school department responsible for directing students to the courses they will need to graduate and to be accepted to the post - secondary institutions of their choice, is a must.

But the problem is province-wide.

Two factors have changed the guidance picture in the last four years, said Hastings county director of education Eric Runacres, one is the credit system, which allows students wide choices of courses, and locks them into certain streams early in high school, about grade 10 or 11. The other is the vast change in the requirements of universities and community colleges — requirements that have altered drastically in recent years and are subject to being month to month, as the institutions try to lure more students through their doors.

With so many options available, students need individual and very personal advice on "what to take" in secondary schools. But not enough people are available to advise the students, and the experts can't keep up-to-date on the rapid changes.

"You're saying we can't do much about it," charged trustee Donald Williams, after he raised complaints about the guidance system in county secondary schools.

"When we went into the school the general feeling among students was that there was not sufficient emphasis on personnel. The students said the guidance teachers don't have all the information they should. But we're not doing anything about it."

Trustee Mrs. Miriam Graham said Mr. Williams was delicate about the subject.

"I'm not wide dissatisfaction," she claimed.

Mr. Runacres said that the number of guidance teachers has remained the same for the last four years, although the variations in courses had increased a hundred-fold.

"Guidance counsellors spend most of their time with students whose parents aren't talk to them, even kick them out," he said. "They are social counsellors."

The job is too big, he indicated, for the number of people employed for the work.

"When we talked to the schools this was a major problem," said Mr. Williams.

He asked for a full report on the cost of hiring more guidance teachers and on other methods of improving the departments.

Trustee James Clarke said he was not convinced more teachers were the solution.

"It's a qualitative problem," he said. "Some people don't have an affinity for it because they give ridiculous answers that get everybody upset."

Mr. Runacres said he would prepare a report.

Motion Defeated

A notice of motion tabled two weeks ago by Alderman Arthur Keegan calling for a full report on all departments issued in connection with the city's foreign exchange reserve fund has been turned down by city council.

Rejection of the motion was by a 9-1 vote with only Alderman Keegan voting in support.

The motion asked that the private bill to be presented to the Ontario Legislature asking for permission to borrow $550,000 in the reserve fund for other purposes be tabled until it was determined whether there was objection from citizens still paying for the local improvements financed by the sale of debentures in the United States.

Alderman Ron Clarke observed that the problem with the reserve fund exists because council made some fortunate investments under a favorable exchange rate.

"What would have happened if things had gone the other way and residents were asked to pay more?" he asked.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said the debentures in question had been sold in the United States at favorable interest rates and were payable in U.S. funds.

The reserve fund in question had been set up to meet the annual payments and not to meet principle and interest.

$50 Fine For Theft

A Bayside man pleaded guilty in provincial court on Monday to stealing a salt and pepper shaker from Tower Department Store two days before Christmas.

In a statement made to provincial police, David George Barr, 28, said the item was worth $0.99, was to be a Christmas present for his mother. He was fined $50.

Applications Roll in For City Manager's Job

The position of city manager for Belleville which will be vacant with the retirement in June of Lorne R. Reynolds, is not lacking for applications.

At Monday's council meeting, Mayor Robin Jeffrey said that more than 30 applications for the position have been received and asked whether a special committee should be appointed to deal with them.

Council, however, felt that all members should be in on the choice and it was agreed the applications be screened by the committee of the whole.

But Monday's council meeting still saw the appointment of a number of other special committees.

Included was a special committee of the chairman of the city parks board, the recreation - arena chairman, chairman of the subordinate planning advisory committee and Alderman Ben Corke as member at large on a committee to meet with the Belleville Yardmen organization to further consider the proposed yardmen's olympic sports complex.

Other special committees named were:

Trailer Park: Ald. Paul Russell, chairman Ald. S. Meeks, D. Lumbers, B. Phlip, H. Eddie.

Parking Enforcement: Ald. Jack Ireland, Ald. Joe Cox, Ald. Arthur Keegan.

Additional Accommodation: Ald. S. Meeks, chairman; Murray Aitkenen, Belleville D and town Association; B. Quincey, Chamber of Commerce; Doug Burley, Harbor Commission; Dick Bard, Yacht Club; Ted Fletcher, Investor's Cl ub; Ald. Arthur Keegan, Council Representative; Lee Jourard, member-at-large; Moira River Committee Authority representative to be appointed.

Additional Accommodation for Aged: Ald. E. A. Orr, Ald. Joe Cox.

Dropouts Increased

The number of dropouts from Hastings county secondary schools has increased this year.

The board of trustees does not know by how much, but it is concerned.

The concern has two facets.

The drop in attendance from September to December would affect the provincial grants, reducing the per pupil income to the board considerably, if very high.

And the drop is a "social commentary" on the state of education, James Clarke suggested.

The issue was raised by trustee Mrs. Miriam Graham, who said she had heard the dropout rate was up.

Yes, said director of education Eric Runacres. "It was not a problem in the past, but has been in the last year."

He promised the trustees a full report on the number of dropouts within two weeks. Such reports are prepared each year, but never released publicly. The report is used for board deliberations and for staff salary negotiations. Fewer students mean fewer teachers and less money from the provincial purse.

"We aren't trying to hide anything here," said Mr. Runacres. "We'll get the report next week."

Mrs. Graham said her query was based on parental comments she believed trustees should be aware of the situation, whatever its social significance.

Student Council Volunteers $1,500 For Cable System

BLOOMFIELD — The student council of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute has volunteered the $1,500 needed for equipment enabling the school to join the local cable television network.

Barry Mathie, president of the student council last night told Prince Edward school trustees that an audio visual course is available at the school and purposes could be broadcast on cable television using the equipment slated for purchase.

Board members were asked to sign insurance against libel in public project and the question of insurance for the equipment also was raised.

Director of education E. A. Short said the equipment could not be covered by the board's insurance unless it belonged to the school or had been loaned to the board.

Trustees approved the project in principle and it was suggested the student council could loan the equipment to the school to make insurance possible.

Board members were told the Prince Edward County Historical Society might provide ideas and information for television programs at the Allen Museum and James Clarke suggested.

The issue was raised by trustee Mrs. Miriam Graham, who said she had heard the dropout rate was up.

Yes, said director of education Eric Runacres. "It was not a problem in the past, but has been in the last year."

He promised the trustees a full report on the number of dropouts within two weeks. Such reports are prepared each year, but never released publicly. Jail Term For Assault

Convicted last December of assault, Joseph Glen Allison pleaded guilty in provincial court Monday to striking a Deseronto man in the face and hitting a police officer.

Judge J. L. Clendening sentenced Allison, 19, to six months in jail. He was also fined $100 under default after serving two months for the previous conviction.

Allison admitted that on New Year's Eve, he walked into the residence of a Deseronto woman, saying he heard noises and called him an obscene name. He then struck the man a blow on the nose and jaw.

The next day, Deseronto Police Chief Carl Beattie spotted Allison in the passenger seat of a passing car. He stopped the vehicle and presented an arrest warrant but Allison refused to co-operate.

When the officers finally got Allison out of the car, a struggle ensued during which Constable Norman Clark was punched. The officers had to force the man into their cruiser as far as possible to arrest, that he would not be arrested.

REAL ESTATE:
Who Sets the Prices of Houses?
Ed McKinney
J. E. McKinney
Realtors
Selling prices of homes are not set by Realtors or the owners. They are set by the market — the market law of supply and demand.
It is understandable, on the other hand, that a prospective buyer will meet with considerable emotional resistance to paying a price he considers too high for the worth of a property.
Yet, in most real estate situations it is the market that the buyer is right — if you place his valuations in the market of a few years ago, from what of today's market? That market may be drastically altered.
If a buyer does not realize this basic law of our economic system, he may refuse to accept the price realized at the present market until too late, when the property has been sold.
The process unfortunately repeats itself when buyers remember "what they used to sell for" as successive occasions in their lives, since the market has usually changed between those occasions.
Much is at stake in the purchase or sale of a home. The trained Realtor can help you avoid errors that can save you large mistakes and needless emotional wear and tear.

Something Lacking

The educational system in Ontario is claimed to be one of the best in the world. But it may be that on paper only. In practice it seems to be something else, to judge from the near-illiteracy and incompetence of not a few of the students emerging from our schools these days.

There is mounting concern for instance over the credit system in high schools which permits students to choose their subjects, often sidetracking the basics or "three R's" and such valuable disciplines as Latin and history and ultimately producing so-called graduates whose qualifications for the business and professional world are woefully lacking.

We note that parents — seven volunteers from each of the high school areas — are being invited by the Hastings board of education to a discussion on this theme at Centennial school on February 20. Some 45 to 50 parents will be present. In effect the ministry-sponsored gathering, and others being held around the province, will decide the future of education as between core or basic subjects — the three R's — concept and the credit system. The latter has been described as "cafetaria style" education, making it possible to graduate "Mickey Mouse" courses such as horticulture and floriculture and four years of playsed.

When Education Minister Thomas Wells was in Belleville recently he said employers would simply have to learn to examine the options taken by student applicants instead of relying on some graduate scroll. This is all very well. Employers want to get to the point and when it is found that applicants can scarcely read, write or spell correctly it is everybody's loss and misfortune.

There appears to be a need to get back to fundamentals. As it is, we have the impression that a great many kids are almost totally unprepared for the workaday world as we know it — and we are not including the post who have "turned on", and fled the economic system for commune-style or drug-oriented lifestyles. It is time the authorities, from the Government on down, emerged from their dream world, to espouse reality once again and give the young people what they really need to function effectively — and reasonably happily — in our society. By all means teach them a variety of contemporary subjects — but make the basic ones paramount.

No Way!

There may be nothing so sure as death and taxes, but where the latter are concerned we would object strenuously to any intrusion of a compulsory tax into an area of voluntary giving.

We refer to the United Appeal and to appeal chairman George Zegouras' suggestion that "taxation is the only way to have everyone pay their fair share."

Mr. Zegouras was referring to the fact that although the drive has raised six per cent more than the previous year, it ended up some $14,000 short of the $135,000 target.

We repeat, this is a voluntary campaign and any suggestion that a tax be levied is indefensible, not to say unworkable since those who give are not all Belleville municipal residents.

Sports Complex Proposed

The Belleville Yardmen's Benefit Fund committment of a million dollars toward an Olympics-class sports complex for trial and training in connection with the 1976 Olympics in Montreal, is an exciting prospect. And all the more so since the facilities would subsequently be available for community use.

The city could do with such a facility which we understand would include a swimming pool. It would be all the more valuable since by then the city's population will have grown considerably. It would be an investment in the health and fitness of this and future generations of Bellevillians.

Tax Preparation Aid To Cost More Into The Bargain

The New Tax Form Is "Not" Easier Than It Looks

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Parliamentarians are having a little fun kidding about those new income tax forms.

Perhaps they can afford to laugh a bit because, while they do have to fill out those forms, they do not feel the full bite of the tax, enjoying as only politicians are privileged to do, that special exemption off the top of their income.

It certainly must help their sense of humor — even about income tax — when they know that the upper $8,000 of their annual $26,000 parliamentary pay is non-accountable expense money and so, free and clear of the Revenue Department.

But it is doubtful that anyone other than our elected representatives — and this tax exemption privilege is enjoyed at all government levels, federal, provincial and municipal — can get a chuckle out of those new forms.

The parliamentary kidding revolves around the Revenue Department's current publicity gimmick for the forms — the more than slightly ridiculous attempt to sugar-coat the pill with that maddeningly silly "It's easier than it looks."

Of course, nobody believes it. Especially the accountants, lawyers and other experts who are creating a whole new industry out of preparing tax returns.

And some of the parliamentarians who are not amused by the patently false "It's easier than it looks" claim, and there are a few who don't think it is funny.

Like Wallace Nesbitt, longtime Conservative MP for the Western Ontario riding of Oxford.

"The Revenue Department, with its 'easier than it looks,' is in the same dream-world as the Prime Minister's office was during the election with its 'the land is strong'.

"Both are drivel, sheer insulting nonsense, and every one knows it."

Another MP who is not laughing is Alf Hales, veteran Western Ontario Conservative MP for Wellington, who suggests a better and more truthful slogan for the Revenue Department in its publicity campaign might have been "You'll never know you had it."

The income, that is, after the tax collector has performed Ottawa's annual income extraction.

Outspoken Liberal MP Ralph Stewart, of Northern Ontario's riding of Cochrane, suggests the Revenue Department might better have advised its clients, like the lady faced with unwelcome love-making, "relax, you might even enjoy it".

But all the wise - cracking aside, the dismal thing about the Revenue Department's misplaced sense of humor is that it is going to cost Canadians two and three times as much to have their tax forms professionally prepared as it did last year.

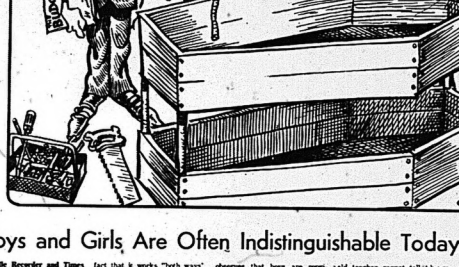
And don't think that this year you will not have to get professional assistance.

For while, to the Revenue Department which drafted it, the form may be "easier than it looks," no commercial tax authority agrees.

Mr. Little says accountants' charges are going to double and triple because it now takes two and three times longer to prepare the form.

He reveals that his firm, Clarkson, Gordon and Company, a national well-known enterprise, already has spent more than $150,000 plus 40,000 working hours preparing for changes resulting from 'reform' in income taxes and the forms.

Somebody is going to have to pay for that — and it has to be the poor, befuddled taxpayer who, discovering that it definitely is not "easier than it looks" is going to have to get professional help.



The Revenue Department, again trying to sugar-coat the pill, says call them on the phone, "It is free".

Free it certainly is not — for those calls will all add up to the cost of collecting the tax which will inflate the department's operation costs and indirectly add to the always increasing expense of government and the tax bill itself.

L. A. Eddy of Thorne Gunn and Company has warned the Ottawa Chartered Accountants Association that the tax reform will fees double and triple for tax return preparation, but adding insult to injury "generally will not be deductible".

Then, saying it better than anyone else, he has a word of professional advice for the Revenue Department:

"No man should have to pay a tax which he cannot reasonably be expected to understand."

Boys and Girls Are Often Indistinguishable Today

Brockville Recorder and Times

Returning to the classroom as a supply teacher after a retirement of a few years, a local school teacher was reported as saying she encountered a new difficulty with students, something that would not have been a problem five or six years ago. She had trouble telling the boys from the girls because of their hair, dress and manner.

This brought to mind and in question, a theory that appeared in a recent edition of the Ladies Home Journal about "sexism" in the schools and the fact that it works "both ways".

It may have been true a few years ago that teacher expectations, peer group pressures and textbooks extolling male achievements forced girls into "inferior" feminine roles they would not otherwise have chosen. It wasn't all that rosy for boys either.

"One can imagine how a boy feels about himself, the school teacher and the school he writes in the Journal, "when he observes that boys are reprimanded nine times as frequently as girls.

"If he is at all observant, he must come to the conclusion that while the school highly approves of behavior that comes naturally to girls, it rejects what comes equally naturally to boys. Thus many boys are made academic failures by the very institution that should teach academics to most."

This is still probably true in many schools but many are more difficult to prove today with the boys and girls in some schools looking so much alike that an old teacher cannot tell them apart. Under the circumstances, with girls looking like boys and boys looking like girls, nothing much will change except the application of Dr. Bettelheim's theory. The girls will be suffering from the syndrome usually identified with the boys and the boys — well, are they going to start feeling "inferior"? Certainly they're going to have it pretty tough practising to be a male chauvinist. And will it mean that we'll see more girls failing?

Concrete evidence of the successful efforts of the Belleville Industrial Commission to bring new industry to Belleville is shown today as construction has already started on the new building of Dorsett Brothers in the northeast section of the city.

The English firm decided to settle here after several conferences with the commission covering a period of many months.

February 14th is New Year's Day — that is, if you are of the Chinese race. The day introduces the year 4658 for the Chinese and will usher in the "Year of the Snake". Last year was the "Year of the Dragon" and is acclaimed by Chinese to have left much unhappiness in its wake. In the larger centres the Chinese will celebrate with the "Dance of the Dragon", but in Belleville and other smaller centres New Year's Day will pass quietly with private dinners and celebrations.

Potter Complains Of Grants

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — The federal government should support Ontario's health-care system of de-emphasizing hospital treatment in favor of cheaper home and health-centre care, Dr. Richard Potter, provincial minister of health, said Monday.

In a speech delivered for Dr. Potter, Fenton Miller, his parliamentary assistant, said a hospital-oriented society was being encouraged by the fact federal grants for health care were limited to hospital care and the services of doctors in nursing homes or their own homes.

Dr. Potter said Ottawa is still offering "the same old cup of tea with a few more grains of sugar in it."

"The province has been encouraging and financing the use of less-expensive alternatives to hospitals, he said, and the federal government should accept Ontario's system "as a base for any future cost-sharing."

Buffalo Herd

ELGIN, Ont. - (CP) — Cpl. Dennis Dehler is looking on a herd of 13 buffalo roam on his 43-acre ranch near here.

"It's a lot easier to care for buffalo," he said. "With cattle too much depends on the conditions of the market."

Cpl. Dehler hopes to establish markets for steaks, hamburgers and roasts at about $2.50 a pound.

"I would like to have 15 to 20 producing females before I market the animals" said the corporal, stationed at Canadian Forces Base Kingston, about 35 miles southwest of here.

Judge Critical

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ontario provincial court judge Monday criticized federal prison authorities for the way they are handling the lenient-parole program.

The statement comes two days after Justice Minister Otto Lang accused "a small minority" of Ontario and other provincial court judges of trying to start political careers by criticizing government policy.

Judge Thomas Swabey made the comment before sentencing Leslie Sparrow, 26, to five years imprisonment for robbing an Ottawa Brewer's Retail outlet on Oct. 10, while unlawfully at large. He had failed to return to the Joyceville minimum security institution from a one-day unescorted leave granted Sept. 29.

Noting that Sparrow had received a five-year sentence for armed robbery in 1970, committed while on parole for a 1964 conviction, Judge Swabey said: "In my view, to allow this man out unescorted was an irresponsible action."

In Hospital

RICHMOND, B.C. (CP) — Christopher Kenneth Neilsen, 28, charged with hijacking a Pacific Western Airlines plane last month, has been committed to hospital by British Columbia government order-in-council.

Neilsen had been remanded to Monday in Richmond court for a 30-day psychiatric examination.

French Use

MONTREAL (CP) — Le Devoir says the report of the Gendron Commission on the status of the French language records unanimously the Quebec government presides French as the official and working language of the province.

The newspaper says the report also recommends that both French and English be considered as the "national languages" of Quebec.

But the government should proceed without delay to make French the working language of the provinces as well as the principal language of communications, especially for major companies dealing with the public.

Child Dies

TORONTO (CP) — A young Toronto couple said Monday their six-month-old baby died at home last week 17 hours after being refused admittance to the hospital for Sick Children.

The child, Paul Masterakos, son of George Masterakos, a 23-year-old construction laborer, and his wife, Bessie, 18, died about 2 p.m. Wednesday after the parents were about to rush him to another hospital.

The couple said they wanted an inquiry into the circumstances "to make sure it doesn't happen to someone else."

Hospital authorities declined to name the doctors involved in the decision but one said two doctors agreed the child was not ill.

Lang and Hamilton Stage Torrid Duel

OTTAWA (CP) — When "the crown prince of Saskatchewan" stood Monday to face the former wheat king there wasn't a red-faced man in the Commons who wasn't suddenly a westerner.

The showdown between Otto Lang, minister responsible for the wheat boards, and Alvin Hamilton (PC—Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain), a former Conservative agriculture minister, flared unexpectedly from a routine debate on a bill to give the Trudeau government an extra $1.29 billion in spending money.

Both men represent Saskatchewan ridings.

The items in the bill were discussed at length last week. Most western MPs remained silent through the debate on funds for winter works and other programs.

The Monday argument turned on an amount set aside for assistance to Peace River, Alta., farmers who lost crops under early snows.

Within a short while the entire House was shouting itself hoarse over barley and wheat as Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Lang tossed barbs across the Commons floor.

Mr. Hamilton, pounding his desk so hard he winced, shouted: "This government has hit the farmer so hard it'll take years to recover."

A chorus of hoots greeted him from the Liberal benches. The Trudeau government policy of grain quotas has "betrayed the farmer and the hungry people of the world," Mr. Hamilton called above the roar filling the House.

Liberal fists thumped..in unison on wooden desks as Mr. Lang rose. "Mr. Hamilton is the visionary in the Tory party," he said, looking around at his colleagues.

"He is the one who after a while has happened can see it clearly."

When the laughter subsided Mr. Lang launched into a recitation of Trudeau government wheat and barley sales.

"This year's a new record, record prices," he called as his colleagues thumped support.

"I don't care how many bushels you sell there's no money in the farmer's pocket," Mr. Hamilton shouted back.

"The tumult of pounding fists and roars of calls from both sides of the House continued as Mr. Hamilton sought to regain attention, straining to be heard above the noise.

"Be Liberals, he said, will have to seek their next leader outside Quebec and Ontario.

"When the crown prince of Saskatchewan moves in, God help the Liberal party," he called, provoking a fresh wave of roars.

Prisoners Get Free Rides Home

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Monday he has no definite information on when two Canadian prisoners will be released by North Vietnam "but we know they are safe and are said to be released.

He assured John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) that their transportation will be provided at no cost to them.

Mr. Diefenbaker quoted from a letter he said was written by the father of one of the prisoners—Lloyd Lee Cassidy of Burnaby, B.C.—in which he said the external affairs department told him Mr. Sharp had "given orders to the Phillipines by the U.S. and he would have to pay his way home from there."

Mr. Sharp said this letter may have been written before he gave instructions that the transportation costs for Mr. Cassidy and Marc Cayer of St. Raymond, Que., should be borne by the taxpayers.

Mr. Diefenbaker had sought assurance that Mr. Sharp did not support the "niggardly attitude" of his department.

Premier Won't See Dump Foes

HARRISTON, Ont. (CP) — A citizens' committee opposing a proposed Metropolitan Toronto garbage dump near this community 90 miles northwest of Toronto says it has been refused a meeting with Premier William Davis.

Barbara McMurray, office manager for the committee, said the premier's office has refused to give the group an interview until the garbage dump licence application has been before the environmental hearing board.

Miss McMurray said Mr. Davis' refusal to meet with the citizens' group is unfair because it is the premier who will have the final say whether there is a garbage dump near their community.

Last December it became known that Metro was negotiating with CP that it haul 400,000 tons of garbage to a site outside Toronto. A site near Harriston was one of the locations considered.

So far, no application has been made for a licence for a dump in the township.

Leg Traps Defended

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — The president of the Ontario's Trappers' Association said Monday "there aren't enough police in the entire province" to enforce a ban on animal leg traps.

Lloyd Cook of Barrie, in North Bay for the association's annual meeting during the weekend, said:

"There's about half a million snares and traps set each season by trappers in Ontario."

About 30 per cent of the traps are Victor leghold traps and "no outlaw these traps completely would be bad legislation.

"No one's come up with an alternative trap that will ensure a mink kill."

He said a recently circulated petition in the Toronto area calling for a ban on leghold traps being circulated fraudulently.

"The facts are just not being presented to the people," he said. "The people who asked to sign the petition are being told that it's to protect cats and dogs in the Toronto area."

Cattle Fed DES Imported

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — If the ban in Canada on the use of the chemical diethylstilbestrol (DES) is not lifted and if the United States continues to limit its use, competition on the beef market will become critical, Tom Jackson, president of the Ontario Beef Improvement Associations, said Monday.

Mr. Jackson, a beef breeder and producer from the Brantford area, made the comment as a panel discussion on the first day of the two-day agricultural week.

DES is used to accelerate growth in cattle. It was banned in Canada this year because of suspected harmful effects on humans eating the beef.

U.S. beef containing DES is still being imported and sold in Canada, Mr. Jackson said.

"They're taking unfair advantage of us since we are not allowed to use it," he said.

Chamber of Commerce Asks Price Check Without Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — Keep an eye on prices but don't control them yet, Ugthen up unemployment insurance and restore the work ethic, create more jobs and ensure that economic progress is spread across every region of the country.

And do it with reduced taxes and lower government expenditures.

The plaisterful of advice was given the government Monday by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in its annual submission to the federal cabinet.

En route to these major goals, the chamber also suggested:

—Sleeped up searches for and production of natural resources under government incentives; consultation with the United States on co-operation in use of energy resources; processing of more such resources in Canada before export; control by industry "as far as practical, and in conformity with the spirit of existing legislation, of any adverse effects on environmental conditions."

—Compulsory union membership should not be allowed as a condition of employment; trade unions should be made liable before the courts for their actions; strikes and lockouts endangering health and safety of the public should be illegal.

—In order to "ensure productive efficiency," new legislation should be enacted which would inhibit the introduction of technological changes that disrupt industry.

—Ottawa should, in co-operation with the provinces, develop a co-ordinated highway construction program to relieve interprovincial, national or international routes; federal funds should be made available for improving provincial highways and for ferry, bridge and tunnel crossings "of national importance."

—Encouragement of a Canadian merchant marine, although without "policies lessening competition or increasing water transportation costs for Canadian industry."

David Brade, a chamber officer who argued against any immediate price controls, admitted the suggestions were along the lines of "the best of all possible worlds."

Another suggestion in the brief presented by the chamber's president, A. John Ellis, was for the formation of a business advisory council for the cabinet, offering views of the business community on legislation while it was still in the thrashing-out stage.

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford said the tendency is for such groups to act as pressure groups. They appear to me that they wanted and left it up to the government to reconcile the rivalry of outlooks on the same issue that might be held by others.

But certainly the views of businessmen had to be reconciled somewhere along the way with the views of labor groups. He suggested that groups such as the Chamber of Commerce make a try at doing "some of the reconciling themselves."

The chamber reiterated a stand it took late last year, seeking to have all sickness and pregnancy benefits stripped from the unemployment insurance program, lengthening the period an employee has to work before becoming entitled to any benefits and reducing the number of weeks for which benefits would be paid.

Revised Figures

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics Canada has revised its figures on the number of persons employed in Canada in December to 8,-000,000 from 8,100,000.

Lewis Wooed

OTTAWA (CP) — Not a sound was heard in the Commons Monday as David Lewis told of how love came to him in his early teens.

But the assembled MPs cooed and purred when he told them he'd never until now experienced the "delights" of being wooed by two suitors at once.

"I'm having that experience now," he said. "I get a wire from the prime minister. A nod from the Opposition leader, and in both official languages."

When the roar subsided, Mr. Lewis reminded all potential suitors he has been married for 37 years. It was the most applauded statement of the afternoon.

Candidate

Mr. Carroll ran for the NDP in the 1971 provincial election, polling 29 per cent of total ballots cast.

The byelection was called to fill the seat vacated by Charles MacNaughton, who recently resigned while provincial treasurer after holding the seat since 1943.

TriStar Ready

MONTREAL (CP) — The TriStar 1 of Montreal L-101 TriStar jets ordered by Air Canada arrived Monday at Montreal International Airport after its veteran pilot called it a joyful flight from Palmdale, Calif.

The airline plans to use the TriStars on its scheduled runs between there are severe restrictions on the number of hours a TriStar can fly before an engine part is replaced. This is due to an engine fault for which a solution is being sought.

The aircraft is to be used on two-per runs to Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver, as well as smaller Canadian centres including Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Halifax and St. John's, N.Nfld.

Work Praised

TORONTO (CP) — Federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan has gained "a new degree of respect for agricultural scientists since taking over his portfolio.

"He's involved in one of solid achievement," he told a gathering of the Ontario Institute of Agrologists Monday.

At the same time, he told the agrologists they must continue to judge the value of agricultural research insofar as it benefited the farmer.

"Without a great making a valuable contribution, if your work does notin some way help the farmer, I would be just as happy to take away your salary and research funds and give the money directly to our farmers."

Mr. Whelan criticized research with making agriculture of it "a science of its own" most productive industry.

Given 5 Years

TORONTO (CP) — Richard Greenblatt, 19, who admitted striking his 14-month-old son on the head in 1971, was sentenced Monday to five years in penitentiary on a charge of manslaughter.

Patrick Ozkawa was struck Nov. 19, 1971, and admitted to hospital four days later. He died Nov. 23.

Greenblatt lived in Toronto apartment with Patrick's mother, Diane Ozkawa, 28.

Loyalist College Students Embark On Imaginative Toy-making Venture

By JOANNE MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

Toys are just toys?

In fact, as one of their projects, they've had to design or copy an existing toy that they feel would be suitable for a child. Some of the things they take into consideration are the color, durability and there's the question of whether it is multipurposed.

Students are expected to take them into situations with children and judge them on how appealing they are and what the child is able to do with it.

It's amazing what one can come up with, using materials found around the house, plus a little imagination.

There were puzzles using panelling and cardboard, beads made from mixture of bread and white glue, colored blocks that would help with a child's mathematical sense, and counting frames. The list goes on and on.

The ideal toy, according to Mrs. Betty Exelby, co-ordinator of the Early Childhood course and teacher, fosters creativity, imagination and involves the child.

She also feels that most parents don't realize the material they have in their home that could hold a potential fascination for their children. They should be encouraged to create with it and the end results will no doubt be better than toys bought and soon broken.

In fact, store bought toys, besides being expensive, often have the child sitting passively and becoming a product rather than a full participant in a pleasurable activity.

One of the "prop boxes" at Loyalist College is a large red cardboard fire engine that a child can sit in, feel and most important — experience. Experience is one of the biggest words for a child and home-made toys seem to afford a greater number of rewarding experiences.

Watching the children involved in the nursery program at Loyalist, and their fascination and curiosity directed towards the simplest things, one wonders what the purpose is in trying to buy the biggest and best.

Smiling Families Wait First Medical Treatment

They are seen by a team of young British volunteers from the Save the Children Fund who moved into the village of Rawdah, a few miles north of Sanaa, last October.

A few radio announcements and a lot of word-of-mouth recommendations have made their modest operation one of the most successful in the area, which is almost totally lacking in health or social services of any kind.

"We are treating 50 to 100 cases a day now, and the patients are coming from further and further afield," says Peter Boxhall, the team leader.

The work is handled by one young British doctor, Dr. John Rawlinson, and three British nurses.

They are assisted by four Yemeni nurses, and a fourth British nurse is expected to join them shortly.

Boxhall, 40, has no medical training, but everyone agrees that his energy, enthusiasm and first-stop

All-round talents as a "fixer" are responsible to a great extent for the team's quick success.

An ex-British Army major, he left the service only a few months ago and was looking for his first civilian job when he saw a Save the Children Fund advertisement in London Times. Within two weeks he was on his way to Yemen.

After negotiating a five-year contract with the Yemeni ministry of health, Boxhall set about making the best of the facilities which were put at his disposal in the squat, one-storey stone building with four rooms for a clinic and a rambling, beautiful but dilapidated house as staff living quarters.

He enlisted the help of the local military commander to clear the land and clean out the clinic building. "I talked to him as one soldier to another, so he sent me a squad of soldiers," Boxhall recalls.

The clinic opens from 8 a.m. to 1.30 p.m. six days a week. The team handles children up to the age of 14—although concentrating on the under-fives, and pregnant mothers. All treatment is free.

Dr. Rawlinson, who trained at Leeds University in London, says most of the illnesses are the product of malnutrition, bad hygiene and poor housing.

In his first report back to headquarters, Dr. Rawlinson commented: "We have a journey of a thousand miles to go, but at least we have taken the first step."

African Woman Labelled Can't Be Quoted

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Life has officially returned to normal for Mrs. Helen Joseph.

After 15 years she is again able to go to a party, take part in politics, join a labor union, find work anywhere she likes, take trips out-of-town and have unlimited visitors.

From one minute past midnight on Dec. 31, 1972, she was formally free of all but one restriction: she still is "named" as a communicator by the justice minister and cannot be quoted.

She has already addressed meetings and photographs of her speaking have appeared in newspapers. But the story accompanying the picture cannot report what she said.

Mrs. Joseph, 67, was one of the first of some 300 whites, browns and blacks restricted under South Africa's tough security laws.

Her 15 years of official restraint began when she was ordered in 1957 not to leave the Johannesburg city limits.

By 1972 she was organizing secretary of the almost exclusively black South African Women's Federation and a founder-member of the Congress of Democrats, which now is outlawed. In that year she was banned for five years without the formality of a trial.

This modified form of house arrest meant that she had to observe a dusk-to-dawn curfew alone in her home and remain in the cottage from 2 p.m. Saturday until Monday morning. She could receive no visitors except her doctor and lawyer. She had to report to the police station at a specified time each week-day.

Two years later she was seized for being three hours late one day in reporting to the police. She received a one-year jail term under the Suppression of Communism Act and the sentence was suspended for three years. This was her only public conviction.

Justice Minister John Vorster, who now is prime minister, issued the first house arrest order. Vorster said he was satisfied that she was "engaged in activities which were furthering or were calculated to further the achievement of communism."

Mrs. Joseph was one of more than 150 persons accused in the wide-ranging treason trials during the 1950s. She was found not guilty and other defendants were acquitted between 1956 and 1961.

The trial prompted her to write the book If This Be Treason, which was published abroad since nothing she says or writes can be circulated or quoted in this country.

This was followed by another book, Tomorrow's Sun, which dealt with banished Africans. She was banished to the 1962 banning order.

There is no appeal against banning orders and the government may extend them without explanation.

Just before Mrs. Joseph's first five-year ban was due to expire in October, 1967, it was extended for an additional five years. She was granted one concession: permission to attend church on Sundays and religious holidays.

Otherwise many commonplace events of life were out of reach. She experienced the not-so-commonplace such as telephoned death threats. An explosive device was discovered in her driveway in May 1971.

She is a bookkeeper at a local hotel and has no plans to try to leave South Africa on the one-way exit permits issued to some others who have been banned.

'Mom' Works on Wheels As a Bicycle Builder

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — "Kids are my main business — bikes are secondary," says Gwendolyn Pickett, the woman who helped 100 boys and girls build new bicycles for themselves.

At first she was just helping the 12- and 13-year-olds who had turned her home into something of a community centre. It became a mobile business in which repairing "cost the kids about half the usual amount," she says.

When the first broke the panel truck in which she carried parts and tools, she says, she didn't know what to expect. Now she hopes to buy two more and to hire other women who like young people.

The divorced mother of five says she skips leading her into her business began when she took her four sons to register for neighborhood baseball teams. She got that done, but she also became a coach. Kids waiting to practise soon were overrunning her home.

"Their bikes stuck me falling apart, if they had one to fall apart," she says. "Many had lost bikes to thieves. Others never had bikes but wanted one."

Her answer was to buy 25 beat-up out-of-style bicycles from a second-hand store for $25. Then she taught young sters to strip them for parts. "We got 10 good bikes out of the 25," she says.

When the children began wanting fancier, newer ones, she told them that if they could get $20, she would buy the parts and they could learn to build their own and to repair them.

That was two years ago. Since then she and her trained ten-aged helpers have supervised construction of more than 100 boys and girls.

Pickett, mechanically inclined, is a woman.

She grew up working on cars with her father, who cared for his own automobile in spare time from his interior-exterior decorator's job.

Mrs. Pickett's garage repairshop had to close due to zoning laws, but rolling neighborhood ice cream vendors gave her the idea as how to go on.

"I was kidding a telephone repairman about buying his truck," she says. "The next day he stopped back and told me he'd decided to sell some old trucks. I went to four auctions before I got one."

Putting her automotive experience to work, she overhauled it, painted it and equipped the inside with work space, shelves and drawers.

Then, she says, "I hired a couple of kids to help—all it takes is one kid to attract others and started touring the streets.

"There was so much work," she remembers, "it took two months of daily tours with tools to cover 10 streets."

'Squares' Host Stardusters

The Frankford Squares hosted the Stardusters from Toronto, at the Quinte Secondary School recently.

Eighty-eight members of the Stardusters arrived to join 96 members of the Frankford Squares for an evening of enjoyment.

After dancing, the guests were treated to one of the Frankford Squares Potluck Suppers before being sent on their way home.

UCW Coming Events

Among the forthcoming events of the Belleville Presbyterial UCW is a planned bus trip to the United Nations June 4-8 sponsored by the UCW Conference. The trip is open to women of any denomination.

Other events taking place will be a Stewardship Seminar in Toronto, February 15 - 16 with Miss Helen Setzmith, president and Mrs. S. Bates, chairman of stewardship and vocation committee attending.

The UCW Conference Annual will be held at Kingsview United Church, Oshawa April 24-25.

Plans are being made for a Belleville Presbyterial UCW executive meeting in May. The meeting will take the form of a workshop and will include the president, program chairman and unit leaders from each local.

Parties Are Great! To Get Things Going

By DORIS CLARK

Gosh! That party you promised yourself! If you haven't made it for the St. Valentine's Day, how about the 17th of Ireland?

I have a piece I wrote especially for teen-agers. It was first published in The Canadian Girl, some time ago. What I stressed was the fact that even a teen can do things to entertain, cook, take a hand in running her own show. And if she has a boy friend or girl friend to cooperate, so much the better.

The leaflet I made up later is called "A St. Patrick's Party You Can Swing Yourself". Twenty cents and a large stamped envelope, in care of this paper, and it is yours.

There's nothing like a party for getting new things — or people — going for you!

* * *

Dear Doris: Your letter asks just what I did to bring about help for my boy, who was called a "slow learner" by his teachers.

Well, we doubted that diagnosis, so we had him assessed by the educational psychologist of our health region. He recommended that our child attend a special clinic for remedial reading. The results were beyond our greatest hopes.

I find that any parent can contact their health region (in Saskatchewan) and request an assessment for their child. The psychologist will determine whether the child has an emotional, behavioral or learning disability and recommend suitable help. — Another Mother.

Dear Mother: Thank you. "I think my grandson is dis-One mother who asked satisfactorel. not just slow. When his mother left him he was old enough to know she was two and a half years old. Now he is seven."

The other said: "My child also has that problem. Our teacher is in no way willing to help any slow learning child."

I am sending that each your address, now that I have your permission, resource for helping the boy or girl with a learning disability are increasing in most parts of Canada, thank goodness.

Dear Doris: Reading "Lost and Worried". Ten chances to one this man is married.

I am married and mother of six. I had a woman phone me and asked if she could talk to me alone. I agreed.

Her story was real sad. I am helping her out and my man does not know a thing about it, though he is the father of the child she is going to have. This way my children are not going to be hurt by they simply adore him. This woman does not want any part of this man, we I am in love. We have a good name and I intend to keep this a secret as long as I live.

I promised to help her until the child reaches 19 years and then maybe he could help us along by doing odd jobs and making a little money although I agreed.

I am so happy she tried me out before going to court because it did save a messy affair. Maybe this will work out for her also. Only she will know that he is married. Good luck to her. We women aren't all that hard to get along with. — Keep My Secret.

Dear Secret: If you can make it, more power to you. It takes a big heart and a powerful emotional balance to carry such knowledge and leave a man to go scot free.

You are suggesting that Lost and Worried find the help she needs, if she can talk to her first? That the wife might want to protect her family from the scandal of a court case?

My much depends on the personalities — and facts involved, that I, and W. would consider such an idea. It is urgent that she discuss it with someone, with a trained social worker first. I simply cannot make any predictions at this distance.

Belleville Seniors View Recreation Centre Plans

Mrs. Wilma Summers showed plans for the new addition to the Recreation Centre to the Belleville Senior Citizens Club No. 94. These plans will be presented to the Recreation Committee next.

Janis Acton, the new assistant director spoke about the new craft classes which will begin Monday, at 1.30 pm: oil painting, Thursday; and ceramics on Wednesday mornings.

Mr. Pownall and four children performed during the entertainment program at the February meeting. Their guest was Mrs. Muriel Dunn from British Columbia.

Mrs. Summers suggested that the seniors hold another square dance since the last dance held in January was a success.

Lulu Longhurst, president, chaired the business meeting and gave the treasurer's report in the absence of Elsie Latchford, the treasurer. Six new members and four visitors were welcomed. Mrs. Ada Scales reported sending cards and flowers to three ill.

Thanks was expressed by Mrs. Beckett and lunch was served by Mrs. Derynn and Mrs. Edna Turner.

Ann Landers
"Busy" Boss Finds Ways To Irritate Secretary

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do? I am a secretary to about a boss who seems to lie awake nights thinking of small ways to irritate her? When he laughs, the whole building shakes. He pops his chewing gum and cracks his knuckles. Last week he took off his shoes and crushed his toes.

When he talks to me on the intercom he coughs and sneezes between sentences I want to scream. Sometimes he coughs and wheezes—all this with a cigar clenched between his teeth so his words are barely intelligible.

Some days when he is extremely busy he will tell me not to put through any calls. Later in the day, when I give him a list of the callers he gets mad and yells, "Why didn't you put Mr. X and Mrs. R through? You should have known those calls were important!" So, in addition to having the patience of a saint, I am expected to be a mind reader. Any suggestions? —Busy Human And That's Not Easy Enough

Dear Busy: These small annoyances will loom larger as time goes by. You don't really like this man and I can tell you he is not going to change. So start now to look for another job. Buttercup. You and the boss are incompatible.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a faithful reader. You have helped me with other problems and made my life easier. Please try again.

I am going through the menopause and my husband does not understand why I have lost all interest in sex. I don't know how to tell him. Please help me put it into words. He doesn't have much respect for my judgment, but if YOU say something it will carry weight.—Can't Find The Words in Long Island

Dear Words: Sorry I'm unable to help you because I don't share the answer. If you are of the opinion that menopausal women just naturally lose interest in sex, let me assure you it is not true. In fact, some women report the opposite.

If you are not seeing a good gynecologist, please run, don't walk, to your family physician. Ask him to give you a complete physical and recommend a doctor who specializes in gynecology. The proper medication might solve your problem.

Dear Ann Landers: You've helped waitresses, salespeople, firemen, police officers, nurses, homosexuals, klepto-maniacs and motor readers. Will you please say a word to help those of us who drive school buses?

How I wish every parent whose child rides a school bus could spend just one day with me. My major goal is to get their children to their destinations safely. Do you know how difficult this is when dozens of kids are screaming and fighting, knocking each other off their seats and sometimes falling on the driver?

It is not easy to manoeuvre a bus these days, what with traffic jams, stopping to let some children off and others on—all the while keeping an eye open for those who insist on running in front of the bus, even though I've asked them dozens of times not to.

Please, Ann, print my letter and suggest that parents discuss my complaints with their children at breakfast or dinner tonight and ask them if they are among the troublemakers.—J.S.

Dear J.S.: Here's your letter. I'll bet it does some good. But I can't imagine any kid admitting he is a troublemaker. Can you?

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Can love 'cure' a pessimist?

1-26

YES and no. Say a pessimist is so sure that with his luck he will never fall in love, it happens, and everyone thinks he is cured of looking on the dark side of life. But, he says, "that was the good news", so he admits he was wrong to think he would never be fortunate enough to fall in love. Now, to keep his membership in the pessimists' club, the pessimist will say, "Let me give you the bad news. My love won't last more than a 100 years or so."

Must a child's bedtime cause a row?

NO, not if Mother and Father can induce the child to stop whatever he is doing at a certain time every evening and have him get ready for bed. If parents dread "the scene" it takes to get their child to go to bed, perhaps the youngster senses the tension they feel. Then—no matter how young he is—he knows that going to bed is not going to be one of the things he will like best if his parents expect him to put up a battle.

Is dignity the same as snobbishness?

OF COURSE NOT. No one could act the snob if he had and was aware of personal dignity. A snob looks down his nose at the rest of us; an individual with a sense of dignity not only has respect for himself, but he also believes everyone else has been endowed with the same quality. Unlike the snob, he doesn't believe he is better than other people. As Aristotle said so long ago: "Dignity consists not in possessing honors but deserving them."

Accent Ends Her Career

EDMONTON (CP) — Maggie Morris calls it the "famous firing" and says the commotion which followed prompted the CBC to hire more female announcers.

It was a surprise to most CBC television viewers when, in April, 1970, the CBC dismissed its first—and at that time, only —woman announcer.

The corporation told her she had developed an accent unsuitable for broadcasting, but Maggie considers that a real learning.

Why does she think she was fired?

"Well, I'm a woman," she said. "I fought a hard battle to get on as an announcer in the first place. But there's not much sympathy for women announcers in broadcasting."

Her dismissal marked the end of a long broadcasting career as an announcer, free-lancer, and as a regular performer for six years on the CBC television quiz show Flashback.

She says she'll never broadcast again and doesn't miss it a bit.

"I haven't the performing mentality," she explained while in Edmonton in her new career as pantry chef with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet.

"I don't have to be performing all the time to be happy.

"Broadcasting was a means to an end. I had to earn a living and I was lucky to be able to earn it such a pleasant way."

Godfather Leads Nominations

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Godfather took the most nominations in the 45th annual Oscar race Monday, scoring for its director, writers, three supporting actors and its star, Marlon Brando.

The film about the Mafia won 11 nomination, followed by Cabaret with 10, The Poseidon Adventure with seven and Lady Sings the Blues with five.

It was Brando's sixth Motion Picture Academy nomination and his first after a long career drought. He won an Oscar in 1954 for On the Waterfront. His competitors for best actor of 1972 are Michael Caine and Laurence Olivier of Sleuth, Peter O'Toole for The Ruling Class and Paul Winfield for Sounder.

A second-generation film star, Liza Minnelli, appeared in Monday's nominations for best actress, the daughter of Judy Garland was named for Cabaret. Also nominated: Diana Ross, Cabaret; Cicely Tyson, Sounder, and Liv Ullmann, The Emigrants.

Other nominations included:

Supporting actor: Eddie Albert for The Heartbreak Kid, James Caan; Robert Duvall and Al Pacino for The Godfather, and Joel Grey for Cabaret.

Supporting actress: Jeannie Berlin, The Heartbreak Kid Eileen Heckart, ButterEfles Are Free) Geraldine Page, Pete 'n' Tillie; Susan Tyrrell, Fat City, and Shelley Winters, The Poseidon Adventure.

Direction: Bob Fosse, Cabaret; John Boorman, Deliverance; Jan Troell, The migrants; Francis Ford Coppola, The Godfather, and Joseph L. Mankiewicz, Sleuth.

Foreign language film: The Dewns Here are Quiet, Russia The Discreet Charm of the Bourgeoisie, France; I Love You Rosa, Israel; My Decision Senorita, Spain, and The New Land, Sweden.

Screenplay adaptation: Jay Allen for Cabaret; Jan Troell and Bengt Forshard, The Emigrants; Mario Puzo and Francis Ford Coppola, The Godfather; Julius J. pstein, Pete 'n' Tillie; Joseph L. Mankiewicz, Sleuth, and Lonne Elder III, Sounder.

Screenplay Orignl: Jeremy Larner for The Candidate; Luis Bunuel, The Discreet Charm of the Bourgeoisie; Terrence McCloy, Chris Clark and Suzanne dePasse, Lady Sings the Blues; Louis Malle, Murmur of the Heart, and Carl Foreman, Young Winston.

The nominations offered a few oddities but little surprise. Some observers questioned whether Pacino should be nominated as a supporting actor, since his role in The Godfather was longer than Brando's.

Emergence of the black-oriented film market was demonstrated in the nominations for Sounder and Lady Sings the Blues, including performers Winfield, Ross and Tyson.

Charlie Chaplin received a nomination — 20 years late. He was named for the scoring of Limelight. The 1953 film was not released in Los Angeles until 1972; hence it became eligible for consideration.

Bob Hope To Build Mansion

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope's new house will be a palatial hilltop estate, costing about $2.5 million with a panoramic view of the nearby desert.

The city's building inspector's office said the domed structure will cover 29,000 square feet, more than 10 times larger than Hope's old residence in a modest downtown area.

Construction will take about 18 months. It has taken several months to install $75,000 worth of footings for the concrete dome, which will have an overall height of 40 feet and a skylight 80 feet across. The structural dome cost $200,000 and will cover multiple levels corresponding to terrain contour.

Canadian Plays Set

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Three Canadian plays will be featured in the 1973 season at the Stratford Festival's Third Stage.

The opening production will be a commissioned production of Billy The Kid, an adaptation by Michael Ondaatje of his book The Collected Works of Billy the Kid. The book won the 1971 Governor-General's award for fiction. The play opens July 18.

Ironk and the Sun, a play for children written by Montreal poet and playwright Henry Beissel, opens Aug. 1. The plays uses actors and marionettes to trace the adventures of a young Eskimo boy who sets out to search for the sun.

Exiles, an opera for the theatre which was commissioned by the festival, opens Aug. 15. It was written by Raymond and Beverly Pennell and combines electronic and orchestral music, poetry and photography.

Casting for Third Stage productions will be announced later.

The Third Stage, in its third year of operation, was developed by the festival as stage for original works.

Guest Artist

Genevieve Bujold, noted Canadian film actress, will be guest artist with the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir in the Canada premier of Leonard Bernstein's Kaddish, at Toronto's Massey Hall in April.

Young Harpist

Judy Loman, since 1969 the Toronto Symphony's principal harpist, began studying the harp at age five.

Well Covered

The CBC-TV provided more than 35 hours of programming in English and French from the 11th Winter Olympic Games in Sapporo, Japan, in February, 1972.

Talent Producer

The CBC was the major developer and employer of Canadian talent in 1971.

Charlie Chaplin Nominated

Charlie Chaplin received a nomination — 20 years late. He was named for the scoring of Limelight. The 1953 film was not released in Los Angeles until 1972; hence it became eligible for consideration.

Drawing the Line

With 15 miles of Moira River running through its heart, Thurlow Township's volunteer fire department has a grave responsibility to provide adequate rescue facilities in case of water emergencies. Last night, the Belleville Yardmen's Fund presented the force with a $400 line thrower capable of hurling a rescue rope up to 400 feet — sufficient to bridge the river. Taking aim is the department's deputy chief, Elmer Middleton, while Joe Craig of the Yardmen lends support.

Complicated Looking Tax Forms No Tougher Than Earlier Ones

Those income taf forms that have begun to arrive in Quinte-district mail boxes may be as mentally-taxing as they seem at first glance.

Bulkier, than usual, the envelopes give the impression of a fairly formidable array of material to be tackled.

In fact, it's just that impression that John Lensen, the centre's public relations officer and assistant Garnet Bird, are hoped of easing before the big form filing rush peaks in a few weeks.

What we're concerned about is the psychological factor," says Mr. Lensen. "People get this whole bundle of forms in the mail and they may automatically think filing returns this year is a complicated process."

For 45 per cent of taxpayers — if they follow instructions — filing "is simple — if not simpler than last year," claims Mr. Lensen.

To get their message across they're embarking on a series of open - line radio shows throughout the area administered from the Belleville office.

"Our theme is: It's easier than you think," says Mr. Lensen.

Hopefully they'll have eased say taxpayers' apprehensions by the time employers have distributed T-4 slips — deadline for which is March 1 — and the filing flood is in full tide.

There are several reasons for the fatter envelopes containing this year's filing forms.

This year each envelope contains a copy of the standard individual income tax returns, a detailed tax guide — and for claiming Ontario property-tax credits and an instruction booklet.

Spilling from one envelope it looks like a fairly formidable array. Yet, most average wage earners may discard the imposingly - detailed form, to concentrate on the individual return and the brief provincial property-tax submission.

The instruction booklet is there as a guide — and to make it that much easier, the volume carries fundamental instructions in a blue page section.

Advises Mr. Lensen: "Use the blue pages, follow the guide and no one should have any problems."

The standard individual returns forms — to which average wage earners' T-4 slips are attached — are somewhat differently drafted from other years.

But the difference isn't that much, says the information officer.

"A close study of the returns will indicate they are similar to last year's."

The standard form is for use by all taxpayers. While it may appear more comprehensive—and difficult than other years, the key for the individual is to ignore the schedule which don't apply in his specific case.

And, even if individuals have problems completing their returns, Belleville office staff is ready to help. Suggestions can be sought over the counter, or by telephoning Zenith 0-4000, says Mr. Lensen.

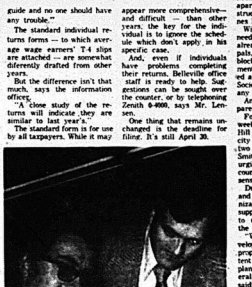
One thing that remains unchanged is the deadline for filing. It's still April 30.

Father Protests No Bus Service

BLOOMFIELD — Prince Edward County school trustees were told last night by a concerned parent that their refusal to provide bus service for his daughter is not justified by the reasons stated.

Members of the board's transportation committee agreed to discuss the problem further with D. Tomsett, who claimed the road leading to his farm of Wellington is in "a reasonable state" of repair.

Mr. Tomsett said trustees refused bus service because of the condition of the road coupled with the distance to his farm at the end of a township road where it could become difficult to turn around.



He declared he considered the reasons "invalid" since there is a large open area near his farm where a bus could turn safely."

If the board should reverse its decision Mr. Tomsett said he would drive his daughter to a pickup point on county road 4 on stormy days when the bus might encounter difficulties on the township road.

Hallowell township trustee Mr. David Lockwood attended last night's meeting with Mr. Tomsett and said he felt the road in question could be plowed for the bus. It would be necessary for a bus driver to travel no more than a mile and a half to pick up the child at the farm house.

The trustee pointed out that should the bus travel to the Tomsett home it would mean the first youngster picked up on the route would have to leave 10 minutes earlier for school.

Board chairman Clare McFaul said the situation offered no immediate solution to the rant further study. A meeting between Mr. Tomsett and members of the transportation committee will be called to examine it again.

Not too Tough

This year's income tax returns aren't as complicated as they may seem, says Belleville federal taxation officer John Lensen (seated). To help get the message across he and assistant Garnet Bird are embarked on open-line radio programs from Lake Ontario north to Haliburton.

Mental Health Meeting Called

The Ontario Mental Health Association was once an active organization in the Quinte area.

Now, a get - together is scheduled to revitalize the local branch. Purpose is to promote mental health education in the Quinte area and to serve as a volunteer visiting program to nursing homes.

An informal meeting will be held Feb. 15 at 8 p.m. at Christ Church Parish Hall at the corner of Coleman, Catherine and Bleecker Streets (Everett St. entrance).

Miss Ann Cox, a representative of the provincial office of the Canadian Mental Health Association will lead the exploratory discussion, designed to determine the needs of the district and find people who have interest in volunteering for mental health work.

The Belleville branch of the association in the past was responsible for starting the Belleville mental health clinic, for bringing a psychiatrist to the city and for education programs for the public, teachers and the police association. It also sponsored programs to assist patients return to social activities in the community.

Mary Bramley Poster Winner

Miss Bramley, a grade eight student, attends Queen Elizabeth Public School.

In second place was St. Michael's Academy student Cathy Bissé. Sharon Moffat, also of Queen Alexandra placed third.

Approximately 50 posters were entered in this year's contest among city grade eight students. Topic of the posters had to be concerned with dental hygiene.

Council in Control

Bylaw Would Freeze Multiple Family Structures in B Zone

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville city council has moved to block indiscriminate construction of multiple family housing in the B zoned districts of the city.

Monday, council approved a recommendation from last week's meeting of the Subcommittee Planning Advisory Committee calling for passage of a bylaw stopping multiple - family housing construction in the city's old B district and the bylaw will be before council at its next meeting.

The bylaw would except that area on Wellington Crescent which is now being considered as a site for senior citizen housing and would not have any affect on the highrise housing structure proposed for the city's Foster Ward waterfront area.

Over the past several years there has been mounting criticism of indiscriminate construction of multiple - family structures in city areas where single family residences predominate.

This winter the criticism reached a peak with the announcement that a highrise apartment block would be constructed on the site of the Dickens Manor on East Bridge St.

With a recognized need for, needed and a building permit already secured by the developers, it was already too late to block construction of the apartment, council in its efforts to put a Keep Belleville Beautiful campaign as an effort to halt any further construction.

And their efforts have apparently succeeded.

For the third time in recent weeks a delegation of Bell Hill residents turned up at city council Monday to back up two spokesmen, Dr. Robert Smith and Dr. Donald Lennox, urging that council take a courageous step forward to sensible planning.

Dr. Smith said the society and all other ratepayer organizations would continue to support council in its efforts to obtain implementation of the city's official plans.

We will also support developments, including highrise proposals, which are consistent with the intent of this plan and meet with the general approval of the citizens," said Dr. Smith's brief.

In this regard, Dr. Smith said council should give serious consideration to the proposal to rezone derelict industrial land on the waterfront to allow construction of a residential highrise building.

However, Dr. Lennox's brief said the society will continue to oppose in all parts of the city development proposals in conflict with the spirit of the official plan.

Dr. Lintern said the group had sought opinion from lawyers in Toronto, who had successfully opposed highrise development on behalf of citizen groups in that city and said another the same could be done in Belleville.

"Your own city solicitor quite rightly informed council . . . that council has every right to amend or change bylaws and yet, for some reason, some members of council seem to have indiscriminate fear of being sued."

Dr. Smith maintained that an individual councillor could hardly be sued successfully for actions taken by council as a body.

A developer, or anybody else, might sue the city as represented by the mayor and the corporation, but surely if an individual councillor could be sued in such a manner then no one in his right mind would ever run for council again."

If, in fact, a developer could successfully sue the city for limiting highrise in the city's B zone, then Dr. Lintern asked if the people of Elizabeth Crescent could not also sue the city if the proposed change in the zoning for that area was not passed.

He said that under the planning act a municipal council is given the power to pass zoning bylaws and this also includes the power to alter or rezone them.

"Municipal councils are required to exercise these powers in the public interest. If a particular council feels it is in the public interest that a zoning bylaw be repealed or amended, then it is the duty of that council to do so," Dr. Lintern stated.

Mrs. Vera Heimbach, resident of the Elizabeth Crescent area, told council that a group of taxpayers was still opposing the proposed rezoning of vacant land east of her area to allow the construction of town housing.

She claimed the original petition had not been resolved and charged that although their objection had been "heard" by council they had not been "considered".

Zoning, she said, was the protection citizens had when purchasing their homes and any zoning changes approved by council over the wishes of area residents was a "moral fraud".

Former Alderman Gerald Joyce, representing the Belleville Real Estate Board, asked that the proposed amending bylaw deleting multiple family housing from B district be not passed until it had been sent to his board, to the Quinte Home Builders and also the Chamber of Commerce for consideration.

City council, at its meeting two weeks ago, passed a recommendation from Ward 3 Alderman John Sokic asking that staff prepare a feasibility study with respect to rezoning both sides of Bridge Street between Church Street and Bleecker Ave. from B to A.

In view of the amending bylaw to be before council at its next meeting, this report was tabled.

Alderman E. A. Orr, as chairman of the Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee, admitted that his committee's recommendation to delete new multiple family housing as a permitted use in the city's B district zoning was a drastic one.

But he claimed the move would not be as drastic as it seemed as "spot" rezoning could still be considered by city council.

"All we want is control over what is to be built in our area," he said. "This would give council the final say."

Alderman Arthur Keegan asked that the remaining bylaw be delayed until the consultants had given their first report on the waterfront development plan slight be expected in their proposals for the city's official plan.

But Alderman Roger Porter asked if council could afford to wait that long.

"If we don't pass this today there could be a lot of applications in for multiple family housing in two weeks' time."

Mayor Robin Jeffrey agreed that it was time council took action on the bylaw.

She said the amendment would not be slipping development but would be putting development in the hands of council.

Alderman Paul Russell said he would not oppose the bylaw, but asked that provision be made for reconstruction of an existing multiple family complex should it burn down.

The recommendation calling for amendment of bylaw 6495 to delete multiple family housing from the city's B district was carried by a 6-to-1 vote with only Alderman Keegan opposing.

Before the recommendation were Mayor Jeffrey, and aldermen Corke, Cox, Ireland, Orr, Porter, Russell, Smith and Stock.

A Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee recommendation calling for approval of the developer's agreement concerning the proposed construction for the area south of Bridge Street and east of Elizabeth Crescent was tabled until the next meeting.

Kiwanis Pledges To Help Yardmen

New York Trip Planned

BLOOMFIELD — Grade 13 students at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute once again will be planning a trip to New York during a three-day trip to the city.

Barrie Mattlie, president of the students' council of the Prince Edward school trust ees that approximately 55 to 60 teens will join the mid-May excursion this spring and asked that teachers would be permitted to accompany the group.

Board members agreed this question should be answered by the school principal and chairman Clare McFaul noted the educational values of the trip under discussion.

Yardmen vice - president Joe Craig said the Quinte Kiwanis effort was the first pledge to make an offer of assistance. We think it's great," he said. "The building is going to go—other organizations will also have given us verbal support should start to raise money too."

The division of funds raised by the walkathon between the two organizations is still to be decided, but feelings at the meeting favored a 50 per cent split. Aims of the fund-raising project are to help the Yardmen Quinte to Kiwanis programs in Belleville City and area and provide support for the proposed Yardmen Benefit Fund proposed sports complex.

The walkathon is scheduled for September 22 to follow a 28-mile Thurlow and Sidney course beginning from the Bon Secour Auditorium at 8 a.m. Approval still has to be given by the Belleville Financial Appeals Board.

Then approval has been obtained, Quinte Kiwanis president Elvin Carr said he would like to see the lodges and other service club president to match him, dollar for dollar, in walkathon pledges.

Northern Employees Vote UAW

Northern Electric Co. Ltd. plant employees in Belleville yesterday opted out of the Canadian Union of Communication Workers in favor of the United Auto Workers.

UAW was certified by about 60 per cent in yesterday's vote count. Of the 728 eligible employees, 677 cast votes. UAW gained 408 votes to the CUCW's 269. There were four spoiled ballots.

The company said after two previous bids by UAW at the plant. Following the expiration of the previous contract in 1970, UAW polled 328 to 445 for the CUCW. An earlier bid was made in 1967.

Campaigning for the UAW at Northern Electric was carried out by representatives of the international union from Toronto, Carl Anderson and Bruce Peterson, who also headed supervise the vote.

R. Longhurst, District Representative of the CUCW Unit 4, said he had no comment to make. "I'm not bitter," he said. "We lost by a majority vote and it's a dead issue now."

The CUCW had 18 days to register a challenge to the Labor Board said Mr. Longhurst, but there was no intention to do so.

Northern Electric personnel manager, R. J. Caveley, said, "Any union that is recognized by the labor board and has certification rights we're willing to talk to and bargain with in good faith."

Election of UAW representatives at Northern Electric Co. Ltd. and the assignment of J. Local 1 to their will follow certification by the labor board.

Northern Electric had been bargained since the CUCW for about 20 years.

City Seeks to Delay Fahey St. Storm Sewer

Belleville city council, at its regular meeting Monday, took action to refer the bylaw of storm water from North Front Street onto Sanctuary Developments property and thus hopefully will save the city a portion of the proposed $200,000 Fahey Street storm sewer.

Move will be to divert the existing storm sewer outlet from North Front Street, running from North Front Street to flow backwards to the trunk storm sewer on the North Front Street at Treacy Street.

Cost of this proposal for, eliminating storm water spillage onto Sanctuary land was discharged onto Sanctuary land under a spillage agreement.

The matter was referred to was the one entered into by the city in 1970 authorizing for construction of the Fahey Street sewer in return for a $75,000 payment and a spill storm water from North Front Street, onto Sanctuary land.

Following receipt of the Sanctuary Developments letter, council asked city engineer Ellis Dyer to investigate possible alternatives for handling storm water instead of discharged onto Sanctuary land.

The engineer suggested four alternatives with council opting for the one outlined above.

The alternative he preferred was the one entered into by the city in 1970 authorizing for construction of the Fahey Street sewer in return for a $75,000 payment and a spill storm water from North Front Street, onto Sanctuary land.

Fred Foiled Again?

— By RON SUDLOW

TORONTO (CP) — The draws on the World Championship Tennis tour have not been too kind to Fred McMillan.

The South African has been knocked out in the first round in three of the four tournaments to date. Each time it was Aussie Ace Rod Laver, the leader on WCT's Group A circuit.

But Monday night in the Toronto International, he met Andrew Pattison, the finalist in the Canadian Open here last summer, and with deadly net volleys downed the 10th-seeded Rhodesian 6-3, 7-6.

And I for top-seeded Laver and his aching back can overcome Toronto's Keith Carpenter today, guess who McMillan will meet in the second round?

U.S. ACE OUSTED

Pattison, who not only seed to be eliminated from the $50,-000 tourney as Aussie Allan Stone held service all the way to drop a 12th-seeded Frank Froehling of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 6-2, 6-7, 6-1.

Other seeded fared better. Eighth-seeded Cliff Richey of Dallas, Texas, outhustled Tom Edelfsen of Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-4, to advance against 11th-6 seeded Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia who breezed past Barry Phillips-Moore of Australia, 6-4, 6-2.

Sixth-seeded John Alexander of Australia got past Charlie Passrell of Puerto Rico 6-7, 6-3, 6-4 while 2nd Mahalia of Berkeley, Calif., outlasted Edison Mandarino of Brasil 1-6, 6-1, 7-6.

McMillan was loose and it showed in his game.

"I had been doing too much thinking on the court and had a few matches as a result," he said after. "I went back home to my game and do a bit of boxing out there.

McMillan delivered his knockout punch when he erased Pattison's 3-1 lead in the second set by breaking service twice—once at love—and winning the final four games.

Frazier Wants Rematch

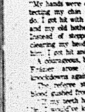
NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Frazier still can't believe it. "Six times in the contract, that's some bad trip," he said Monday night. "I'm a pretty decent fight. But, I'm not gonna do just because I have. Now it's back to the drawing board."

Smokin' Joe's face was smiling but No visible scars from the massacre in Jamaica. He talked fondly of his conquest and philosophically about defeat.

"George Foreman is a wonderful gentleman," he said. "I think he'll be a great heavyweight champion . . . until I take the title back."

Frazier isn't working in the gym these days. He's on his own schedule and plans to return to ring work in early March, hoping for a rematch with the new champion.

"George is the man I want," he said. "Not Clay (Muhammad Ali) or Jerry Quarry or any of them. George is the champ who has what I want—the title."



However, Foreman's manager Dick Sadler, indicated last week that Frazier would not be the first to get a crack at the new champ. It is to be somebody a bit softer, like Jimmy Ellis.

It wasn't until two weeks ago that Frazier saw a Foreman return at the second round knockout by Foreman, a 7-1 underdog.

"I couldn't believe that was me," he said, shaking his head. "My hands were down, not protecting my chin like I always do. I let him with a wicked shot and my old battered look over covered me. Looking back on it, clearing my head, I were afraid."

Frazier was frightened before Foreman came.

The referee stopped the fight. Frazier knew. She's hip. He says he's heard his name in the ring since he was a kid. "I don't know what I might've knocked him out with. I'm sure I'll have a few more sexy getting up and down."

"That was almost as much trouble as my wife's food poisoning," he said.

Guidoin Cracks Whip

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins are learning that life is far from a picnic with Boy Orr as the new coach of the National Hockey League's defending Stanley Cup champions.

Work and more work is the order of the day as Guidolin strives to erase any country club atmosphere that may have seeped in during an unexpected slump during the first five games of 1973.

The 41-year-old Guidolin, who will celebrate his birthday at age 16 as a forward with the Boston Bruins three decades ago, replaced Tom Johnson as coach last week.

Johnson was considered too easy going by some critics, Guidolin will certainly not be rated the opposite. He thrives on hard work and expects the Boston Braves learned in his first season as coach of the American Hockey League club last year.

"The team comes first with me not the individual," Guidolin said in behind the Bruins' bench. "The boss. "The big thing is to win. The most ex- les Kings, Guidolin has contin- pensive player on the team is the ued to drive the Bruins with points for a win."

The Bruins, trailing Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers in the East Division, apparently got the message. They've won three in a row under Guidolin and hope to extend the streak against Vancouver Canucks at the Garden tonight.

Despite the victories over Minnesota North Stars, Pittsburgh Penguins and Los Angedaily practice sessions. He even called a workout today before the game with Vancouver.

"We'll practice every day," the coach said. "That means practise for everybody, including the coach. I'll work with them. It's a brand new system now."

Guidolin emphasized that while he thinks things have gone "pretty good" in his first week on the job, "we still have a lot of rough edges to smooth."

USES 4 LINES

"I'll never be satisfied, no matter how many games we win, until after the last one, when the champagne is on the table with the Stanley Cup," he said.

Since taking over from Johnson, Guidolin has been employing four lines, at least at the start of games.

"I've been playing four lines and then going with the three working hot," he explained. "I play it by ear.

"I'll tell until after the first period."

"Everybody plays," said Phil Esposito, the league's leading scorer with 86 points who suffered from a groin injury before practice. "Bep's got everybody going."

The big thing is we've turned the thing around," Guidolin said. "We're doing certain things better and we're making our breaks."

Gray Ousts Blay As Champ

By IAN MacLAREN

TORONTO (CP) — Chris Gray, the Toronto Argonaut linebacker, Monday night honored and jabbed his way to the British Commonwealth heavyweight boxing championship with a unanimous 15-round decision over tough Eddie Blay of Ghana.

There was never any doubt of the outcome from the early rounds although his foes threatened it was a question of whether the 25-year-old Blay, who fights out of Italy, would go the route for the guarantee.

Gray weighed 16 Blay's 16.

There were no knockdowns but Blay was shaken up several times by the hard punching Canadian champ who now is looking forward with his next fight—a shot at the world title held by Jose Napoles of Mexico.

"I want . . . the world's title," said the native of Winnipeg, Man., who was far ahead on the score cards of all three officials, referee Lou Lupino and judges Tony Canadeo and Jackie Sievers. "If I can get over that guy, he Napoles promised me a shot at it."

The five-point system was used for the Commonwealth championship fight at Maple Leaf Gardens with the winner getting a round getting five points and his opponent four or fewer.

Lupino's card was 73 points for Gray to 63 for Blay. Canadeo was 74-62 and Sievers 67-67, both in Gray's favor.

Gray said he was hoping his manager Irv Ungerman, could stage the world title fight in Toronto. "But if we can't go to Mexico, we'll go."

Ungerman was quite upset by the purse turnout for the fight, estimated at 6,000.

"Canada's a great market for Toronto," said Ungerman of the 6,000 plus people who packed and ship fight. "but I must say we were disappointed with the attendance here tonight.

"For those that never exhibit out, they missed a tremendous fight. I personally think was going to be one of the best fights in Toronto in many years and I think it was."

"I know what it takes to run The Gray-Blay match was the feature event of the double-header championship card as saw Gary Summerhays, a 6-foot-3-inch 23-year-old Brantford, Ont., rout the Canadian light heavyweight crown from veteran Al Sparks of Winnipeg with a 12-round split decision at world's title shot. I hate other countries, or other cities, to come along and say we'll pay you so much to appear here.

Summerhays, at 172½ pounds a pound heavier than Sparks, was also losing in the late rounds and scored convincingly with right hooks to the champs' head.

Sparks was making the fifth defence of the title he won in 1968 and the first since he knocked out Steward Gray of Toronto at Winnipeg. Gray, brother of Clyde, the fullback star of the Boston Patriots.

Cleveland Drubs Raiders

Toronto May Get WHA Franchise

TORONTO (CP) — Doug Michel, president of Toronto Aces of the World Hockey Association, said Monday night he expects a decision within the week on whether a WHA team will relocated in Toronto next year.

Michel was commenting on reports from Ottawa that the Nats, owned by himself and Nick Trbovich of Buffalo, had been sold to Milwaukee interests; that Michel and Trbovich had purchased the New York Raiders franchise and were moving it to Toronto, and that Philadelphia Blazers . would move to New York while retaining the same ownership.

He said a $200,000 down payment on the Nats made by a Milwaukee group headed by Marvin Fischman would be forfeited to the Ottawa club if the Milwaukee backers did not follow through with negotiations.

"Fischman is the man who brought basketball to Milwaukee, so at one time he and his people seemed a serious potential buyer. But they haven't followed through," said Michel. "I'm not going to say we're going to sell the team tomorrow, but I won't say we aren't going to sell within 100 years.

"As Mr. Trbovich," he continued, "we could have a team there in half an hour.

"We have the franchise rights for Ontario—first we were going to Hamilton, then Ottawa, and Toronto is right between.

"He said Nationals aren't looking for new owners, but Trbovich's business sells stocks to the public "so we have to be open to offers."

"I'm not kidding when I say we get a hundred calls every week, people proposing to buy or involved . . ."

"We are interested in Toronto. We are thinking of Maple Leaf Gardens, but if they are difficult about rent we would consider the Coliseum in the CNE. I hear it would seat about 8,000, which isn't adequate but at least would do for a start."

Michel said he had promised the franchise in Ottawa that something definite would be decided "within the next week, so that will settle the possibility of moving to Toronto, too."

CLEVELAND (AP) — Joe Hardy and Paul Andres scored two goals apiece as Cleveland Crusaders drubbed New York Raiders 8-2 in Monday night's only World Hockey Association game.

The Crusaders swept into an early lead and were never in trouble, but it was a final five-goal period that spiked any possible Raider threat.

The victory put Cleveland six points ahead of second-place New England in the East Division. New York, in third place, remains three points ahead of Quebec.

Hardy's second, the first in the third-period flurry, came on a breakaway that ricocted into the net after Raider goalie Pete Donnelly's shoulder with 7:24 expired.

Andres picked up both of his scores in the third period. The first at 9:32 was unassisted and the second followed Jim Witte's previous score by only 10 seconds.

The Crusaders were three goals up by the time Ron Ward put the Raiders on the scoreboard with 5:53, the league's leading scorer, netted his 40th goal of the season on a long slapshot with the Crusaders two men down in the second period. Defenseman Jim Watt added the Raiders' second score with a 30-footer from the slot at 16:37.

Redmond Out

DETROIT (AP) — The top goal scorer for Detroit Red Wings, Mickey Redmond, will be sidelined for at least three games because of a pulled ankle tendon.

Redmond sat on the bench Sunday at the Wings whipped Buffalo 3-2 to move ahead of the Sabres into fourth place in the National Hockey League East. The Wings said Monday Redmond is to remain in Detroit while the rest of the team heads west for three games.

Redmond has scored 37 goals and has 26 assists. Marcel Dionne, with 27 goals and 39 assists has 66 points, three more than Redmond.

Warnermen Smile Through Goals

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

"Stewart Warner smiles their way to their 17th loss,' quipped one of the last place team's players after they had dropped a 13-1 Gas House Hockey decision to the first place Jim's Pizza.

"After we won the first game of the season against Rosebush Fuels 4-1, everybody relaxed," deadpanned Terry Murphy, the Stewart Warner goalie.

When asked by this reporter how he reacted to the shouting of "shots" by the fans, Murphy replied that it "gives me something to laugh at when they're scoring goals."

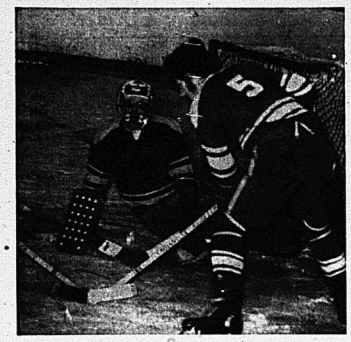
Defenceman Wayne Casselman said after their commanding loss to Jim's that "only one or two guys in this dressing room (of nine players) are serious about their hockey. We haven't had a coach since the beginning of the season, and I can't even remember his name. He took all the regulation game sheets when he left so everytime we don't hand in a regulation sheet we're fined $1."

The Stewart Warner team did not have to worry about their loss to the pizzamen as the game was "a rubbing game for us in the standings" according to Tony Svoboda despite the immenent approach of the end of the season and the playoffs.

"None of the guys have played organized hockey (except for three)," said goalie Murphy, "we're playing because we want to play hockey, obviously not because we want to win.

"We have enough trouble getting out of bed in the morning," said Tony Svoboda, who scored Stewart Warner's only goal Monday night, "never mind winning hockey games."

Murphy, however, will not be taking in the nets in the last Gas House League's final regular season outing as Casselman will be making his debut between the posts. Murphy will see action at centre ice for the final game against third place Hospital.



Jim's Pizza's Dave Middleton and Carl Boomhower both accepted Murphy's four goal scoring efforts which seemed effortless in last night's contest. Randy Lambert tallied a hat trick while Gene McGuire Bill Dunn each scored single tallies.

In other Gas House hockey action Monday, The Intelligencer secured their hold on second place with a 3-2 victory over seventh place Cauley's Intelligencer centre Jim McGuire scored the winner with his first period goal on a the electrics made up a 2-0 deficit on goals from Doug James and Bernie Coughlin.

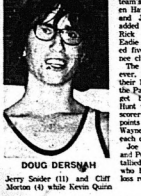
Before the End...

Stewart-Warner goalie Terry Murphy failed to withstand the scoring onslaught of the Gas House League's leaders Jim's Pizza Monday night, as he went down for a 13-1 count to help secure last place for his club. Despite a valiant effort to put the stop on pizzamen's Randy Lambert (3) the winger scored his final goal of a hat trick effort on this play.

After the End...

Stewart Warner goalie Terry Murphy puts his equipment away for the final time in regular season Gas House Hockey League play after a 13-1 defeat at the hands of the Jim's Pizzeria. In next week's final game, Murphy will give his retired equipment to defenceman Wayne Casselman who will be making his goaltending debut.

Dersnah Outscores Napanee



Prince Edward Collegiate's Doug Dersnah could have won the senior basketball game against Napanee 36 o-day night with the number of points that he alone garnered.

The Picton shooting ace dropped 21 points into the Golden Hawks' basket in a 72-22 victory over Napanee.

The Napanee team is suffering from "one of those cycles when we end up with nothing," said Hawks' coach Lorne Vershoeff, "basically we have no material, no shooting. We haven't hit 30 percent from the floor all year, and you need at least 35 percent to be competitive. We don't have any shooters.

"But the team, owning a 6-9 won - lost record, "have been trying" said Vershoeff. "They haven't given up or packed it in. You have to become philosophical to keep your spirits up. It's just a rough year for us."

The Hawks' top scorers in their 50 point deficit were

DOUG DERSNAH

Jerry Snider (11) and Cliff Morton (4) while Kevin Quinn and Bruce Ketcheson dropped 17 and 16 points respectively for the Picton Panthers.

Tim Barrett rewarded the Napanee back boards for 25 points in the Picton game's second half with a 32 victory over seventh place Cauley's Intelligencer centre Jim McGuire scored the winner with his first period goal on a the electrics made up a 2-0 deficit on goals from Doug James and Bernie Coughlin.

Hockey Times Changing

The times are a'changing for hockey in Belleville this weekend. And so are the dates and places.

The Belleville Quintes will get the weekend off due to a change in OHA Senior schedule by scheduling. The Quintes were slated to meet Kingston Aces Friday night but the game has been switched to Tuesday, Feb. 20th at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

The Belleville team trails Kingston by a single point in the battle for the sixth and final league playoff spot, but the Aces have six games in hand.

Minor Hockey Nights for the Quintes, originally planned for Friday night's game has been moved back one week. All members of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association wearing their team sweaters will be admitted for 50 cents to the Feb. 23 meeting with Barrie.

A change is in order for the Belleville Bobcats as well. The Bobcats will be seen in face St. Mike's in a 8 p.m. Friday night game at Dick Ellis' Arena. The match has been shifted to the Memorial Arena.

Glennie Out for Season

TORONTO (CP) — The Maple Leafs' chances of making the National Hockey League playoffs are slim and they became slimmer Monday when it was learned Brian Glennie will be out for the rest of the season.

Glennie, one of the Leafs' few solid defencemen, tore the ligaments in the right knee Saturday night and will be lost to Los Angeles Kings.

Leaf Doctors says Glennie will be in a cast for six weeks—and that's all that's left of the season.

This has been a frustrating year for Glennie. A shoulder injury early in the season forced him to wear a brace which restricted his arm movement.

Later, a severely bruised ankle, which—still in pain, caused him to miss a month and hamper his skating.

Glennie pairs regularly Paul Henderson—he has a separated shoulder—and defenceman Joe Lundrigan, who has a broken thumb, on the injured list.

Mike Pelyk and Jim McKenny are the only regular defencemen fit to play. John Grudale, Terry Clancy and Larry McIntyre are able to fill in the gap, but none would normally see full-time duty.

Kinsmen Bantams Eliminated

The Belleville Kinsmen Club lost their third game of the O.M.H.A. "AAA" playoffs against the Kingston Rotary 6-5 Monday night.

The Belleville bantam major's third straight loss in the best of five playdowns knocks them out of the series with the Rotarians.

Goaltenders for the Kinsmen were Rob Chase with two tallies. Rob McBrien, Tony Meagher, and Bob Thompson each had a single. Thompson scored the second period winning goal for the Kinsmen bantams.

Jesse Rink Edged In Armed Forces Spiel

CP (Staff) — Earl Jesse is undoubtedly hoping that his luck will change Wednesday Monday in the Canadian Armed Forces Curling Championship.

The defending champion skip and his CFB Trenton rink were beaten 3-1 by Andy Anderson of Ottawa in the opening game of competition held at Shilo, Manitoba.

Anderson and Otto Krappt of Alberta are tied for the early round lead in the round robin competition with 2 - 0 records. Jesse was the only game played by the Trenton foursome.

Loss of his Canadian title would be the second major setback of the season for Jesse who was eliminated from the Ontario Legion Curling championships in district play.

Another Trenton rink, headed by Bruce Merklinger will be carrying local colors in the provincial hospital that begins Wednesday at Trenton Country Club.

The competition gets under way at 8 p.m. with the final game slated for nine o'clock Sunday morning unless a playoff is required.

A total of 10 rinks will be competing with other entries hailing from London, Georgetown, Exeter, Toronto, Barrie, Trenton, Ottawa, North Bay and Kitchenkenor.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids . . . and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and pain almost at once and speeds up healing of injured tissue in most cases. One hemorrhoidal case after another responded to this very striking improvement in rectal examinations. Even suffered actual reduction in size of protruding hemorrhoids.

The healing force was historic were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Most of those treated (in cases of long standing) had suffered pain for 10 years or more. In those cases, the relief was so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This new scientific method with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) is now available in Preparation H. Ointment and Suppositories. Preparation H. gives real comfort. Soothes away pain and itching. Relieves inflammation. Tends to reduce swelling. Helps prevent infection.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H. lubricates hard, dry tissues. Helps make bowel movements less painful. It helps prevent further injury. Try this special cause of hemorrhoids.

Ointment and Suppositories Specially Formulated for Preparation H. Suppositories or Ointment are in Hemorrhoidal Preparation H. (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Viet Cong Hold Two Canadians

SAIGON (CP) — Canadian supervisory force representatives her have been officially informed by the Viet Cong that two Canadians are alive and being held in captivity.

Although no time has been set for their release, speculation here is that it will be soon.

This was the first acknowledgement of several representations made by Canadian Ambassador Blair Seaborn who has asked both the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese representatives to release any Canadians being held.

Although both men—Marc Cayer of St. Raymond, Que., and Lloyd Oppel of Courtenay, B.C.—were listed as prisoners by Hanoi, this was the first verification in writing given to the Canadians.

"We are boneful about both men," said V. G. Turner, senior political adviser to the Canadian delegation.

School Bus Still Used By Courts

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Busing, the court-ordered transportation of school children to achieve racial integration was the major domestic issue in last year's presidential campaign in the United States.

Since then, busing has faded away as the subject of public concern, at least in most places.

That was not so in Memphis, Tenn., in January where the schools started the first phase of a court-ordered busing program, designed to integrate the schools by next fall.

The busing in Memphis pointed up a strange paradox. The people may have spoken against busing by their primary election votes for Alabama Gov. George Wallace and their support in November for President Nixon, an outspoken opponent of busing, but there is nothing to prevent federal judges from using buses as an instrument for achieving school integration.

The president went on nationwide television last year to voice his views on busing and to announce that he would push for congressional action to abolish the practice.

The House of Representatives passed such a bill last August, but the measure died in the Senate during the waning days of the session.

Congress obviously is hoping that the Supreme Court, with a majority of recent Nixon appointees appointed during Nixon's first term, will end busing in two pending cases involving Denver, Col., and Richmond, Va., that the court agreed to rule within the next few months.

In the meantime, federal judges are continuing to use busing as a solution to the impasse which finds large numbers of schools still segregated almost 19 years after the Supreme Court ruled school segregation was unconstitutional.

In schools the trend is more integrated in 1973, eight years after the ruling, with this year 9 per cent of Negro students were still attending all-Negro schools.

A major cause of this was housing patterns, with whites and blacks living in separate cities in the suburbs and blacks locked in ghettos in the inner city.

Only schools in the middle ground were integrated and these often changed into "white flight" continued. Schools changed in the course of a few years from all white to integrated to all black.

Mackenzie Pipeline Foes Encouraged

TORONTO (CP) — A United States court decision blocking the proposed trans-Alaska oil pipeline has encouraged Canadian groups fighting the Mackenzie Valley natural gas pipeline, Dr. Robert Page of Trent University said Monday night.

"It's a most important precedent," he said at a public meeting sponsored by the Committee for an Independent Canada to discuss the $6-billion Canadian project.

"I think we've got more than a fighting chance," Prof. Page added. He awarded the Americans pegs to delay the gas line until there is more research available on what it might do to the Arctic environment.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 14

Aries (March 21-April 19): Avoid needless purchasing. Everybody has his own theory about how the world and his neighborhood should be managed.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You may be on a collision course with rivals. Today is not the best time to settle anything.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Expect distractions; resolve to stick with the necessities for the time being. Stay free to act and choose.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Discrepancies, flaws come to view and there's no immediate cure for them. Troublesome situations work themselves out.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your by-word now should be independence! Go it alone, put your resources behind your stated letters. Heed in another direction.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): There are so many ways of spending money that you may as well hold on until time shows which causes are valid.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Even casual strangers get into the act, and you have both help and hindrance as you strive to organize a worthy project.

Scorpio (Oct 23-Nov. 21): It is entirely possible you may neglect an important detail out of rare lapse of memory—keep careful notes.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Just when you're sailing along light as a breeze, you are apt to be confronted with the repercussions of long past error.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Delayed situations contain both promise and threat—the less said about matters beyond your control, the better.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your kindest comment may be a bit harsh to those who lack your perspective, or who pay more attention to emotional factors.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Impulsive moves to placate or please family and friends precipitate crisis in areas you hadn't anticipated.

Davis Appoints Backbencher To Sit in on Cabinet Meeting

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Douglas Kennedy sit in on cabinet meetings as an observer, starting this week.

William Davis has acted to quell rising discontent within the government caucus by having veteran back-bencher will attend cabinet meetings as The unusual move by Mr. Davis appears to be an effort to head off a possible revolt by caucus members, many of whom claim the premier and his ministers are becoming more and more alienated from them.

Mr. Kennedy would act as a liaison to keep the 65-member caucus fully informed on government deliberations.

Mr. Kennedy, whose uncle T. (Tom) Kennedy was Ontario premier in the late 1940s, represents Peel South.

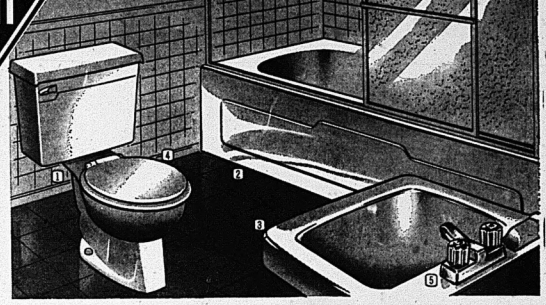
Advisory Council Will Seek More Religious Broadcasting

TORONTO (CP) — A Roman Catholic priest says the national religious advisory council to the CBC plans to go before a parliamentary committee in Ottawa to plead the case for more religious broadcasting on the national system.

Father Frank Stone, a Toronto member of the council, says the CBC is "ignoring the value of religion as a natural activity of cultural life or civilization."

In an interview in the weekly Catholic Register, he adds:

"There are all kinds of producers around but little of the taxpayers' money is available. The CBC is more interested in selling consumer goods."



He said the advisory committee has formed a sub-committee to get information on CBC religious programming for submission to the parliamentary body.

In an article in the same issue of The Register, Rev. Barry Jones, deputy director of press relations for the Montreal religious advisory committee to the CBC, says the committee thinks the CBC is trying to scuttle the regular broadcasting of "religious services and other religion-oriented programs."

Teacher's Valentine

Decade-long Trade Struggle Foreseen

OTTAWA (CP) — The government seemed to breathe a sigh of momentary relief Tuesday as the latest U.S. monetary shakeup appeared to leave the Canadian economy unhurt.

But Finance Minister John Turner cautioned it could take the United States 10 years to sort out its trading problems with the other big trade blocs, during which Canadian business will "face a very tough, competitive fight."

He told reporters Washington wants to win an international monetary agreement that will dispel its persistent balance of payments deficit.

Mr. Turner's remarks about long-term difficulties echoed those of President Nixon, who Tuesday said tough protective tariffs must be kept in the U.S.' arsenal as Washington seeks trade concessions, particularly from Germany and Japan, in the coming months.

Meanwhile, however, Mr. Turner and Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie were cheery about the immediate impact of the U.S. devaluation.

They expect the Canadian dollar to maintain its present relationship to the U.S. dollar, thereby losing value in terms of Japanese and European currencies.

For consumers, that would mean U.S. goods should stay at about the same prices, and imports from other countries should become more expensive.

For Canadian producers, sales to the United States — exactly 70 per cent of all exports—should not be hindered, and sales to other countries should be easier because Canadian goods would be less expensive.

Mr. Turner said the Canadian dollar will continue to float, at least until the Committee of 20, a group of International Monetary Fund countries, works out a new system of controlling movements in exchange rates.

The Bank of Canada would continue to intervene in the money market, buying and selling U.S. dollar, to offset wide-swing weekday fluctuations.

Mr. Love came to Canada at age 20 from his native County Cork, Ireland.

On Saturday, well-wishing relatives will gather for a Love-in at Valentine's home — to celebrate what they hope will be a lovely retirement.

If the 10 per-cent devaluation of the U.S. dollar announced Monday did not succeed, Washington would turn to other methods.

For the trade war that might ensure, Canadian industry would now have to "clear the decks for action."

He reiterated that the corporate tax cuts first introduced in the budget last May 8 were aimed at helping industry meet world competition.

Those cuts are expected to reappear in the budget he will bring down Monday.

News Briefs

Deficit Smaller

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deficit of the United States balance of payments narrowed in the last three months of 1972 and for the year as a whole, the government said today. Although the deficit in U.S. international transactions improved in the fourth quarter, the deficit for 1972 was still one of the largest in the country's history.

U.S. to Aid Hanoi

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hanoi and Washington announced today they plan a joint economic commission to develop economic ties between North Vietnam and the United States and to consider post-war reconstruction of the bombbattered North.

Moscow Circus on Tour

OTTAWA (CP) — From start to finish, the members of what has been called the world's best circus kept their single ring humming with a variety of feats as the Moscow Circus opened a 10-week Canadian stint here Tuesday night.

TORONTO (CP) — The national office of the United Steelworkers of America today declared William Mahoney re-elected as Canadian director following the first serious threat to his leadership in 16 years.

Milk Boost Sought

ESSEX, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Milk Producers Marketing Board will ask for a further increase in price to the farmer on April 1, Ray McDougall of Chatsworth, a board director for the region, told Essex County Milk for Producers at their annual meeting Tuesday.

Censorship Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's Anglican Church leader has denounced censorship laws. "You can't legislate moral behavior," said Archbishop Edward W. Scott. "It ceases to be moral when it's imposed. You have to have the right to choose." He was speaking Tuesday to about 200 attending a forum on film censorship.

Market Decline Forecast

TORONTO (CP) — Seymour Friedland, professor of finance and economics at York University, predicts that stock markets in Canada and the United States will drop sharply during the next two months. He made his assessment after devaluation of the U.S. dollar.

Valentine Love Retiring Today

Of course abortions are wrong and so are unwanted men I should know.

TORONTO (CP) — Today, Valentine's Day, Valentine Love retires after 39 years as a Toronto postal clerk. He turned 65 today.

A tall, sober-faced man, Valentine hasn't exactly revelled in the name his mother conjured up in 1908 but he has learned to live with it.

Sometimes, he'd try and skirt the issue and use his other name, William. But Valentine kept cropping up on cheques, at border points, etc.

But Valentine Love's story doesn't end there.

Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Love have children. In the mid-30s, their daughter, Ruth, married Alexander Gerden. It was a Love-Garden affair.

Later, their eldest son, Bill, wedded Jessie Story—Love-Story wedding.

Mr. Love came to Canada at age 20 from his native County Cork, Ireland.

On Saturday, well-wishing relatives will gather for a Love-in at Valentine's home — to celebrate what they hope will be a lovely retirement.

Cuba Ready To Prevent Hijackings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Cuba are expected to sign an anti-hijacking agreement by the end of this week, it has been learned.

The official time was put at a "few days" by State Secretary William P. Rogers in Miami Beach, Fla., Tuesday night. It is understood this means Saturday at the latest. Only minor details remain to be worked out.

Even though administration officials have acknowledged an agreement has been reached, few could discuss the substance of the accord.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A disturbance now over western Illinois is gradually moving eastward to become the major influence over southern Ontario weather for the next 48 hours. Cloud and snow associated with the disturbance will spread across southern Ontario today and linger through Thursday. The disturbance will move to the east of the lower Great Lakes Thursday evening, allowing cold air to move over the north to push back into southern Ontario.

Nixon's Trade Legislation To Be Given Close Scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon appears likely to get quick approval by the Democratic-controlled Congress of legislation to back up devaluation of the United States dollar.

But some leading Democrats indicated that the followup trade legislation, while it is also given prompt consideration, will be scrutinized more critically.

Chairman Wright Patma. (Dem. Tex.) of the House of Representatives banking committee, said he is ready, if the administration is, to begin hearings next week on legislation to establish a permanent lower value for the dollar, devalued 10 per cent Monday night by executive action and agreement with other countries.

A Senate banking committee spokesman said it probably could begin hearings a week later.

Trade legislation, so far outlined only in general terms by Nixon, would have to originate in the House ways and means committee.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills (Dem. Ark.), commenting 'this is an emergency," promised quick consideration.

But Mills expressed reservations about plans, hinted in administration statements, for a selective surcharge on imports from countries not cooperating with U.S. plans for solving the trade-monetary tangle.

He said such surcharges "usually apply to all countries" and that such an increase might be considered if devaluation alone does not bring about the kind of balance sought between U.S. imports and exports.

Nixon said in personal remarks Tuesday, that he wants U.S. negotiators to have authority to bargain with their trading offs on various products in bargaining with other countries.

"We have gone in too many negotiations in which all we have done is to negotiate down, whereas others have negotiated up," he said.

All tariff bargaining authority lapsed in 1967 and has not been renewed.

"Other nations must get away from their discriminatory policies and we must be in a position to bargain harder," Nixon said.

With a reference to Europe and Japan, he said some exporters are "hoarding it" into the rich U.S. market "and can drive U.S. businesses out of existence . . . and lose American jobs."

Chairman Henry S. Reuss (Dem. Wis.) of the joint international economics sub-committee, welcomed the prospect of a trade bill "even though the fine print in the bill will need to be subjected to close scrutiny."

Dollar at Record Low in Japan

LONDON (AP) — The United States dollar, adjusting to its 10 per-cent devaluation, dropped to a record low in Switzerland and Japan today. It fared better in relation to the currencies of other major countries.

In Japan, where the yen has been freed to find a level above the 10-per-cent rise provided by U.S. devaluation, the dollar was again under pressure and sold at 278.8 yen. Last Friday it took 301.1 yen to buy a dollar. That was the last day of trade before devaluation.

The change represented a 13.3 per cent increase in the value of the yen in relation to the U.S. dollar.

The Japanese state bank stepped in to buy an estimated $235 million in order to absorb some of the pressure on the dollar and keep the yen from rising higher. Japanese businessmen fear a high-priced yen will unbalance their booming trade and prosperity.

On the Zurich exchange the dollar opened at 2.1475 Swiss francs. Later only 3.3325 francs bought a dollar.

This represented an 11.8 per cent dollar devaluation from previous parity with the franc.

The dollar declined during the day on the Frankfurt exchange but still closed well above the new official parity of 3.2902 West German marks. The price of 2.9580 marks represented a dollar devaluation of 8.89 per cent in relation to the earlier parity.

Busy Day

With the dollar devalued, business kept climbing in strong at the office of a private dealer in international currency in Frankfurt Tuesday. Continuous ringing of telephones kept the office crew busy during the day. (AP Photo)

First U.S. PoWs Start Flight Home

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — Twenty smiling United States prisoners of war and a Vietnamese puppy left Clark Air Base today on their long-awaited flight home to the United States.

The men departed a day ahead of schedule. Their Starlifter hospital jet was due at California's Travis Air Force Base about 4 p.m. PST (7 p.m. EST).

Forty more PoWs will follow Thursday in two planes. This will leave 80 of the men freed Monday still at Clark and one in Saigon. Two others were flown home Tuesday because of serious illness in their families.

The canine passenger was a dog called Ma-ca that Lt.-Cmdr. Edward Davis of Leola, Pa., adopted during his nearly eight years in captivity.

Officials of Operation Homecoming said most of the remaining men will be back in the United States by the weekend. But doctors at the base hospital where they were quartered reported a few wanted to remain for plastic surgery.

"Some of these men have bad scars on their arms from being bound for a long time with wire," one doctor explained. "Others, their war wounds healed badly."

Regional Government Adds Complications

Hastings county councillors want no "shotgun" decision regarding the length of terms that new deputy-reeves will serve on council.

At the December session, following the election of 13 new deputy-reeves, bringing council membership to 47, council voted to have a private bill presented to the Ontario Legislature for approval to reduce the number of council members.

At the January session, however, the view was taken that the 13 new deputy-reeves had been elected for a two-year term and a motion was presented to have them continue as county council members until the end of 1974.

But, complicating matters was the Ontario government proposal of a new Oshawa-centred regional government, which if adopted, would see nine rural and urban municipalities in East Northumberland county added to Hastings, bringing county membership to more than 60.

One coincident at the January session noted that if the 13 members from Northumberland turned up at Hastings county council, the walls would have to be knocked out to provide accommodation.

The January session to have the new Hastings deputy-reeves serve to the end of 1974 was tabled until after a Feb. 13 meeting with provincial officials to discuss the proposed Oshawa-centred regional government.

This meeting was held last night and some reeves wanted councillors to go into a special session after the meeting to decide on the January motion, thus making a Wednesday session unnecessary.

But others wanted no snap decisions on the motion and said all councillors should have an opportunity to express their views.

Accordingly, county council met again Wednesday morning — to decide on the new session.

Tuesday, Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen, chairman of the council municipal reform committee, said her committee had met with representatives from Northumberland county to discuss regional government proposals.

She said some of the Northumberland members were reluctant to the prospect of becoming part of Hastings county, while others wanted to retain their own identity with Northumberland as a county.

And still others were debating ahead to eventually becoming part of a new regional government area south of Highway 7, taking in Belleville and possibly extending as far east as Kingston.

Recreation Centre Debate Begins

TRENTON — Clifford Lovelock, president of the Trenton Senior Citizens Club said Tuesday he expected a large number of club members would attend to support opening of Centennial Park to allow construction of a proposed senior citizen recreation centre.

An Ontario Municipal Board hearing was scheduled to begin today and Mr. Lowcock said he hoped everybody down. It's a good opportunity for them to say their piece."

When plans were first announced for the structure, they were greeted with enthusiasm. Council appointed a committee to handle raising of funds and proposed rezoning of a piece of the park property for the drop-in centre.

To date more than $20,000 has been raised — about $8,000 from a September 1972 walkathon and a pledge of $12,000 from the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund.

But objections by residents in the area halted proceedings last fall and a public hearing got under way today at 2 p.m.

The hearing is being held at the Trenton Community Gardens.

The opposition's main objection rests with choice of location. It has been said in the past that Centennial Park — once a weed-choked swamp area should remain in its present form as developed in 1967.

Downtowners Elect Trotter

The big corporations are nothing without you, the individual businessman, said Al Trotter, manager of Walker's Department Store, at the annual meeting of the Belleville Downtown Association.

Mr. Trotter, last night, was announced as the new president of the association, taking over from Alderman Roger Porter.

Directors are Charlie Kammer, Irene Rolaf, Angus MacKillicon, Don Finkle, Doug Row, Paul Clare and Ron Fox.

Mr. Trotter, speaking to the largest meeting of the association, hoped the new year would bring Belleville's downtown as the strongest, most improved, in the country, saying it was the small businessman who was bringing the shopper downtown.

Three-year President Retires

Alderman Roger Porter (left) resigned from the Belleville Downtown Association after being its president for the past three years. With him are Al Trotter of Walkers Department Store, the incoming association president and Doug Woodley, vice - president.

Madoc Medical Centre LIP Grant Is Approved

MADOC — The Centre Hastings Medical Centre is to receive assistance from the federal Local Initiatives Program after all.

That's the cheery news a delegation representing the community project brought back from an Ottawa interview yesterday with Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras and LIP officials.

Jim Watson, chairman of a group of local citizens incorporated to administer the project, said LIP officials will recommend the centre receive a $20,000 grant.

"It's a result, we'll say, on the centre — halted some weeks ago after a LIP request was turned down — is expected to resume "fairly soon," said Mr. Watson.

Yesterday's interview was the sequel to an appeal against the original LIP decision after Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, had taken up the case with ministry officials.

The outcome was yesterday's interview, arranged by Mr. Ellis, during which the project was discussed with Mr. Andras and LIP director Jack Davis.

Mr. Ellis said later he was "pleasantly surprised" at the result and praised LIP officials for their attitude "and the way they heard our appeal. They gave us a good hearing."

Mr. Watson said the delegation was "well received" by both Mr. Andras and Mr. Davis and was "quite happy with our reception."

The medical centre was launched as a community project late last year with local donations totalling $22,000 and about another $8,000 indicated as pledges by the end of December.

In mid-January, a LIP application for $17,000 was turned down. The citizen group filed an appeal and a second request — this time for $24,000 after construction cost estimates had risen from $45,000 to about $55,000.

The centre, to house two doctors' offices and several local facilities, is estimated to be able to serve an area with a population of about 6,500 here and in surrounding townships.

About $10,000 - $15,000 still remains to be raised locally to complete the project and efforts will be taken in this area immediately, said Mr. Watson.

Yesterday's delegation of centre directors to Ottawa also included Tom Sandford, representing the village's Canadian Legion branch; Joe Rowse, Mount Kiwanis; Mrs. Vera Hill, the project's secretary and Reeve T. C. Barton.

Threat Brings $75 Fine

Charged with creating a public disturbance, Robert Vernon Hoard admitted Tuesday he threatened to pat a gun and shoot a police officer during a Front Street scuffle.

Hoard pleaded guilty to the charge and two others of public intoxication. He was fined $75 by provincial court Judge J. L. Clendenning.

Hoard was involved in a fight in front of the Olympia Restaurant on Dec. 18, 1971. He told the court he threatened the officer after police placed a bystander in the rear cruiser and refused to release him.

PROCLAMATION

"Have a Heart — Save a Life — From Fire" Week

FEBRUARY 14th TO FEBRUARY 20th, 1973

This is "Have a Heart — Save a Life — From Fire" Campaign Week. During the week of February 14th to February 20th, 1973, the Belleville Fire Department will launch the "Have a Heart — Save a Life — From Fire" Campaign.

Radio Station CJBQ, Belleville Insurance Agents' Association, City Hall and your Fire Fighters will try to bring this Fire Safety Programme into each home in our municipality.

The whole idea of the Heart Life Saver Decal is to have a symbol that developed over the years, so that people who place this decal on the upper corner of bedroom windows occupied by children, elderly and incapacitated persons will be showing their concern for the fire safety of those they love. In the event of fire, Fire Fighters look for these decals and evacuate these rooms first.

This programme is designed primarily to ensure the speedy evacuation of our citizens in the event of fire and also to bring into each home a message — "Plan Your Most Practical Escape Route" and "Practice Home Fire Safety".

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me as Mayor of the City of Belleville, I do hereby proclaim the week of February 14th to February 20th, 1973, as

"Have a Heart — Save a Life — From Fire" Week

ROBIN JEFFREY,
MAYOR.

IN MEMORIAM

CARR — In loving memory of my dear husband, Ernest Carr, who passed away two years ago, February 14, 1971.

Two years have passed and I remember
Two years of sorrow and pain,
Two years of heartache and loneliness,
Two years of grief and tears,
Two years I've longed to see you once more,
Two years I've wished you were here,
Two years I've needed you so much,
Two years I've cried for you,
Two years I've loved you,
Two years I've missed you,
Two years and always will.

Sadly missed by your loving wife, Lena.

Madoc Carnival Is This Weekend

MADOC (Special) — Final plans are being made for this weekend's annual Winter Carnival.

A full slate of events, beginning with Thursday night's crowning of the Snow Queen, has been scheduled.

Friday afternoon, February 16, area - participating contests will take place at both the public and secondary schools with trophies being presented to the winners. Finals, closed and torch carriers promise an even bigger kick-off parade early that evening, followed by an old-timers hockey game between Madoc and Tweed. A come-as-you-are dance in the Rkwards Centre featuring John Murphy's Orchestra will include official opening ceremonies for the Carnival.

Saturday morning events get under way at the Arena with a Novice Hockey Tournament. Meanwhile, Junior Girls' Volleyball and Midget Boys' Basketball Tournaments will be held at CHSS. The Eastern Star is preparing a hot roast luncheon for that day. The afternoon events include the Carnival Bizaar and Craft Show at the Rkwards Centre and a Dart and Cribbage Tournament in the Legion. The Orange Association is catering a turkey dinner from five o'clock. Saturday evening a dance is scheduled to take place in the Legion Hall.

Sunday morning's annual Pancake Breakfast in the Rkwanis Centre will again be served.

The afternoon's Snowmobile Races at the fairgrounds have a new attraction this year — the Centre Hastings Cup — which will be presented to the over-all winner. The firemen's booth of hot drinks and snacks will be on the grounds.

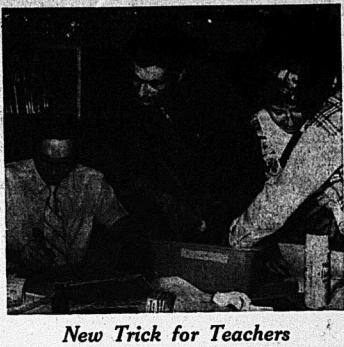
Sunday evening a show by The Singing Post Family in the Kiwanis Centre will wind up the weekend activities.

Firemen Tested

TRENTON — Four volunteer firemen, applying for the one vacant permanent position with the town fire department, are writing tests for the job this week, Fire Chief Cecil Ellis said Tuesday.

Several weeks ago when council authorized the hiring of a man to fill the vacancy left by retirement of Gerald Lewis, Chief Ellis said the volunteer firemen would be given first chance at the job. If none were interested or successful with the tests, advertisements would be made.

Duties of each of the prospective full-time firemen will be tested on their knowledge of the layout of streets and access routes available when responding to fire calls, positions of fire hydrants, operation of vehicles and all firefighting equipment. A written test will be given a written aptitude test.



If a choice is made, Chief Ellis says the name of the next regular fireman should be known within the next few weeks.

Youth Fined

A youth was fined $100 by Provincial Court Judge J. L. Henderson on Tuesday for smashing an office door at Belleville Collegiate Institute and removing the screws from a cupboard door.

Robert Cunningham, 17, of 217 Dufferin Ave., told city police he was looking for a camera.

He was arrested at 8.30 p.m. on Jan. 25. Judge Clendenning ordered him to pay the school $29 for damages.

New Trick for Teachers

What do ministry of education consultants do when they teach teachers new tricks, such as how to make their own color transparencies for overhead projectors without expensive equipment. R. H. Crighton of the ministry demonstrated the technique called color lifting to grade 8 teachers at St. Michael's Academy yesterday. The process involves placing thin plastic sheets over colored magazine illustration and scrubbing off the paper and its clay filler, leaving the colored inks on the plastic. Transparencies prepared this way cost about 7 cents apiece.

Second Jailed In Fraud

A Belleville youth who pleaded guilty to possessing a stolen tape recorder and attempting to use someone else's credit card was sentenced to 15 months in reformatory Tuesday in provincial court.

William Sweet, 18, had been in custody since Dec. 22, three days after he and a girl friend tried to pick up a guitar and amplifier they ordered from Simpsons - Sears by credit card in the name of Mrs. Fred Brooks.

The girl, 17 - year - old Mrs. Eileen Marie Graham, was sentenced to one year in reformatory last week for uttering cheques and credit cards worth more than $1,100.

The tape recorder, valued at $52.45 was discovered in Sweet's room at the City Hotel Dec. 21. It had been obtained from Eaton's via another stolen credit card.

Sweet was still on probation for a theft conviction in April, 1971, when he appeared Tuesday. In November, 1971, he was sent to reformatory after police caught him with a stolen car.

Referees' Job Lonely, Exacting Profession

PICTON — Supervisor of referees for the National Hockey League, Davey McLeod of Kingston, yesterday told Picton Rotarians the closely played Canada - Russia hockey series last year surprised many Canadians who were convinced "we were the only ones who could play this game.

"We went with our heads in the sand," said Mr. McLeod, noting that hockey today is played 90 countries of the world.

He added that the game is growing "by leaps and bounds" and referred to "fabulous coliseums" now being built throughout North America.

The hockey coach for the Kingston Aces (or eight years, Mr. McLeod said he predicted the outcome of the Canada - Russia game series.

In his work with the NHL, Mr. McLeod coaches game officials using video tapes and notes. He explained to Rotarians that in an arena referees and linesmen represent "the only three sane people there" since they are impartial in the game.

A chart of each official's performance is plotted during games and his reactions under pressure are recorded. His game can be discussed fairly and objectively through this scientific method.

"We have 42 members, the biggest group in the NHL," said Mr. McLeod.

He explained that officials can never be right in the opinions of all players and fans and they must travel alone without an opportunity "to let off steam" among teammates.

Today's officials work harder than their counterparts of the early nineteen hundreds. In 1917 referees and linesmen in the NHL worked 22 games in contrast with the 78 or more matches played today. More than 180 games are played in playoffs.

The official skates steadily for over two hours while the player is relieved periodically by teammates. The intense concentration required by players for short periods is demanded from officials throughout the entire game.

When Mr. McLeod spoke of junior hockey, he commented that registration in the CHA is now 500,000, a sharp increase from past years.

The speaker is a former hockey player and is widely experienced as a coach and official. He was head of the physical education department at the Royal Military College in Kingston for 11 years and coached the Kingston Aces hockey team for eight years.

Canadian Educational Materials on Display

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Ontario's ministry of education is committed to a buy-Canadian approach in basic learning aids — books, filmstrips, records, charts and posters!

So it's doing something practical about it.

For the first three days of this week, about 1,000 items of Canadian curriculum material has been on display in the auditorium of St. Michael's School. It has been collected by the ministry, evaluated by its specialists in each subject, and sent around the province in 72 boxes for teachers to see.

When they discover how much brighter, attractive Canadian material is available, teachers will buy Canadian, the ministry hopes.

Showing off the array of R. H. Crighton, curriculum consultant in learning methods with some 9 of the ministry of education in Kingston.

It all began two years ago, he says, when officials explored the limited supply of Canadian material available for school libraries, for supplementary reading, and for illustrating lessons. The ministry invited all publishers and manufacturers of school, library and church materials in all categories for school use. It supported the 8,000 items now in Belleville and sent them on the 72 items of "school" inspection. A catalogue, listing all the items sent to each of the other in the province, and another, expanded edition is expected soon.

But a book list isn't as effective as hitting teachers in the eye with bright posters and film shows and multi-hued dust jackets. Or wooing them with sweetly sung Canadian folk music.

Items available go as high as $300 for a box of materials on the plains Indians prepared by the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education. A study in contrasts is the reprint of old Ontario school readers in use as recently as about 40 years ago. Published originally with a subsidy from the provincial government, they cost from 10 to 25 cents. The reprints are priced from $1 to $2.

In history, geography and English, almost a full line of Canadian materials is available. In other fields the supply dries off, with the greatest scarcity evident in materials for the kindergarten to grade 3 level.

Bright as the scene may look when all Canadian offerings are gathered together, is still room for improvement.

Take posters for example. A vivid series on Eskimo life in the high Arctic is available for classroom decoration, courtesy of the National Film Board.

But when you consider the wealth of film board productions available, it seems too bad it hasn't blown more pictures up into posters on every subject," says Mr. Crighton.

Film loops are something else. A continuous length of film, it projects a round - and round and round again series of images on a screen. The purpose is apparently repetitive visual drills on the subject at hand. But at $25 a loop, teachers should not buy a van for every room, Mr. Crighton feels many subjects available on film loop are valueless.

"Film loops are marvellous to show time-lapse sequences on a flower unfolding or a seed sprouting or a stalled sport being played, but $22 - worth of the world revolving on its axis is open to question."

Relief Pickets Now Available

Loneliness on the picket line was recalled by members of the Quinte District Labor Council last night when they passed a motion which will provide relief pickets for striking locals.

The motion established a committee under council president Doug Sweet that will assess the need for relief pickets in a particular case, then contact volunteers from other locals. Art Stapley, president of Local 64 at Wilson Concrete Products Ltd. and Gordon Young, past-president of Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd.' Local 508, Trenton, are the other members of the special committee.

The move was seen partly as a morale-booster for a striking local and partly as a practical measure in cases where a few employees were in a position of having to maintain a picket line over extended periods without relief.

Military Museum

At a time when history, to mention only one traditional — and in our view, vital subject of school study — is receiving less emphasis, it is encouraging to observe the establishment of a military museum in Belleville.

Canada has served the cause of freedom uniquely in both war and peace, in the latter context especially because of its role in world trouble spots, from Suez to the Congo and Cyprus — and now Vietnam. While peace is the objective, it has not been without price, as not only Canadians but British and Americans know. Thus while we would like to see war outlawed, the lessons of history tell us that this is not always possible. Imperialist designs and disputes over sovereignty, not to mention considerations of prestige, have set men and societies at odds since time began.

However circumstances have now changed somewhat. We cannot afford any more full-scale confrontations. Nuclear war, that is, between the super powers, would end our civilization. Former British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan put it this way: "War, happily, has become too dangerous." He was speaking of the balance of (nuclear) terror and we hope his premise continues to retain its validity. As we said, there would be no second chance.

But to get back to the military museum here. Based at the Armory, headquarters of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, it will be a tribute to those who fought and died, as well as a historical record of which the community of Belleville as a whole can be proud. Actually, the regiment has had a museum of its own for more than a decade and it is to be the basis for development of this new expanded and permanent display. Linking us with the past, its significance is also of the present and future. This is the meaning of history. We may hope to see war no more, but nor can the sacrifices of the past be ignored. The museum is tangible recognition of our patriotism, and concern for freedom which, as ever, requires eternal vigilance and, when there is no alternative, a willingness to take up arms and fight.

Home at Last

The return of the first group of United States prisoners from Vietnam has been a time of high emotion for everyone, even for those of us witnessing it from a distance.

Perhaps the single most significant impression gained is the confirmation of man's resilience, his triumph over himself and against odds, his ability to stand in the evil day.

In the return of these men we have seen the substance of faith in bodies that still look remarkably firm, yet nevertheless are hard shaves of their former selves. Strong though their spirits are, it will be some time yet before both body and mind will adapt to the new and changed circumstances.

We have witnessed also men whose patriotism and love of country remain undimmed. The "God Bless America" of the first officer captive down the ramps of the aircraft in the Philippine Islands does not only the absence of any brainwashing while in captivity, but serves also to place in proper perspective the shrill cries of those who denigrated their country from the safety of home during this most difficult period in U.S. history.

'Power' Game

Members of a women's group meeting in Houston, Texas, recently were interviewed by the media and almost without exception they spoke of the need for women to organize. The word "power" kept cropping up and we are reminded of the words of Lord Acton, that "power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely." Is this what women want?

Labor Allies With Fine Gael

Lynch Faces Coalition Opponents In Irish Election

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The main issue in the Irish general election campaign is boiling down to whether residents of the republic are more concerned over the situation in Northern Ireland or the bread-and-butter problems pinching their pocketbooks.

Prime Minister Jack Lynch appears to have caught the opposition napping by an election Feb. 28, at least several months earlier than generally anticipated.

To catch up, the Fine Gael and Labor parties have rushed through a coalition agreement and implied they intend to mount a unified attack on Lynch's handling of domestic issues such as soaring living costs, unemployment and threatened industrial layoffs.

Although skeptics question how long and how well the hasty coalition will work, its existence already has tarnished somewhat the optimistic glow that surrounded Lynch's Fianna Fail party when he took everybody by surprise with his election announcement Monday.

All three parties are moderate on the Ulster problem, but Lynch supporters credit him with keeping the troubles from spreading south while also at least appearing to have won the confidence of the British government.

He obviously is banking on the majority of voters opting for stability and continuity of government in the current crisis and is appealing for a "clear and unmistakable mandate."

On the economic side, Lynch during the campaign will make much of the new United States capital investments he signed up during his recent U.S. visit and is be benefits expected to accrue to Ireland and through Common Market membership.

But the coalition aims to talk directly to housewives and workers who are feeling the strain of inflation.

Incredible as it may seem to outsiders, many of the republic feel somewhat remote from the Ulster violence while daily rubbing with a cost of living which is considerably higher than in Britain although averages incomes are lower.

This issue could hit a responsive cord, some observers suggest, particularly if coalition leaders can convince voters that they can handle the Ulster problem at least equally as well as Lynch.

Although the differences between Fine Gael and Labor are not great on most issues, they do come to the parting of the ways on the socialists' devotion to nationalization and on some foreign issues such as Common Market membership, which Labor opposed.

On political grounds, there are several issues that could arise to make this an unhappy marriage. Labor has within its ranks a number of hardline republicans whose broad support for the illegal Provisional Irish Republican Army would alienate most of the Fine Gael.

And in rural areas, where Fine Gael draws much of its support, there are rumblings of dissatisfaction over any alliance which Labor, the feeling has it, the Fine Gael would take on Lynch alone, and fall if necessary, rather than resort to a union with the socialists.

If these problems can be resolved or held in check, however, and the coalition mounts a solid campaign, the election result might be exactly what leaders in Ulster, Britain and the republic dread most—a minority government without a clear mandate to take firm control.

Politics Compounds Penn Central's Problems

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — Backpassing and squeeze plays were rife last week as Congress put a quick halt to a strike that had closed down the big, bankrupt Penn Central Railroad.

The issues—and the stakes—were larger than they seemed on the surface.

The strike was ostensibly over a decision by Penn Central to reduce the number of brakemen on each of its freight trains to one from two. But a larger issue is the desire of Penn Central and other major railways to force Congress and the White House to come to grips with the railways' financial problems.

Since neither the president nor the Congress has shown any great desire to grab hold of the railway dilemma, the backpassing started. Congress seems to have won. The issue rests with the White House.

The bill which sent Penn Central back to work for 90 days also calls on President Nixon to produce a pair of reports, the first dealing with the immediate issue of crew size and the other with the more crucial question of the future of American railways.

The Congress which created the railway mess into the president's lap is th one which raised a storm of complaint in recent months about its loss of prestige and authority to the White House.

The railways want more freedom not only to reduce crew sizes but also to abandon unprofitable services.

Crew reductions are being fought by the railway unions and service cuts by communities affected. In both cases, the railways say, federal red tape contributes to their problems.

Penn Central, which has run up deficits of $810 million since it went bankrupt nearly three years ago, would have received only about $20 million in the first year of its program reducing the number of train brakemen.

Its trustees say they would save much more by abandoning nearly 3 000 miles of the line's 20 000 miles of track.

Levy have also requested between $600 million and $800 million in federal subsidies. The alternative, they say, may be a total shutdown of operations under which the government owns the right-of-way and Penn Central operates the trains.

At a time when the president has proposed cuts in federal spending on a wide range of anti-poverty and other social programs and when Congress is threatening to limit federal spending, the idea of "bailing out" another big corporation has little political sizzle for the White House or the legislators.

Today In History

The most spectacularly violent single crime of Chicago's lawless years occurred 44 years ago today — in 1929 — when Al Capone's gang perpetrated the St. Valentine's Day massacre. Seven members of the rival O'Bannion mob were lined up against a garage and mowed down by gun-fire.

1922 — Iraq and Jordan formed a federation under the Arab Union to counter the emergence of Egypt and Syria as the United Arab Republic.

1928 — The Soviet Union and Communist China signed their first exchange pact, including a 30-year treaty of alliance. Japan called it a betrayal aid.

1952 — The first telephone conversation between Montreal and Vancouver took place.

1959 — Oregon became the 33rd state to join the United States.

Communication and Language Use

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

As a still idealistic teacher of English, I identified very closely with and favorably viewed the comments made by Mr. Alan Deacon circa February 5. The ability and further, the desire of the average senior student to communicate his thoughts in a concise and logical manner is deplorable and thereby of concern among the o ahe profess fo be educators

However, I disagree with his thesis that fault lies entirely with the Ministry of Education.

The blithe acceptance of the mediocre and the "adequate" in students' expressions of overall success is not a new trend in our society and the problem has come full circle and is repeating upon itself. As an example: I suggest that a high-school graduate, ill-trained in the basics of the English language, who specializes in subjects unrelated to English at post-secondary level, graduates f i n university and/or Teacher's College" still deficient in language skills. If safety is the case, we have reached the stage where mediocrity teaches mediocrity.

The concept of excellence has virtually disappeared and for this, fault lies not only with the Ministry of Education but also with teachers and outright alike. Education is no longer viewed as a privilege but a right. The belief that "all students have a right to education" is an improper one. Students have a right to education only insofar as they recognize, appreciate and respect the significance and availability of it.

For the majority of students, the learning process ceases in the present; it is a day - to - day experience rather than a cumulative one which will have ultimate bearing on their future. The immediate pursuit of marks has taken precedence over long - range, general knowledge to be assimilated and reapplied and this fact is evident in all disciplines.

I believe that our society as a whole is endangered if we lose the concept of an educated elite. There is, or always should be an example to be set. Perhaps the "Just Society" has been misinterpreted to mean a society of mediocrity wherein students argue, and to some extent they are right, that the use of the vernacular as a mode of expression, as opposed to formal English style, is predominant and therefore more relevant and applicable to their ability to communicate. They read it, hear it, therefore they attribute their complacent approbe towards the pursuit of excellence and the need to strive for its own sake, and worse, said connotation has been recognized and excused by educators.

I suggest as an antidote, an immediate re-examination and re-evaluation of values and ambitions on the part of students and of standards of academic achievement on the part of educators, backed up by a definite and consistent statement of goals by the Ministry of Education.

Such a need is eminently apparent and disregard of it will indeed reduce us to a nation of semi-illiterate sheep's...

Jobless Insurance

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The unemployment insurance scheme is a humane and much needed piece of legislation administered, for the most part by dedicated and concerned civil servants.

However, claimants and civil servants alike are victims of the most inefficient, outdated and totally inadequate administrative system ever perpetuated in the history of Canada.

Frequently, long suffering claimants are kept waiting for two months while their claims stagnate in a cauldron of bureaucratic confusion.

Most of the complaints that were the subject of so much anger, frustration, and distress, are still rampant, and can only be resolved, ultimately, by direct intervention by a member of parliament.

With all its so-called expertise the UIC should be able to answer any enquiry within a matter of hours. Instead, weeks run into months, and often in the middle is compounded until the article is no longer recognizable.

A member of parliament is in a position for more important reasons than having to intimidate and embarrass Canada's biggest and most inefficient bureaucracy into honouring legitimate entitlements on time.

The time is here for a complete and immediate re-organization of the clerical system presently in use by the UIC and it appears time to remove entrenched incompetents from authority.

Four-lane Road Urged

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — A new four-lane highway linking Toronto to Peterborough has been recommended in a study prepared by the ministry of transportation and communications.

Ministry officials said that the 76-page report is the general concept of provincial planning for the next 20 years.

The highway will be known as Highway 407 and will follow the general route of Highway 7 to Highway 12 and extend east to the junction of Highways 35 and 115. From there it will follow Highway 115 to Peterborough.

The recommendation was made in a 20-year regional plan and is based on a study that began in 1966 by the former provincial highways department.

John Turner, Conservative member of the legislature for Peterborough, said he has not heard of the recommendation but is delighted by the proposal. Peterborough is about 15 miles northeast of Toronto.

Toronto Asks Action To Lower Lake Level

TORONTO (CP) — The To-LXC. said Lake Ontario is four feet higher than normal and damage is being done to shoreline areas.

Mr. Thomson said that at the same time, "the waters in Montreal harbor are nearly five feet below the recorded average for this time of year."

"It would appear that control structures are being used to hold back the outflow from Lake Ontario during a high-water period and following an abnormally high rainfall in the month of December.

The letter also asks the LXC to "arrange for constant liaison with affected agencies and groups to assist the International St. Lawrence River Board Control in understanding the magnitude of the problems created by high water levels."

Peacekeeping Is Called Case of National Vanity

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is ministering to national vanity by sending a "so-called peacekeeping force" to Vietnam, Senator Grattan O'Leary (PC—Ontario) said Tuesday night in the Senate.

"I don't believe these people will do any good," he said. Nor did he believe the government could bring them back after the 60-day trial period is over. Senator O'Leary spoke during debate on Canadian participation in the Vietnam ceasefire observer force.

Elevator Man's Car Damaged

HAMILTON (CP) — The wife of an elevator company supervisor discovered Tuesday that acid or another corrosive liquid was poured on her car.

Anonymous telephone callers informed city news media that damage had been done to the car and news media representatives informed the woman.

Norma Lutzsan said:

"The chrome is off the back bumper now and the paint is eaten through on the trunk."

Her husband Charles is an employee of Otis Elevator Co. and is agong supervisory workers repairing elevators.

Otis is one of five companies involved in a six-month strike by the International Union of Elevator Constructors.

A Hamilton investigation firm has been supplying men since last Friday to accompany emergency elevator repair crews on their rounds.

Steward Fitzgerald, owner of Central Investigation Bureau, said Tuesday four of his employees are involved. They are not armed.

"Our men have been instructed if there are any incidents not to get involved," said Mr. Fitzgerald.

A senior official with the elevator company involved said he did not want his company's name revealed. He said the move is designed to act as a deterrent against incidents of violence against the service men. He said the investigators could act as witnesses to any incidents.

Earlier this month, three elevator company supervisors were beaten in two separate incidents in Hamilton.

Some PoWs Will Find Mates Gone

NEW YORK (AP) — A few of the returning United States prisoners of war will find that freedom has a bittersweet taste.

The wives of at least two of the men released Monday from North Vietnamese and Viet Cong prison camps have got divorces; a third started separation proceedings but decided to hang on a while longer.

Mrs. Garland Kramer of Tulsa, Okla., disclosed Tuesday that she had obtained a divorce last June from her husband, an air force captain shot down in January, 1967. The divorce was granted in Tulsa on the grounds of incompatibility.

"I knew I couldn't go back," she said. "We've grown apart."

She explained the divorce in a special letter she sent to the air force for delivery to Kramer after his release.

She said that, when he left for Vietnam, she had been "neat and docile" but, since then, has studied politics, religion and been active in school and with their two children, Todd, 9, and Cynthia, 8.

"I felt it would be difficult for us to be together," she said.

Also facing a divorce is Cmdr. Everett Alvarez of Santa Clara, Calif., shot down Aug. 5, 1964, the first U.S. pilot captured in the Vietnam war.

Two years ago, Alvarez's wife, Tegare, obtained a divorce and remarried.

"I just fell out of love with Everett," she said last October when the divorce was revealed.

Brakes Bad

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport ministry announced Tuesday Canadian owners of 1,500 United States-made 1973 Fords have been sent notice of a possible brake defect.

The ministry said within the next few days the owners will receive registered letters informing them of the possible defect in the front brakes and telling them their vehicles should be examined by a dealer.

Still Tied

PICKERING, Ont. (CP) — A Supreme Court of Ontario decision Tuesday left two candidates for reeve of this village still tied 308 votes each.

The court rejected an appeal by Victor Dingley, one of the candidates, against two of the ballots cast for his opponent.

Village Clerk Ward Irwin has responsibility for breaking the deadlock which has existed since a judicial recount Dec. 21.

He said that as soon as he receives official notice of how the case stands he will put the names of both candidates in a hat and draw one who will become reeve.

Horticulturist Answers: Plants Don't Respond

Dear Ann Landers: As a horticultural scientist I am pleased to note the current interest of your readers in human environment. I am concerned, however, about the number of readers who buy the idea that plants respond to human emotions, such as love and hostility.

I refer specifically to the letter from the Michigan woman who reported a luxuriant response to her heretofore scraggly house plants after she moved them near the phone so they could get in on the conversations. She said it helped them feel "included and loved."

There is no scientific evidence that plants respond to affection, but we do know that most house plants thrive at a moderately warm temperature and a relatively high humidity with good light. This letter is not intended as a short course on growing house plants, Ann, but rather an attempt to explain why Mrs. Michigan's plants did better when she moved them near the telephone.

Chances are that there is a light near the phone, and that her phone is in or near the kitchen, thus providing some warmth and humidity from cooking vapors. Moreover, since she probably uses the phone frequently, Mrs. Michigan sees her plants on a regular basis and waters them more faithfully.

You are free to publish my letter but do so anonymous, please. My office is not staffed to answer a flood of letters from your readers. If anyone wishes to debate, refute or support my statements—or if they want more information, suggest that they write to their state university or to the United States Department of Agriculture in Washington, D.C.—No Name No Address

Dear No No: Thanks for a good letter. My lips are sealed. I plan to write to you for a little help from time to time. My answerteria and philodendron are not doing very well and I might be needing some professional advice.

Dear Ann Landers: What would you say about a couple who has been married five years and all they do is pass and bang on in each other? She has to kiss him goodbye when she leaves for the bathroom.

After observing this couple carefully, I have figured out that the wife is the aggressor. He goes along with her nonsense because he doesn't want to embarrass her. I've come to the conclusion that she is a very insecure person and she clings to her husband because she's afraid he might get into a conversation with another female.

Shall I tell her she is making herself look ridiculous and to cut it out—at least when they are in our home?—Upcleaning in Idaho

Dear Up: You can' tell adults how to behave in your home. If you don't like their antics, don't invite them.

Dear Ann Landers: For three years I went with a girl who promised to change her ways and her religion for me. I gave her an engagement ring that set me back quite a bit of money. It wasn't long after that I realized she would not make a very good wife. I broke the engagement and asked her to return the ring. She said she had earned the ring and has no intention of returning it. What do you think about such grubbiness?—Splitsville, Ohio

Dear Splitsville: See a lawyer. In all probability he will tell you that when the man breaks the engagement the woman gets to keep the ring.

Watch Animals for Hours To Make Clay Statues

LONDON (CP) — Modelling animals in clay has been a life work for Doris Lindner and now some of the objets d'art she has created are worth thousands of pounds.

Her latest work, created in her combined studio and home in the Cotswolds, is a plate showing Brigadier Gerard, one of the greatest British racehorses of the century, in a limited edition in silver and gold.

Now in her 70th year, Miss Lindner learned her art early and she still spends hours watching animals in the zoo and capture them in clay. Because of her work on animals in portcelain, bronze, stone, silver and gold, she has been described as the St. Francis of art.

Her first models were a series of dog portraits and studies of a fox and hound. Next came a series of now-famous equestrian models which included those going to the post and Pole Players.

In 1947 she produced her most famous work and the first of a string of limited edition models of Queen Elizabeth in the uniform of Colonel-in-Chief of the Grenadier Guards riding Tommy. This model, designed by royal command, set a new style and scale for Miss Lind ;r's work. At the time of the Coronation in 1953 Miss Lindner produced an equestrian statue of the young queen for the front of Selfridges, the department store in London.

She will take pictures of a horse standing, trotting, cantering and jumping until she is satisfied that she has a record of all the anatomical peculiarities to supplement her memory.

"Nobody can watch four legs at the same time or the way the tail is held at a certain moment," she says.

Only when she thoroughly knows the animal and can vix unlice it as an individual does she set to work on the next stage. This is a first likeness in modelling clay.

Her work steadily increases in value. A limited edition figure by Miss Lindner priced at 10g (about $240) in 1967 now fetches £,300 in the London salerooms. In the course of her work Miss Lindner has travelled widely—to Texas to gather material on champion cattle, to Canada to collect information for her model of a Royal Canadian Mounted Policeman and to Australia to model the Charolais bull.

Now she lives in the village of Broad Campden, in a cottage surrounded by horses, cattle and dogs—living representatives of the statues that have brought her fame.

'Off-White' Looks Win Redhead 1973 Fashion Designer's Award

Redhead fashion designer, John Warden, who colors his fashion lines — he says — always to go with his flaming hair, was totally surprised at winning the Canadian "Designer of the Year" award by the US fashion press in New York.

Mr. Warden, a native of Niagara Falls, Ontario, summed up his look: "Definitely on the off-whites. Off-white is the most elegant color in the whole world. It's not white — white becomes off-white when it's dirty.

"I believe strictly in elegance now. It's not Great Gatsby — I don't know anything about Great Gatsby. I'm not nostalgic at all. I don't like copying things — it's not me."

JOHN WARDEN, voted by more than 100 US fashion editors as the first recipients of the Melchers Award for Canadian Designer of the Year, creates a super-sophisticate look under the Beverisi label in Montreal.

The Canadian designers play to the many moods of a woman—from super - sophisticated to sexy to sportive. The unifying thought — spirited, young-thinking clothes — each designer giving his or her own look. The clothes move . . . softly, fluidly, easily, comfortably. Lots of elastic or drawstring waists and short, baseball jackets focus on the waist and the derriere. The well - coordinated, color - matching theme prevails. . . . while cardigan jackets over halter-neck or shirt tops with pants or skirts, long or to-the-knee for greater movement . . . tennis sweaters and cardigan jackets as toppers . . . a short, tenty coat coverup in leather. Shirtdresses and long, cut-out-back, from halter to square, cater to the super-feminine whims.

The event served to point up the growing importance of Canadian fashions. . . . A country whose clothes exports were only 113 million ten years ago and last year jumped to a record 325 million.

Discrimination On Campus

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An unreleased federal report indicates the University of California has discriminated against women in its campus at Berkeley near here, the San Francisco Chronicle reported.

The newspaper said the report, prepared by the U.S. department of health, education and welfare, shows some evidence women faculty members pay than men for the same socio-academic positions.

As evidence of restricted access, the report cites the small proportion of women in the Berkeley academic senate, which includes regular full-time faculty, the Chronicle said.

Berkeley Chancellor Albert Bowker has refused to release the report on grounds it was under "confidential study" by the administration, the newspaper reported.

Condensing Time Brings Mind-boggling Facts

By DORIS CLARK

If we were to condense all of the time down to 50 years, scientists tell us the following startling facts:

1. Ten years ago man stepped living it cavity.

2. Five years ago picture writing started.

3. Two years ago Christian-ity came into being.

4. Six months ago the printing press was inverted.

5. Yesterday the Wright Brothers flew their first plane.

7. Television was invented since this morning.

8. Jets came into being 10 minutes ago. — Doreleo, reproduced from Farmer's Almanac 1973.

* * *

Dear Doris: I married without finishing high school and now regret not having some vocation I could fall back on if necessary. I long to go back to school.

But my trouble is. I have a baby just one and a half. There is a woman who would live in and take care of my baby for the school year. Do you think my absence every day would have a harmful effect on a child of that age? — Undecided.

Dear Undecided: Every baby has can tell the difference between mother and mother substitute. And it can give your boy the loving care he needs from you, when you're not home (we hope). There will be homework, you know, and I still haven't mentioned what it takes out of a woman to keep house — and it's not a bit. Right on! Baby needs you; could react adversely to not having you around. I have seen small children develop skin rashes or become silent and withdrawn.

There are times when the economics of a situation makes it necessary for a mother to work. If you don't have to work and feel that you are getting an education in homemaking right now, it will make the good of it.

Dear Doris: I hav what I believe to be an older violin. The following is written on the inside of this instrument: Antonius Stradivarius Cremonensis. Faciebat Anno 1715. made in Czechoslovakia.

I would like to sell this violin as no one in the family plays it, but think it should have some idea of its value. — Stradivarius?

Dear Stradivarius? There are got - rich - quick fakers, and many "Stradivarius" violins which never saw the man or even the century in which he worked.

But there are also professional antique and connoisseurs locatable through our Canadian Department of Customs and Excise. The Department often has to identify genuine articles coming into the country. Any local office can steer you right.

Other sources might be the music department of your university, your Royal College of Music branch, or the Curator, Royal Ontario Museum, 100 Queen's Park, Toronto, Ontar.

(Talking it over helps. Write to Doris for help with your difficulties, care of this newspaper.)

Canadian Bakers Celebrate 'Vitamin Enrichment' Anniversary

TORONTO — This year the bakers of Canada celebrate the 30th anniversary of the vitamin enrichments of flour and bread.

The introduction of vitamin deficiencies among Canadians, and the long-term benefits to the national health were described by Roland Larriviere, president of Bread Research Council of Canada on the 20th anniversary of the enrichment measure: "It was Feb. 2, 1953, that white bread, traditionally one of the world's basic foods became even more important — for it now met that Canadian law allowed the enrichment of white bread with three essential B vitamins plus the important mineral, iron.

"Today, 20 years later, there are still thousands of food products on supermarket shelves, but you would have to hunt hard to find products that offer the nutritional advantages of enriched bread," he said. The history of vitamin enrichment and the part it has played and continues to play in promoting better nutrition is of real importance to all Canadians."

Mr. Larriviere recalled that it was in 1941 that Canadian nutritionists recommended the production of a more nutritive flour and bread. "The decision was to try and use a no longer extraction flour rather than enrichment designed to increase vitamin levels. This was the beginning of 'Canada Approved' flour. However, later events showed that bread made with this type of flour did not have public acceptance. It failed because color consistency was hard to maintain. Also, baking qualities were more difficult to control and the flour itself presented storage problems.

"In 1944, Newfoundland adopted the compulsory enrichment of flour with B vitamins and iron, and the further addition of margarine with vitamin A as a public health measure. Mr. Larriviere said that to prove the wisdom of such a step, Newfoundland government then invited 11 International Commissions from Canada, England and the United States to make a nutritional survey of the Newfoundland population. "This survey has produced valuable medical conclusions particularly riboflavin, associated with cataracts, and vitamin A and, to a lesser degree, thiamine and niacin. Evidence of vitamin deficiency diseases were encountered in the majority of the people examined.

"Finally, to determine exactly the effect of the enrichment program, a second nutrition survey was made four years later. All but two of the original findings returned and re-examined the same number of people more than the first which had been checked previously. The symptoms of vitamin A, thiamine, riboflavin and niacin deficiencies were tremendously reduced. The value of vitamin enrichment was established beyond a doubt. Bakers and millers of Canada set this scientific evidence in front of them began urging Canada as government authorities to allow the voluntary vitamin enrichment of white flour and bread.

Mr. Larriviere pointed out that the vitamin enrichment program had been carried so well that upon Newfoundland's entry into the Canadian Confederation in 1949, a special clause was inserted in the union terms by the government of Newfoundland to protect this public health policy. It was on Sept. 15, 1952, that Newfoundland flour regulations making the vitamin enrichment of white flour compulsory in the young province.

Enriched bread has been used in the United States since the beginning of the Second World War. Today, Mr. Larriviere said, "99 per cent of all white bread sold in Canada and in the United States is made from vitamin enriched flour."

Sweetheart 'Tussie-mus sies' For Valentine's Day Flowers

Valentine's Day is just one special day each year for everyone to show with a gift, flowers or a card, their care for a loved one.

Valentine's Day flowers, are springy messengers of love which continue to say those three words for days.

In days of old, Victorian gentlemen used the special language of flowers to send "love letters' to their sweetsies". these 'letters' were nosegays of flowers and herbs grouped around one symbolic blossom and set in a filigree holder or framed in a lace paper doily.

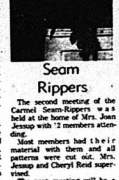
Typical "tussie - mussie" contents — and some of their meaning are: a red tulip, a declaration of love

—A yellow hyacinth — the heart demands other incense than flattery;

— a pearl — fairest of the young

—A daffodil — please return my affection!

—Cinnamon — my fortune is yours;



—a crocus — happiness

—a buttercup — wealth.

Flower conversations exist for sweethearts.

An entire conversation flourishes, when lovers follow the ancient rules. Touching a bloom to the lips means 'yes', while pinching off a petal and tossing it away replies 'no'. Bending a flower to the left implies 'I am sad' and tilting it to the right means 'thou art thee'. Touching a leaf indicates 'love'.

Valentine's Day is becoming more popular each year. Women are still the Number One buyers. Valentine flower arrangements of roses, mums, tulips, irises, daffodils, snapdragons, are the most popular flower arrangements sold.

Seam Rippers

The second meeting of the Carmel Seam-Rippers was held at the home of Mrs. Joan Young with 7 members attending.

Most members had their material with them and all patterns were cut out. Mrs. Jessup and Cheryl Bird supervised.

The next meeting will be a sewing session.

For this special day for lovers and those close, 'lovebunches' and 'love-you-much's' can be made for your dear one.

Carol Lott, a flower designer at Templer's, said that there is a rose shortage this year for Valentine Day floral arrangements.

But the other flowers available in springy colors still provide a wide variety for floral gifts.

Potted plants are also very popular according to Mrs. Lott. The prices vary from $3.98 to $15. Now that spring is so near, the flower shop business will increase. Easter, and the most popular Mother's Day attract more flower buyers for spring.

Anti-"Women's Lib" League States Male Superior in Family Unit

"I will acknowledge male supremacy." That is the first commandment of the guidelines for married set up by the International "Anti-Women's Liberation" League.

J.J Jarboe, president of the league recently addressed Sheridan College students in Oakville saying that she believes in equal rights for men and women. The league, formed in November 1971 in California, opposes Women's Liberation organizations and believes women should be women and men should be men.

According to J.J, "liberation" is doing what you want to do when you want to do it. For men and women, freedom is what's mutually agreeable for both husband and wife. The AWLL wants to protect these rights, whereas Women's Liberation wants to take these rights away. For example, it states the said the organization was formed.

As well as insuring individual rights, AWLL is designed to protect and strengthen the family structure. J.J is Board Director of the National Council for the Preservation of the Family. She is a mother of four children and has been married as a model, legal secretary, an actress and businesswoman.

A gold-plated safety pin is the emblem of her organization. But she said the symbol disappeared / when people started referring to it as a diaper pin, instead of "a symbol of the united family."

The league's cornerstone is a list of 10 commandments. The group acknowledges male supremacy as head of the household for the purpose of maintaining order, as the Supreme Court rules over the lower courts.

She explained, "Women are not in competition with our men. We recognize that as a man has his elements or superiority, so has a woman. We acknowledge male supremacy, but this does not place a man above a woman as a god, for our men respect our women." She said she is equal to any man.

AWLL believes in equal pay for equal work, equal job opportunities, equal education and equal hearing before the courts. Mrs. Jarboe said that 39 percent of the women in the U.S. make up the work force. The reason for the pay gap is that women are taking on clerical, domestic, and nursing positions which pull down the figures. Also, she said women have low-paying jobs because they are not as aggressive as men.

Reports of Year Given At Argyll IODE Meeting

Various reports given at the combined general and annual meeting of the Argyll Chapter IODE revealed that educational and community assistance comprised the majority of work done by the chapter.

Members assisted at three blood donor clinics, scholarships were awarded to two high school students and a donation was given to the Central Volunteer Bureau to assist work with handicapped children. A bale of knitted and sewn goods was sent for distribution abroad, among other projects.

Mrs. G. Miller installed the following officers: honorary regent; Mrs. R. Wilbur, honorary past regent; Mrs. B. Milsey, regent. Mrs. F. Sprague, first vice regent; Mrs. M. Smith, second vice regent; Mrs. H. Barkenshaw, secretary; Mrs. A. Duffy, treasurer; Mrs. D. Woodcock, educational secretary; Mrs. F. Till service secretary; Mrs. F. Anderson, citizenship secretary.

Child-beaters Crying Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Little boy in the hospital emergency ward with a toy truck and a broken arm. The child is whimpering softly, his mother is nowhere in sight.

Bill McFarland, assistant director of Vancouver's Children's Aid Society, has seen hundreds of cases. And he is estimated that 99 per cent of British Columbia's child-battering incidents involving injured or beaten toddlers, go unreported to authorities.

The big reason is the complainant is too young to talk — most battered children are under 12 months of age. And Mr. McFarland, a 32-year-old social worker, says he's convinced that almost all infant deaths from child-beating could be avoided if people would only do a little spying and reporting on their neighbors.

Mr. McFarland said: Most of such cases "can be identified much earlier than they are. A lot of abusive parents are just crying out for help and you've got to know how to recognize the cries."

Mr. McFarland, who wrote the child protection legislation for Alberta and Manitoba while working for their welfare departments, said the public's failure to report suspected cases of child-beating is the biggest problem the CAS faces with abusive parents.

"What we try to do is understand what causes them to do it, why they do it. The minute you start concentrating them they get more hostile and more defensive.

The child-beater fits no economic pattern.

"There are cases of doctors and lawyers, people who are outwardly normal and well-adjusted and have normal social lives, who go home and beat up their kids."

Part of the B.C. government's current program to combat child-battering involves preparation and distribution of a profile of traits common to child-beaters.

Mr. McFarland said the profile will aid teachers, social workers and doctors in identifying the child-beater when he brings his child in for treatment of an "accident."

Mr. McFarland pulled a sheaf of pictures out of his desk that he uses at lectures and seminars. A movie make-up man would have a hard time dreaming up some of the injuries.

There's a little girl from California whose mother used to hold her upside down over the toilet bowl and ...

And then, he said, there are "the vegetables" — power-faced children with permanent brain damage—"the ones who weren't lucky enough to die."

But he added that the battered cases are the minority.

"The majority are kids that are just slugged by the father when he's got the black eyes, that sort of thing," he said. "If the kid is just badly burned or bruised they don't normally take him to a doctor. It's that group that you want to hear about."

Another important aspect is that children of abusive parents tend to become child-beaters themselves.

He said that what happens most often in moderate to severe child-beating cases is that the child is taken away from the parents, who then undergo treatment in such a psychiatric or social worker.

"In the vast majority of cases, we try to see that the child is returned to the parents, once they've got their problems straightened out."

He said he hoped the New Democratic Party government in B.C., headed by former welfare minister Dave Barrett, would pass legislation requiring strenuous reporting of suspected child-beating cases.

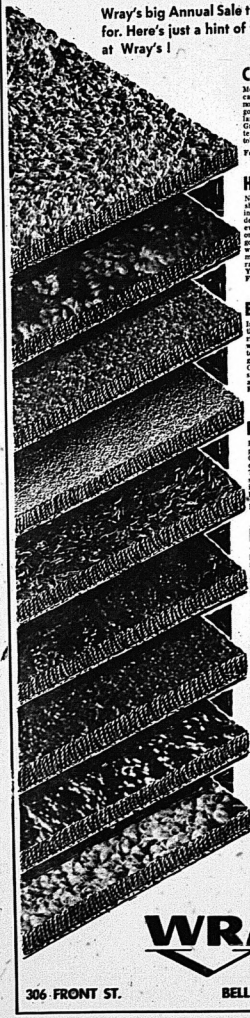
Tories Order Open Public Meetings

TORONTO (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party of Ontario has moved quietly to inject more democracy into the lower levels of the organization.

Unheralded among a mass of business and speechmaking at last weekend's convention was the passage of a resolution ordering the 117 riding associations to hold "open, public and democratic" general meetings.



Riding executives were instructed to draw up constitutions guaranteeing yearly meetings, to give 15 days' notice of meetings and to admit to membership anyone over 16 regardless of race, religion or sex.

"We believe our party is in the hands of an elite and it is time we turned it over to the people," a meeting dealing with constitutional amendments was told by Ralph Bradley of Ontario South constituency.

Vice-president Jack Walker of Windsor, introducing the changes proposed by the party executive, conceded that some riding associations have been "more clubs than political associations."

Roquefort, French, Russian. Whatever you like, you'll love our Sealtest* Creamed Cottage Cheese. You can do a lot of other quick tricks with it too.

Add sour cream with a little horseradish...and you have a delicious dip or salad dressing. Or beat Sealtest Creamed Cottage Cheese in a blender until smooth, mix in some sugar and vanilla, and you've got a terrific dessert topping. Put some canned salmon or tuna in the blender with the cottage cheese, and you've got a delicious sandwich spread.

Try some tricks of your own. Remember, cottage cheese is a good source of protein, so when you make snacks with Sealtest Creamed Cottage Cheese you're not letting your body down.

QUESTION: Have you any details about visiting Curacao and the Dutch West Indies?

ANSWER: Alonso de Ojeda, a lieutenant of Columbus, is credited with discovering Curacao on July 26, 149. Spaniards occupied the island from 1527 until 1634, when they were displaced by the Dutch. Aruba and Bonaire had similar beginnings. After occupation by the British during the Napoleonic wars, the islands were restored to the Netherlands in accordance with the London convention of 1814; Aruba was officially awarded to the Dutch by the Treaty of Paris the following year. The Dutch tropics have been a progressive centre of trade and commerce for over 400 years. In the 17th century the Dutch West Indies Company built salt ponds on Bonaire, and Curacao and Aruba became important spokes in the slave trade wheel. The economic importance of the islands declined when slavery was abolished in 1863, but was restored when oil refineries were established on Curacao in 1915 and on Aruba in 1926.

On the Panama Canal and Caribbean cruise routes and in the midst of the North and South American trade routes, the Netherlands Antilles enjoy a modest prosperity. Willemstad, the capital city, is a bright mosaic of Dutch-gabled homes and gardens where houses come in pastel shades and the citizens speak in many tongues. Generosity here is as contagious as the sunshine.

Cacti, agaves, aloes and other drought-resistant vegetation are evidence of the area's light rainfall, about 22 inches a year. However, brief showers may be expected in November and December. The tropical climate of the Dutch Islands keeps the annual temperature at a comfortable average of 82 degrees, with 70% humidity and a normal variation of 4 degrees. During August and September, when the sun is at its height, the islands' summer heat is moderated by pleasant trade winds from the north-east.

The Dutch islands are excellent shopping centres due to a low import duty of 2.3 percent on nearly all goods. Prices are often lower than in the country of origin. The world's luxury goods are displayed in the shops of the Netherlands Antilles: Brazilian and Argentine leather goods, Portuguese embroideries and laces, Spanish shawls, Irish linen, Panama hats, French perfume, oriental silks and carved ivory, Japanese and German cameras, Swiss watches, Belgian, French, Dutch and Swedish crystal, Italian jewelry and Delft Blue porcelain. Curacao's famous shopping promenades are the Dr. Da Costa Gasenplein and the Heerenstraat in Willemstad. Smart displays, combined with the excitement of a Middle East bazaar, are also found on the Breedestraat and Madurostraat in Punda, the oldest section of Willemstad. Bonaire is famous for its handpainted souvenirs of tortoiseshell, coral, conch shell and paintwood tree. Dutch dolls and a pocketful of "square nickels" also make good souvenirs. Shopping on Aruba centres along Nassaustraat where such local items as colorful floor tiles, Kwibi tree coffee tables and cactus, an anise-flavored liqueur are for sale. Shops are generally open from 8 to noon and 2 to 6 Monday through Saturday.

In Aruba, Curacao and St. Maarten the password to good tasting is "rijstafel" (rice table). This Dutch East Indian feast, served on Aruba's famous houseboat at Paardenbaai, is composed of rice accompanied by 20 to 40 side dishes. Visitors can also dine on the rooftop of a fort in Curacao, in an authentic Dutch windmill in Aruba or picnic-style on Little Bonaire, an uninhabited island 3 miles square off the coast of Bonaire. Curacao is the birthplace of the famous orange-flavored Curacao liqueur and the Caribbean home of Amstel beer. Tap water, distilled from the sea, is safe to drink. A service charge is usually included by most hotels and restaurants; if this is not done, tip 10 to 15 percent.

Willemstad, which serves as the capital of the entire territory of the Netherlands Antilles, also functions as the capital of Curacao.

Curacao's trademark, the swinging pontoon bridge called Queen Emma, spans the mouth of Willemstad harbor. Originally, pedestrians wearing shoes paid two cents to cross the bridge; the barefooted crossed free. Today Queen Emma links the city's two sections, Punda, a vision of old Holland has narrow streets and a shopping promenade, Otrobanda mingles the new with the old, museums with shops.

Before taking a taxi on the island, ask the driver about the fare. Generally in Curacao the average fare is about 40 cents a mile; from Dr. Plesman Airport into Willemstad, the charge is $4. Curacao sightseeing, Bon Bini Tours, Go-Go Tours and Taber Tours offer sightseeing excursions around the island. For all rides in town, taxi fares increase 50 percent between 10 p.m. and midnight and 50 percent higher after midnight. Station wagon fares are lower than taxi fares, but should also be agreed on before the trip. Self-drive European and American sedans or convertibles rent for $8-$12 a day or $35-$60 a week with unlimited mileage; gas is not included and a $20 deposit is required. In Willemstad there is regular quarter-hour service from Wilh'mina Square to Brion Square, as well as hourly departures from both points to the airport, suburbs and villages. Aruba can be easily toured in a day by rented car, taxi or sightseeing bus. In addition, a regular bus service operates between Aruba's beach resort area and Oranjestad. Both Aruba and Curacao have a good system of all-weather roads.

Excursions on Aruba and Bonaire may be taken from their capitals to any scenic spot on the islands. In Bonaire bird-watching expeditions are extremely popular. In Curacao, excursions may be taken to Piscadera Bay beach resort, a 15-minute drive along the coast from Willemstad; to Hato Caves (Devil's Mouth) 55 minutes by car from the capital; or to Hato Caves.

PORTNEUF POTTERY AND OTHER EARLY WARES — J. R. W. Finlayson

Collectors of antique pottery have long been fascinated by the pottery called Portneuf found in Canada and other places. Mr. Finlayson, a Toronto collector, has long been fascinated by this pottery, and some years ago set out to make a notable collection. His quest took him far from the Quebec village of Portneuf to the British Isles. In his book he describes the Portneuf collectors in Canada and provides a history of the pottery industry in Scotland — from which the Portneuf ware actually comes.

EKIMO PRINTS — James Houston

This book is the story of the first Eskimo printmaking. With most of the full color and black and white prints, Mr. Houston supplies a few words about the artist himself, an explanation of the making of the print, some technical details, and often an interpretation of the ancient symbolic legend on which the print is based.

MR. POPS — James Holland

Arthur Fiedler is one of America's most beloved personalities —and one of its most respected conductors. As his soubriquet suggests, he and the Boston Pops Symphony orchestra are practically synonymous. This book is truly a tribute to Arthur Fiedler and a special feature is a number of photographs selected from his family album which provide a rare glimpse into his childhood and early career.

LEWIS AND SYBIL — John Carson

The lifelong partnership of Lewis Casson and Sybil Thorndyke combined many qualities the traditional with the adventurous, the sophisticated with the simple, superb natural endowments of voice, looks and intelligence with a no less superb technique. Their story is written by their son, John Casson, and he portrays the professional theatre as seen by two of its most professional members.

YOUR LOVING ANNA — Louis Tiry (ed.)

In 1831 Anna Leveridge and her family came from England to settle in the backwoods of Ontario. "Your Loving Anna" is a collection of her long letters home — simple quiet letters describing pioneer life in the 1830s and reflecting Anna's warm and courageous personality.

CHARLIE FARQUHARSON'S HISTORY OF CANADA — Don Harron

Nearly everyone is familiar and his own special brand of humor in every subject imaginable. He is Canada's own rural philosopher. In this book he is back on the scene digging into our past — people, places, events, controversies — everything that Charlie happened to come across. The happy outcome is most amusing.

PIONEER GARDENS AT BLACK CREEK PIONEER VILLAGE — Eunetia Langdon.

This is a very beautiful book that has been thoroughly researched. It reveals which plants the Canadian pioneers grew in their gardens, and how they used them. The photographs are lovely and there are pioneer recipes, herbal remedies, paintings and drawings done by pioneers. Mrs. Langdon brings alive an era when people lived close to the land, showing how very important gardens were in Canada's early history.

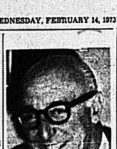
Civilian Prisoners Supported

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp was asked Tuesday to take account M the treatment of civilian prisoners by the South Vietnamese government before deciding Canada's future on the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICSS) in Vietnam.



The plea was contained in a brief presented to Mr. Sharp by representatives of the international committee to free South Vietnafrese political prisoners from detention, torture and death.

George Morrison of Toronto secretary of the general council of the United Church of Canada and spokesman for the group, said Mr. Sharp agreed to take the cause of the civilian prisoners to the international conference on Vietnam that is to open in Paris Feb. 26.

Canada has agreed to take part on the ICSS in Vietnam for 60 days following the Jan. 27 ceasefire, during which the government is to decide whether to prolong its participation on the four-country observer group.

The brief referred to various reports of "atrociously brutal and sometimes murderous treatment of political prisoners in South Vietnam," who have been estimated to number over 200,000.

Members of the delegation included MP's Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto-Greenwood), Gordon Fairweather (PC—Fundy-Royal) and Georges Lachance (L—Montreal-Lafontaine), James Steele of Carleton University, Ottawa, and Peter Crysdale of the American Friends Service Committee, Toronto.

A. B. R. LAWRENCE

Study Likely

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — The provincial government may introduce legislation soon to force careful environmental consideration before any construction projects are started, A. B. R. Lawrence, Ontario secretary for resources development, said Tuesday night.

He told about 30 people at a Man and Resources meeting that it "will be a very short time until we find this government" bringing forward a broader program to force carrying out of environmental studies.

Drop Options

NEW YORK (Reuter) — American Airlines said Tuesday it had dropped its six options for the British-French Concorde supersonic jetliner because "the airplane does not fit the characteristics of our route structure."

Industry sources said it means that since American flies mostly short-haul routes over land it has no great need for a supersonic jetliner.

All Freed

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Rising temperatures moving in from the Midwest helped snowclearing operations in the southern United States Tuesday and freed the last of about 16,000 stranded motorists in South Carolina.

Thousands made unplanned stopovers in gymnasiums, armories and private homes.

Mahoney Leads

TORONTO (CP) — William Mahoney took a commanding lead Tuesday night in voting for Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America.

Mr. Mahoney, national director for the last 16 years, led challenger Don Montgomery of Toronto by 16,138 to 11,384 when counting stopped for the night with 326 of about 700 locals reporting, a union official said.

Guards Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federation Aviation Administration ordered airport managements Tuesday to post an armed guard at each boarding point beginning Friday.

Grain Payments

OTTAWA (CP) — Final wheat payments totalling $62.6 million to 216,622 wheat farmers were announced Tuesday by Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board.

Another $2.2 million worth of final wheat-board payments will be divided among 27,672 oat farmers.

Canadian Freed

SAIGON (CP) — A Canadian official said this morning no arrangements had yet been made to get Marc Cayer, a Canadian civilian prisoner of the North Vietnamese, out of Hanoi and back to Canada.

Cayer, of St. Raymond, Que., is reported in good health. He is living in the old International Control Commission (ICC) villa in Hanoi.

Cayer, 29, was released by the Viet Cong about 10 a.m. Tuesday in Hanoi and was taken under the wing of ICC commissioner Nicholas Ehbridge.

Sunlight Pact

TORONTO (CP) — A land-exchange agreement has been approved by Toronto's committee of adjustment, clearing the way for construction of a $300 million downtown Eaton Centre.

The agreement between Holy Trinity Church and Fairview Corp. guarantees that the square around the church will be in sunlight for all but a few minutes on Sept. 21. The date is central in sunlight considerations because it falls midway between the longest and the shortest days of the year.

Surly House Marks Time

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs turned old sod in the Commons Tuesday, plowing through time-worn farm issues and waiting, like farmers for rain, for Monday's federal budget.

Good-natured hoots and interjections floated across the Commons floor as Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan explained the difficulty in attempting to "act as an equalizer" for provincial farm programs ranging from grain to sugar beets.

"Sometimes when you compare the agricultural program of one province with that of another province, you would think they were from two different countries," the rotund, salty western Ontario farmer, lamented.

"It is hard for me to under stand how a federal minister can be expected to act as an equalizer on some of these problems."

Purpose of the debate, carried out in committee-of-the whole, was to deal with supplementary government expenditures of $1.29 billion for 1972-73. These are in addition to main estimates of $16.5 billion already passed.

Farm expenditures make up $1.29 billion, but they will be for about $55 - million of the extra basis for discussion again today and possibly Thursday. Today's debate also was devoted, for the most part, to farm issues.

The debate may as well have been carried out on the back forty. Members read newspapers and magazines and chatted with their colleagues, apparently waiting with increasing anticipation for Finance Minister John Turner's Monday budget and the effect it will have on the minority Parliament.

The rebellious nature of the House surfaced shortly after Tuesday's session began. Conservatives, and New Democrats, who have entered into open conflict, forced a formal recorded vote on the routine introduction of a private bill by New Democrat MP Stuart Leggett (New Westminister).

The vote passed easily. Forty-three Conservatives and 13 Social Credit members, voting on principle against the bill's intent to allow abortion on demand, were readily outnumbered by 179 Liberals, New Democrats and Conservatives who supported Mr. Leggatt's right to introduce the bill.

But the incident pointed up the surly mood of MPs. The conservatives have made no bones about their desire to take over the government; the New Democrats have emphasized their desire to support any government that will modify its stand in accord with theirs.

The budget, on which the government stands or falls, will bring the parliamentary manoeuverings to a new head.

Should the balance-of-power-holding New Democrats feel they cannot support the government's taxing and spending plans and the Conservatives reject majro Liberal programs, the government could be defeated.

Liberal House Leader Allan MacEachen says he believes the cabinet would quit and be entitled to an election if the main budget motion fails to pass.

The other major Commons issue Tuesday also centred around money matters. Mr. Turner and Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie faced a barrage of questions on the effect of the United States move to devalue its dollar by 10 per cent Monday night.

Capital Punishments Fate Not Yet Decided

OTTAWA (CP) — Incomplete returns from a poll of members of Parliament suggest that the fate of the government bill to keep the partial ban on capital punishment has yet to be decided.

The replies by MPs to questionaires from The Canadian Press indicate that a perhaps-decisive number of votes could be attracted to support the bill if it is amended.

The bill would extend for another five years the present system, under which only the murderers of policemen and prison guards are liable to the death penalty. The system was begun in 1967 for a five-year trial period.

Parties in the Commons have declared a free vote on the issue, thus removing any overt compulsion on their MPs to vote together.

Only 61 of the 264 MPs have replied to the questionnaire, distributed Feb. 2. Of these, 44 say they will support the bill, 37 say they will vote against it and 19 are undecided or did not reply directly.

Of the 10 undecided, however, most are unhappy with the present system and may well reject the bill if it is not amended.

Five of the 10 want tougher restrictions on paroles, two want the death penalty for kidnappers who murder their victims, one wants more study of parole regulations, one wants a referendum and the 10th says ambiguously that he wants to abolish the distinction between policemen and public.

Also, at least one of the MPs who will vote for the bill at second-reading said and send it to committee indicates he wants amendments in committee and is undecided as to what to do on he final vote if there are no such amendments.

Whelan Would Limit Importation of Food

OTTAWA (CP) — "If I had my way," Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan told the Commons Tuesday night, no food would be allowed to be imported into the country unless it was inspected.

Other countries or individuals should not be able to bring in products that could "bust the market" for commodities produced in Canada, he said in a speech touching several agricultural matters.

But he emphasized, in the face of continued shouts and interjections from opposition benches, that he was only expressing his own opinion. The cabinet might not accept his ideas, but he was still able to express them.

Mr. Whelan enlarged on remarks he made earlier at a special Commons committee meeting on rising food costs. Food prices will continue to go up, he told the committee, because of demand for better food.

In the Commons, however, he said he was interested in seeing that "all people got a square deal," farmers and consumers included.

But farmers should not be responsible for carrying the "full load of a cheap food policy." "Food," he said in the committee, "is, and continues to be, a bargain in Canada."

Price Controls if Imposed Will Not Cover Basic Foods

OTTAWA (CP) — The government raised the possibility Tuesday that controls it has ready if prices get too far out of line won't cover basic food, the sector rising fastest.

A freeze on grocery-store items "simply would not work," Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan told the Commons special committee on food prices.

Herb Gray, consumer affairs minister, told the committee that in no other country where price controls have been adopted are dairy products, meat and cereals covered.

Where does that leave the committee? Perhaps in a bit of a vacuum.

Where does it leave the minority Liberal government? In an "almost impossible" bind, as one opposition committee member put it after Tuesday's sessions finished.

"Playing for time," another suggested.

There was a distinct division in the food prices picture painted by the two cabinet ministers before the committee.

The ministers were accused of contributing by constant talk about the prospect of price controls, to hoarding that in effect made nonsense of recent food price levels even higher. They also were accused of not exercising any real government muscle on behalf of consumers.

Both ministers denied the first accusation, but on the second there once again appeared to be some division.

Mr. Gray suggested recent price increases in food have been due to a "catch-up" move by farmers to get more for their produce after a period when the farmer shave stood relatively still despite inflation elsewhere.

He suggested the committee investigate profit margins along the whole pipeline from farmer to consumer.

Mr. Whelan, however, said "food is, and continues to be, a bargain in Canada." He would not argue that farmers could be blamed for food price increases, unleashed a deluge of statistics to support his contention and said food prices will continue to climb because of both domestic and world demand for better food.

Any talk about unjustified food price increases was "pure speculation," he said. Price increases at the farm level, where one worker in 1951 produced enough food to support 16 people and a worker now produced enough to feed 47, had been "unsatisfactory and insufficient."

Alf Gleave (NDP—Saskatoon-Biggar) got no real answers when he pressed Mr. Whelan on where increased margins in the food industry are going.

The Ontario Milk Marketing Board in 1971 was assured of its supply of milk from farmers at guaranteed prices, he said. Yet during the same year the price of cheddar cheese "went through the roof." Who got the extra margins?

Neither Mr. Gray's nor Mr. Whelan's department seemed to give a hoot, he said. And some body should.

Mr. Gray, in a 100-page brief, suggested a number of areas the committee should look into: cost of advertising food, effect of labor costs, profit margins of various persons along the food chain. Several committee members told Mr. Gray that is what his department should be doing.

Mr. Gray pleaded inadequate research staff.

The consumer affairs department is supposed to protect consumers, said Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver Kingsway). They wasted almost an hour against soaring food prices.

Hydro Ombudsman Urged

TORONTO (CP) — An ombudsman should be appointed by the government to handle public complaints against the Ontario Hydro Commission, a provincial government committee said Tuesday.

In its second report, the seven-member committee proposed limited powers for the ombudsman, to be called the director of public affairs.

He would not arbitrate disputes between citizens and Hydro. He should be "restricted to problems of a service or operational nature, including customer complaints about the quality of service."

The report also said that rather than having a member of the legislature on its board, Hydro should answer to the public and MPPs through a cabinet minister.

In its first report last November, the task force proposed making Hydro a Crown corporation.

At the time Premier Davis said the government agreed with the recommendation but there was no immediate reaction from the premier to Tuesday's second report.

McKeough to Disclose Holdings

TORONTO (CP) — Darcy McKeough, special parliamentary assistant who resigned as treasurer last summer over a conflict of interest, said Tuesday he will disclose his financial holdings Thursday.

He was replying to a statement by Liberal Leader Robert Nixon who complained that Mr. McKeough had not complied with conduct guidelines established for cabinet ministers and parliamentary assistants by premier William Davis.

Mr. McKeough, who represents Chatham-Kent in the legislature, was named parliamentary assistant to the premier, with special responsibility for energy policy Jan. 15. Under the guidelines he had to Feb. 2 to disclose his land holdings and Feb. 13 to disclose his other holdings with the clerk of the legislature.

Mr. McKeough's resignation as treasurer which led to the guidelines last fall, came after he was discovered to have a financial interest in a Chatham, land development which his former municipal affairs ministry had approved.

Reservoir Control Of Lakes Urged

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature's select committee on land [illegible] plans to delve further into a massive plan that would involve the creation of a 14,000-square-mile reservoir in Northern Ontario to control water levels in the Great Lakes.

Committee chairman Lorne Henderson (PC—Lambton) said he plans to take the committee to the potential site in the general area of Lake Nipigon.

He said the committee will make recommendations to the legislature once its work is completed on potential methods to control lake levels.

He said it is his personal view that a large holding area, roughly 10 per cent the size of the Great Lakes basin, should be built not only to control lake levels but to preserve large quantities of fresh water.

"I realize we are talking big money . . . but it is something that will be needed if this country is to go ahead," he said.

Mr. Henderson said if a method can be found to impound water in an area of about 14,000 square miles it would be possible to control about four feet of the level of the lakes.

He said he favors holding the water because it could be used not only to control high lake levels but could be released during periods of low levels.

Citizenship Irrelevant In Selecting Teacher

TORONTO (CP) — The citizenship of a professor isn't relevant to his performance as a university teacher, the select Ontario legislature committee on economic and cultural nationalism was told Tuesday.

John B. Macdonald, executive director of the Council of Ontario Universities, told the hearings that the task "is to examine the qualifications of candidates and chose the one best fitted to be particular job."

He refused to tell the committee how many foreign-born department heads there are on individual university staffs, saying the information would be a violation of personal privacy and contrary to the Human Rights Code.

He offered to get the information from Ontario's 14 universities and provide a province-wide report rather than a breakdown at each university.

Mr. Macdonald and D. Carleton Williams, president of the University of Western Ontario, made a joint presentation to the committee to defend the hiring of non-Canadians, particularly Americans, for university faculties.

In-service Training for Trustees

Separate school trustees met in special session last night to familiarize themselves with all aspects of running the Hastings - Prince Edward separate school system. Topics covered were school finances, academic programs, plant and maintenance and the various school acts.

Business administrator E. J. Paquet, left, talked to the five new trustees elected to the board last December for two-year terms. They are Mike Collins, Frank Hyland, Hugh McNulty, Angus Yorke and Bert Garrett.

Loyalist Firefighters' Course Is Backed by County Council

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

In what could be a precedent - setting step, Hastings County council voted Tuesday to ask the Ontario Fire Marshal to approve the establishment of a course for volunteer firemen at Loyalist College.

The request also includes a recommendation that the Fire Marshal assist in structuring the course and selecting satisfactory instructors.

Cost of the project, says a Loyalist board member, would be borne by the college and would not require taxpayers' money.

The recommendations, endorsed by council, were included in a report by the county's Finance, Property and Promotional Committee. Members of the committee met last week with representatives from the Hastings - Prince Edward Mutual Fire Aid Association which consists of 17 fire departments in the two counties, all but a few volunteer - manned.

The course, as outlined to the committee, would be an ongoing program lasting some 39 hours in each session. Probable cost is $15 per student with at least 20 volunteers indicating they would attend so far.

Most of the financial outlay would go to staff, although equipment, possibly including a fire laser at some date, would also figure in the budget.

"I think it would be handled like any other part-time course," said James Clephan, a member of the Loyalist board of governors. "The government would provide grants for each student and the students would be charged fees."

The idea for such a course was first proposed two years ago but was turned down by the Fire Marshal's office. The man who has done most of the work in resurrecting the plan, Thorlow Township fire fighter Bob Pearce, says the reasons are now self-motivated.

"They're afraid they'll be put out of business if it isn't erected." They run the only volunteer course in the province at Gravenhurst.

Mr. Pearce points out that the waiting period for classes there is three years and that compulsory attendance stipulations, ranging from two to six weeks on a full-time basis, automatically eliminate volunteers, most of whom hold regular jobs.

There are all kinds of things that are way beyond the volunteer," said Mr. Pearce explaining the need for local instruction. "New chemicals give off poisonous gases, building materials are changing — the volunteer is very ill-equipped."

For these reasons, the mutual aid association decided to seek political pressure to move the Fire Marshal's office. Eight to 10 fire chiefs from volunteer brigades throughout Hastings County have also indicated they would be interested in a course at Loyalist.

One chief who disagrees with the proposal is the head of the Belleville Fire Department, Les Culhane. He says volunteer firefighting is different from the professional approach.

"The volunteers can't possibly keep up with all the latest developments. Why, even we have trouble reading through the material that comes in. The chiefs should all be well informed anyway."

Although there are no OFM-approved courses being conducted in community colleges, the Fire Marshal's office does provide regional instruction. It varies in locale from year to year, however, and is restricted to firemen from the district requesting the course.

Last time a course was held in Belleville was in 1966. Although firemen in Northumberland and Durham Counties will be able to attend a five-day session in Cobourg next September.

Loyalist does not wish to proceed without the Fire Marshal's consent. In Tuesday's report to council, the committee reported a college representative said the board was interested in establishing a course "but could only do so with the cooperation of the Ontario Fire Marshal."

A similar proposal will be brought before Prince Edward County Council at its next meeting for forwarding to the OFM.

Heart-warming Campaign

Dogs, like Mayor Robin Jeffrey's poodle Tia Maria, have a way of guiding themselves to safety in the event of fire. But many persons, including children, the elderly and the handicapped, are unable to help themselves. Today marks the start of a city-wide campaign to provide self-adhesive hearts in bedroom windows of these people, so firemen will know where to search in emergency situations. Mrs. Jeffrey, left, as right by Fire Chief Les Culhane, holds a slightly larger heart than the one that will go in the bedroom of her 11-year-old daughter, Allison.

Heart Symbol Could Be Life Saving Signal

Belleville firefighters are launching a campaign to save fire's most helpless victims.

The slogan, as a Valentine theme, is "Have a Heart — Save a Life, and chief Les Culhane says it's easy to do.

Aided by CJBQ and members of the Belleville Insurance Agents Association, the force will have some thirty-inch red hearts to household owners with children, old folks or incapacitated persons reside.

The idea is simple. By pinning the heart's sticky backing onto the inside upper corner of windows in bedrooms or persons' bedrooms, firemen immediately know where to search in case of emergencies.

On the reverse side of the heart — visible to anyone looking out the window — is a constant reminder to practice fire safety in the home. "When seconds count, the heart lifesaver can save a life," says Belleville Fire Chief Les Culhane. "In the event of fire, evacuation can be speeded up and those most likely to need assistance can be carried to safety."

Once the hearts have been made there was one remaining problem. Firemen will have to keep them most in their minds when answering a fire.

"If a man night and we saw a decal on a window, we would go to that room first," the Chief said.

He also stresses the importance of practising aspect of the hearts.

"They carry a continuing fire safety message, a continuing reminder in every home to practice home fire safety and plan your most practical escape routes," he said.

The hearts — which measure about three inches by three inches will last anywhere from six to 10 years. Attached to paper by cards, they peel away easily from the coated red side.

Each one cost 1¾ cents, an extra outlay of $1,000 made possible by the insurance agents association.

They were manufactured by Acme Printing Inc. in Belleville and Mrs. Jean Kerr, and City Hall Fund Gardiner, General Insurance Brokers Ltd. and Frank Downer Insurance in Madoc also have a supply on hand.

Although they are intended to save children, the hearts will not be given out to young sters unless they present a note from their parents.

Chief Culhane estimates he has 2,000 and 4,000 residents of the city qualify for the window stickers. He added that persons living in buildings taller than three storeys need not pick them up.

Belleville, Trenton, County Combine on Waste Management

Formation of a permanent joint waste management committee to act on behalf of the county of Hastings and the urban municipalities of Belleville and Trenton has been approved as a result of a meeting Monday of municipal representatives with an official from the Ministry of the Environment.

Chairman of the new overall committee is Belleville Alderman Mrs. Jean Smith with county clerk - administrator Carl E. Bateman as secretary.

Until now, Belleville, Trenton, Sidney, Thurlow, Huntingdon and Ameliasburgh have had discussions relative to a waste management study covering that area, while at the same time, discussions have also been going on at the county level.

County council had already endorsed a study for the entire county and it this was obvious that there would be duplication of effort and expense should all municipalities proceed on their own.

Accordingly, at Monday's meeting it was resolved that Belleville, Trenton and the county form a permanent joint committee with the view of instituting a waste management study to make long - range plans for the management, recycling and disposal of household, commercial and industrial solid wastes, including sewage sludge and septic tank pumpage.

Cost of the study would be in the order of $40,000, of which the ministry would pay 50 per cent, leaving $20,000 to be financed on a pro-rata basis by Belleville, Trenton and Hastings.

Formation of the joint committee was announced at city council Monday evening by Alderman Smith, while Tuesday Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen, chairman of the county municipal reform committee reported to county council.

County council gave its approval to formation of the joint committee and also to the proposal for a waste management study covering the entire area.

In making the report, Reeve Allen said that in this "throw-away" society people were facing a crisis on what to do about solid waste disposal.

If nothing were done, she suggested that by the year 2,000 people would be buried in garbage.

She said the proposed study would determine what should be done and whether setting up depots for the collection of metal, glass, paper and other refuse would be feasible.

Collection of garbage, Mrs. Allen said, would be on a municipal basis with area disposal facilities.

But not all councillors favored the idea of the survey.

One of these was Rawdon Reeve Ray Shortt, who said his municipality didn't want it.

"But," he said, "as long as we listen to white-jacketed 25-year-olds looking for a job, we will have it."

And Reeve S. J. Carr of Monteagle township said he could see the county winding up with a county garbage collection system.

He said there would be only relatively few dump sites and garbage collection and transportation would be beyond the financial capability of many small municipalities.

To this Reeve Allen suggested there was a responsibility for federal or provincial grants for garbage disposal.

Hydro Rate Increase Is Coming

Not how soon but by how much is the question concerning a hike in electrical rates for more than 12,000 customers of Belleville Public Utilities Commission.

The PUC, in its monthly meeting Tuesday, was told a 7.8 per cent increase in power cost to the commission will make necessary a rate adjustment.

This increase in cost of power sold to the PUC from Ontario Hydro represents the commission's biggest bill and resulted in a $255,540 electrical cost bill for the month of January.

Ontario Hydro, with the aid of local commission personnel, will study the cost situation and is expected to make some kind of recommendations as to the degree of consumer cost increase.

Neil Britton, manager of the PUC, at yesterday's meeting said he hoped the increase could be implemented as quickly as possible, perhaps in June or July.

Depending on how stiff the increase will be, the commission asked that if possible the increase be effective for two years, guaranteeing no increase in that time.

Tied in with the rate increase is the PUC's request for a new administrative building to be constructed on the College and Sidney Street site, adjacent to the service building.

...h was, felt the increased rate would allow for a surplus that would cover the cost of debentures issued to raise the necessary $300,000 for construction.

In his report to the commission, Mr. Britton described the Front Street office as archaic and a bad fire risk.

Mr. Britton also speculated on the prospects of a new building being used in connection with regional government.

City Hall budget sessions in the new fiscal term, a plan which the commission if debentures can be issued adding $300,000 to the capital works budget.

Target Not Met

The United War campaign, this fall, raised slightly much than $121,000, falling short of its $135,000 goal.

This goal was six per cent higher than the previous year when the fund drive raised approximately $128,000.

Parking Plugged

Parking lots at the Hastings county administration building are full to overflowing and county officials have a suggestion that some of the vehicles are owned by persons other than county and government employees or legitimate visitors.

The report of the property committee tabled at Tuesday's council meeting noted that parking at the south lot continues to pose a problem.

"Many unauthorized people are apparently using the lot with the result that employees of the building and those wishing to do business in the building are deprived of a parking place," read the report.

In an effort to remedy the situation, the committee has authorized installation of a sign designating the lot as restricted and that infringing or unauthorized vehicles will be towed away.

Sheep Farmers Hopeful Trapping Drive Works

By HARRY MULRALL
Staff Reporter

SHANNONVILLE — A winter-long official bite is being put on predators with the snapping off livestock here and in other sectors of the Quinte district's southern reaches.

But provincial wildlife authorities must wait for spring-time to see just how successful a mark they've made.

That's when one of the major predators blamed by victimized sheep farmers — coyotes — will begin producing offspring. If numbers are depleted it could spell success for the project.

It could also ease worries of local sheep farmers hit by predation — a problem, one says, is of continental dimensions. So much so, it has discouraged domestic sheep raising, driving up imports.

Excessive trapping has been under way here since the late fall in areas where predation has been reported, particularly the Provincial Conservation officers in a province - wide program that has become more intensive in recent years.

A key man-on-the-spot in the area is Ed Cobden, a Rawdon township farmer who has been trapping for 25 years. His experience makes him an ideal man for the job, say officials.

So, likely, does his personal attitude. For Ed, predation, as a farmer he has always trapped predators, not for profit, but preservation.

He also cu's something of a dashing figure in the landscape of the back farmlands as he plies the serious business of trapping predators.

Sporting modern mechanization, he prefers the traditional transport of dog team to snowmobile, as he inspects his circuits of traps and snares, seeking predator tracks here and in other convenient areas.

His efforts, in this area at least, appear yielding results. Since he has been named more than a dozen predators to date.

Complaints of predation have been increasing not only here. Parts of Prince Edward County and further east in Sydenham and Howe Island are also classed as "problem areas" by ministry officials.

For one thing, it could mean more farmers are aware the ministry is being more involved in such control programs and thus are calling for more action, says Conservation Officer Jack Sutton, at the municipality's concerned end.

He says there has been an increase in the number of coyotes. There also has been a decrease in rabbits, a wild life food source for the predators.

Denied such natural supplies the coyote turns elsewhere — and has acquired a strong appetites.

Then, there are wild-running dogs.

Ed Cobden believes almost 50 percent of the problem is dogs running at large.

For some of the latter, the statistics on predators he has trapped is a profitable racket here. And he started his coyotes and six dogs.

Of the coyotes, six were females — which would have produced nine litters this spring, one hopeful sign that there will be many less of the species around next year if the lamb crops are out in the spring.

Such facts, says one area sheep raiser in the county, who remain anonymous, emphasize that predators — including wolves — are a real problem for sheep breeders here.

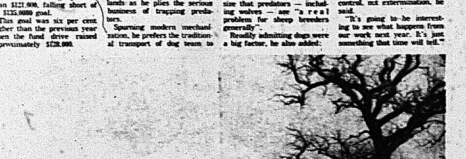
Readily admitting dogs were a big factor, he also added:

"People are not ready prepared to recognize the fact coyotes or wolves — or whatever you want to call them — were not as prevalent until recently like this starts catching them."

It's a problem common to North America, he said. So much so, it has been driving domestic sheep production as farmers quit raising flocks. In Canada, this has meant increased imports, since home production is insufficient to meet demand.

While welcoming control programs he said the situation also created something of a dilemma for area municipalities. Conflicting demands were being posed by environmentally concerned about wolves and "the fellows trying to make a livelihood".

Ken Greatrix, another local sheep farmer, last year lost his entire crop of 32 spring lambs. The problem has been compounded for the farmer in this area, he said, and coyotes were now "quite plenty". While he believed the predation was caused more by coyotes than dogs, the numbers of the wolf predators appeared on the decline, Ed Cobden's trapping began.



For what maybe he's got them pretty well cleaned out for a bit of them. We're not bothered as much anyway."

However, said Mr. Greatrix, "I'm not going to call it more luck" keeping losses this spring from the 31 "real, that's all".

Conservation officer Sutton also notes that 90 per cent of the coyotes trapped here to date have been females — which may help reduce their numbers in succeeding years.

But the program is one of control, not extermination, he says.

"It's going to be interesting to see what happens from our work next year. It's just something that time will tell."

Belkin Scores Tennis Win

By JOHN SHORT

CALGARY (CP) — Tony Bardsley of Vancouver and Mike Belkin of Montreal posted first-round victories Tuesday in the Canadian indoor tennis championships but their reasons were totally different.

Belkin, playing captain of Canada's Davis Cup team and easily the best player in the country, staggered to a 3-6, 6-2, 6-4 win over Hans Kary of Austria and said he intends to work on his serve today when he has no matches scheduled.

Bardsley, No. 2 man in this country's rankings, won two consecutive tie-breakers in scraping through to a 7-6, 7-6 victory over Mike Estep of Dallas, Tex. He promptly declared the victory among the biggest of his career.

Both Belkin and Bardsley, notified Tuesday they will be part of the Canadian Davis Cup team at Colombia in a first-round test later this month, recognized the calibre of their opposition here.

"Kary has had tough luck," said Belkin. "He's a good player and he's a left-hander. That makes it rough, especially if you're not sharp— and I wasn't."

Bardsley used his big serve-and-volley game and caught Estep unprepared. Then, he said, Estep was the best player he had ever defeated.

Belkin trailed 4-1 in the third set before settling down. He battled back to tie the clincher 6-4 with his only service ace of the game after they reached deuce three times.

Then Kary double-faulted twice and Belkin bettet two winners to take the lead for the first time since the opening point of the match.

There were six 7-6 tie-breakers in the eight games completed on the first day of the $15,000 international tournament, primarily due to the speed of the courts and the powerful serves of the touring professionals.

The third Canadian active player, Pier Burwash, a Toronto native now living in Montreal where he coaches, dropped a 6-3, 6-4 decision to fifth-seeded Nick Kalo of Greece.

Burwash, who walked out on the Canadian Davis Cup team last year in a dispute with Belkin, drew the largest applause of the night for his sprawling efforts but Kalo was in command almost all the way.

Kalo, third-seeded Jergen Faubecker of West Germany and ninth-seeded Ion Tiriac of Romania were the only ranked players active Tuesday.

Bears Beat Braves

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Smiths Falls Bears climbed back into third place in the Central Junior Hockey League Tuesday with a 5-4 victory over Brockville Braves.

Barry Keefoot scored the winner at 19:39 of the third period with an assist from goalie Kevin Pugkey, who handled 32 Brockville shots in the game. Smiths Falls managed 24 shots.

Des Allan paced the victory with two goals, the others going to Don Robertson and Kerwin O'Neil. Peter Edwards, Rob Bingley, Rick Sprachlin and Doug MacLean scored for the Braves.

Played before 300 fans, the game produced only 19 penalties, six to Brockville, including a fighting major to each club.

Next league action in Thursday when Hull Festivals are in Ottawa against the Rangers.

Former Maple Leaf Dead at 49

TORONTO (CP) — Thomas (Windy) O'Neill, who played two seasons with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League in the mid-40s, died Tuesday night at the age of 49.

The Toronto lawyer, who played right wing when the Leafs won the Stanley Cup in the 1944-45 season, collapsed at dinner.

A native of Deseronto, Ont., O'Neill was defeated twice on bids to enter politics. He ran in the 1958 federal election for the Liberal party in Toronto-Rose-Isle, and in 1964 was defeated in an attempt to become an alderman.

O'Neill, who put himself through Dalhousie University law school, Halifax, while playing professional hockey, was named a Queen's Counsel in the last New Year's honors list.

He said one of his greatest thrills came while he was playing for the Leafs and was asked to act as captain during a period when Bob Davidson was injured. He was 21 at the time.

Tiger-Cats Sign Two

HAMILTON (CP) — Linebacker Larry Brame and tight end George Milosevic have been signed by Hamilton Tiger-Cats, coach Jerry Williams of the Canadian Football League club announced Tuesday night.

Brame, a small college all America with the University of Western Kentucky, was cut last season after nearly two years with Toronto Argonauts of the CFL. Milosevic, a Hamilton native, caught 42 passes for 669 yards last season at Cornell, ranking second in receptions in the Ivy League.

Canadians Aced At Toronto Tournament

By RON SUDLOW

TORONTO (CP) — Two Canadians lost straight-set matches in their heavily-favored opponents in the $50,000 Toronto International tennis tournament Tuesday night.

But Keith Carpenter and Harry Fauquier, both of Toronto, gave Aussie Rod Laver and American Stan Smith plenty of good shots to practise on.

The top-seeded Laver downed Carpenter, 6-2, 6-4, while the fifth-seeded Smith of Pasadena, Calif., was a little more charitable with Fauquier in beating him 6-2, 6-4.

The other seeded players who saw action also came through their first-round matches unscathed.

Third-seeded Dick Stockton of San Antonio, Texas, scored a service break in the first game and went on to down Onny Parun of New Zealand 6-4, 6-0. Parun was hampered by an injury to his racquet hand and withdrew from the doubles.

Second-seeded Roy Emerson started and finished strong to oust Milan Holecek of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 7-5. Emerson won the final four games of the match when Holecek ran into grief with consecutive double faults in the ninth game of the second set.

Bob Lutz, the seventh seed from Tiburan, Calif., was extended to a third set before he triumphed 6 - 3, 3-6, 6-3 over South Africa's Bob Maud, who dumped Laver in the quarter-finals of the last World Championship Tennis (WCT) tournament in Philadelphia.

Carpenter gave Laver, the WCT Group A tour leader, a good workout. If the Canadian had converted three break points the match would have been closer.

The 21-year-old Toronto computer company administrator served hard—scoring one ace—and his volleys brought out the best in Laver's forehand and attacking lobs.

"I played better than I have in a long time," said Carpenter who, like Fauquier, was invited into the draw when WCT regulars Cliff Drysdale and Bob Hewitt, both of South Africa, were sidelined by injuries.

"I saw a few shots that I had never seen before," added Carpenter who has yet to take a set from Laver in four matches.

Laver said he didn't take Carpenter lightly.

"You really have to look at it like any other match. You have to much to lose."

Smith rarely attacked Fauquier and admitted later he was warming up for his second-round match today against Harold Solomon, his Davis Cup team-mate, who is primarily a baseline player.

Cauquier said his opportunity to play Smith was "flattering but frightening . . . he was just practising."

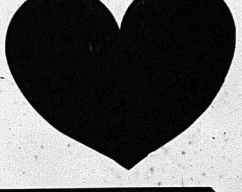
"There's nowhere to hit the ball," the five-foot, six-inch Canadian said of the six-foot, four-inch Wimbledon winner. "You just use the best shot you can."

Lutz, who won 13 of the last 13 points to sew up his match with Maud, was deadly with his passing shots.

He said later that when he lost to Smith in the final of the Philadelphia tournament "I opened up my game and was going for passing shots and continued that tonight."

"I was confident in my passing game and I was passing quite well off both sides," said Lutz, who meets unseeded Alan Stone of Australia today.

The other singles matches will pair fourth-seeded Colin Dibley of Australia against Ove Bengston of Sweden and Emerson against ninth-seeded Phil Dent.



John Alexander and Dent scored an upset in first-round doubles play when they dumped second-seeded Terry Addison and Dibley 7-5, 7-6 in an all-Australia match.

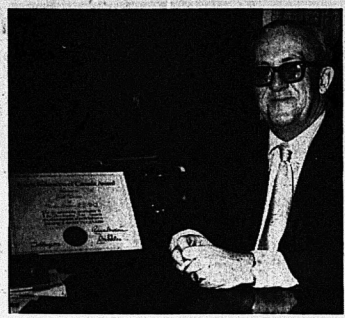
Centennial Seniors Pass Crucial Test

Centennial Chargers passed their most crucial test of the Bay of Quinte COSSA basketball schedule to date as they defeated Quinte's senior Saints 21-20 Tuesday.

Al Miller provided Centennial with the win by sinking a pair of foul shots with only 14 seconds to play. Quinte had trailed by five points going into the final minutes but a full court press had carried them into a 20-19 lead before Miller sank two free throws.



The loss was the first of the season by Quinte and gave Centennial the inside track on Western Division honors. Both teams have now won only one game.

Winning coach Bruce Faulds was pleased with his team's defensive play. "We both used a zone press and we chased each other all over the floor," he noted. "I don't think that Jim (Murray) could be too unhappy about losing. Both teams played well defensively."

David Dent was the top Centennial scorer with 17 points while Vahe Parmakesian netted 13. Brian Morphy eight and Miller six. For Quinte it was Mark Gallupe with 12 points, Stan Brooks and Kim Hunter with 10 apiece and Terry Collins with eight.

The midget contest was another cliff-hanger, with the Chargers once again winning by one point. Centennial emerged on the long end of a 71-70 count. Dave Long hooped 14 points for the winners with Steve Whitley collecting 13, Dennis Hunt 12 and Bob Thompson 10. Quinte's Brent Gallupe was high scorer in the game with 29 points.

The junior Saints averted a Centennial sweep by taking a 73-44 decision in their game. Rick Collins led the winners with 22 points while Peter Vos notched 18 and Rick Breadner 11. Paul Dassylva scored 11 for Centennial followed by Charles Vanderwater with nine.

Bayside Ski Team Makes Debut

Bayside Secondary School made their initial appearance in COSSA skiing a successful one -- and the future appears even brighter.

Bayside competed Tuesday in the Central Ontario championship high school meet held at Haliburton with their girls' team winning one event and the boys fifthishing fourth in the over-all standings. Sir Thomas A. Stewart of Peterborough copped the team championship.

Lack of cross country skiers hindered Bayside's total point picture, but the girls' team managed a first in the giant slalom event and second in the slalom.

Girls competing for the lone Bay of Quinte entry were Leslie Cormack, Sandra Dekker, Colleen Shoniker and Cathy Fenniman, while the boys' team consisted of John Dekker, Dave Montrose, Mark Jandek and Bennett Dent.

Five of the eight skiers on the Bayside team were in their first year of high school.

Devine Honored By National Sports Group

Good things appear to be coming in pairs for CJBQ sports director Jack Devine this year.

The veteran Belleville sports commentator is expected to be elected as the next president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association when the annual meeting is held in May at Charlottetown, P.E.I.

A previous addition to the Devine sports' laurels came this weekend when he was awarded a plaque "for the outstanding contribution in the broadcasting field toward encouragement of amateur sports in Canada".

The presentation was made at the annual Sports Federation of Canada banquet held in Ottawa's Chateau Laurier. The group is composed of representatives from each of the national sports organizations across Canada.

"It's not really 'an award for broadcasting, as I understand it, but for contributing to amateur sport itself," explained the recipient. It's. Devine was the only radio or television personality honored at the banquet.

Lou Le Faive, director of Sports Canada, presented the plaque which is signed by governor - general Roland Michener.

Jack has been broadcasting sports in Belleville since 1946 when he joined the CJBQ staff a month before the station began air operations. A native of Toronto, he had been enlisted in the Royal Canadian Air Force, prior to moving to Belleville in 1945.

He has served as a member of the CAHA executive since 1963 when he was admitted to the group as second vice-president of the Ontario Hockey Association. His OHA affiliation dates from 1957 and he was president of the Ontario hockey body from 1967-69.

Jack's active support has not been limited to hockey. He is past president of the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association; past commodore of the local Power Squadron; an honorary vice-president of the Metro Toronto Hockey League and past president of the Belleville and District Softball League as well as the Central Ontario Baseball loop.

Jack and his wife, Minnie, reside in Belleville along with 13-year-old son Stephen. Other members of the family include Bruce (24) working with CPTR in Toronto and Nancy, (22) a student at York University.

Hospital Stays In Running

Hospital stayed in the running for second place with a 3-2 Gas House Hockey win over Wilson Concrete Tuesday.

The Hospital's win moved them to within one point of the Intell as well as assuring them of at least a third place finish when the regular season ends next week.

John Chamberlain, Fred Knight and Hyslie Bryant scored for the winners, while Keith Parks and Ron Gouvin had the Wilson scores.

In the other game, Rosebush Parts forfeited a decision to Moira Hardware because of lack of players. In an exhibition encounter, Rosebush was re-inforced with replacements from Wilson Concrete but still lost, 4-0. Bob Dent, Steve Bedard, Roy Sommers, Herb Latchford and Ted Rowland scored for Moods while Vern Whalen served the shutout.

Flyer Counts Quartet, Bruins, Blues On Beam

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Four was the key number in the National Hockey League Tuesday night.

Rick MacLeish became the first Philadelphia player to score four goals in a game as the Flyers bombed New York Islanders 8-2.

And both Boston Bruins and St. Louis Blues had four-game winning streaks going after the Bruins crushed Vancouver Canucks 7-3 and St. Louis defeated Los Angeles Kings 4-2.

St. Louis tries for five tonight against the North Stars at Minnesota in an effort to break a third-place tie in the NHL's West Division.

New York Rangers return last Sunday's visit by Montreal Canadiens in the key game in the East after the Canadiens and Rangers played to a 3-3 tie with two late goals in the last meeting between the two top clubs in the division.

In other games tonight, Buffalo Sabres visit Toronto Maple Leafs, Chicago Black Hawks entertain the Islanders, the Canucks move to Pittsburgh against the Penguins and Atlanta Flames go against California Golden Seals and Detroit Red Wings face Los Angeles Kings in a pair of West Coast fixtures.

MacLeish, a 23-year-old centre who had scored only three goals in 43 appearances with the Flyers prior to this season, boosted his total to 34 for the current campaign. He scored twice within 27 seconds in the second period, for another club record, and again in the third.

That took the starch out of the Islanders, who had taken a 2-0 lead at the end of the first period even though they were outshot 15 to 8. The eastern tailenders got away a total of 52 shots at Flyers' goaltender Doug Favell while Billy Smith had 44 Philadelphia drives to contend with.

The Bruins, continuing their revival under new coach Bep Guidolin, struck for four goals in just over five minutes late in the first period to bury the Canucks, who had taken an early 1-0 lead.

Vancouver had the only goal of the second period but the Stanley Cup champions struck back with three more goals, two on power plays, to put the game out of reach. They got two goals apiece from rookie Greg Sheppard and veteran Johnny Bucyk as well as the 20th of the season for Phil Esposito and Don Awrey.

The Blues had tougher going at St. Louis, where goals by Gilles Marotte and Mike Corrigan nearly wiped out their three-goal end over the Kings before defenceman Gord Labatte battled in Garry Unger's rebound for the clinching goal.

It was the 10th victory against only one loss and two ties in 14 games for the Blues who were seventh in the eight-team division before their current surge.

Remparts Rampage To 14-3 Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Remparts went on a scoring spree Tuesday night at the expense of Montreal Red, White and Blue.

Jacques Locas, Andre Savard and Real Cloutier each scored three goals in Quebec's 14-3 whitewashing of Montreal. The win increased the Remparts first-place lead in the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League to seven points.

Meanwhile, a pair of goals by Pierre Larouche was enough to propel Sept Iles Hawks to a 5-3 win over Trois-Rivieres Ducs in the only other league game.

In the Quebec rout, Guy Chouinard added two more while Charles Constantin, James Bateman and Yvon Dupuis scored one each.

Michel Belisle, Michel Latreille and Gaetan Duchesne scored for Montreal.

Serge Gamelin, Francois Robert and Jacques Cossette also scored for Sorel against Trois-Rivieres.

Filion Cashes Ten Times

NEW HAMBURG, N.Y. (CP) — Herve Filion set a track record at Buffalo Raceway Tuesday night when he brought home six winners and was in the money in the other four races on the card.

The record-setter, a 200 sent all by of his horses off as favorites.

The Angers, Que., native beats the raceway's driving competition. Meet organizers bring in one top driver every week for five weeks and put him in every harness race.

Lawson Copies Hull, Mavety Counts in Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Danny Lawson's Bobby Hull imitations are wowing the fans in the World Hockey Association.

The real Bobby Hull, as every hockey fan knows, scores goals for Winnipeg Jets when he isn't coaching the club, signing autographs or coping with lawsuits launched by the bereaved Chicago Black Hawks, his former National League employers.

So far, Bobby has scored a respectable 23 goals for the Jets. As of his four-goal performance in Tuesday night's 5-4 victory over New England Whalers, Lawson has fired 46 for Philadelphia Blazers, tops in the WHA.

While Lawson was sinking the Whalers, Chicago Cougars battered Los Angeles Sharks 6-1 and Alberta Oilers defeated Houston Aeros 5-3.

Cleveland Crusaders visit Philadelphia and Quebec Nordiques entertain Ottawa Nationals in tonight's WHA games.

There were no lawsuits when Lawson left Buffalo Sabres to join the fledgling WHA this season. The 25-year-old right winger had spent four years shuttling between the NHL and the minors, compiling a less than-fearsome career record of 28 goals in 216 games.

LARRY MAVETY

The Blazers needed his third four-goal game of the season Tuesday to stay ahead of New England.

Lawson broke a 1-1 tie by scoring three in a row in the first period. Then Earl made it 4-3 with the first of two goals early in the second but Lawson matched it 14 seconds later.

Don O'Donoghue was the other Philadelphia marksman while Ted Green and Brit Selby scored the other New England goals.

The Cougars, bidding to escape the Western Division cellar with six victories in seven starts, got goals from Larry Mavety, Rick Morris, Rosaire Paiement, Dan Lodboa, Bob Sicinski and Bobby Whitlock. A power-play goal by Joe Szura in the second period averted a Los Angeles shutout.

Veteran Eddie Joyal scored twice and set up a goal by Bob Falkenberg as Alberta built up a 5-1 lead before two Houston goals by Duke Harris tightened up the game in the third period. Billy Hicke and Jim Harrison also scored for the Oilers and Don Grierson was the other Aero marksman.

NHL Scoring Leaders

Before a capacity home crowd, Philadelphia Flyer centre Rick MacLeish scored a club record four goals in one game as the Flyers beat New York Islanders 8-2 Tuesday night. The goal-snagging session total to 34 and with his 33 assists he has shot up to a tie for fifth spot in National Hockey League scoring.

ANAF News

As the dews drop gently on the arid land, so let your dues drop gently in Archie's hand and you will be a member in good standing for 1973.

More than a decade ago around discovered a relic from the dim past when one did not have to worry about plumber's bills. He had a great idea. Getting a mink collar to fit his find he donated the fur-lined trophy for the Dukes and the Ninety and Nine for annual competition in a sport of their choice with three strokes a den. The players were to be wartime veterans, the losers to receive the trophy, fill it to the brim with liquid refreshment to be shared by both teams and both teams to escort the trophy to a prominent position in the loser's club where it would be displayed until the next contest. There have been tugs of war, softball and the last few years, hockey. Its object was to promote closer comradeship between the two associations and have a lot of fun for all members.

As the last conflict in which the Canadian Forces participated was Korea, it means that the players should be 40 years of age or more, which may be not conducive to brilliant hockey but still provides spills, thrills, chills and a lot of fun and laughter for the spectators and a few aching joints and bruises for the players. It's not the Stanley Cup that is at stake so why not abide by the rule and lay down and, make everybody happy. The next fray between these hostile armed forces will be played in the Belleville Arena starting at 9 p.m. Saturday Feb. 17. Come on down for the battle of the century and cheer your team on to victory.

Three mad, merry men of mirth and melody the Troubadors, will be on hand in the Tartan Lounge next Saturday to entertain members, their Valentines and guests with song and dance and never a dull moment. Tickets will be picked up at the bar and are limited, so get yours now!

A big crowd was on hand for the auxiliary Sunday doubles. Prize winners were: No. 1 winners, H. Boyle and R. Salter; runners up, P. Bell and R. Green. No. 2 winners, A. Reid and J. Barker; runners up, H. Boyle and R. Burns. No. 3 winners, N. Barrage and H. Farnel; runners up A. Burns and R. Scott. No. 4 winners, N. Barrage and R. Thompson; runners up H. Farrel and T. Newman. No. 5. N. Barrage and R. Salter; runners up R. Mansfield and J. Baker. High three darts, N. Barrage, Mr. and Mrs. darts next Saturday registering starts at 8 p.m.

In BCHL: Ruthven, 713; H. Campbell, 719; J. R. Boyle, 704, S. McQuaid, 618 and G. Vance, 626. Dr. R. Potter, Orano. Hosp. Toronto.

Sam's Serpents: What most these days it less to do, more time to do it in and more pay for getting it done.

For Valentine's Day

Valentine cards sent Radio Station CJBQ were aimed at making this year's event something extra special for one of its listeners.

The rush of cards, here being pinned in place by station secretary Monica Paterson, was on a gift package ranging from a dinner - for two to a bouquet, even free gasoline. The lucky Valentine's Day winner announced today: Mrs. Bonnie Reid, RR 4 Stirling.

Income Tax Department Active in Film-making

OTTAWA (CP) — Years ago, the federal revenue department tried to take the sting out of income taxes by a series of witty advertisements.

This year, it hired radio-TV personality Fred Davis to convince taxpayers the new forms aren't as complicated as they look.

And now, in collaboration with the National Film Board, it is warning people what can go wrong with their lives if they try tax evasion.

The Sloane Affair, to be seen on the CBC-TV network Wednesday night, is a detective and courtroom drama about a fictional real estate developer who played tax evasion in a big way.

The film board says the script is based on actual tax cases and the methods used by the revenue department to catch those who evade tax habitually.

It was directed, produced, researched and partly written by Doug Jackson, 35, who will have another film in the NFB's Adieu Alouette series on March 7, telling the story of good eating in Quebec.

He began writing professionally at the age of 19, and has produced or directed more than 40 films, many of them award-winners.

The Sloane Affair stars Michael Kane as the man who built a real estate empire only to have it tumble when the revenue department seizes the company's books.

Dave Broadfoot has a brief role in which he describes the delights of a yacht club party for 300 which cost $2,450.

Others in the cast include Sebina Maydelle, Ron Hartmann, Cec Linder, Rex Sevenoaks, Alfie Scopp, John Bethune, Frank Perry and Earl Pennington.

Feature Times

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The Puerto Rican government said Tuesday it is cancelling a five-year contract for sponsoring the Miss Universe and Miss U.S.A. contests.

The contract was with Miss Universe Inc., a New York firm. The two pageants were held last year in San Juan for the first time.

The contract called for Puerto Rico to pay Miss Universe Inc., $200,000 a year and provide facilities and services for the pageants.

A government report said it was illegal to spend public funds on the contests.

The two pageants had been held previously in Miami Beach, Fla., and Long Beach, Calif.

The contract was signed under the administration of former Gov. Luis A. Ferre, who was defeated in a bid for reelection last Nov. 7 by Rafael Hernandez Colon.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (Reuter) — Police confiscated a print of the controversial sex film Deep Throat Tuesday shortly after a municipal judge ruled it obscene and fined a theatre operator $500 for showing it.

"I saw the movie and found it without any redeeming social value," Judge Jason Berkman said. "I therefore declared it obscene under our city ordinance."

Arthur Sommer, fined for showing the x-rated movie, said he will appeal the ruling and sue the city.

Filmed in Miami on a $25,000 budget, and featuring unusual feats of oral sex, the film has encountered legal bans or challenges in a number of cities.

Variety, the show business weekly, said Deep Throat had grossed $1,182,500 through Jan.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, Feb. 15

Aries (March 21-April 19): Push your personal projects and all you are worth, using all available co-operation, alotting everybody involved some of the chores.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Small changes make a surprising range of favorable difference in your work and home management. Compromise is convenient.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Do what is handy to provoke movement, bringing incomplete projects to general attention. Demand the help you need.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Escape from routine is desirable. Accept added responsibility only where you are familiar with the situation.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Everything promises better in an upsurge of confidence. Even distractions have a positive value. Pause for a moment's reflection.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Select for attention the oldest or most perplexing unfinished business at hand, do something about it, get to the main issue.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Communication comes into primary importance—it is little use to have good ideas and not share them.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's not so much what you attempt now as how you go about it. Reflection should indicate the right actions to follow.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Indulge your curiosity—research brings more than merely an answer to your query. Group ventures thrive.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Now is the time to stay close to home base, see what happens, take advantage of subtle opportunities to better your situation.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Creative revisions are favored. Romantic appeal is nearby, although you may not know what to make of it at first.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Certainty is preferable to haste as you duly go the week's program, taper activities off so you can close the workweek.

is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

To Your Good Health

No Single Cause For Barrenness

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there a known physiological reason why many women no longer become pregnant after bearing one or more children?

I am referring to normal conditions of marriage. I found more than 40 years of ministry and counseling that I have many times observed a degree of sadness in these ex-mothers. Many women when they no longer conceive.

The light you can shed on this will be much appreciated.— REV. E. E. J.

As far as we know there is no broad physiological reason for this to happen. It is usually a matter of minor physical defects that can occur as a result of birth processes.

For example, there might be an infection involved. Such post-birth infections can involve the cervix, making secretions hostile to the sperm.

The infection could also involve the tube, causing obstruction to the passage of ovum and sperm. Scar tissue from such infection could be the cause of this. Adhesions from infections outside the tubes could also be the fault.

Pregnancy has resulted in such instances when the adhesions are released.

Other causes of sudden loss of fertility can be a resumption of use of contraceptive pills that cause faulty ovulation.

All of this has to do with women, of course. But we can't discount the possibility of the male's role in this. A husband may have a defect in sperm production.

So it is not a simple this or that proposition. The only way to learn for sure what causes infertility is a thorough investigation of both partners.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When my children had their checkup last month, I asked the pediatrician about giving them vitamins. He said they were a waste of money, that they didn't do much good except to the manufacturer. He didn't like advertising them, then not more than twice weekly. What is your opinion?—Mrs. A.C.

My opinion is just about like your doctor's except that I wouldn't have been so rough on the manufacturers, even though some of the greedy ones do indeed use a lot of scare propaganda to sell more. The reliable manufacturers don't.

So a properlyfed child doesn't need vitamins in capsule form.

Your doctor, having examined them and found no evidence that they were needed pediatrically, rightly told you not to waste your money.

The sad fact is that poorlyfed youngsters who ought to have vitamins (or a better diet) are the ones whose mothers don't realize that their children are being vitamin starved.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you explain the meaning of the "S-0" in menstrual records? Also what is the meaning of "bilateral S—0"?—Mrs. R.D.

Been stalling a peek at your doctor's reports, have you? I think what you saw and misread was "menorrhagia" meaning abnormal bleeding associated with the menstrual period.

Here's what would mean that they were removed on both right and left side.

The Luck of the British North dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

♥ A
♦ A
♣ A J 7 10 8 4 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
3♥	Pass	4♥	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead—king of clubs.

This deal occurred in the women's world championship match between Venezuela and Ireland.

At the first table, with a Venezuelan pair North-South, the bidding went as shown. Largely as a result of the preemptive three heart bid by North — an extremely doubtful measure, considering the vulnerability of the deal — the spade fit was never found. North-South took 10 tricks and scored 620 points.

The British pair at the second table did much better with the North-South hands. The bidding went:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	3♠	3♦
3♥	Pass	4♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

This time North passed as dealer. A more aggressive line with accepted notions. Thereafter the Irish pair acted correctly along. North expressing confidence in partner's bidding by raising to four spades to six, and South returning the compliment by undertaking a grand slam.

East declared seven spades, probably more than he hoped than prosper, but South had no trouble cashing 13 tricks.

She won the diamond lead with the ace, a Blackwood club from dummy, cashed the ace of trumps, ruffed a trump to the jack, ruffed a heart, played a trump to the queen, ruffed a fourth heart with dummy's fourth trump, established the fifth heart and won the rest of the tricks.

The interesting point was that South scored a responding 2... on this hand — and got as good as Ireland of 1,200 points. Some might call this the luck of Irish. But it is an indication of observer it seems more accurate to describe it as the gift kind of earned their lopsided victory.

Valentine
Greetings

TO KIM Frost and Mr. Wilson, a Happy Valentine's Day from Mr. and Mrs. Frost, Lynda, Lorraine, Lewis and Ron Doyle.

HAPPY Valentine's Day to my sweetheart, Bernard, and Jan, Pat, Bernie, Mark, Jeffrey and Lisa. Love and kisses, Mom and Dad. Love Little On Lowside Two.

HAPPY Valentine's Day to Mom, Dad, Barry, Carol, Ann-Marie, Grandma, Uncle Bill, Aunt Ruth, Uncle Ken, Aunt Ethel, Uncle Ron and Aunt Ruth.

TO MR. and Mrs. Brush, Sharyn D., Valerie, Jeff and Tim, a very Happy Valentine's Day. Love, Lana and Lorraine.

WITH love on our special day, Happy Valentine's Day to you, Mom. Love, Bruce and Ron. Happy Valentine's Day, All my Love for ever, Terry Lee Hall.

HUBBA will love you always, Charlie.

BEAUTIFUL Angela, Happy Valentine's Day — Love, Dad.

DON, on this very special day, our love is stronger than ever and we want you to know it. Love, Mom and Dad.

DEAR TOM: Happy sweetheart Valentine's Day. Love you always. Love, Mom and Dad.

TO MACKY: Dear, I will love you always. Thanks for everything you've done for making our house such a home. Love, Mom.

DESIGNATED as sweetheart of the month, Valentine's Day is your day. Love, Mom and Dad.

TO THE Prince Charles Drive Gang: Happy Valentine's Day. Love, Lana and Lorraine.

TO THE Prince Charles Drive Gang: Happy Valentine's Day. Love, Lana and Lorraine.

I LOVE you for my Valentine. — Tuppie.

♥ I LOVE YOU ♥ I LOVE YOU ♥

BUTTONS

Three words that mean a lot.
To say how I need, and feel about you
More loveable and sweeter and turned pie.
At first I thought, of a skywriter in the sky.
Then a billboard, way up high
Or to broadcast how I need you, on radio C.H.F.I.
Or to hold a card in my hands, until they were sore,
Just small enough, to go through your front door.
For the love and need, I have for you, grow more and more.

For being yourself, and so much fun.
The little things, you have said and done.
For making so many days, a happy one.
Even though you keep me on the run.
Millions of reasons, I know are true and sincere,
To list them all, would take your after year.
Like a prizer gem, when polished to bear
I feel full of joy, for you, my dear.
From a true lover of affection
And tenderness.
Your pleasing voice, loving smile, and your sweetness
My overwhelming need, and love for you,
I selected the local paper, to convey to you
I Love You.

Dum, Dum.

Frost III

TORONTO (CP) — Former Ontario premier Leslie M. Frost, 77, is in Toronto General Hospital for what one doctor described as "a checkup."

His housekeeper at Lindsay said Mr. Frost was admitted during the weekend after having recurring trouble with "his old war wound." Mr. Frost, premier from April, 1949, to November, 1961, suffered a shattered hip by a sniper during the First World War.

Children Are Taught Animals Are Friends

BOMBAY (CP) — In many primary schools in India, the day now begins with a lesson on "our animal friends."

School children are being told there is no finer friend than a dog and no truer companion than a horse and that "if necessary, we should be prepared even to sacrifice our lives for our animal friends."

Children are also being encouraged to confess to their parents and teachers about any wrongs done by them to animals.

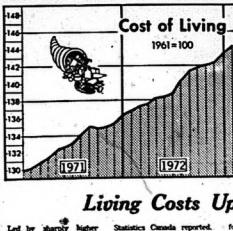
A nine-year-old Bombay girl studying in a municipal school told her class with tearful eyes: "Last week...I threw a stone at a parrot and it lost one of its feathers."

The girl was praised for her truthfulness and comforted that the loss of a feather would not have hurt the parrot very much.

Every evening dozens of school children in central Bombay are taken to a public park to see pigeons being fed by pious Hindus. Some of them take bags of peanuts with them to feed them.

All this is part of the Indian schools' attempt to minimize cruelty to animals and birds.

Reports that children often chase street dogs with stones and coconut shells have shocked headmasters.



At a headmasters' conference in West Bengal state, a teacher said: "Instead of asking children to remove fleas from the sacred books, we should teach them to love animals. This is the best way of serving God."

There is also a campaign in many states to compel the government to put some teeth into the law forbidding cruelty to animals. At present, a person who ill-treats an animal cannot be sent to jail.

An astrologer in Madras City who kept a guinea pig in a tiny cage where he could not even turn around was the subject of a complaint by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. But the court merely admonished" the accused.

This kind of leniency by the courts is attributed to the weak legislation on the subject.

Animal welfare societies in India are planning a national campaign of serving the government to draft stricter laws to punish people who hurt animals wantonly.

Living Costs Up

Led by sharply higher food prices, the consumer price index climbed by .8 per cent to 144.5 in January from 143.3 in December, Statistics Canada reported. It was the largest increase between these two months in more than a decade. A jump of two per cent in food prices pushed the index, which is based on prices in 1961 equalling 100, to its new high level.

Automakers Struggling To Meet Exhaust Rules

By RICHARD ANCO

TORONTO (CP) — The major automakers have picked the catalytic exhaust converter as a probably answer for meeting tough emission standards set for 1975 and 1976.

Although the industry keeps trying to have the cleanup regulations delayed, millions are being spent on the catalyst system that, if perfected, will reduce exhaust pollutants by roughly 85 per cent from pre-control levels.

Time is running out. Despite reports of a new "clean" engine from Honda Motor Co. of Japan, North American car manufacturers have concentrated on developing costly exhaust attachments for conventional engines.

General Motors says it has been able to meet emission targets for 1975-76 cars but only under experimental conditions.

Ford, Chrysler and American motors are all looking at types of catalytic converters but, like GM, they want more developing and testing time. And there is the added complication that lead-free or low-lead gasolines will be needed for most systems.

In the end, the car buyer will pay the cost. One automaker says the increase will be dramatic.

Canada has followed the United States in setting a timetable for reducing exhaust emissions. It is a sliding scale to 1975-76 when the standards call for a 97-per-cent reduction in hydrocarbons, 96 per cent in carbon monoxide, and 93 per cent in nitrogen oxides in 1976.

Auto executives and research specialists say the cost of anti-pollution attachments to cars far outweighs the benefit in terms of cleaner air. They insist that 1972 regulations will ensure acceptable air quality until after 1980. Meantime, advances in technology probably may result in less expensive pollution-control techniques.

"The catalytic converter, a small muffler-like attachment fitted between engine and the muffler is bound to hit the motorists' pocketbook by adding to the price of a car, maintenance costs and fuel consumption.

It is designed to convert pollutants chemically into harmless carbon dioxide and water vapor.

The GM converter involves a platinum catalyst, which costs more than $100 an ounce, and a small amount of palladium, which costs more than $50 an ounce. GM has contracted to buy 300,000 ounces of platinum and 120,000 ounces of palladium from South Africa.

Chrysler has agreed to buy 100,000 ounces of palladium from the Soviet Union, even though its president, John Riccardo, continues to criticize the 1975-76 standards as a waste of time and money.

The Petroleum Association for the Conservation of the Canadian Environment (PACE) a federally - chartered non-profit association of 11 integrated Canadian petroleum companies, recommended in a brief to the federal government that the 1975-76 standards be deferred to take advantage of new technology.

J. E. Elliot, director of engineering, quality and vehicle safety for Chrysler Canada Ltd. in Windsor, Ont., said late last year that with no further contraction in emission levels and given estimated growth in vehicle population "total national tonnage of automotive pollutants will begin to increase (onyt) in the mid-1980s."

He said considerably more research had to be done on the catalytic converter, which has so far met the test of 50,000 miles under ideal conditions only. When the catalysts were exposed to Chrysler's general endurance cycle they averaged no more than 10,000 miles.

A major headache is that platinum is sensitive to lead, which coats its surface. Automakers, as a result, want the petroleum industry to produce gasolines with no more than three-tenths gram per gallon.

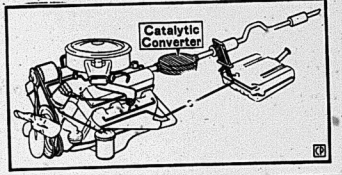
Studies show the decreed emission levels are not necessary to maintain safe air levels, he says, and the car consumer is paying heavily for the whole thing.

Roy F. Bennett, president of Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd., says that if 1975-76 standards are imposed "Canadian customers would face a dramatic cost increase per unit because of the expensive equipment required."

"Yet there is a significant lack of scientific evidence that such drastic controls are needed in Canada."

PACE, the Ottawa-based petroleum association, has estimated that 1972 regulations alone have added $110 to the price of a car, $21 to its annual maintenance and $46 to increased fuel consumption. Comparative costs for the 1976 regulations would be $395, $20 and $78. This doesn't take into consideration probable higher prices for low-lead gasolines.



PACE says that based on its forecast of national car population to 1990 the cumulative costs for motorists from the additions needed to meet 1973 standards could reach $3.4 billion.

This cumulative cost would be doubled to $8.7 billion if 1976 standards are imposed.

Another set of cost figures was given in a Toronto speech by C. A. Hall, co-ordinator of air conservation for Ethyl Corp.

The 1976 clean air standards, he said, will mean motorists will have to purchase 19 to 34 per cent more gasoline to drive the same number of miles as a comparable 1970 car.

Unleaded fuels can be expected to cost one to two cents a gallon more. Total cost for the motorist for his gasoline bill alone might mean an increase bt between 22 and 41 per cent.

Professor Has Designed Sheep-counting Substitute

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — It wouldn't do to have sheep running around a bedroom for bleary-eyed insomniacs to count.

So a University of Waterloo professor has come up with an electronic sheep counter of sorts.

It's a screen under which little lights—not a little lambs—chase one another in a circle.

The diffused light is formed by 16 small, dim bulbs and the sleepless victim keeps them moving in sequence by pushing a button on a control cable he claps under the sheets.

Dr. Kenneth Bowers, head of the university's clinical psychology program and inventor of the sleep machine, says the object is t oget the insomniac's attention outside himself.

He forgets his own sleep-destroying fantasies while concentrating on the circling light, Dr. Bowers explains. Eventually the insomniac is supposed to stop pushing the button and drop into a sound sleep.

In the three couple of months of testing, involving 23 insomniacs, 14 said the machine—which costs about $200 to build —helped them get to sleep. Eight others said it was only a nuisance.

"This thing still is at an experimental level," Dr. Bowers said. "I don't plan to jump into the marketplace but I think it will eventually be developed and sold on a limited scale."

Odd-shaped Centre

QUEBEC (CP) — A new commercial centre to be built on Ste. Foy Road will be shaped like a pyramid with an illuminated dome. It will provide 180,000 square feet of office and store space. The $5-million project is expected to be completed sometime in 1973.

Catalytic Converter

The major automakers have picked the catalytic exhaust converter as the probably answer for meeting tough emission standards set for 1975 and 1976. The catalytic convertor, a small muffler-like attachment, fitted between the engine and muffler, is designed to chemically convert pollutants into harmless carbon dioxide and white vapor. Squeeky Ride?

LEICESTER, England (CP) — The Royal Automobile Club is looking into the case of a Leicestershire businessman whose brand-new car is riddled with noise. The penis caused (70) (about $168) damage within a week by eating into the car's upholstery. Traps and gas poisoning have failed, while stripping the interior would be too expensive. While the RAC waits for inspiration, the businessman, Alfred Beccles, travels to work by bicycle.

Pennies

LONDON (CP) — Notices pinned on collection boxes inside St. Paul's Cathedral read: "Thieves, don't bother breaking the padlocks. These collection boxes are emptied twice daily."

Control Schedule

Canada has followed the United States in setting a timetable for reducing exhaust emission. It is a sliding scale to 1975-76 when the standards call for a 97 percent reduction in hydrocarbons, 96 percent in carbon monoxides and 93 percent of nitrogen oxides in 1976. (CP Newsmap)

Drought Bakes Central India

AURANGABAD, India (AP) — Men and women accustomed to tilling the fertile soil of Maharashtra State have exchanged their plows for steel hammers—they break stones into gravel. As many as 80, other farmers and farm laborers wield picks and shovels, constructing earth dams and digging wells.

They spend each day's hours of sunlight eating the dust of three years of drought so they can set aside a few minutes of darkness to eat 19 ounces of grain, their daily ration.

This section of west central India is a panorama of brown, broken only by an occasional sight of loamy black soil, plowed by a farmer in unfulfilled expectation of rain, or an irrigated green patch of stubby sugar cane or tiny wheat stalks.

Maharashtra has suffered more than any other state in the drought that has cut a swath through the heart of India, and the Aurangabad area is among the worst-hit of Maharashtra's regions.

"This year there is nothing to fall back on," said B. G. Deshmukh, secretary to the Maharashtra chief minister. "The cumulative effect of drought over the years makes this one very bad."

There are no acknowledged deaths due to starvation or thirst, although officials concede that some persons might have died from conditions aggravated by hunger. The worst is yet to come. During March, April and May temperatures often go higher than 100, and it rarely rains.

The government estimates 20 million of Maharashtra's 50 millions are affected in some way by the drought, a higher percentage than in four other major drought-hit states.

Long lines appear at government ration shops, but there is no panic. The shops are being supplied from central government buffer stocks that have dwindled in five months from 4½ million tons to fewer than three million tons, a situation causing India to reinstate food grain imports that were cut off last January.

B. K. Choqule, as commissioner of Aurangabad division, is the man responsible for keeping 11½ eight million people alive until crops yield a post-drought harvest. He explains the genesis of ruin for millions of farmers: "In the first year the peasant sold his savings—it's wife's gold bangles, that sort of thing." In the next year he sold his household belongings. Now he is almost to the point of selling his cattle."

In rural India, wealth is measured by the number of buffalo and cattle a man owns. Selling of livestock is tantamount to declaring bankruptcy with no hope for recovery. With no cattle to pull his plow, a farmer cannot farm.

Before going to the work camps, many farmers drove their cattle to other districts where fodder and water are available. Some cattle have died of starvation, and reports of many being sold, for as little as 30 rupees, about $6.30. They normally would command 20 times that.

Drought is commonplace in many parts of Maharashtra and, paradoxically, the current dry spell has had lesser effect in their regions because of irrigation projects.

The winter crop in Aurangabad failed totally, but 80 miles south, in Ahmednagar, acres of green lined with irrigation canals hide the failure of six successive monsoons. Ahmadnagar, an ancient Mughul city, is listed as a perennial drought area.

The third of winter crops usually is sated by the northeast monsoon, which dissipates over the region after coming across India. Since 1970 it has rained itself out before reaching the drought area.

The interior of Maharashtra generally is fed during its summer growing season by the southwest monsoon coming off the Arabian Sea and over the 1,000-foot Sahyadri Mountain range. During the last monsoon the area west of the Sahyadris, which includes Bombay, received 75 inches of rain. East of them there was almost none.

Tens of thousands of farmers migrated to Bombay in hopes of obtaining work, and lived in squalor for two months before the government set up work camps for them outside the city.

DDT May Conquer Whales Which Won Over Harpoon

KINGSTON, R.I. (AP) — For 75 years the "singing" humpback whale dodged harpoons from factory whaling ships that threatened the mammal with extinction.

Now a potentially greater danger stalks the species—the chemical insecticide DDT.

This year, a scientific team from the University of Rhode Island will begin seeking more clues as to how serious a threat the insecticide is to the reproductive processes of the whales.

The species has been protected from hunting by factory ships in the Atlantic since 1955 and worldwide since 1966, according to Dr. Howard E. Winn, the URI professor of oceanography and zoology who heads the project.

Although the harmful effects of DDT to reproduction in other species have been documented, scientists have located traces of it in different whales, Winn indicated his previous research is the only evidence of DDT in humpbacks.

He led a cruise last February into the Atlantic, near the West Indies, to study the humpback population that gathers there each winter to breed.

The whale derives its name from a large mound of flesh on its back which forms a hump. The mammal grows to a maximum of 50 feet and weighs as much as 45 tons. They were hunted like other whale species for their oil and bones which were used to make corsets and fishing rods.

Besides discovering DDT in the whales, the researchers counted a population of 300 to 500, only half previous estimates. Winn said there are only "a few thousand" humpbacks during the 20th century.

"The URI team also obtained information on the mysterious "song" of the humpback, which they said occurs only during the mating season and may help females find mates.

The last URI voyage was the first time a "biopsy dart" had been fired into the blubber and skin of a living whale to obtain blubber via an attached line.

Algis Tarnuzzi, a URI graduate student who helped in the study, said analysis of the samples showed higher levels of DDT than had been found previously in gray whales, the only species on which comparisons are based.

The discovery, according to Winn, "is just a general warning that if they (the humpbacks) continue to increase their DDT levels it may well affect reproduction. We may well lose more whales that way than through using."

Belleville's Most Beautiful Building?

The MacKenzie Feeds warehouse on South Front Street is "the handsomest house in Belleville." That's the opinion of Rodger Greig, inset, a Moira Secondary School teacher who has compiled an inventory on local buildings. Indian Land Claims

PM Ready To Negotiate

OTTAWA (CP) — "We've got it," exclaimed one official of the Yukon Native Brotherhood Wednesday after Prime Minister Trudeau agreed to establish a federal committee to negotiate Yukon Indian land claims.

Large amounts of land would be set aside for the Indians in their 12 major settlements in the territory.

If occupied land was to be excluded when Indians selected their land, then the community of Old Crow must be given full title to the Old Crow Flats, a natural route for the proposed pipeline from Alaska and therefore valuable real estate.

Chief Smith told Mr. Trudeau Indians in the territory needed a settlement of their claims if they were ever to participate in the wealth of the Yukon.

The government had promised Indians would benefit from northern development but Indians wanted more than a job cutting trees for a right-of-way for roads.

The Yukon brief made no legal arguments for their claims, saying it was obvious they were original inhabitants of the Yukon, and had signed no treaties.

It dealt sparingly with the past, but made the point that Indians had been pushed aside whenever it suited the whites.

But there was little of the bitterness that characterized the claims of other Indians and Mr. Trudeau praised the Yukoners for that.

The government couldn't be held accountable for what happened 100 years ago or for the actions of persons long dead, he said.

Like the Yukoners, he looked to the future and an end to the problems.

"It was too soon to respond to all of the points made in the brief but he agreed on negotiation. On its face, it was one of the most constructive submissions" the government had received.

Basically, said Mr. Trudeau, there was not that much difference that separated the government and the Indians.

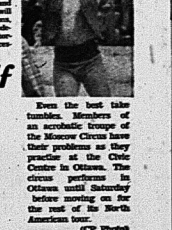
Getting Ottawa to the bargaining table was the main theme of a brief on land claims presented by Mr. Trudeau to the brotherhood. And while there were suggestions that the prime minister would announce a breakthrough, it still came a surprise to the delegation.

The brief proposed a 15-member settlement committee, seven chosen by Ottawa and seven by the Indians. A chairman would be appointed with the agreement of both parties.

"I look forward to negotiating a settlement," Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien said afterwards.

Lloyd Barber, Indian claims commissioner who brought the Indians and Mr. Trudeau together, said the meeting was historic.

The Yukon delegation, led by brotherhood president Elijah Smith, entertained high hopes since it was only a week ago that Mr. Trudeau told British Columbia chiefs they might have better legal claims to their land than he first thought.



A new government policy on land claims is being prepared as a result of the Supreme Court of Canada decision on claims of the Nishga Indians.

The Yukon land claims hinge on cash settlements in the millions of dollars, unspecified land grants and royalties on gas, oil and mineral development in the territory.

The brief seeks a settlement along the lines of one in Alaska that Yukon Indians said they had learned from some of the weaknesses of the U.S. settlement.

Monetary Union Euromart's Aim

BRUSSELS (CP) — Finance ministers of the European Common Market's nine member countries have used the world-wide money crisis as an occasion for insisting on speeding up moves towards economic and monetary union within their community.

Devaluation of the United States dollar and the floating of the Japanese yen were logical steps, the ministers said after a six-hour meeting here Wednesday night.

The American and Japanese decisions help towards a better balance in international payments, said a communique summing up the results of the ministers' discussions.

The latest monetary crisis, they decided, makes acceleration of efforts towards economic and monetary union within the Common Market a necessary step.

Thus a report originally scheduled to be submitted by the Common Market commission in September on the development of short-term monetary supports and the build-up of common reserves now is to be made before June 30.

Belgian Finance Minister Willy De Clercq, who presided at the Brussels meeting, said he and his eight colleagues believe the European community should speedily work for a common position on world monetary reform.

He conceded that there are special problems confronting the community in the money field—notably the floating of the Italian lire and the continued floating of the pound.

But De Clercq said both Italy and Britain fully support the position of the other seven member states on the need for accelerating progress towards the monetary union envisaged at last October's summit conference of the nine Common Market countries in Paris.

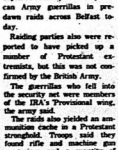
U.S. Dollar Sags Gold at New High

LONDON (AP) — The United States dollar sagged on foreign exchanges, and the price of gold reached new peaks today amid widespread doubts over the stability of the world monetary system following devaluation of the American currency.

The dollar opened lower in most centres, but there were signs the decline toward its new official parties was slowing.

Sales of dollars, relatively heavy Wednesday, appeared to be slowing also. But dealers reported no indication speculators had begun buying dollars to keep the profits from the huge amounts of yen, German marks, Dutch guilders or Swiss francs they bought feverishly last week.

The price of gold climbed to new peaks in bullion markets everywhere. Dealers said this was partly a reflection of the waning confidence in the money of South Africa, the world's largest producer of gold, and partly an indication of the uncertainty of small speculators over monetary stability.



The metal's price was fixed in London at $72.80 an ounce, 80½ cents above the previous high at Wednesday's close. It was $72.875 an ounce in Zurich, $73.11 in Frankfurt and a whopping $75.93 in Hong Kong.

The price of official gold, which backs currencies, was set at $42.22 an ounce in the devaluation of the dollar Tuesday. Trading in gold was divided in 1968 into official and free sectors with every one but state banks barred from the official sector.

Four IRA Chieftans Captured

BELFAST (AP) — British troops announced they have captured four top Irish Republican Army guerrillas in predawn raids across Belfast today.

The guerrillas who fell into the security net were members of the IRA's Provisional wing, the army said.

The raids also yielded an ammunition cache in a Protestant stronghold. Troops said they found rifle and machine gun magazines and a quantity of plastic explosives.

A paymaster and six shots at a group of men in a bar during the night, grazing only two of them. He escaped on a motor cycle.

British soldiers reported they were facing a new hazard in Londonderry, the province's second city.

News Briefs

Airport Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — City council passed a resolution Wednesday urging the Ontario government to scrap the North Pickering development which includes a new international airport. Most council members abstained from voting on the motion to send the recommendation to Queen's Park. The vote was 2-2.

Minto Site Out

TORONTO (CP) — A controversial Minto Township site near Harriston, about 30 miles northwest of here, has been ruled out as a place for a Metropolitan Toronto garbage landfill, Metro and Ontario government officials indicated Wednesday night. An official announcement is not expected for about a week but the officials said another site near Metro Toronto will be proposed as the destination for CP Rail's garbage trains.

Gas-short Britons Shiver

LONDON (CP) — The gas workers' strike hit three million English households today as temperatures dropped below freezing in most of the country. It was eight degrees in Yorkshire, the coldest spot below the Scottish border. The walkout crippled the auto and other industries in the Midlands, and the state gas board warned that supply cuts soon could spread to Wales, Plymouth and Southampton in the south. Power stations in pressure brought the risk of explosions from water heaters and stoves that use pilot lights. Officials advised customers to switch off their mains before going to bed or going out.

Hospital Planned

VICTORIA (CP) — The provincial government has accepted in principle a Vancouver hotel would have British Columbia set up a hospital in Vietnam for the care of children who are caught in the fighting there. The motion was proposed by Allen Williams (L-West Vancouver-Howe Sound), who said half of the seven million persons who were refugees at one time or another in the war are children, and 700,000 probably have lost one or both parents in the devastation.

Hovertrain Scrapped

LONDON (AP) — Britain's experimental hovertrain, designed to run on an elevated track at speeds up to 300 miles an hour, is being scrapped. Aerospace Minister Michael Heseltine announced Wednesday. He told a House of Commons committee: "The project has not proved to be of value to the extent that no one has a use for it."

More Prisoners Home

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Forty more liberated American prisoners of war were greeted with the joyous news Valentine's Day arrival of 20 men who had been in Communist hands for as long as eight years.

Truce Teams Told To Scout Quarters

SAIGON (CP) — The International supervisory force has ordered its advance headquarters teams to proceed "as soon as possible" to make preliminary evaluation visits to selected ceasefire team sites in Vietnam.

Gen. Duncan McAlpine, commander of the Canadian military contingent, said approval for the preliminary scouting trips was given at a meeting of the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS) during a meeting today.

"It's important that we get out there and get started," he said. "It's in everybody's interest that we do."

The order allows the regional commissioners to inspect communications and communications facilities at several of the ceasefire centres where teams will base.

At the same time the headquarters staff in Saigon is preparing implementation orders to send permanent teams to the sites that are reported satisfactory by the advance reconnaissance groups," he said.

Gen. McAlpine said the requirements for safety are such that "we are not going out looking for trouble."

"We have a list of sites that are acceptable for reconnaissance," he said, adding that most were in the central and east-coast areas of Vietnam "where there has been little or no fighting."

One ICCS team attempted earlier to make a preliminary visit to Quang Ngai, but turned back because of heavy fighting in the area.

"Our teams will be accompanied, if possible, by security elements of the parties concerned," he said, "and strict precautions will have to be taken."

He was referring to the Joint Military Commission (JMC) made up of the United States, Saigon, the Viet Cong, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

"The teams will be instructed to stick strictly to roads and well-defined areas. There will be no cross-country excursions, and ICCS vehicles will be adequately marked so that ceasefire violators will be contacted as necessary."

Canada Urged to Keep Energy Resources for Herself

TORONTO (CP) — Canada should carefully husband its northern energy resources for herself, says J. Tuzo Wilson, chairman of the Royal Society of Canada.

He suggested that Arctic reserves of oil and natural gas are too small to have any real impact on the energy-hungry United States market. Therefore, they should be conserved in Canada and tapped to meet future Canadian requirements only.

Prof. Wilson, internationally known geophysicist and principal of Erindale College, Toronto, says northern energy should quickly be consumed in the U.S., adding a few years at most to American needs.

"But Canada needs this energy for her own survival and these resources should be husbanded carefully," he writes in the March issue of Maclean's magazine.

He emphasizes that potential Canadian petroleum reserves in both Alberta and the Arctic are less than two per cent of the world's total. Whatever is exported would be only a drop in terms of U.S. demand and could drain Canada's supplies long before technology produces practical energy alternatives.

"There is no thing Canadians should always remember," he says.

"In many parts of the world including much of the southern United States people will be uncomfortable if heating fuel is cut off, but in Canada many people would die. We need our energy fuels just to stay alive in our rigorous climate and fuel for our future is essential."

He says some intelligent people may be misled in arguing for more growth and expenditure, in believing that resources are limitless and that replacements will always be found.

"The stupidity of such an attitude can well be illustrated by the thoughtless lack of control with which hunters exterminated the passenger pigeon and the manner in which whalers today are destroying the last big whales and their own livelihood forever."

The petroleum industry, depended on finite resources, will be finished "as we know it today" when there is scarcity, Prof. Wilson says. Greater thought and effort must be devoted to its replacement.

Experts disagree, he says, on how long it will take for the energy crisis in industrial civilization to become desperately serious.

"The pendulum may in years, but double or even quadruple that estimate and the crisis is still less than a lifetime away."

Energy demands have been doubling every 10 years and the United States has already used up half of all its crude oil and much of its natural gas. Demand and supply are on a collision course that no change is necessary.

Prof. Wilson writes:

"It is not change itself that is obvious, but the failure to react to it in time."

Canadians refer to close-mindedness to the obvious, because realization demands a mental adjustment reversal of the attitudes of most North Americans, inbred of wishful thinking to exploit our manner, instead of trying to increase consumption we must curb our appetites."

Even the best take tumbles. Members of an acrobatic troupe of the Moscow Circus have their problems as they practise at the Civic Centre in Ottawa. The circus performs in Ottawa until Saturday before moving on for the rest of its North American tour.

Career Details Now on Computer

Computer - planned careers are now a possibility for Quinte district students.

Students from two schools, Bayside and Centre Hastings in Madoc, will try the new guidance service first, on a half - year trial basis.

The principle is simple. A computer in the ministry office in Toronto has stored information on 2,000 careers and 200 post-secondary training facilities in its memory bank. Any student at the two school's who wants information on the requirements for these careers or colleges can retrieve it by questioning the computer.

The Student Guidance Information Service operated by the ministry of education is expected to make more information available to students than they could get from catalogues and pamphlets in the past.

"Few people are aware of the many specialties available," says Ross Allen, guidance department head at Bayside.

"How can they keep up with all the literature in guidance offices listing the credits and requirements needed to enter universities, colleges, apprenticeship programs and trade schools.

"With requirements changing almost daily now, keeping the information up to date is a major headache for guidance teachers.

"I get bulletins daily, but the problem is to get the new information on the rack," says Mr. Allan.

Students at the two schools are now being registered and given their computer printout here. After the registration is complete, a student can ask for details on a career or university and get the latest information he can use. He can also ask for information about fields related to the first choice he may request that any new information be sent to him when it is received.

A grade 9 student interested in medicine can discover the high school credits he must take. If he wants it, the computer will tell him about all the allied fields he could choose instead of medicine. And if he requests it, the computer will keep him up to date on all the changes in entrance requirements during the five years he is in high school.

Because of the high line charges for the service, the students' requests are now routed to Trenton. The reply comes back about a week later, also by mail.

The cost of the trial period is 75 cents a student. For a full year the cost will be about $1.50, with charges expected to be passed on to the schools in the province make use of the service.

"The students are enthusiastic," says Gerry Allin, guidance head at Centre Hastings.

The computer will give only basic information the students request. It doesn't attempt to assess their aptitude for any career by processing IQ and other psychological tests.

The need in Belleville is for information on trends in jobs and employment opportunities," says Mr. Allen.

Both men see the computerized guidance service eventually pushing the traditional counselling and booklets out of guidance offices. Institutions will soon become aware that the students are not applying satisfaction to the ministry of education's right across the province by mail.

Computerized Guidance

Bayside Secondary School's guidance department is now using a Toronto computer to dig out the latest in career and post - secondary institution's requirements. Grade 11 student Perry Lauckner types a computer printout from Jackie Bench of the guidance department. It lists all the entrance requirements and necessary high school credits for the university of her choice.

Volunteers to Assume More Meaningful Role

Volunteers will assume a vital role in the delivery of health care in the future, a group of Belleville volunteers was told last night.

David MacCoy, a member of the Ontario government's task force on community and social services addressed the annual meeting of the Central Volunteer Bureau at the Four Seasons Hotel.

He told his listeners that the volunteer has to be included in government planning.

"The greatest misuse of volunteers is underestimating their creativity and imagination," he said. "New programs will have to come from the volunteers."

Mr. MacCoy said he will make three recommendations in his task force report on how the ministry of social and family services can become involved with volunteers.

One proposal is to give bodies like the Central Volunteer projects. Another is to consider Bureau money to operate its tract with volunteers to purdominate society," he said. "The professional feels volunteers are a threat."

But that era is ending and participatory leadership will be the way of the future.

"We are getting away from the great man leadership, away from the hero," said Mr. MacCoy.

Society is not offering enough opportunities to young people and to the elderly and the retired to do meaningful work in their communities. All could contribute more than they are allowed to now.

Mr. MacCoy dwelt on the reasons people do volunteer the work. Personal hurt at the fa-

Belleville hair stylist George Bazilone expanded his business into the downtown area today with the opening of the Razor's Edge at 249 Front St. Managing the new shop is George Bal Cosmo.

Its special feature is a sauna facility and Mr. Bazilone said he intends to add an exercise room. A staff of six will be engaged in hair styling, cutting and care as well as providing such specialties as manicures, facials and hair colouring.

Mr. Bazilone also owns and operates Lisa Ann's Stylist and Venus Coiffure at the Quinte Mall and the Modern Barber Shop at 188 North Front St.

Inspection Tonight

Ottawa District Commander Col. J. K. Gillespie will conduct an inspection of 1, A and B Companies of the Hastings Prince Edward Regiment at tonight's public parade.

The annual inspection will begin at 8 p.m. at Belleville Armories with 110 militiamen on parade under command of Lt.-Col. B. F. McKinnon, senior Staff Officer of the Ottawa Military District.

Car Wash Hit

Thieves who broke into the Esso Car Wash on Dundas Street West Wednesday night rifled a cash box containing approximately $180 and stole 198 car wash tickets.

City policemen on patrol at 1:40 a.m. discovered a broken window used by the thieves to gain entry.

Tweed Merchants Split on Hours

Early closing of stores in the village of Tweed could be a thing of the past if a motion passed at Monday night's council meeting of the village council is carried through.

The motion calls for rescinding of the village's closing by-law and if it carries, Reeve Barbara Allen feels something akin to chaos could result.

"Merchants are split right down the middle on the matter," the Reeve says.

What will happen will be that some merchants will remain closed on some days and some on others. There will be no uniformity.

At the same time, Reeve Allen felt that strong steps need be taken to counteract the open hours offered by area mall operations.

The Holiday rental fleet includes a wide range of makes and models of cars, vans and light trucks, available for rental by the hour, day, weekend, week or for longer periods.

Holiday Rent-A-Car rates are among the lowest in the industry and the company follows a six month replacement policy for cars, regardless of mileage.

For rental customers unable to visit the station, Holiday offers a local customer pick up and return service, always available except at peak hours.

Even if you have no immediate need for a rental vehicle, Floyd Johnston hopes you will drop in, look over his fleet of cars, vans and trucks and just get acquainted.

Belleville's Volunteers Praised

A member of the provincial task force on community social services thinks so.

When I come here, I'm bringing coals to Newcastle," said David MacCoy last night as he addressed the annual meeting of the Central Volunteer Bureau.

"I'm impressed with the activities of the Central Volunteer Bureau here," he said. "How do we transmit this volunteer spirit to other communities in Ontario? They have it."

Mr. MacCoy is familiar with the work of Belleville volunteer bureau here because of his interest in the surveying Col. Gillespie will be Lt.-Col. B. F. McKinnon, senior Staff Officer of the Ottawa Military District.

Adult Handicapped Aid Is Discussed

The possibility of establishing a Cheshire home for handicapped persons over the age of 18 is being investigated by a representative committee from the Belleville and Quinte area.

Named after British war hero Group Captain Leonard Cheshire, VC, the home would serve up to 15 handicapped adults over the age of 18. The Ontario Society for Crippled Children serves young people up to that age, but at present there are no facilities for elder persons whose care in fact falls under the category of homes for the aged.

The Cheshire Home would fill such a void here.

More than a hundred of these homes operate in 29 countries. They fill a variety of needs for persons who are helped to self-sufficiency and a sense of their own ability by volunteers.

If such a home is established in Belleville, it would be one of only two in Canada — the other being located at 11 Lowther Avenue, Toronto, which is near Bloor and Avenue Road. It is named McLeod House and Group Captain Cheshire was present at its opening last year.

More of the background and history of the Cheshire Homes was relayed to the Rotary Clubs of Belleville and Trenton Monday by Mrs. Margaret McLeod. A volunteer with the Ontario Society for Crippled Children for the past 19 years, the home in Toronto is named after her.

Mrs. McLeod said the Cheshire Homes exist to fill a gap in this case was attempting in this case was attempting to make physically - handicapped people as much a part of life as others.

They were begun in England in the postwar years, when Group Captain Cheshire, himself ill for a couple of years with tuberculosis, tried to find a home for an incurable cancer patient. He placed him in a large house which he owned and was then trying to dispose of. Others came, however, and from this beginning the concept grew and became the worldwide operation it is today.

Mrs. McLeod said assistance is available from Social and Family Services, but she spoke of the difficulties faced by the group because of the fact they fall under the Charitable Institutions Act.

The local investigating committee, a composite group of men and women from the Central Volunteer Bureau, social services, service clubs, doctors, clergymen and lay people is headed by Alex Mcningham, a Northern Electric employee whose son Sandy is crippled and in Kingston General Hospital as the result of a car accident.

Trustees to Discuss School Act Changes

BLOOMFIELD — Prince Edward school trustees will meet in committee of the whole to discuss a report of a minister's conference in Toronto to study the consolidation of school acts.

The conference, attended by board chairmen or their representatives, proposed several changes and shifts of emphasis.

Past chairman George Flower, who attended the conference on behalf of chairman Clare McFaul, said a rewording of section 22, subsection C of the Schools Administration Act has been proposed. This section outlines the teacher's responsibilities to his job and demands "moderation", "purity", "benevolence" and many other virtues in the individuals should be stressed.

The amended act would add instead that a teacher work "diligently and faithfully" and maintain proper discipline in the classroom. The present wording of the act was considered "antiquated."

Mr. Flower did not support the proposed amendment and observed, "If those virtues should have been taught in class 150 years ago I don't think they have outlived their usefulness now."

He said the conference emphasized closer teamwork between elementary and secondary school teachers. They should work as one family, not as a family divided.

Mr. Flower said the common thread of the conference was a need to look at time in expenditures.

Boards were asked not only to share what they now have but to plan to share in the years ahead rather than to build.

Mr. Flower felt the themes of the conference should be studied further and that time is of the essence since changes are proposed for the near future.

He added that the key is dialogue between the ministry and school boards and if it is lacking, changes will be effected swiftly.

He observed that during the conference, several delegates asked how suggested changes might tie in with regional government and were told, "It depends on you."

Male Cooking Course Popular

"Bachelor Survival" is a popular course for the male members of Hastings county 4-H clubs.

This was indicated to Hastings county council Tuesday by Agricultural Representative Douglas Tipper, who said that the special course, teaching the rudiments kitchen culinary art, each year since it was introduced five years ago, was attracting up to 17 members.

The boys were taught the art of cooking and even featured an annual bake sale at the Madoc Fair.

The note regarding the bachelors' survival course was an aside to a report on last year's work and programs offered from the Stirling Agricultural office. Mr. Tipper presented the programs and clubs' report and D. E. Provant, agricultural engineer, outlined the work of his department in assisting farmers with construction and engineering problems.

The new staff members at the Stirling office, Miss Kim Ann Wahl, home economist, and John J. Paul, extension assistant, were introduced to county council members.

Sand Use Heavy On County Roads

A suggestion by district highways engineer, V. A. Snell at the January session of Hastings county council that savings might be made in winter road maintenance through more judicious use of sand, hasn't worked out that way.

The roads and bridges committee report, read Tuesday by chairman Ernest Rayt Shortt, indicated that due to freezing rain and bad conditions, sanding of roads has been more costly than in previous years.

However, due to lighter snow accumulation than is usual, there has been no problem for the county roads department to keep within its budget for winter control.

The roads report said design for reconstruction at the section of county road 18 from Mitchell Sideroad to the Shannonville gravel was being ahead.

Three other contracts were said in the design stages, these being two sections of county road one from Highway 62 running one mile east and the other, 0.8 mile, at Moira; the urban section of county road 7 in Shannonville from Highway 2 to the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve, and the urban section of county road 16 in Deseronto running from the westerly town limits to Fourth Street and then north to Highway 2.

The first three projects are planned for construction this year with the latter planned for construction in 1974.

A board order has been issued by the Canadian Transport Commission calling for the installation of automatic protection at the CPR crossing on the 6RD road in the county's share of the cost of the project will be 12.5 per cent, the figure to be shown later this year in the county roads budget.

County Planning Director Proposed

Hastings county will soon be in the market for a planning director to supervise the carrying out of its official plan now in course of preparation.

Planning Board Chairman Calvin White, chairman of the county planning committee, reported Tuesday that the proposed official plan was progressing favorably and will be ready for intensive scrutiny later this year.

Before it can be completed, however, council will have to make certain policy decisions.

Decisions will have to be made whether or not development is wanted, the type of development, where it should take place, whether agricultural lands should be retained and whether vacation areas should be protected and developed in a more intensive fashion.

The feeling of the committee was that planning will be an on-going process and that the official plan and restricted area bylaws will require continual amendments. Hiring of a planner now would give this person the opportunity of becoming acquainted with background information of the official plan.

The county planner would also assume the function of supervising the county building inspector and assisting the land division committee.

Furniture Exchange Has A New Name

The Central Volunteer Bureau's scheme to provide furniture for needy families who can't afford to buy their own has a new name.

It's now Furniture Sharing, because the old name, Furniture Exchange, gave the impression recipients or donors have to give something in return, says Mrs. Burrows. "And we can never get enough baby's cribs, highchairs and carriages."

Donated furniture not required is stored at the rear of the United Community Services building on William St.

Pickup and delivery is still a problem, but volunteers with pickup trucks have shuffled the furniture between donors and recipients. For Cartage makes deliveries of bulky items about once a month on a volunteer basis.

County Speaking Finals This Week

Eight elementary school finalists chosen from their respective school areas throughout Hastings County will compete in the county finals of the Oral Communications Festival at St. Michael's Academy, Feb. 16 at 1:30 p.m.

The festival winner will qualify to enter the zone final at Centennial secondary school in Napanee, Feb. 24 at 1:30 p.m.

Secondary school competition will be held at Centennial Secondary School lecture theatre Feb. 15, at 1:30 p.m. with speeches in two divisions, prepared and impromptu.

The winner of the high school contest will go to zone finals, also at Westside Park public school in Napanee, Feb. 23 at 1:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend all contests, co-sponsored by the Ontario Public School Trustees Association and Ontario Hydro.

Councillors Want Tighter Parole

Hastings county council has concurred in a Northumberland and Durham counties resolution calling for the Solicitor General to adopt more stringent measures in the parole and discipline system at penitentiaries.

The resolution was prompted by the recent molestation and vicious attack on a young Colborne boy which brought the subject of the criminal at large to the counties' doorstep.

It is our concern that sex deviates be denied parole, otherwise no adequate procedures have been introduced to cure this condition," read the resolution.

OHC Senior Housing Procedure Described

Action to be taken by municipalities desirous of obtaining senior citizen apartment projects, where apartment units was outlined to members of Hastings county council Tuesday.

The speaker was William Jarvis, area supervisor of OHC housing, who said the first step was to request a survey to establish need, followed by passage of a recommendation for the construction of the required number of units.

The OHC development department would then look for suitable serviced sites and a contract would be drawn up for application to the federal government for construction funds. The federal government provides 90 percent of costs and the province 10 percent.

Several county councillors evinced interest in the provision for an urban municipality with sewer and water services entering into an agreement with adjoining rural municipalities for a housing project.

Mr. James said this was commonly done, while at least one county had also entered into such agreements.

The agreements were necessary to provide for the municipalities to pick up 7.5 percent of any loss which the complete plight assume. The federal government pays 50 percent of any loss and the province the balance left after the municipal share is paid.

Proposals for senior citizen housing under agreement with adjoining municipalities are now under consideration for Madoc and Bancroft.

Hastings MPP Clarke Rollins told councillors that he would be prepared to assist any municipality in any request for a survey.

If only you'd called me last year.

You might have paid less income tax. You see, there's a section of the Income Tax Act that says you could have deducted the full amount of premiums on a life insurance policy provided you had an eligible retirement savings plan. Don't lose out on this. Let me show you how to take advantage of this. Helping people plan ahead is one of the services I perform best.

On Cutting Down

In a letter last week, Mrs. Margaret Armstrong of Brighton referred to an article by Canadian Press women's editor Jean Sharp on the subject of meat prices and buying habits.

"By effinging our methods of buying, which the article strongly suggests that we do," Mrs. Armstrong said in part, "we must be satisfied with a lower vitamin content in our food. We can convince our minds that this is our solution to our ever-increasing meat costs; but will our bodies listen. . .

"Beef," she concluded, "contains the highest degree of vitamins by which our bodies be forced to be satisfied with less?"

The letter reminds us of a recent article in The Globe and Mail about a Department of Fisheries and Environment man in New Brunswick — Reg. Hody — and his wife and four children who decided as an experiment to live on the $240-a-month allowance to which they would be entitled if on welfare. It was not easy as Mrs. Hody explained.

It all began after the Hody family car was demolished in an accident. They could have afforded another one, but they decided this was the opportunity to try and live on the equivalent of the welfare allowance. The family cut down on everything, including spending on clothing and transportation. They used public transport (which was woefully inadequate) and an occasional taxi and the boys sometimes walked the six miles into Moncton. At first the family exceeded its budget but later became adept at living within it.

However, Mrs. Hody's experience trying to juggle the menu was revealing. Meals were monotonous and the psychological strain began to show. She was hard put to assure enough protein for the children. There was a lot of hamburger, eggs, cheese, potatoes and macaroni.

Mrs. Hody, living as she noted on the carbohydrate of the poor, gained weight and became "tired, depressed and irritable." She believes the reason why people on welfare don't get out and do something for themselves is that they simply don't have the strength or energy.

The experience of the two women discussed here, one in our own area and the other in New Brunswick, is eloquent of the problems many Canadians face in keeping body and soul together. We hear so much about our affluent society, ignoring the fact that many Canadians are far from affluent, to the point that they cannot afford — or if not actually hungry, must still cut down on the more expensive items such as meat, and furthermore to the point that their health suffers.

Tax Morass

While Ottawa and the federal income fax people at the local level, including officials in Belleville, insist that the new income tax forms are easier than they appear, we share the views of Mrs. like Wallace Nesbitt who suggests the "easier" pitch is dream-world fantasy.

Furthermore, how can the average nontechnical or non-mathematical type view this annual curse with equanimity when even accountants and other tax preparation experts (as Ottawa correspondent Richard Jackson points out) disagree — and incidentally will be charging more for their services this year?

If a fellow even has so much as a little bit of foreign income in addition, then look out. One man of our acquaintance has spent months trying to get to the bottom of an assessment notice from Ottawa calling for a substantial increased payment over and above what he payed last April. He believes he has finally had it sorted to his satisfaction in that finds he will not have to pay much less than originally had been demanded.

Problems of dealing with Ottawa through the local tax office, as well as with a bank overseas, played its part in this little drama. Mix in the fact that bureaucratic hitch grew about it all, and one has some idea of the problem.

Tax preparation then is no easy matter. And it is all the more galling when one takes a look at the monumental, not to say criminal, waste involved in its use for funding of all kinds of dubious initiatives, over and above what may be considered absolutely essential for the running of the country.

Preoccupation With Being 'Parliamentary'

PCs Get Some Advice From the Senate -- 'Get Rough'

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So the sagest Senate advice to the Conservatives, offered on the incomparable basis of 40 years of consistency, closely book-seat Parliament - watching, is "get rough".

Put the pressure on the minority Liberals and keep it there. Day after day after day.

Dispute, disrupt, disturb; even demonstrate (Senate as once each of the two major parties, the Conservatives and Liberals, did to destroy minority governments, first Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent's, then, six years later, Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's.

The Tories this time have the troops as seldom before in a minority government position, 107 to the Liberals' 109.

But have they the will first-power, the cold calculation to shoot for the kill?

The answer ought to be yes, of course, they have.

But if this is so, they must have been holding their fire.

They have one of the deadliest marksmen ever to draw a bead in the Commons, Old Warrior, John George Diefenbaker, QC.

He is still capable — as he earlier demonstrated in this time-out-of-mind question period — of delivering the best speech in the House.

Real rough stuff, he fires off, all the more damaging as the government because he gives it the penetrating power of silence.

But you get the feeling, after watching Dief in action since he first came to Parliament Hill, 33 years ago, that now he does it more for his own amusement, and the pleasure it gives him to hold the spellbound House in brief when it is in top dentalfloss.

You sense that, at 78, the old urge to go for the political throat no longer is the driving force.

When he is full furious there he is magnificent and alike can keep the old Liberal cabinet ministers and the young Grit backbiters sitting in respectful, even fearful silence, hoping he will not turn his verbal guns and that scornful spear-of-a-finger on them individually.

The situation with the Old Chief is that yes, while he is the best of them all at in-fighting and "get rough" tactics.

Then there is George Hees, the You - Can't - Do - Business-Sitting - on - Your - Butt Conservative back-minister, just about the best trade minister since the late great C. D. "Trader" Howe.

And George Hees, too, can rouse up the rah-rah go-get-'em team spirit born of his football days and carried so effectively into the Conservative cabinet.

He still has zest in the parliamentary rough - and - tumble when he makes the effort.

Down the Conservative front bench sits Calgary's Eldon Woolliams with a fog - horn voice that, on a good day with a northwest wind, just might slow down Seaway traffic 40 miles to the south on the St. Lawrence, especially when, with the unrelenting hounding of the Solicitor general for what many Conservatives consider casual parliamentary cares, curious morals and consequent coddling of criminals, he flashes that very special edge his Tartan way stripped the government of thousands of votes in the last election in the West.

Alvin Hamilton, former inventive Tory agriculture minister, is back there on the front bench. He was never a great performer in the art of the parliamentary rout, but he was a tremendous idea-man, and the Conservatives could stand some original thinking.

Claude Wagner, former Quebec justice minister, sits on Conservative leader Stanfield's right. But he has been quiet, even subdued, while everyone who knows him wants, impatiently for him to erupt, as he did so many times in the past in smiting separatist hooligans who tried to mob the Queen in Quebec City, and in putting the wood to criminals in the name of law and order.

Wallace Nesbitt, veteran Oshawa MP for Durham, is on the Tory front line, capable, when he is in the mood, of shaking up the cabinet.

But like Alf Hales, Conservative chairman of the Public Accounts Committee, with a tremendous potential for causing the government all kinds of trouble, Wallace Nesbitt so far has failed to cry havoc.

Built on the front bench there is potential aplenty for some good, rousing government-baiting.

And who better can boot the government than Jack Horner, Steve Paproski, Erik Nielsen, and Ged Baldwin from the West?

Many Conservative freshmen, too, have shown they can go on the mouse. Ontario's Peter Reilly may have somehow lit in indirectly calling the Prime Minister a "nasty, bad man" but others have been more effective in being less dramatic. Among them, Ontario's Walter Dinsdale, chairman of the board of Public Service Commission Chairman John Carson, and Victoria's Donald Munro and Toronto's Ian Arrol, in demanding a return to law and order, and an end to the selfdefeating heart cadaverization of crime.

But what is holding up a full-scale, smash - the - government attack?

Perhaps a preoccupation among some of the tired old Tories and the very prim and proper young Conservatives an obsession, almost, for being "parliamentary" — that they like to call it, before anything else.

French Hold on to Somaliland Territory

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

When French President Georges Pompidou visited Djibouti in January, scoring hot denials of former French territory, it now called "The Territory of the Afars and Issas," there were twinges of the colonial past along the African side of the Red Sea.

This tiny almost totally barren enclave, home to about 200,000 warring tribes (you guessed it, the Afars and the Issas) is the last of a peculiar and World War spread of European colonies along the African Red littoral.

Before 1939 they included Italian Eritrea, to the north of French Somaliland with British and Italian Somaliland to the south. To the south and east of all of them lay the sprawling, backward and former independent Empire of Ethiopia, then of Haile Selassie was its ruler.

Ethiopia's then-and-now emperor Haile Selassie was its exile, the victim of Mussolini's conquest of his country in 1935-36. And Italy's diminutive King Victor Emmanuel III was being called "King Emperor" while the British monarch of that era, Italy's "friend" ruled over Ethiopia, while Britain's ruled over India.

The scent for tiny French Somaliland and the larger, but just as bleak and barren British Somaliland next door, this bugle sounded at East Africa was Italian territory.

Today Ethiopia is again an independent empire, freed from Italian rule in 1941 early in the Second World War, Eritrea is a restive Ethiopian province seeking independence and Italy's which has come to the new Islamic state of Somalia.

Djibouti is a trade up of the former British and Italian colonies in Somaliland. Only the French cling to their colony in this region of changing territorial ownership. President Pompidou was actually on his way to Somalia when he flew to Addis Ababa, returning to Paris for visit he flew to Djibouti.

His "dropping in" on France's last piece of African real estate raised question in Ethiopia, Somalia and France. Why bother keeping this barren wedge of Africa complete with the last serving unit of the French Foreign Legion on the continent and the collection of parliamentary representatives in Paris from Djibouti?

The main reason is that old one that withdrawal by the colonial power which helped to carve up the region, could mean war between successor-states. Ethiopia, Djibouti, not the incredibly hot land around it, is the key to Ethiopia because it is the terminus of the country's main railroad running from Addis Ababa to the Red Sea.

But the Somalia Republic also sees Djibouti as give that new country a modern port and because the new African Islamic state is also the Issa tribe's ancestral home.

To add to the confusion, Eritrea in the north which always considered to be a natural part of Ethiopia, and was ceded to her, has for some of yet another guerrilla organization this time fighting for an independent Eritrean Republic.

Three Eritrean guerrillas have twice hi-jacked the far-ranging Boeing 707 passenger jets of Ethiopian Airlines and added their own contribution to world instability.

In the late Nineteenth Century and early Twentieth, Europe's former colonial empires sliced up Africa like a melon. Many of the pieces remain. But other powers want to gobble them up.

Strike Again Questioned

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I feel that I have to answer the letter by John Kidd Jr. — "The Task of The Mailmen".

I do not feel that being sarcastically critical of Mr. Kidd. His letter showed his thinking and was well written. He is to be complimented for coming forth with his views under his own name thereby allowing one who wishes to know where to get an answer.

I ask Mr. Kidd if he thought his statements out well before scribing them.

He says that we take it for granted that we can expect mail delivery for our dime. I say that we don't have to take it for granted. This is the source of the job for which we pay a fair rate.

I think we are all willing to admit that there are now and again poor factory conditions under which letter carriers have to operate. Multitudes of other jobs can be regarded in the same light. I would like to repeat Mr. William C. Hocken's observations made in January. He suggests that most people usually inquire about working conditions and terms of reference before accepting a job. This is as it should be. For deep further, however. Having done this and having accepted a job, a person is then morally obligated to perform that job to the best of his ability.

To be employed here with a good cause is a commendable thing. When the methods used to protest the handling of such a cause are such a lack of common sense thinking, then the thing must be viewed at least once again.

A 63 cent per hour increase offer — even over two years — is not to be sneered at. Remember, it is not always possible to have ice cream with a serving of pie.

I am the joker who referred to the Belleville local's misuse of the right to strike. I stand by this. I am aware of the basic principles of the right to strike. Used at the proper time in the manner it was intended, it can give labour a dignified tool with which to register indignation. Used indiscriminately on matters of lower negotiable issue, then the right becomes a plaything and is robbed of its dignity and is subject to high criticism.

Keep writing, Mr. Kidd. It is only by the use of the pen that we can take my criticism for what it is worth.

Community Objective Outlined

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In the annual report for the year 1972, President Mrs. Gerald Robb comments that "it constantly surprises us what some Belleville citizens do not do to then United Community Services of Belleville and District is only responsible for the United, and, therefore, must again repeat that there are two facets to our job. Our other responsibility is as a Social Community planning."

When United Community Services received its charter on November 21, 1950, from the Provincial Secretary and Minister of Citizenship, the Letters Patent list 4 of the following among the approved objects:

4. To study, investigate, consolidate and evaluate health, welfare and recreational services required, subscribed to, maintained or provided in the City of Belleville and District and to encourage by continuing review the maintenance of high standards, economy and efficiency in, and extension, development and effective organization of, such needed services.

To work with, encourage and promote continuing co-operation by all citizens in the proper support of, and interpretation of the needs for, public, charitable and voluntary health, welfare and recreation services.

To provide and disseminate information on health, welfare and recreation services, needs and practices through pamphlets, reports, bulletins, directories, radio services, surveys, publications, television, newspapers and other media;

To guide and stimulate public and private efforts to promote social legislation in the fields of health, welfare and recreation.

To unite, as far as possible, the financial campaigns in the field of health, welfare and recreation in the City of Belleville, approved areas of non-profit local, provincial, national or international health, welfare and recreation organizations in co-campaigns conducted by it for the support of such organizations;

To act as a clearing house as to the amounts to be raised after the payment of expenses, of any participating organizations and to allocate, as directed from time to time by the board of directors of the Corporation.

A copy of the full report, which includes the certified financial statement, can be obtained at the executive office at 269 Williams Street, Belleville, or by telephoning 962-8281.

Canine Capers

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

After reading the article in The Toronto Star of Thursday, Feb. 1 I would like to point out the dog lovers are up in arms over the poisoning of the three dogs. Although poisoning is a drastic step, perhaps it is time to take a good long look at the other side of the coin.

Not everyone is a dog lover but apparently the people who have dogs are of the opinion that everyone must share with the antics of their pets who are, in the most part, very poorly trained and very badly behaved. When these dog lovers let their pets out for their "runs", does it ever occur to them that their animals are leaving their calling cards and lawns, which have been nurtured with care, "watered" by these animals and shrubs which sometimes never survive? When a property owner takes pride in his home and says today's very high prices for trees, plants and shrubs. I believe he will have some type of protection against other people's pets.

It is common knowledge that a dog, if allowed to run loose, will never relieve himself on its own property and it is quite understandable that a dog lover would become quite irate when he runs over some of these "leavings" with a power mower and is showered with it, as well as seeing dead spots in his lawn and yelling curses at the owner.

If people want to keep pets, they have every right to do so, but they should not be allowed to inflict their pets on their neighbors who do, I believe, also have some rights.

Balance of Payments Shows Reduced Deficit

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's international balance of payments, adjusted for seasonal variations, showed a reduced deficit during the final quarter of 1972, Statistics Canada said Wednesday in releasing preliminary figures.

They show a deficit for the final quarter of $126 million, almost halving the third - quarter deficit of $230 million.

The surplus on sales of Canadian merchandise abroad, hampered by a West Coast dock strike earlier in the year, rebounded to $430 million in the final quarter, more than doubling the $205-million surplus recorded in the third quarter.

Canada normally racks up a surplus on merchandise sales abroad but winds up with an over-all deficit after all international transactions are put into the equation. It runs a high deficit on non-merchandise transactions, such as the flow of money out of the country to investors abroad.

The seasonally-adjusted deficit on non-merchandise trade in the last three months of 1972 was $508 million, up from $433 million in the previous quarter.

Using preliminary figures for the final quarter, the statistics bureau shows the likely final deficit on international payments for the whole year at about $608 million. In 1971 there was a surplus of $348 million. Increased sales abroad were evident for lumber, aircraft, engines and parts, crude petroleum, copper ores, wheat and motor vehicle parts.

Imports increased for aircraft and parts, woven fabrics, automotive products, communication equipment, food, plastic materials and industrial machinery.

Pneumonia Not Blow Killed Tot

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — A Cambridge, Ont., couple was "lax and negligent" about their baby's well-being, a coroner's jury said Wednesday night.

The jury was investigating the death of four-week-old Michelle De Veau, who was found dead in her crib in Cambridge Jan. 27.

Police had charged the baby's father Manuel, 22, with non-capital murder. The charge followed an opinion by pathologist Dr. Daniel Deitch of South Waterloo Hospital that the baby died of a fractured skull which could have been caused by a severe blow, the inquest was told.

The charge was dropped five days later after the pathologist told police the cause of death was pneumonia and malnutrition.

The jury recommended that all Ontario pathologists receive training in proper procedures to follow before releasing autopsy reports to police when criminal charges could result from autopsy findings.

The jury cleared police of any blame and recommended that when there was reasonable doubt that parents were not capable of properly caring for an infant, the Children's Aid Society should be instructed to get involved with parents to assure proper care of the baby.

Dr. Deitch testified that he started the autopsy at South Waterloo Hospital on Sunday, Jan. 28 without hospital records to show the baby's health at birth.

Evidence showed that the records indicated the baby was born with a skull condition which involved a ridge around the top of the skull.

Dr. Deitch said police had "pushed him" to give an early cause of death and he had thought they understood his opinion was preliminary.

After completing his autopsy he was convinced that a fracture had not caused the death and called police on Feb. 2.

Police detectives testified that Dr. Deitch volunteered information without any pressure from them. Medical evidence showed the baby was 20 per cent lighter than it should have been four weeks after birth, when it was found dead.

Pot Said for Sect

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — A New Jersey couple who said they were duped by the black priests of a religious sect working out of mountains in Jamaica, Wednesday were jailed seven years for importing marijuana into Canada from Jamaica.

Peel County Judge Donald G. Couture refused to believe that Ellene Schecter, 21, and Gary Alan Mayer, 22, both of Springfield, N.J., were tricked by priests of the Rastafari sect into believing that marijuana they carried in their luggage was instead "fruits of the earth."

The couple, who spent six months in custody, were charged Aug. 13 after 22 pounds of marijuana was discovered by customs officials at Toronto International Airport. It was packed in cookie tins, a sanitary napkin package, a cotton-wool box and a candy box.

The pair, tried separately, still have the six months deducted from their sentences.

Both Mayer and Miss Schecter said they were carrying "blessings" in the members of a new camp of the Rastafari in Collingwood, Ont., before heading back to New Jersey to get married.

Rivers Not Suitable For Thermal Stations

HAMILTON (CP) — An Ontario Hydro spokesman said Wednesday that seven rivers in southern Ontario are being studied as possible sites for future thermal-electric generating stations.

Tom Reynolds, Hydro plant development engineer, said, however, that preliminary results show that establishing the plants is not feasible.

The rivers could supply sufficient water for cooling purposes, but with major drawbacks to the environment, he said.

He said in order to cool the water used in the power generating process before it is returned to the rivers, up to 10 large towers might have to be constructed at each site.

Another drawback, he said, is that thousands of gallons of water would be lost to the atmosphere each day through evaporation.

The study was initiated because of criticism from environmental groups over thermal pollution from existing plants on the Great Lakes. Environmentalists claim that water used for cooling purposes and pumped back into the lakes could be hazardous to fish and aquatic vegetation.

However, Hydro says that from studies to date there is no proof that thermal discharges would significantly change the aquatic environment.

GM Opens Test Centre

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP) — John Baker, president of General Motors of Canada, officially opened the company's first cold-weather test centre here Wednesday. He was asked by eight-degrees-below-zero temperatures, and a 15-mile-an-hour wind giving a wind chill factor of minus 30 degrees.

Instead of the traditional ribbon-cutting ceremony, Mr. Baker cut through an ice bar with a saw to open the centre, built last summer at a cost of $300,000.

The testing centre is an insulated garage with eight car bays and a field where cars are tested for effects from cold weather and rapid temperature changes. The company first started testing in the area 18 years ago.

Mr. Baker commented on the 22-degree "Florida" temperatures of Tuesday and Wednesday's sub-zero temperatures saying it made the area a perfect test site for studying temperature variations.

Gordon Wants Crown To Control All Oil

HAMILTON (CP) — A Crown corporation should be established to develop and control all actual and potential reserves of oil and natural gas in Canada's far north and Arctic islands, Walter Gordon, former federal finance minister, said Wednesday night.

He said this would eliminate the vulnerability of having decisions affecting Canada's energy reserves made by foreign owned oil companies, mostly based in the United States.

Slim Chance

LONDON (CP) — A spokesman for Gamblers Anonymous here explained at an association meeting how difficult it is for anyone hooked to kick the habit of compulsive gambling. The chances, he said, are 50-1 against.

Mr. Gordon suggested that with the U.S. facing an energy crisis such decisions by the foreign owners might be made in the best interests of the U.S. and not necessarily Canada.

He told an inaugural business forum at McMaster University his proposed Crown corporation would have sole responsibility for all exploration and development in the far north and would have to compensate companies that have already spent large amounts in the area.

"Possibly, some form of joint ventures might be worked out with them, provided always that the Canadian Crown corporation was in firm control.

"In any event, while building up its own management and technical staffs the Crown corporation might be encouraged to enlist the services of any of the established oil companies in Canada or elsewhere."

Mr. Gordon, a founding member of the Committee for an Independent Canada, suggested that an independent inquiry board should be established without delay to assess estimates of Canada's actual and potential oil and gas reserves and future requirements, reporting within a year or 18 months to Parliament, and that there should be no commitment on exports to the U.S. in the meantime.

A text of Mr. Gordon's speech was issued in advance of delivery.

Popular Station

TORONTO (CP) — Radio station CFRB is popular with Toronto people. Metro residents spent 14.6 million hours listening to CFRB last November and eight million listening to its closest rival, CHUM, the Bureau of Broadcast Measurement said.

Steady Work Sought

TORONTO (CP) —A Toronto consultant firm has been hired to initiate a study aimed at reducing cyclical employment in the construction industry, Ontario Labor Minister Fern Guindon said Wednesday.

"If the industry can smooth out the peaks and valleys of construction employment, it could be a factor in improving labor relations, reducing construction costs and providing the basis for improved construction planning," he said in a statement.

Dief Claims Wheat Sold Too Cheaply

OTTAWA (CP) — Regional issues dominated the Commons Wednesday as opposition members cross-examined the government on a broad range of subjects including western agricultural policies and power projects affecting Quebec and British Columbia.

A confrontation between Justice Minister Otto Lang and John Diefenbaker came after the former prime minister suggested the wheat board—Mr. Lang's responsibility—sold wheat for less than it should have in two deals last summer with the Soviet Union.

Under persistent questioning from Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Lang said the board got the "best possible prices obtainable" at the time.

"Any suggestion to the contrary," he added, "can only come from those who would want to destroy the Canadian wheat board."

The Skagit Valley areas during debate on supplementary spending estimates for the environment department.

John Fraser (PC—Vancouver South) said there was much uncertainty among those opposing the project and asked Environment Minister Jack Davis to announce "totally and absolutely" that the river will not be flooded.

"I may be sticking my neck out a bit," Mr. Davis replied, "but I'll certainly say there is no possibility of the flooding taking place."

The Social Credit government of former premier W. A. C. Bennett signed a contract with the Seattle City Light and Power Co. that would permit the Ross Dam in the United States to be raised, flooding the Skagit on the B.C. side of the border.

The current B.C. administration of New Democratic Premier David Barrett has said it will not consent to the flooding.

Discussion of the James Bay power project resulted in a tough round of questioning for Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien led by Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and The Islands). The minister was assailed for not taking direct action to help Indians opposing the project in court.

Mr. Chretien said the government has given the Indians funds to hire lawyers and fight the battle on their own and will not act paternalistically by attempting to fight their court battle for them.

The Senate received a bill Wednesday to impose stricter gun-control regulations in Canada. Introduced by Senator Donald Cameron (Lind. L.—Alberta), the legislation is similar to a Commons bill introduced last year by Solicitor-General Warren Allmand when he was a Liberal backbencher.

Senate to Consider European Community

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate decided Wednesday to let its foreign affairs committee go back to discussing the effects of the enlarged European Economic Community on Canadian trade.

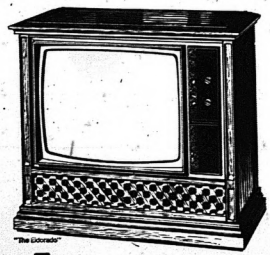
The continuation of studies that started last year follows the request of Senator John Aird (L—Ontario), committee chairman, who listed three reasons for his request:

—The statement of President Nixon that devaluation of the United States dollar should be followed by tough trading measures and the possibility that Europe might react defensively—a situation "full of dangers to Canada."

—Preliminary trade figures that show a downward trend, including a $20-million Canadian trade deficit with the original six Common Market countries in 1972, compared with a surplus of $109 million in 1971.

—The Common Market has concluded important trade arrangements with a wide range of countries "which will undoubtedly adversely affect Canadian exports in the short as well as in the long term."

Senator Aird said he hoped the committee could make a report in June and that the government would pay more heed to it than it did the committee reports dealing with the Carrib-bean and Pacific-Rim areas.



Senator Paul Martin, government Senate leader, said Senator Aird was making the motion on behalf of his committee, not the government.

He said Canadian exports to Europe increased during 1970 and 1971 and there was no need to be pessimistic over the long-term effect of the expanded Common Market on Canadian trade.

Grattan O'Leary (PC—Ontario) said most of the goods shipped to the EEC have been unfinished. "It is they and not the United States that are making us hewers of wood and drawers of water."

Canada's Energy Resources for sale?

No doubt you have been reading a lot lately about how scarce the energy supply is in some places and how Canada should manage its supply. But this is only the tip of an iceberg—there are many other resource problems facing Canadians. Problems of land use planning, population, education and others, all of them applying to man and how he relates to his natural environment.

MAN AND RESOURCES is a conference program which asks you along with thousands of other Canadians to tell us how you would correct our environmental problems.

MAN AND RESOURCES is presenting you with a unique challenge. But, then, MAN AND RESOURCES is a unique nation-wide program—designed to give you an active role in deciding, at all stages, what kind of total environment you want surrounding you.

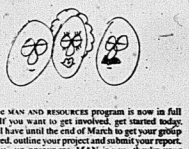
Last October in Montebello, Quebec, some 300 Canadians from all walks of life identified 12 important issues of concern to all Canadians.

- CITIZEN PARTICIPATION —How citizens can participate at a more meaningful level in the decisions which shape our social and environmental life.
- POPULATION — Evaluating the environmental impact of population.
- NORTHERN DEVELOPMENT—The first and highest priority is that the needs of the people be defined and met.
- DATA—The need to base decisions affecting our natural environment on the conscious application of all available data.
- ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION—The need for appropriate measures to protect and restore the quality of the environment.
- RESOURCE-PLANNING—Identification and implementation of long-range resource use plans to meet the continuing needs of society.
- GROWTH ETHIC—The need to change our attitude from the growth ethic (more is better) to one of living in harmony with the total life system.
- ENERGY—The need to re-evaluate in terms of long-term goals the provision of energy in all its forms.
- EDUCATION—To create a national conscience in regard to resources and the environment.
- FOREIGN OWNERSHIP—The extent and control of foreign ownership in Canada.
- OWNERSHIP—A primary issue is land ownership education and the conflict of interests in the use and development of lands.
- DECISION MAKING—The lack of integrated planning and co-ordination in the decision-making process at all levels.

Citizens groups all over Canada are already hard at work investigating environmental problems which affect the whole country, your community included. They're compiling evidence, getting expert advice, and writing reports specifying solutions that take into account social, and economic factors, as well as ecological ones.

Every report MAN AND RESOURCES receives will be read and co-ordinated directly into the program's final report. If we get enough groups together, and enough good reports, it could lead to wide-spread changes in the way government decides policy. That's why, if you're really concerned about a problem, you should get involved with MAN AND RESOURCES.

HERE'S HOW. First write or phone the local MAN AND RESOURCES representative listed at the bottom of this ad. If you don't have one, write to us. We'll advise you how to start your own group—and how to go about putting your report together.



When you join your group, or get one of your own started, then comes the hard work. After you select your issue for study, you've got to become a detective—uncovering the background facts.

To help you in your investigations, experts are available to assist in exploring the implications of the whole problem.

After your group has its facts, write up the report, giving the complete background of your investigations, listing not only the best solution, but the alternatives too.

That's the task. It's a tough one, demanding a great deal of persistence and concentration on your part.

But the pay-off is an Ontario Government that really listens to and understands what you want. First, all the reports from all over the country will be co-ordinated to form a total picture of how all the specific problems and solutions fit together. Then, in November, the MAN AND RESOURCES conference will discuss these co-ordinated reports and submit recommendations to the appropriate Federal and Provincial ministers.

The MAN AND RESOURCES program is now in full swing. If you want to get involved, get started today. You still have until the end of March to get your group organized, outline your project and submit your report.

MAN AND RESOURCES. MAN is you—they're your RESOURCES. We'd like to hear your story.

Mrs. Earla Moore and George Carver were presented with a unique birthday cake on Valentine's Day in honor of their 79th and 77th birthdays. Hastings Manor residents gathered in the auditorium to enjoy the entertainment program for the afternoon.

Surprises for All On Valentine's Day

Two Hastings Manor residents received a special surprise at the Valentine's Day party Wednesday afternoon at the manor. Mrs. Earl Moore who celebrated her 79th year Wednesday and George Carver who turned 77 Tuesday were presented a special 'two-in-one' birthday cake. Mrs. Moore's side was decorated pink and Mr. Carver's—blue.

Mr. Carver, a former sports writer at The Intelligencer, gave everyone a Valentine Day surprise later. More than 100 individualized typewritten witty verses describing each manor resident were found in the cupcakes during refreshments.

Mrs. Lil Stinson of the Tabernacle UCW led the Valentine entertainment program which included piano selections, and a recitation.

Marmora Senior Citizens Hold Monthly Meeting

Marmora Senior Citizens enjoyed a potluck luncheon before their regular monthly meeting.

Mrs. John Hebner vice president was in the chair for the business portion of the meeting.

Permission was given the Marmora Girls' Hockey Team to use the facilities of the clubroom for a bake sale on Sat. Feb. 24 to raise money for their team.

A delegation of members will accompany Mr. Colin Robinson to Queen's Park, Toronto, on Wednesday Feb. 28 for a rally with other Senior Citizens' Associations to ask for higher basic pensions for senior citizens.

It was reported that Mrs. Vi Cousins is making satisfactory progress in Belleville General Hospital.

A rousing singsong was followed by readings by four members: Mrs. Freda Leal, Mrs. Vera Hebner, Miss Grace Warren, and Mrs. Marjorie Rooney.

The next business meeting will be held on March 7.

Deloro Residents Chip In

Deloro Village Social Association has started a fund to buy dishes and silverware for the Deloro Community Centre.

The dishes lost in the fire had been purchased during Centennial Year and depicted a crest showing the old water tower of Deloro Smelting and Refining Company.

This drawing had been chosen from those submitted in a contest held in the Deloro Public Schools. Johnne Donovan won the prize.

Mrs. Michael Corrigan of Ottawa, and former resident of Deloro Village donated a homemade afghan to aid raising money for the fund.

Jody Lee Pressick and Doreen Bridges representing the Teens' presented $28 which they netted from a bake sale and small bazaar. Private donations have also been made.

Marmora 4-H'ers Begin Dressmaking Course

The first meeting of a 4-H Homemaking Club was recently held at Marmora Senior School.

Twelve girls (ages 12 and up) met with their leader Mrs. Suzanne Barker to begin an eight week course in dressmaking titled "Clothes for Leisure".

A teacher at the Earl Prentice School for the past three years, Mrs. Barker has been in 4-H Club work for eight years in Victoria County. She has completed 16 units and needs two more to acquire an Advanced Honors Award. This is her first attempt at being leader of a group.

Mrs. Molly Ciard will be assisting with the course.

Four-H Homemaking Clubs are designed to develop citizenship and leadership qualities in addition to a sense of responsibility in the members.

Happy Valentine's Sale For Marmora IODE

A successful Valentine Tea and Bake Sale was held by Marmora Chapter IODE.

The convener, Mrs. Eugene Brady, was assisted by Mrs. J. W. Park, Mrs. Anne Walters and Mrs. Howard Bleeker.

Mrs. Gil March was the lucky winner of a 5-lb. box of English biscuits donated by Mrs. Gordon Bennett. Ticket sales were handled by Mrs. R. Kotulski and Mrs. Sid Demorest.

In the tearoom guests were served by Mrs. L. Pasero, Mrs. A. M. Jones and Mrs. Adie Haire from an attractively decorated table.

Proceeds from the sale will go towards sending Marmora Grade 8 students to the Science Centre in Toronto sometime in April.

Belleville X-ray Students Receive Awards in Kingston

Miss Brenda Blackburn RT (R) has received the Belleville General Hospital Medical Staff Prize as the best all-around student in X-Ray Technology.

Dr. R. G. Loder, Director, School of X-Ray Technology, Belleville General Hospital presented this award to Miss Blackburn at the 1972 annual graduation exercise of the Eastern section of the Ontario Society of Radiological Technicians held at the Kingston General Hospital on February 10.

Joan Alexander RT(R) Sylvia J. Brooks, RT(R) and Carol Louise Erickson RT(R) were the other students who graduated from the Belleville General Hospital Class of 1972.

The program opened with the Invocation by Rev. Sister Marianne Hogsli, RT(R) of Kingston followed by messages from dignitaries of Kingston General Hospital, the Canadian and Ontario Societies of Radiological Technology and the Ontario Medical Association.

The graduates each carried a bouquet of yellow roses tied with royal blue ribbon signifying the colors of the Canadian Society of Radiological Technicians. The Technician Pledge was recited led by Mrs. J. Moon RT(R) of the Regional School of Technology, Kingston.

Certificates and graduation pins were presented.

Miss Jean Walsh, an X-Ray Technology student at the Belleville General Hospital rendered music before and after the ceremonies.

A banquet and dance followed at the Holiday Inn in Kingston.

Misses Blackburn and Brooks have accepted positions on staff at the Belleville General Hospital, while Miss Erickson is on staff at the Scarborough Centenary Hospital and Miss Alexander will be working in British Columbia.

Ann Landers
'Naked' House Roamer Needs Professional Help

Dear Ann Landers: My son is 17 years old. He seemed perfectly until last summer when he began to go around the house wearing cut-offs and nothing else. It became accustomed to seeing his hairy chest but it made him put on a shirt for meals.

A few months ago I discovered by accident that he sleeps in the nude. His bedroom door was open and his covers were partly off. A few weeks ago he walked into the kitchen with a towel wrapped around his middle and naked if I knew where the shampoo was. When I told him we were out of shampoo he walked out the back door, jumped into his car and drove to the neighborhood drugstore.

Last week he started to roam around the house stark naked. I told him I didn't approve of his actions. He said I was an odd-ball and a square. My husband is no help because he works nights and rarely sees the son. Is this normal behavior for a 17-year-old boy? Has the world changed that much? Please advise me.—Nebraska

Dear Neb.: Your son's behavior is not normal—irrespective of how much the world has changed. I hope you will speak to your family physician or the

Dear Ann Landers: I was deeply disappointed in your biased, vindictive statement that some ugly, hungry males equate a large family with virility and masculinity.

Your hypothesis is lacking in reality. Don't you know, Ann, that a great many women are also insecure and ego-hungry? They need to produce a large family in order to prove their femininity—not to mention adequacy. And don't forget the overweight ladies who find it necessary to hide their rolls of fat under a maternity dress than control their mouths and go on a diet. Just sign me—A Friend of Yours From San Claire

Dear Friend of Yours From San Claire: You have a point and I wouldn't for one moment deny it. But at least we agree on one thing. Extremely large families in this day and age are often a sign that somebody feels the need to prove something.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for all working women who are trapped on the phone nearly every night for at least two hours when they get home.

Too many housewives are bored and yakking on the barn is a wonderful way to kill time. But don't they understand that in addition to a full day's work downtown, we must do all the things they did during the day? This means cooking, cleaning, marketing, laundry and mending. Many of us have families who would appreciate some attention.

I hate to be rude, Ann, so please print this letter. Maybe if the guilty parties see it they will take the hint.—Don't Call Me I'll Call You

Dear D.C.M.: The guilty parties never think you mean them. If you resent being trapped on the phone you'll have to screw up the courage to repeat orally the very words you used to sign your letter. Please soften it a little by adding, "when it is more convenient for both of

Successful Living
Pets Relieve Loneliness For Those Who Need

By DORIS CLARK

The human race is really a sociable lot. We all need somebody (or something) to talk to, at least part of the time.

It often happens that an older person has lost husband or wife or chief companion. They may make the tough adjustment to living alone and reach out for friendship in other ways. Some of them take on pets.

Listen to this letter from one of my especially beloved, retired friends:

"Dear Little Sydney was my family's birthday gift to me. A golden colored Australian Budgie. So Anne said, 'Grandmommy, you'll have to call him Sydney'.

"I am leaving him at a very reliable pet store for the four weeks that I will be in Florida. But we'll miss each other. He sends me kisses and comes over to be petted 100 times per day.

"T.V. is the magic word. I say 'Well, will we watch T.V.' Immediately he's on the highest perch and watches, like I do. If anyone had told me I would become attached to a bird I'd say they were crazy, but he knows everything I say to him. I hope he'll be O.K. while I'm away; but he's jealous of even me talking on the telephone. I've spoiled him rotten!"

* * *

Dear Doris: I have a pal who is so relaxed he can walk away from a pile of work without a qualm. He takes a winter holiday. His wife and he are always giving parties.

I grew up on hard work and couldn't possibly leave work undone in order to do something just for my own pleasure. But he laughs at me. He tells me I never learned to play. What do you think? — Grindstone.

Dear Grindstone: I think a fellow who can find a happy medium is the lucky one. I hardly need point out we have no right to desert responsibilities to the point of loading up someone else; but we get at a point of high tension and worry over our work, we shorten our lives.

Recreation and play are worth their weight in gold if you really haven't learned how to play, start now to get some healthy balance into your life. How long since you took your wife to a dance or show, or helped her throw a party?

Find a hobby. Join a gym. Put a limit on your work hours and enjoy your weekends with dreamed-up expeditions. Get to know and enjoy your children. Relax!

* * *

Dear Doris: I don't want this friend of my boy friend's for an usher at our wedding. He is impertinent and sneering and I couldn't stand on him. I know.

But his girl friend is to be a bridesmaid. Must I have him? — Reviled.

Dear Revolted: Usually the groom chooses his ushers. Better cross your fingers and let him in on things. Tell him you are counting on him to come through.

Remember, the person who sneers is only showing he feels inferior and your fiance's friend may react by being surprised and pleased if he feels you think something of him.

Guild Holds Valentine Meet

Rev. and Mrs. Canon Wright attended the February Valentine's meeting of Albert College Women's Guild. The tea table portrayed a Valentine theme for the good turnout of members.

Canon Wright discussed the parts of prayer indicated on the cross. The top looking up to God indicates adoration; the right arm shows humility and confession; the left arm gives praise and thanksgiving while the two bars crossed indicate intercession, where one meets and shows concern for others. Mrs. Wright closed by saying the St. Francis of Assisi prayer.

Mrs. Wright entertained the women with two solos. Mrs. Hubbs accompanied her.

Mrs. Burr expressed the thanks of members to the Wrights and to Mrs. Hickey who arranged the program.

A business session followed and Mrs. Effie McCabe, the president, sat in the chair.

During the tea hour, Headmaster Lorne Sherlett spoke briefly.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONNELL

Are jokes the same as humor?

FUNNY ones hand on wit and comedy are, and they can stimulate uproarious laughter or glowing smiles. Jokes that deride and convey contempt have no connection with humor; they are easily recognized as cruel weapons. Other jokes seem allied with humor, but fewer results issue of the gratification and warmth of genuine humor. They are veiled to disguise resentment the joke-teller doesn't want to express directly.

Will spelling ever be made easier?

NO; at least not until lexicographers and other authorities can agree first of all upon what is meant by easier. Take English as it is written in England and in the United States. Britishers, for one thing, spell it "labour"; Americans write "labor." Yet in England, spelling is far more practical for other words. For instance, "connection" (as it is spelled in the U.S.) looks more like a lisimp in England, where it is spelled "connexion."

Does love erase a person's faults?

NO. It can work wonders; but love cannot perform miracles. Even so, love may come close. A woman, for instance, loves a man who chronically lies and cheats. If it is indeed love and not some defense for a personal deficiency she mistakenly thinks is love, the woman will be able to accept the man and his faults. She will realize that she can never hope to change him, but because she loves him she may try to find justification for his faults.

Hospital to Observe All Seeking Admission

TORONTO (CP) — Charges that the Hospital for Sick Children has turned away sick babies has led to a special observation unit being set up at the hospital.

J. Douglas Sneddon, executive director of the hospital, said Wednesday the decision to open the unit was made during an investigation into the case of Paul Mastorakos and two other children.

Six-month-old Paul was taken to the hospital Feb. 6. The parents were told they could take him home, but to bring him back if he got worse. The following afternoon the baby was dead on arrival at Wellesley Hospital.

An inquest is scheduled for March 21. "The preliminary autopsy report gave the cause of death as dehydration due to gastro-enteritis.

After details of the baby's death were made known, two other area families came forward with complaints.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Smith of Mississauga said their two-month-old son Troy was sent home after being examined by an intern although he was taken to the hospital by ambulance from another hospital.

Mr. Sneddon said the Smiths are being invited to attend an investigation into the circumstances surrounding their case as soon as the doctor involved returns from vacation.

"Even I can't understand how a child coming from another hospital with a nurse, is sent away in 30 minutes," Mr. Sneddon said.

Mr. Sneddon said the new unit would allow doctors to keep a child under observation for up to four hours before making a decision on admission.

Mrs. Smith said their baby was taken to Sick Children's Hospital from Queensway Hospital because doctors decided there were better facilities at the larger hospital.

The baby, who couldn't eat because he kept choking on mucus in his throat, was readmitted to Queensway Hospital where he spent 10 days in a special mist tent.

Mrs. Smith said her baby was much better now.

"I was very upset after I read about this woman losing her child. Since then we've worried that maybe we should have said something before and maybe it wouldn't have happened."

Mrs. Heinz Stock said she took her eight-month-old baby to the hospital when her infant couldn't keep prescribed medicine down and began vomiting.

She said that after a mixup in charts, an intern finally examined her child and told her she could take him home. Several days later she took her still-sick baby back to her own doctor who immediately put the baby in hospital. She said the doctor told her that in another eight hours the baby would have been dead.

Drivers Checked

CALGARY (CP) — City police have introduced a special detail to make spot checks of drivers in the vicinity of drinking outlets, in a recent fourweek period the detail made 219 arrests and handed out 364 suspensions lasting 24 hours. A 24-hour suspension of driver's licences is invoked in borderline cases where motorists have been drinking.

B.C. Bans Use of Strap

VICTORIA (CP) — Use of the strap or any other form of corporal punishment will not be allowed in British Columbia's public schools as of Friday. Education Minister Eileen Dailly announced Wednesday.

The minister also announced in the legislature that sex education courses will be encouraged, more money will be made available for French-language programs, and all Grade 12 government exams will be discontinued beginning in 1974.

Regarding corporal punishment, Mrs. Dailly said she cannot, as minister of education, "in all conscience" preside over a system which allows such treatment of children.

"Surely, if we want to reduce acts of violence in the community we must eliminate it in our schools. If we want to develop future generations into more humane people we must practise more humanity ourselves," she said.

Mrs. Dailly said she does not want to suggest that teachers condone the "acting out" behavior of students, but she said research has shown that schools that allow for individual differences in learning abilities and behavior and which require self-discipline from their students, have little need for corporal punishment.

Referring to family living and sex education courses, Mrs. Dailly said the previous Social Credit government gave little encouragement in this area but that she considers it her responsibility to "give leadership in developing such programs."

Saskatchewan May Allow Car Passengers to Drink

REGINA (CP) — Sweeping changes to liquor regulations, including one to lower the legal blood-alcohol content and another to allow passengers of motor vehicles to consume liquor, are contained in a report tabled in the legislature Wednesday.

Another recommendation of the report is for a mandatory warning on all liquor labels: "Warning: Alcohol is a drug. Prolonged excessive use may cause impotence, liver damage, brain damage and death."

The report, a "rough draft" prepared by a special legislative committee on liquor regulations, was tabled by committee chairman Don Faris (NDP-Arm River) after the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix carried a story in its Wednesday edition, quoting from a report it said was prepared by the committee.

Mr. Faris, who did not challenge the accuracy of the newspaper report, said it was "extremely unfortunate that a garbled portion of this report was reported to the press."

He said the report is not unanimous and copies would not be available until today.

The Star-Phoenix said the committee is recommending that the legal blood-alcohol content be lowered to 80 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood (.08) from the current level of .08.

The .08 level is specified in the Criminal Code and governs carrying provincial legislation.

Stanfield Advocates Human Rights Body

MONTREAL (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield advocates formation of a national human rights commission to reinforce and protect the every-day rights of Canadians.

In a speech Wednesday night to the luncheon dinner of the Temple Emmanu-El Sisterhood said such a commission is one of the measures the federal government "can and must adopt to protect individuals and to protect the good name of the whole country."

He referred to the Bill of Rights introduced by his predecessor, John Diefenbaker, as "a milestone in human rights legislation." The Canada Labor Code and the Fair Employment Practices Act were other examples of legislation designed to protect human rights. But such measures did not go far enough.

"We should set up an independent national human rights commission to deal with the whole range of individual rights in every field, be it labor, housing, the status of women or any other, insofar as these come under the jurisdiction of the federal government."

Mr. Stanfield said the commission should not rival the federal public service."

Legislature Session Will Last Six Months

TORONTO (CP) — The next session of the Ontario legislature will begin March 20 and last about six months with one recess, Premier William Davis announced Wednesday.

The 29th legislature will recess in late June in time for a visit to Canada by the Queen and reconvene in late September or early October for another three-month session.

It will be prorogued in December as was the last session, Mr. Davis said.

CP News Roundup

Tight Gun Controls Suggested

TORONTO (CP) — Tighter controls over firearms would do more to protect the public and prevent murder than capital punishment, New Democratic Leader David Lewis said Wednesday night.

"History has shown that capital punishment has failed to deter ordinary crime, let alone murder.

"But the recent shooting incidents involving three Metro Toronto police officers show the ease with which anyone can obtain firearms," he told his York South riding association.

New Democrat MP Stuart Leggatt, New Westminster, has introduced a gun-control bill in the Commons identical to one proposed last year by Solicitor General Warren Allmand, while Mr. Allmand was backbencher Senator Donald Cameron, an Alberta, Independent Liberal, has introduced the same bill in the Upper Chamber.

Mr. Lewis said six million guns are in the hands of Canadians, with almost no record of their ownership. Over half of all murders were committed with guns and most of the guns were rifles.

"Yet a rifle is something one can buy in any department store without checking on a person's suitability to own such a weapon."

Hanging Stayed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A stay of execution was granted Wednesday for a man sentenced to death for the murder of a prison guard.

Gary McNamara of Orillia, Ont., was to have been hanged Feb. 27 for the murder of prison guard John Starchuk, 58, during a jailbreak at Alexis Creek, B.C., June 2, 1972.

Crown counsel George L. Murray applied for the stay before Mr. Justice G. F. T. Gregory of the British Columbia Supreme Court after the B.C. Appeal Court had reserved decision on McNamara's appeal.

The new date for the execution has been fixed at April 16.

Appeal Ruling

DETROIT (AP) — The federal government says it will appeal a United States District Court ruling that the anti-hijacking law does not apply to planes on the ground.

In dismissing an attempted air piracy charge against a Detroit woman last month, Judge Lawrence Gubow ruled that the law takes effect only after power is applied to the airplane for takeoff after taxiing.

The woman, Barbara Pilshaw, 49, still faces trial on a charge of illegal interstate transportation of explosives.

Pact Welcome

MONTREAL (CP) — The announcement of an anti-hijacking treaty between Canada and Cuba is "a breakthrough," John Keenan, legal counsel for the Canadian Airline Pilots Association (CALPA), said Wednesday.

Mr. Keenan said in an interview: "We haven't seen a draft yet. I don't think anybody has outside of government circles. We understand that at least one draft of th- treaty took the form of an amendment to the 1908 extradition treaty with Cuba."

Seek Release

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Wednesday the government is working to free a Canadian who has spent 10 years in a Cuban prison.

He minister said the government is prepared to give "all possible assistance" to 1 onald Patrick Lippert of Kitchener, Ont., sentenced to 30 years for smuggling arms into Cuba.

Responding to questions from Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds), Mr. Sharp said the government, through its embassy in Havana, keeps in touch with Lippert "as recently as Jan. 27" and learned he was in good health.

He told reporters outside the House the government is appealing to Cuba on humanitarian grounds for Lippert's release, but gave no indication whether he expects the efforts to be successful.

Plans Visit

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis plans a visit Friday to three Quebec labor leaders imprisoned for activities connected with common-front strikes in the province last year.

His office announced Wednesday night that Mr. Lewis would go to Quebec City Friday and visit Cremazie Jail to see Marcel Pepin, Louis Laberge and Yvon Charbonneau.

The three went into jail last week after failure of an attempt by appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada against their convictions last May for contempt of court.

'Eternal' Student Returning Home

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of British Columbia's self-styled "eternal student" has become a dropout after 18 years on campus as an unregistered student, unofficial teacher and full-time social idealist.

His name is Karl Bureš and lately he's been running "the experimental college" on the UBC campus after twice being fired for alleged incompetence by off-campus employers.

Mr. Bureš, a flamboyant 61-year-old former Nazi and concentration camp survivor, says he's decided to give up on Canadian higher learning and return to his native Germany.

Mr. Bureš had no official status at UBC following his dismissal from two off-campus teaching jobs.

But his globular figure, perpetual smile and heavy Czechman accent became as much a part of the UBC scene as the totem poles in Thunderbird Park. He operated the "experimental college" from a tiny room near the student cafeteria.

Originally from Berlin, Mr. Bureš studied history, political science and philosophy at Berlin University from 1931 until 1936. He joined the Nazi party in 1933 "partly because it was suicidal not to—and partly because I hoped I might change it from within."

He said he was arrested as a political prisoner and spent more than five years in a succession of Nazi concentration camps. "I escaped extermination only by convincing my guards that I had friends close to Hitler."

After the Second World War, "I left Germany because I was ashamed. I came here in 1946 with great illusions about democracy."

"But I found only closed minds—especially at the universities—and I was unable to contribute anything."

He is reticent about details of his own brief teaching career. "In fact, I was fired because I refused to give underserved marks to the kids of school big-shots."

It was after these failures that Mr. Bureš headed for UBC and made reform of the college system the guiding light of his life.

"I naively believed I could make students ashamed of B.C.'s backwardness and the backwardness of Canadian law. But I found the students were interested only in their material future and not the truth.

KARL BUREŠ

They were convinced that only a Checkpot could have ideals."

An educationist by inclination, he became a brief writer by profession. He wrote briefs on anything and everything—briefs on the Canadian Bill of Rights, social and legal issues, and briefs telling the House of Commons how to streamline its procedures and elections.

By and large, the Bureš writings fell on deaf ears, although he built up a small coterie of dedicated admirers and followers during his years at UBC among students and faculty.

And he did it all on an income of $70 a month, from his life savings. He ate a steady diet of delicatessen scraps, which resulted in obesity and a case of diabetes he is taking back to Germany.

He finally exhausted his savings in late 1972 and applied for welfare.

As it happened, a group of his friends got together and put up the cash for his trip back to Germany.

The self-described non-Marxist socialist readily admitted his years in Canada ended with total failure.

"I've never succeeded in making any student do something—score or noble. And if I were upset I wouldn't have used up my savings."

For better or worse, the aging rebel said he'll continue to tilt at windmills when he gets settled in Germany.

"I hope Germany won't be too disappointed in me."

Religious Route

RUDDERSFIELD, England (CP) — A Moslem bus driver made an unscheduled stop on his Yorkshire route—to say his prayers. Despite a fully-laden bus, he knelt on a carpet at the rear, faced East and prayed for five minutes. Passengers were flabbergasted," one passenger said. "You see this on TV comedy shows but never dream it could happen in real life." No action was taken against the driver by the company.

Getting to Know You

The city's Protestant and Roman Catholic clergymen will be seeing more of each other in future in the expanded Belleville Ministerial Association. Prime mover in admitting the Catholics was Rev. Donald Himmelman, left, of Holy Lutheran Church. His liaison w/ Father Ken Sill, right, of St. Michael's Parish. Rabbi M. N. Sharony, second from left, and Dr. A. J. McLachlan of Queen's University were guests at the association's first meeting last week since the union was ratified in January.

Ministerial Association Sees Catholics, Protestants Join

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Amid scriptural rumblings, the Belleville Ministerial Association held its first meeting last week with both Protestant and Roman Catholic clergymen participating as members.

The event was of particular significance in the city's ecclesiastic history, because for more than 25 years, the Christian association's constitution has limited membership to Protestants.

Three Catholic clergy, all from St. Michael's Parish, were present for the inaugural get - together, a discussion on pastoral training with Dr. A. J. MacLachlan of Queen's University.

More have indicated they will come to future meetings and a new era of co-operation and fellowship among Belleville ministers appears at hand.

"We can learn from one another and share with each other," says association president Rev. Donald Himmelman, the minister at Holy Lutheran Church, who has been a prime instigator in the expansion.

The decision by the 18 Protestant representatives to enlarge their organization was already taken in Trenton and Kingston — deviates somewhat from the example set by the Canadian Council of Churches which permits the Catholic Church to play an observer's role.

It comes after several years of interdenominational experimenting, including occasional forays into other churches for services and co-operation on the one-time contentious issue of mixed marriage.

Asked what affect the union of such traditionally rival faiths will have on the city's religious congregation, Mr. Himmelman says greater understanding should result.

"Instead of each minister being in a ghetto," he said, "as we share together with a sense of common purpose, each ourselves and the church- es of the community will benefit. This means that films, literature and consultants previously accessible to only a few members of the clergy can now be used throughout the community.

In addition, Father Sill says duplicate marriage preparation courses can be combined into one. He notes the example in Kingston where Catholic and Protestant ministers have been teaching the same marital concepts for more than we years.

"I think it's just another sign of openness," Father Sill said of the ecumenism. "Maybe we're looking beyond ourselves."

Msgr. Sullivan maintains the association will flourish. "If the clergy can't set an example in this, who can?" he asks.

But Canon R. B. Wright of Christ Anglican Church, an association member, admits there has been dissension since the idea was first proposed last fall.

"The fundamentalist groups are, in a sense, absenting themselves because of the inclusion of the Roman Catholics," he said.

"They're very suspicious in their attitudes towards Rome because of its bigness. It's a fear."

As a result, five denominations have indicated their participation in the association will decline, he said.

One of these is the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada. Both district superintendent Rev. R. A. Bombey and Rev. Charles Benn, minister at Calvary Temple, expressed reservations about the association's future.

"Some of the ministers are so associated with the idea of getting together," said Rev. Bombay, "they are willing to forget the teachings, authority of the Scripture and other beliefs that were the basis of the Protestant reformation.

"Whenever the Roman Catholic Church has gotten into anything, they've joined with the idea of dominating it. I've decided that if I go, I'm not going to be dominated by a man there with a clerical collar who says this is the only church."

He insists his is a personal view, although he agrees the attitude runs throughout the Pentecostal church.

"They tell us: 'You are bad boys. You have to say you're sorry for playing truant.' Well I'm not repentant."

Mr. Benn is more moderate in his views.

"If it comes to having to compromise my faith and doctrine," he says, "then I would have to take a stand. But doctrine plays a relatively small part in association affairs."

His statement contradicts Mr. Bombay, who claims, "All these things start at the grass roots level."

Another minister opposed to the organization change is Rev. Eric Penney of Parkdale Baptist Church.

"I don't think we have any reason to align forces with those who support views opposite to what we feel," he said. "The move's backfired as ecumenical liberal theologians forsaking the basic fundamentals."

Mr. Himmelman says the association could not survive if flareups over doctrinal differences were the result.

"No-one is being asked to sacrifice his convictions, because there are differences in belief or approach to areas of life, we intend to respect each other's views. This is basic to the success of the organization."

Canon Wright predicts United, Anglican, Presbyterian, Baptist and Salvation Army representatives will be "in by five" — will probably run the association's affairs "provided they can get along with the Catholics." He notes that the association has never been a legislative body "and likely couldn't be" because of the wide range of views.

Community Concerts in Trouble

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville's Community Concert Association has reached a crisis in its 28-year-old career as purveyor of quality music to the city and district.

So grave is its financial situation, the association may not see another concert season.

So urgent is a solution, the BCCA executive took centre stage before its general membership at Belleville Collegiate auditorium last night after it had been vacated by the Robert De Cormier Singers — a feature presentation of the current concert season.

The problem, as explained by association president Robert Ord, basically is this:

Membership — season fees, which are the group's only revenue, have been steeply declining. The drop comes at a time of rising costs. Financial reserves which have been a cost cushion in recent years now have eroded to the point the BCCA now faces a deficit situation.

In fact, when all expenses for the current season are paid, it's estimated the association will only have $4 left — despite a $500 surplus at the season's start.

The executive has produced some proposals that may salvage the situation. Besides the need for a work surge by current members to attract maybe more than 400 newcomers and fewer members, season tickets will be raised slightly — from $8 to $10 for adults, up $1 to $5 for students while a $25 family plan would be introduced.

The suggestions were included in a questionnaire circulated at last night's audience which bluntly asked members if they favored continuing the BCCA.

The answers will be counted in the next day or so.

But, stated Mr. Ord later: "Unless we receive an overwhelming mandate to continue, we will fold right away."

Membership has been steadily declining in recent seasons. Currently it is 800 — compared with last season and 1,606 in the 1968-69 season.

BCCA support has come a long way from its formative days after World War II, when treasurer L. G. Lennox recalls there was actually a waiting list.

Times have been transformed since then, and, although Mr. Ord, says it may be difficult to find a "rotund-dred answer" for what has caused the group's current troubles, there may be some obvious answers.

While agreeable may have more leisure time, there are also many activities competing for it. There's television, and easier transportation links which make big-city concerts, and events more comfortably accessible.

Rising costs are also a major factor. Artists' fees are commanding more — as are the incidentals to staging a concert. Just six years ago it cost $120 to rent a piano for a recital. Now it's $300.

Total income for the current season is slightly above $3,300, the cost of organizing and presenting three concerts is just more than $5,000 — with the deficit offset by the revenue from the BCCA's reserve fund.

Some membership losses this year might be linked to the fact the group cutback from six to three concerts — once its customary number, said Mr. Ord.

But, whatever the causes, members now are faced with offsetting an attribution of about 250 concertgoers and finding another 200. Dr. J. G. Demeza, Ontario School for the Deaf superintendent told fellow members during last night's meeting. It's not enough just to encourage former members back and "this is the challenge now facing all of us."

Queried by one member if the executive had pondered seeking government grants or funds from art sources, Mr. Ord said BCCA officials would welcome any suggestions on available fund sources.

But he added a caution: "Perhaps it is not appropriate that we look to government funds. This is our association and perhaps we should support it. If we can't support it, perhaps it shouldn't survive."

An impromptu show of hands among the approximately 100 members who stayed from a concert audience of about 600 showed a unanimous desire for BCCA to continue its role in bringing concert artists and groups to the city. Its 28 years of programming have included some notable musical figures.

But, Mr. Ord said later, the executive will wait until all the questionaires given last night's audience are tabulated.

Director to Move Cooperman Quit

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Robert Sanders, in the closing minutes of last night's board of directors meeting of the United Community Services, issued a notice of motion that the resignation of executive director Isidore Cooperman.

Prior to the issuance of the notice, a unanimous vote of the directors had — for the first time — opened the meeting's doors to The Intelligencer. The same unanimous vote was said to include a press before Mr. Sanders read his notice.

Andrew Robb, past president of the board, had, in the motion to admit the press to cover the meeting, asked that at the conclusion of the board, the meeting could go into executive session, excluding the public and press.

Mr. Robb, who was forewarned of the notice of motion, lashed Mr. Sanders in mild, mid, emphasizing the incident of the motion and asked that the board use its prerogative of going into executive session. His motion was seconded by Virginia O'Hearn's first vice-president.

"I want to make a motion of non-confidence in Mr. Isidore Cooperman," said Mr. Sanders. "Because of a lack of confidence we will ask Mr. Cooperman to resign from his position as executive director of United Community Services and all directors should act to this position. The position shall then be made available via open competition to a successor to be appointed by the board of directors of United Community Services."

Mr. Sanders said he felt a notice of motion was the best way to go about it, saying the new executive would be hired (if) would have to understand the situation before coming to a decision.

ISIDORE COOPERMAN

Mr. Sanders, prior to the meeting, released a copy of his motion to the press, and said later he would discuss the motion in closed session at next meeting of the board. If any discussion is to be held, each member of the board will have to second the motion.

Postal Workers Like Contract

Belleville postal employees have voted 94 per cent in favor of accepting a national contract agreement.

Results of the poll were announced Wednesday.

They will now go to Ottawa to be included in the nation wide tabulation that will determine whether Canada's 28,000 postal workers come under control of the Post Office time since the old post expired last March.

The Belleville employees balloted Monday and Tuesday, results of which by staff union executives in voting Tuesday, said to a committee.

Inside workers, members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, voted 97.6 in favor of the contract, while members of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada voted 79.4 per cent in favor.

Jim Campbell, president of LCUC Local 45, said Wednesday that the union's concessions made by the Treasury Board and the contract's remuneration period influenced the executives' decisions.

One was the decision to compromise on transportation methods letter carriers will use to get to their routes. That clause had to a five-day shutdown of Belleville post office operations.

The other concessions, said Mr. Campbell, involved clauses on fringe benefits and job reclassification.

City's 'Most Beautiful' Building? You Guess

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Belleville's most beautiful building is a dilapidated feedstorage structure at South Front Street.

So says Belleville building watchdog Rodger Greig, possessor of a diploma in architecture.

Furthermore, the Moira Secondary School teacher claims St. Agnes Manor was a "delicious house", and describes the main portion of Belleville's city hall as "ugly, mistreated" and "sadly mistreated".

Mr. Greig was delivering a personalized view of Belleville in remarks at the Hastings County Historical Society, Wednesday. A resident of the area since 1950, the American-born building buff illustrated his sharply focused observations with slides carefully assembled over the years.

He told the audience it was to rhapsodize the MacKenzie-Kent warehouse on South Front was in danger of the wrecker's hammer.

"It's the handsomest house in Belleville. I hope it's not also being threatened," he commented.

He said it was a beautifully executed example of the Italianate, mid-nineteenth-century style throughout the north-east United States and eastern Ontario from the early 1700s on.

Currently for sale, the feed office formerly housed coal and has long enclosed to be used for storage. Its front door remains hidden by plaster, but the many board fronting is worn and a shed on the north side makes an esthetically jarring appendage.

The Manor—torn down during the past two weeks for a private apartment — was an awkward combination of tawdry decadent Victorian styling and British classical symmetry, said Mr. Greig. With its triple arch windows and bracketed eaves, he maintains it made a dramatic and attractive home for the new Belleville museum and Glenmore House.

"It could have stood for another 1,000 years," said the one-time historical society president. "It was built like a safe."

As for Glanmore House, Mr. Greig had nothing but disdain.

"It's a monstrosity that has to be humored," he said. "Charles Addison, with all his knowledge of Regency and not, would have liked it."

Mr. Addison was a macabre cartoonist in the New Yorker magazine's early years.

Mr. Greig described Belleville's city hall tower as "one of the best examples of its kind in Canada after the Ottawa Peace Tower" but add ed "the rest of the building I can do without".

He pointed to chimney stumps protruding from the roof of Glanmore's top and said the "ignominious application" should be used in multi-colored slate.

"There's a feeling for the romantic styling," he claimed of the 100-year old office.

Mr. Greig, who has conducted walking tours of the city, said Belleville was "infinitely poorer" than when he arrived and expressed concern over the impending demolition of the city's oldest brick building, the Simpson Coach House at Front and Dundas Streets, erected in 1819.

"To destroy a building like this in a fabric of intangibles and a crime against the people of the city," he said.

He suggested the wooden-frame house — now to be used by a gas station — could be converted to lawyers' offices.

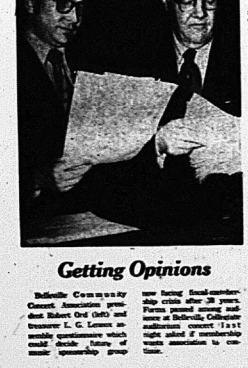
For his final zing, he chose the venerable Quinte Hotel.

"The entrance on Pinnacle Street, put in about 1903, was removed from a 1918 Barcelona exhibition," he claimed.

Since he has turned a 18-year-old crumbling mill house in Cherry Valley into a classic Canadian Loyalist masterpiece, who can argue?

Fire Levels Restaurant

ACTINOLITE — A gourmet restaurant, located in bush country northwest of here, today was razed by fire.



Lost in the blaze was Madeira's Germain Restaurant, north of Highway 7 between here and Madoc, said Township volunteer fire chief Bruce Nesbitt.

The restaurant serving specialty food and also a popular winter recreation snowmobilers was reconstructed as an old farmhouse about two years ago by two brothers who moved to the area from Toronto.

Cause of the fire was not immediately known, said Chief McNesbitt who estimated loss might be around $50,000.

The restaurant was the centre of attraction for the area which also contained two Mohawk style chalets for Ted and Will Kotsch after they moved to the area from Toronto in 1966.

Chief McNesbitt said the fire was first spotted by one of the owners who saw flames bursting through a window in the dawn about 9 a.m. By the time Tweed firefighters arrived on the scene the fire was out of control and they concentrated on keeping flames away from the neighboring buildings.

Getting Opinions

Belleville Community Concert Association president Robert Ord (left) and treasurer L. G. Lennox examine questionnaires which could decide future of music sponsorship group now facing fiscal problems. The group started 28 years ago, formed around a nucleus at Belleville Collegiate Institute, current last night when Belleville city wants association to continue.

Last Wall to Fall

It's standing briefly against the skyline is rear wall of St. Agnes Manor, 113-year-old city landmark — but wall to fall yesterday as demolition crews clear site for apartment building. Once, one of the province's more palatial nineteenth-century private residences, built by Belleville lumber baron Senator Bill Flint, it later became well-known girls' school.

Pocket Passes Rocket As Habs Best Rangers

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Henri Richard surpassed a career milestone set by his famous brother, Maurice, when Montreal Canadiens blanked New York 4-0 setback Wednesday night to end the Rangers unbeaten National Hockey League streak at 10 games.

But the Pocket Rocket confided after contributing a goal and an assist that his 966 career points, which gives him a one-point edge on Maurice (Rocket) Richard, didn't gross his mind "until the papers started talking about it."

"Sure it's nice," he admitted, but suggested the Canadiens' six-point margin over the runner-up Rangers in the East Division race is not padding enough for the playoff run with 21 games to go.

"We still have to keep winning," said Richard. "If we lose one and they win one, then we are right back to where we were before tonight's game."

KEY VICTORY

And while the Canadiens were concerned about their stretch run for the Prince of Wales Trophy, Pittsburgh Penguins began a crucial five-game week by knocking over the visiting Vancouver Canucks 6-2.

"This week is the key to the rest of the season," Pittsburgh coach Ken Schinkel said in a post-game interview. "We've got five games in a week and we have to win at least four of them to get going," he added of the Penguins' playoff hopes in the West.

HENRI RICHARD

The Penguins, with 52 points, trail fourth-place St. Louis by six points after the Blues were dumped 5-2 by Minnesota North Stars.

In other games, Buffalo Sabres trimmed Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 to move into a fourth-place tie in the East with Detroit after the Red Wings were held to a 2-2 tie by Los Angeles Kings, Chicago Black Hawks needed two third-period goals to defeat New York Islanders 4-2 and Atlanta Flames skated to a 3-3 tie with California Golden Seals at Oakland.

Tonight the Sabres entertain the Rangers while Philadelphia Flyers are at home to Boston Bruins.

Richard, Yvan Cournoyer, Chuck Lefley, Bob Murdoch and Rejean Houle tallied for the Montrealers before the injury-plagued Rangers, who had put together three consecutive 4-0 victories before being held to a 2-2 standoff by Montreal last Sunday, could find life range.

Then it was the only Ranger line still intact—Walt Tkaczuk, Steve Vickers and Bill Fairbairn—that could solve rookie goaltender Michel Plasse who improved his NHL mark to 9-1-3 while subbing for injured Ken Dryden. Vickers scored twice in the third period and Tkaczuk with five seconds remaining in the game.

Rene Robert, who was a Toronto bench-warmer in 1970-71, used his experience to advantage to help the Sabres, drilling a shot past Leaf goalie Jacques Plante.

The Buffalo winger, who got behind the Toronto defence for his 34th goal of the year, recalled later: "I know Plante. I used to take shots at him in practice when I was here."

Robert said he remembered how the cagey veteran goaltender used to stick check the puck from him each time he got too close, so when the one-on-one situation arose Wednesday night "I didn't give him a chance."

He drilled a low shot from about 10 to 12 feet in front of Plante that gave Buffalo a 3-1 lead.

Nick Libett's second goal of the game salvaged Detroit's tie at Los Angeles.

Nationls Edge Quebec, Blazers Tied for Fourth

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bob Charlebois' two late goals at Quebec City got as much response in Philadelphia as did those by Danny Lawson, whose recent scoring heroics have lifted the Blazers into World Hockey Association playoff contenders.

Charlebois' goals helped Ottawa Nationals to a 6-5 win over Quebec and coupled with a 6-3 Philadelphia upset of Cleveland Crusaders moved the Blazers into a fourth-place tie with Les Nordiques in the Eastern Division.

It is the highest placing of the year for Philadelphia which spent the early months of the season deep in the division cellar.

Tonight, Houston Aeros visit Alberta Oilers, Los Angeles Sharks are at New England Whalers, Winnipeg Jets visit Chicago Cougars and Minnesota Fighting Saints entertain Ottawa.

The first goal by Charlebois at 9:36 of the final period, broke a 3-3 tie and his second about fifty minutes later ensured the Nats victory. Jack Gibson added another in the final minute of play.

Gerry Ehrlich, Rick Sentes and Guy Trottier scored the earlier Ottawa goals in front of 4,300 hockey-crazed fans, each time pulling the Nats from one-goal deficits arranged by Reynold Leclerc. Andre Gaudette, and Leclerc again in the relatively light-hitting contest in which referee Brent Casselman called only six minor penalties—three to each team.

Ottawa, however, held a wide edge in play. They tested rookie Quebec goalie Richard Brodeur with 39 shots while Gilles Gratton in the Ottawa net faced only 28 Nordiques shots.

Lawson, who had scored four goals the previous night, padded his league-leading goals total to 48 with two third-period scores.

His power-play score at 11:58 of the period tied the game and the winner came with 15 seconds left in regulation time.

Don O'Donoghue also beat Cleveland goaltender Gerry Cheevers for two goals, the other Philadelphia scores going to Andre Lacroix and Don Burrows.

Snider to Telecast Expo Baseball Games

MONTREAL (CP) — Duke Snider, former baseball great with the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers, has been hired to do the color commentary on the Montreal Expos' broadcast games.

Snider, will join play-by-play commentator Dave Van Horne announced Wednesday.

Eighteen of the games will be seen on both the English and French networks and four on the French only.

"One thing about playing in this kind of weather. You don't sweat so much over short putts!"

The San Diego Padres since 1969, spending three years as a broadcaster and last year coaching the Padres class AA club in Alexandria, La.

CBC television will broadcast 23 Montreal Expo games during the 1973 season. It was announced Wednesday.

Bobcats Break Losing Streak

TORONTO (Special)—When you're looking to break a Metro Junior B hockey slump, the Toronto Young Nationals wouldn't qualify as the ideal opponents.

The Belleville Bobcats did just that however by pinning a 2-1 loss on the second place Metro team Wednesday night.

"They played a good game," said manager Jim "Snipe" Matthews of his Bobcats. "It's too bad we couldn't have played like that in some of those one-goal losses." The Cats had dropped seven in a row preceding Tuesday's win.

Coach Moe Hunter had much the same sentiments about the win over Toronto. "We played solid, playoff hockey — the type we're going to have to play for the rest of the season.

Despite the victory it appears as though Belleville will meet the Peterborough Lions in the opening round of the playoffs. The Bobcats trail Orbeys by three points and would require two wins and the same number of losses by the Legionaires to overtake them for fourth place.

Matthews was philosophical about the playoff draw. "We have to meet them (Peterborough) sometime. I guess it might as well be first.

Rick Meagher provided the winning goal against Toronto, scoring with only 18 seconds remaining in the middle period. The speedy Belleville forward stole the puck on a penalty killing assignment and broke free to beat goalie Kevin Walton with a goalmouth shot.

Wally Dilnard, playing centre, had opened the scoring at 13.22 of the first on a scramble in front of the Toronto net. The Young Nats evened scores later in the period when Steve Palmateer beat Bobby Moore.

Moore was one of the Belleville stars, according to the team manager. "He held us in there the first period. We were having trouble getting the puck out of our end," said Matthews.

Hunter praised the work of defenceman Joe Edwards, one of three players from the Western Tier juveniles who are expected to remain with the B's for the remainder of the season.

The Belleville goalie faced 30 shots in the game as opposed to 42 by Walton. The shooters drew nine of the game's 17 penalties including a major misconduct to Andy Ricketts for some unsolicited criticism of the officiating.

The right winger will sit out a one-game suspension, missing Friday night's home game against St. Mike's.

Dixie Lee Downed By Kingston

Mark Crawford's hat trick against the Kingston Church Athletics wasn't enough to give the Dixie Lee Fried Chicken pee wee minors a two game edge in their OMHA "AAA" playdowns Wednesday.

Despite the even 30-30 shots on goal figure, the Kingston pee wees managed to earn two more goals than could Belleville for a 7-5 victory, and a 1-1 tie in the best of five playdowns.

John Henry and Steve Murphy provided the other Belleville goals.

Centennial Wrestling Coach Prefers Switching

By AL TABAS
Staff Spectawriter

Pat Carty is fighting, but he hasn't switched.

The Centennial physical education teacher coaches both football, which he played at the varsity level at Ottawa University, and the Chargers' wrestling team, which won the Bay of Quinte championship this year.

Carty claimed the dubious honor of being the "world's worst guard" when he played for the Gee-Gees during the three years it took him to earn a Bachelor of Commerce degree at St. Patrick's College.

"We were a passing team," said the 32-year-old coach, "and the opposition used to blitz. I ended up with the blackest back in the league."

After teaching for two years, Carty went back to university, this time to Hamilton's McMaster University, where he received his physical degree.

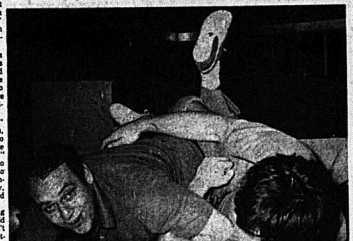
"I got keen on wrestling when I went to Mac," said Carty, "but because I didn't have a background in wrestling I wasn't able to compete on the varsity team. I think I got my background in wrestling when I came here (Centennial).

"I learned the sport through other coaches, by attending meets and going to clinics. Joe Rakel, wrestling coach at University of Toronto), whose younger brother wrestled here years ago, taught both the team and myself quite a bit. Bob Beamish, who's a student teacher here now, is on the Queen's University varsity team. I'm picking up quite a bit from him."

Carty, who started the competitive wrestling program when he came to Centennial five years ago, said that "wrestling is a pretty easy sport to pick up the individual skills in, the big secret is putting them in some sort of sequence.

"I approach coaching in a systematic way. When I teach a skill, I research it enough to prepare for every eventuality — what steps are involved in its execution, what counters there are, what my wrestler can expect.

"The coach, however, said that "with some kids" his analytical approach to the sport is "probably not good. A kid has to develop everything along with me and if he can't do it, or doesn't want to, he may have problems.



"Analyse, though might be a poor word," said Carty, "perhaps build a more progressively would be better. In teaching a move, I show it, then giving a visual concept. Then you can break the move into parts and have them go through each part as they can feel it. Then you put all the parts together.

"That's the only real method I know to teach it. It takes longer, but when they get it, I think they know it better. As a result, however, I don't teach a wide variety of skills."

But then Carty said that the "kids do the winning, not the coach. I've been lucky enough to have confident and aggressive wrestlers who are willing to try to believe they could get a takedown."

Though the wrestlers actually go down onto the mats to do the fighting, the coach does have a responsibility to them individually and to the team. With some wrestlers the coach has to provide the encouragement, the "patting on the back". They have to be told that they're good. On the other hand there is "an type of kid who thinks he's a hell of a lot better than he actually is." In this case, Carty has to bring the wrestler back to reality.

"Some kids respond to a challenge," said Carty. "John Dworzik, (130 pound Bay of Quinte champion) is like that, especially if you suggest that he's getting sloppy while the other guy is improving. If you say 'I don't know John, if you can beat this guy', he'll respond by working that much harder."

Wellington Evens Series

Wellington bantams evened their OMHA "D" playdown series with Colborne by scoring a 6 - 4 win Wednesday night.

Trevour Cleave tallied three goals and assisted on another to pace Wellington to the win that evened the best-of-three group final at one game apiece.

Wins Don't Help Jesse Gain Ground

CP (Staff) — Earl Jesse's CFB Trenton rink has been winning, but not gaining ground, since the opening round of the Canadian Forces National Curling Championships held in Shilo, Manitoba.

The defending national champion was beaten 5-4 by Andy Anderson in his opening game Monday. Since then the Trenton team has recorded three consecutive victories but can manage no better than a third place tie at the moment.

Jesse walloped Tom Welch's Manitoba rink 9-4 Wednesday for his third win leaving him deadlocked for third place with Garry Marr of Germany.

The competition ends Friday.

Centennial's wrestling coach Pat Carty (left) locks arms with 192 pound wrestler Geof Mackey during the Charger's practice for the COSSA championships to be held at Bayside Saturday. The wrestling team is running through various moves, in this case the turk ride, in preparation for the meet.

Jeff Mackey wrestling in the unlimited weight class and Brian Ferguson in the 90 pound category are wrestlers "an awful lot like that" according to Carty.

"If you get a kid believing in himself," said Carty, "he's a pretty tough fighter, even if the other wrestler has more skills."

During the past week the Centennial wrestlers, who brag out Quinte's matmen by four points in the Bay of Quinte competition, have been reviewing their moves with "very little learning being done" according to Carty. "We're working on tilts to turn our opponent over, and increase our point production," said the coach.

Leg Injury Beats Lutz

By RON SUDLOW

TORONTO (CP) — A knee and a toe had teaming on second-round play in the $50,000 Toronto International tennis tournament Wednesday.

Bengtson resolved his problem by cutting a hole in his shoe to relieve the pain but kept the pressure on Colin Dibley and upset the fourth-seeded Australian 7-5, 6-2.

The seventh-seeded Lutz was less fortunate. He injured his knee late in the first set against unseeded Allan Stone of Australia and was trailing 5-1 in the second when he withdrew after losing the first set 7-5.

Second-seeded Roy Emerson took a set and a half to adjust to the high-bouncing serves of fellow Australian Phil Dent but broke service twice in the third set to win 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 and gain a quarter-final berth against Stone.

Fifth-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., will meet Bengtson in another quarter-final after defeating Harald Solomon, of Silver Spring, Md., 6-4, 6-3.

Today's second-round pairings will put third - seeded Dick Stockton of San Antonio, Texas, against Jim McManus of Berkeley, Calif.; top-seeded Rod Laver of Australia meets Frew McMillan of South Africa; and sixth-seeded John Alexander of Australia plays Jaimie Fillol of Chile, and eighth-seeded Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Texas, plays 11th-seeded Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia.

Ilie Nastase, a towering unseeded Swede who used his time as a superlative to write his doctorate thesis in psychology in 1971, and Dibley, winner of the World Championship Tennis tournament this year, were unable to hold service in the first set.

But Bengtson held all the way in the second while Dibley was struggling to get his devastating first serve in consistently.

"I didn't hit many first serves in today and gave Ove a chance at my second serve and he played well," said Dibley. "I played a lot of loose balls today and got only about five per cent of my serves in.

"Usually I get about 60 per cent of them in. You can notice when you start playing like that."

Emerson had problems returning Dent's service but found the range to belt a backhand down the line for crucial points.

"He's got a good forehand and I like to see the volleys occasionally," said Emerson who now has beaten Dent three times this year.

Smith, nearly a foot taller than his Davis Cup team-mate, battled from the baseline against Solomon because "he hits some of the best passing shots I've seen."

Neither used their serve to advantage.

The top-seeded Emerson and Laver became the first doubles team to reach the semi-finals of a draw decimated by injuries. They ousted Bob Mead of South Africa and Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia 6-2, 6-2.

Lutz, who first injured his knee last June in what doesn't know what is wrong with it except "the only thing that seems to work is rest," withdrew from the doubles, leaving Smith without a partner.

Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico injured his foot in first-round singles play and he and Frank Froehling of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., were sidelined.

An injured racquet hand put New Zealand's Onny Parun out of action and he and his partner Milan Holecek of Czechoslovakia had to default to Masal and Pattison.

WCT tour regulars Bob Hewitt and Cliff Drysdale, both of South Africa, skipped the tournament because of injuries.

Luster Asks to Be Traded

TORONTO (CP) — Marv Luster, an all-Canadian in five of his nine Canadian Football League seasons with Toronto, wants to leave the Argos because of new head coach John Rauch.

Luster says he was "humiliated" by Rauch this week and is willing to give up his teaching position to play elsewhere in Canada.

"I changed my mind about retiring this season and went to talk to Rauch," Luster said in an interview, Tuesday. "He told me I could expect to be cut."

He said Rauch "had the gumption to suggest I get myself into shape for training camp."

"When I was cut, it would be released to the public that I had retired voluntarily. He implied he might need my help coaching the defensive backfield and there would be a couple of bucks in that for me. I regard that offer as absurd.

"I left the office completely humiliated. It would be ludicrous to try for out for a job that was not there."

Rauch, appointed head coach in January to succeed Fred Lot Cahill, was not available for comment.

John Barrow, Argo general manager, said he was shocked when Luster's reaction to the conversation with Rauch.

"I know that Rauch wants Marv to play, but if it doesn't work out that way we would make every effort to open up a coaching job for him," said Barrow.

"Knowing both men I'm shocked at the situation. The only plausible answer is that there was a communication problem because there's no other reason for it."

Snooker Champ Beaten

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Werbeniuk of Vancouver dethroned Cliff Thorburn of Victoria as North American snooker champion Wednesday night, winning five of their six games to close out the series by 26 games to 22.

Deadlocked 21-21 at the start of the night's play, Werbeniuk won the first three games, one on a break of 70 in the third, and conceded the fourth to the defending champion before clinching the series with two more victories.

The new champion, who defeated 16 other players on his way to the Canadian title last month, had two century breaks, including a table break of 118, during the North American series as well as two breaks in the 90s. Thorburn had three of more than 90 and two in the 80s.

Despite his defeat, Thorburn will compete in the world championship in Manchester, England, opening April 15, and tournament officials said he will present Werbeniuk again next year in an attempt to regain his title.

LEWIS LEAVES TOURNEY

MICHAELS NAMED

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Walt Michaels was named Wednesday as defensive coach of Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League. The appointment of Michaels, 43, New York Jets' linebacker coach for the last 10 seasons, brings to four the number of assistants hired by Mike McCormack, named Eagles head coach late last month.

MAY NEED SURGERY

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Gary Player may undergo another operation to correct a kidney ailment discovered during exploratory surgery Tuesday. The professional golfer, a frequent competitor on the United States tour, entered hospital for removal of a cyst from his left leg and a routine bladder examination.

WIN FOR RIESSEN

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Top-seeded Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., defeated Pierre Barthes of France 4-6, 6-3, 6-2 on Wednesday and gained the quarter-final round of the World Championship Tennis tournament. Australia's Dick Crealy, ninth-seeded, beat Premjit Lall of India 3-6, 6-3, 6-0.

SIMPSON HIRED

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jackie Simpson, a former assistant coach with the San Diego Chargers and Houston Oilers, was hired Wednesday to coach defensive backs and linebackers for St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League, coach Don Coryell announced. Simpson, 36, played pro ball with Denver Broncos and Oakland Raiders in the U.S. and Montreal Alouettes in the Canadian Football League before turning to scouting and coaching.

MUHAMMAD ALI

Ali Dazzles European Champ

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (Reuter) — Former world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali put on a dazzling boxing display to gain a unanimous decision over Britain's Joe Bugner here Wednesday night, but failed to score his predicted seventh-round knockout.

All, nine years older than the 23-year-old European champion, led on points from start to finish and opened a nasty gash over Bugner's left eye at the first period.

Bugner, 219 pounds and a shade taller than his opponent, at times looked like an innocent against the masterly Ali. But he kept going gamely despite having his face reduced to a mask of blood in the 10th round.

Ali, weighing 217½, had predicted a knockout in the seventh round and when he failed to achieve it, he walked back to his corner on the bell, letting his gloves flop against his sides.

The fight, at the 7,200-seat domed Las Vegas Convention Centre, drew a crowd of 8,700 with a gate of $288,000 against a possible gross of more than $400,000.

In almost every round Bugner courage of the powerful curly-haired Bugner was that he was still on his feet at the end of the 12 rounds despite the savage battering he suffered in the

The biggest tribute to the British judge Roland Dakin gave it 57-54 for Ali, Ralph Sims gave it 57-53 and Les Tobet made it 56-53.

Fish 'Pirates' Feted

Taiwan Junk Going Home

AUCKLAND (CP) — The extraordinary voyage of the Taiwanese junk Ming Poh has entered its homeward phase after an unexpected halt and forced three-week holiday in New Zealand.

New Zealand became aware of the presence of the Ming Poh late last year when a foreign fishing vessel was reported to have been seen close inshore in the extreme north of the country. Thereafter, a strange saga developed.

Reports said the interlopers were landing on the northern coasts and diving for shellfish in blank defiance of the strictly-enforced 12-mile fishing zone off the coast.

But the affair took an even stranger turn when a report said the crew, including eight girl divers, were happily picnicking on the beaches. It sounded as though the country was witnessing some idyllic back-to-nature cruise by visitors who had chosen the southern midsummer to frolic on the remote but lovely beaches of the land.

Some disillusion came when it turned out that at message referring to the junk's eight-dories had been mutilated to read eight dollies, which in turn had been imaginatively interpreted as eight girl divers.

In any case the junk's junketing was rudely interrupted when a New Zealand naval vessel arrested the Taiwanese trawler early in the new year.

But the voyage to Whangarei, nearest port, was protracted because it transpired that the 26-year-old engine of the junk was capable of driving her at only about four knots. In any case freeboard of some two feet made speedy travel hazardous.

To add to the difficulties, the crew of 16—all males—spoke a Taiwanese dialect and there was great difficulty finding anyone in New Zealand who could understand them.

But the story eventually pieced together was that the vessel was owned by a company in southern Taiwan which had instructed the master, Tan Kim Kian, 48, to seek fishing grounds for shellfish. A friend suggested that there should be abundant shellfish in New Zealand. So on his own initiative he headed his frail craft south.

The Ming Poh left Taiwan in November with three months' food aboard, and most of her freezer space occupied by additional fuel for the round trip.

She made it to New Zealand, where the crew began hunting for shellfish, with no more sophisticated equipment than snorkelling gear. They found and stored in the ice-filled freezer space about a ton of paua, which are similar to abalone.

The first New Zealand vessel to hail them passed over a couple of bottles of beer and they believed they had indeed lighted on a wonderful new fishing area—until the navy and the law caught up with them.

At Whangarei the crew were inoculated and the ship fumigated.

When the master was brought into court, defence counsel said this was a native venture in the extreme and no case of modern fish piracy. The master, he said, had no idea he was doing anything illegal.

The magistrate rejected the idea of a nominal fine, maintaining that a deterrent penalty was necessary. He imposed a fine of $1,000, and by law the vessel was automatically forfeited to the government.

Now, however, the story became even more curious. The government said it did not want the ship and would release it on payment of $700 expenses incurred in fumigation and the like.

The public began to send money in par ice fine and before long more money than the fine had been donated by well-wishers. People took the crew for outings. Others offered them jobs haymaking and gardening, at wages they had never aspired to in Tai-

So before long counsel for the crew had more money than he needed to meet outstanding debts. Not only was the ship's engine overhauled, but the vessel was soon heavily laden with supplies for the homeward voyage—much of it provided by sympathetic Chinese New Zealanders.

That is how it came about that the vessel finally set out on the 5,000-mile homeward voyage with the crew feted, fed and with money in their pockets, and supplied with comforts at sea they had never known before.

Secret Weapon

CONINGSBY, England (CP) — One by one, clubs in Lincolnshire bowling leagues discovered the key to one village team's success. Situated on the edge of a noise air force station, the club's bowlers had grown accustomed to the roar of airtered all opponents. "The station now has installed sound-proofing," club secretary Harry Brain says. "This will ruin our position in the league."

Technician checks intricate tread design in tire mold at the Toronto Good-year plant. The blades which shape the tread pattern are made of stainless craft engines. But the din shatsteel and the mold of aluminum. The tread designs must be accurate, in most cases within 5-1000 of an inch. Molds must score 50 accuracy tests. (CP Photo)

'Unitons' Seen as Key To Origin of Universe

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The primal stuff from which the universe was born is postulated by a Columbia University professor in a theory which is fast attracting increasing attention from experts around the world.

"It's perhaps as exotic," says Prof. Lloyd Motz, speaking of his particles, which he calls unitons.

Motz believes unitons existed before, and were in fact responsible for, the "big bang"—which gave birth to the universe.

According to the "big bang" theory, the universe was formed as the result of a tremendous explosion of energy and still is expanding from the point at which this cataclysmic explosion took place.

Motz believes the "big bang" occurred when unitons, extremely small but extremely dense particles, coagulated together, resulting in the release of massive amounts of energy—the "beginning."

"But, of course, not all of the matter was used up," Motz explains. In this theory, rare and elusive unitons remained scattered throughout the universe—from the planet earth and its sun to the far reaches of the distant galaxies.

These leftover unitons, he believes, could explain such mysteries as the source of powerful gravity waves which stream out from the centre of the Milky Way galaxy; or the energy released by quasars, near-galactic-sized luminous objects which emit more energy than, theoretically, they should.

The unitons also play a role in the slowing down of the expansion of the universe. Astronomers believe that at some stage in the far distant future, the universe will cease to expand and will begin to contract.

According to Motz, unitons, attracted by the mass of the bodies in the galaxy, are streaming in from the outer reaches to the centre, from where the powerful gravitation waves originate.

It would take the energy of 1,000 suns a year colliding to produce the kind of gravitational waves which have been observed, Motz says. Using up mass at this rate would create a disruption in the mechanics of galactic activity.

However, if it is assumed that unitons stream into the centre of the galaxy, the resultant mass would account for the gravity waves.

On an inter-galactic scale, the mass formed by inward streaming unitons could be exerting the gravitational pull which is slowing down the rate at which the universe is expanding.

Motz postulates that unitons exist in the universe in a ratio of about one uniton to 100,000 trillion elementary proton particles.

It is their extreme mass that makes unitons a force to be reckoned with as man traverses the dynamics of the incredibly complex mechanism that is the universe.

"The question is how compressed things can become," Motz says. "Unitons are so compressed that they are their own black hole."

As now understood, black holes exist in space as incredibly compacted matter likened to a sun which is so dense that its light cannot escape because of the power of its gravitational pull.

Thus, despite the size and scarcity of unitons, Motz sees them as the force which may even hold the galaxies together in clusters.

Wrong Runway

LONDON (CP) — One amusing story has emerged from the winter fogs engulfing airports around London. A pilot landing from a trans-Atlantic flight announced to passengers on arrival: "Ladies and gentlemen, welcome to Heathrow." After an embarrassed pause, he spluttered, "I'm sorry, welcome to Gatwick."

Being a Judge Means Pay Cut

TORONTO (CP) — To be appointed a federal judge is considered the ultimate step in a Canadian legal career. But the personal cost may be high.

Consider Willard (Bud) Zebedee Estey.

He's a 53-year-old lawyer who has been practising here since 1946. An outstanding courtroom tactician, his long list of clients includes such major corporations as Imperial Oil Ltd., the giant U.S. Gulf Oil Corp. and its Canadian subsidiary, Gulf Minerals, Famous Players, the Columbia Broadcasting System in Canada.

Mr. Estey's legal activities have taken him coast to coast in Canada and provided him with an annual income exceeding $100,000.

One day he was in Halifax for the biggest civil trial of his career, a tax dispute between Imperial Oil and the Nova Scotia government.

He received a phone call from Ottawa.

It was Justice Minister Otto Lang.

Would Mr. Estey accept appointment to the Ontario Court of Appeal?

Bud Estey, a Liberal, accepted and on Feb. 23 he will be sworn in by Chief Justice George A. Gale of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

As a judge his income will be $41,000 a year. That's $59,000 Mr. Estey is unduly concerned about the abrupt cut in income.

"I don't think there is any doubt that the legal profession is excessively over-compensated for its work," he said in an interview.

His headaches come from winding up his professional activities.

On the day the justice minister phoned, Mr. Estey had 20 cases under way, at least twice the number of an average lawyer. He must find other lawyers to take over.

"I didn't really think of that before."

He also must withdraw from various boards, private companies, and associations, and even the Ontario vice-presidency of the Canadian Bar Association.

He has even decided to resign from a service club because many of the members are "shareholders in corporations that are bound to show up before the court sooner or later."

However, Mr. Estey has no intention of becoming a "judicial monk" by severing all contact with friends and business associates.

He said a judge has "to remain aloof to make these impartial decisions," but "if I found I was becoming monkified I'd quit."

He is an advocate of the appointment of an inspector of courts. Such an official "wouldn't have anything to do with how judges decided cases."

But he "would know if it is costing too much to make each decision, whether there are enough modern aids to the process, whether you're taking too long to make a decision, whether you've got too many or too few courtrooms — or too many judges."

Why does a lawyer give up the freedom and rewards of private practice to sit on the bench?

Any lawyer's explanation would "sound funny" said Mr. Estey, Bud "when they come along and say to you, 'Okay, it's time you did this other thing,' well I guess you have got to do it."

Canadian Arab Publishes Paper

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ezel Murad may be a Canadian citizen, but in heart, soul and Arab. He is, he says, doing political face, he remains an his part to "fight back" against Israel.

Mr. Murad is the founder, editor and publisher of The Source, a bi-weekly English-Arabic newspaper printed in Vancouver.

The Source is intended to sway non-Arabs in their thinking on the Palestinian issue.

"Here we can't carry guns, nor would we want to," said Mr. Murad. "Engulfing ourselves in violence would not help my people, so I am serving the cause in a more moderate, and hopefully, more effective way."

Mr. Murad added, however, that he supports Arab commando activities and is "proud of what they do."

The Source backs all Arab commando activities, including the killings at the 1972 Munich Olympics.

"The Source will not refrain from exposing any war crime committed against the Palestinian people anywhere," said Mr. Murad about several articles condemning the treatment of Arabs in Germany and the United States after a raid against Israel.

Mr. Murad left Palestine in 1948. His father was killed, and his mother worked to support six children.

Five years ago, he became a Canadian citizen. He is a graduate of McGill University in Montreal and is an importer.

In 1970, he said he decided to fill what he considered the gap in news received in Vancouver about the Middle East. News and editorials relevant only to the Palestinian side of the war dominate the English section of The Source, usually the larger of the two sections.

Mr. Murad draws his documentation of "Israel war crimes" from Western sources such as the Swiss Red Cross, the United Nations Organization on Human Affairs and similar bodies.

Germany's Casinos Are Staid

BAD HOMBURG West Germany (Reuter) — Germany's casinos, once favorite haunts of Europe's rich and eccentric aristocracy, have become monuments to bygone glory.

Gone are the days when Russian princes and grand dukes, clad in sable furs, gambled away—and sometimes won—a vast fortune in a night. Gone are the days when a reckless young officer would occasionally end an unlucky run at the roulette table with a bullet through his head.

Fyodor Dostoyevsky, himself a gambler, collected material for his famous novel The Gambler in German casinos. And the most famous gambling establishment of them all, the Casino at Monte Carlo, was patterned on a German one.

Today, the atmosphere in these relics of a more colorful if less democratic, past is rather staid and sober, reflecting the main characteristics of a population that rose from post-war rags to riches through hard work and little play.

According to gambling officials, casinos now have a steady clientele made up mostly of middle-class businessmen and professionals. Casual visitors come from all walks of life, from students and craftsmen to old-age pensioners, but millionaires and aristocrats are rare.

Black tie and evening gown, once prerequisites of a night at the gaming tables, have given way to day suits, slacks and blazers, mainskirts and sweaters.

West Germany currently has 13 casinos—and for those who run them, 13 is a lucky number. Tourists casino officials go to great lengths to insist that the bank has only a slight advantage over the gambler, over all the bank always wins.

The casino at Bad Homburg rakes in some nine million marks (about $2 million dollars) net a year. Yet, it is one of the smallest.

Others are at Wiesbaden, Bad Neuenahr, Baden Baden, Bad Duerkheim, Bad Kissingen, Munich Partenkirchen, Konstanz, Lindau, Bad Reichenhall, Travemuende, Westerland and Bad Wiessee.

It is not unusual to see a middle-aged gambler in a sober grey business suit lose almost $1,500 within an hour. A win of some $15,000 dollars is not considered unusual, although Belgian hauls are said to be rare.

Strained Excuse

LONDON (CP) — Harrassed gas board officials dealing with angry complaints about failing gas pressures in North London sent a circular to those concerned. It read: "Sorry to keep you waiting, we're under low pressure generally at the moment."

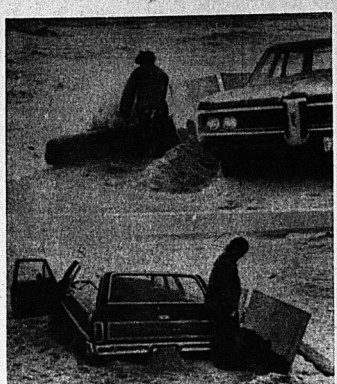
Iranian Naval Ships To Enter Indian Ocean

TEHRAN (C) — Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's recent announcements that he would send the Iranian navy into the Indian Ocean appears to have attracted more attention in international circles than it probably deserves at this stage. The Persian navy is too small—not destroyer and a few frigates and corvettes—and too inexperienced as of now seriously to affect the balance of power in this vast expanse of ocean.

The limited waters of the Arabian Sea may be another matter, however, since here a combined Iranian-Pakistani naval presence could to some extent face up to, if not actually lift the balance of India's growing naval strength.

To all appearances what the shah wishes to see diluted is complete Indian dominance of this sea, important as it is to the oil transportation lines from the Persian Gulf to Iran's major markets, both to the east and west. New Delhi's links with a traditionally none-too-trustworthy Moscow, and a virulently hostile Baghdad, do not inspire confidence in Tehran, say the least.

However, only when Iran becomes a fully industrialized power—which it might do in the next 20 years, given its current ongoing rate of economic expansion—could it back up its naval presence with its own ship-building and arms-manufacturing capacities at home. In this respect the Indians are ahead, but lack the wherewithal of economic resources to match the speed of Persia's development. The shah's decision to send his navy beyond the confines of the Persian Gulf and Oman Gulf can only have meaning in the remote, rather than the immediate, balance of oceanic power in this theatre of the globe.



If, however, the American mood of withdrawal from its role as global policeman continues, Iran would feel more secure if it could set up new alliances with others who would also fear Russian dominance—such as a triangular link-up with South Africa at the southwestern corner and Australia and New Zealand at the southeastern corner of the Indian Ocean.

Less vaporous, perhaps, are Iran's improvements of its land and air forces, both of which have a sophistication in weaponry unmatched by any of the rival small powers in the region. Some of the newly acquired weapons - phantom jets, chieftain tanks, missile launchers—were put on display recently during the annual Asarbaijan Liberation Day parade.

The number of Phantoms has never been officially announced, but they are believed to be two squadrons in strength. Also not announced in the local press is Iran's decision to acquire F-14 and F-15 fighter aircraft from the United States. Both these aircraft, fitted with smart bombs, guided by laser beams and television, would ensure the Iranian air force of superiority over any fighting machines the Soviet Union can currently provide to cover the skies of its allies in the region.

However, there is the delicate business of reassuring friendly Arab neighbors that Iran's determination to counter political domination over them is not Tehran's intention. The shah's current attempts at a defence link-up with Saudi Arabia may be viewed in this light, together with Tehran's intensive diplomatic efforts in the Union of Arab Emirates, Kuwait and Oman.

Indeed, even in allied Pakistan some leftist circles have begun to look askance at Iran's growing strength, with the unspoken question about whether this strength will ultimately assist them vis-a-vis India, or curb their own political aspirations.

Religion-oriented Comics Well Received

TORONTO (CP) — If sales are any indication, religion-oriented comic books may be as well accepted by churches and Sunday schools as Bibles and hymn books.

Two such comic books, The Cross and The Switchblade and God's Smuggler, recently appeared in Toronto's religious bookstores which reported booming sales.

Both comic books are published in the United States. The Cross and The Switchblade is the true story of a young Pentecostal minister and his encounters with drug-crazed youths in New York's Harlem district. The other is the story of a priest who tries to smuggle Bibles into Communist Europe.

"Canadian response to both comic books has been amazing," said Harold Welch, president of R. H. Welch Co., which distributes the comics in Canada.

Czechs Off to Everest, To Seek Canoe Record

TEHRAN (CP) — Sixteen young Czech adventurers are on their way overland to the Himalayas, not to climb Mount Everest, but to set a world high-altitude record by canoeing on the Dudh Kosi river, which rushes and tumbles over a rocky course at the foot of the world's highest mountain in Nepal.

Travelling by truck and trailer, the 16 are lugging with them another trailer loaded with their canoes and kayaks, which they intend using Eskimo-style on the Milk River—the literal translation from Nepalese of Dudh Kosi.

"The average speed of a river of this kind," said Jiri Bobak, leader of the expedition, "is between 15 and 20 miles an hour. But the boat does not go at exactly that speed because there are swirls and other obstacles, which we have to use to help us stop."

"One thing we'll do is measure the speed of the flow when we are there."

Of particular importance to the canoeists on this expedition will be use of the "Eskimo switch", which is a special technique used to right the boat when it overturns in the icy swirling water.

The canoeist, who is tied to his craft, finds his head below the freezing water and must quickly get the boat the right way up. To protect themselves when dashed against rocks, the canoeists will be wearing helmets and special suits of plastic.

The canoes themselves are made of reinforced plastic.

The adventure begins at 12,000 feet, when the canoeists enter the foaming torrents of the Milk River. This will be 2,500 feet higher than the records set by Austrian and American teams, who have started at 9,500 feet. To get to the starting point the group will follow the track used by through step valleys to get to the village of Jubling.

The boats will enter the Milk River one or two at a time, and will travel for stretches of about three miles down river, each. There are seven canoeists in the group, the remaining nine members being involved in rescue work, camp installation and other operations. The group includes a champion canoeists from Czechoslovakia, such as Cestmir Vytisk, who won a silver medal in the world championships in 1969.

The oldest member of the group is 46-year-old biologist Miroslav Houstoul, who has been up the Himalayas before, and is an experienced mountaineer. Five younger mountaineers in the party will be carrying out reconnaissance for the Czech team due to attempt an assault on Everest in 1976.

"Most of us are around 30 or under and half of the engineers are from university," Bobak said.

"Altogether we have 5½ tons of equipment to be carried to the river," he said. "We've got rubber dinghies for rescue and things like food —all our own food specially prepared back home—and it is only the unforseen that can happen to us now."

The party has been preparing over the last three years for the trip, the climax of the training being three weeks up in the Alps for 10 of them.

"What we really want to do," Bobak said, "is start a tradition like climbing Everest, set a standard so that others will come after and try to beat it on the river. Its source is around 18,100 feet high, so there'll be plenty of scope for others even if we do set a new mark."

Royal Winnipeg Ballet Opens Eastern Tour

By JAMES NELSON
TORONTO (CP) — The Royal Winnipeg Ballet has opened an 11-city tour of Eastern Canada with a program of dance to attract everyone, even those who say they don't like ballet.

Music ranging from Gustav Mahler to Simon and Garfunkel, and from the lyricism of Gloacchino Rossini to contemporary squawks, whistles and bleeps served as background for ballet ranging from the classic to modern.

Highlight of the program was the Winnipeg Ballet's original work The Ecstasy of Rita Joe, by Norbert Vesak, based on the Canadian play by George Ryga.

It is a sobering work, telling of white man's treatment of the North American Indian in the big city, and one that tends to send audiences away in a sombre, thoughtful mood. Many in the audience Wednesday gave the performance of Ana Maria de Gorriz and Salvatore Aiello a standing ovation.

Bracketing this in style were a classic pas de deux to Rossini's music and featuring Marina Eglevsky and Sylvester Campbell, a powerful leading man of the company, and a non-story Rondo, choreographed by John Neumeier for the whole company.

The Royal Winnipeg, Canada's oldest continuing ballet company, has brought at least nine works east for its tour of Toronto, London, Ont., Windsor, Waterloo, Kingston, Ottawa, Fredericton, St. John's, Nfld., Halifax, Charlottetown, Sackville, N.B., and possibly Quebec City.

Its opening-night performance drew mixed reviews from Toronto critics, one of whom was highly critical of the orchestra's performance. But whatever went wrong opening night was surely corrected by the musicians for the second night's performance.

John Fraser, writing in the Globe and Mail, called it a solid

Ilam Littler, found much of Rita Joe little more than sequences of long-legged loping across the stage," but said its telling of the story was "much more than mere dancing."

Adopted

Chief Dan George, the widely - known Canadian Indian actor, sits with Ana Maria de Gorriz, whom he adopted as his 6th grandchild. Miss de Gorrie, principal daughter of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, plays Chief George's daughter in the sound film that accompanies the ballet The Ecstacy of Rita Joe, which opens at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre. Ballet Here In March

The Royal Winnipeg Ballet will make its first appearance in Belleville March 23, with a performance of The Estasy of Rita Joe, among other works.

The performance will be held in Centennial Secondary School at 8:30 p.m. The visit of the celebrated ballet was arranged by Marian Wilson, advisor for the Quinte Dance Centre, to raise funds for the dancing school. Sponsor of the event is the Belleville Branch of the National Ballet of Canada.

Mrs. Wilson said that all tickets for the Royal Winnipeg's evening performances in Toronto this week were sold out today. Top ticket price for the Belleville performance will be $4.50.

The company is comprised of 25 dancers and an 18-piece orchestra, said Mrs. Wilson. A total of 55 people travel with the company on tour.

LONDON (AP) — Readers of Disc, a leading British entertainment weekly, Wednesday chose Rod Stewart as the world's top male pop vocalist.

Stewart, a Scot who lives in London, also took the award as top British vocalist.

The readers' poll gave two awards to the American Alice Cooper group as top international group and for the top single of 1972, "school's out."

Keith Emerson, organist with Emerson, Lake and Palmer, was named top musician. Melanie was chosen top international female vocalist, and Glasgow's Maggie Bell of the Stone the Crows group was named top British female vocalist.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, Feb. 16

Aries (March 21-April 19): As you strive for a creative group or community enterprise, your share may not be extensive but it is important to all.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Now is the time for getting out of old ruts of habit; install changes, new furnishings and appliances, or take up a new abode.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): It is a day of good news, reconciliations, shared nostalgia over people and places you may never see again.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Experiments are encouraged, within reason, according to your natural urge for creative change. You may not return to an old way.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Stop long enough to think through your roster of friends and contacts; realize you are neglecting somebody dear.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What you want is more readily achieved by quietly doing what is indicated, as opposed to offering public explanations.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): In co-operation with old friends, you triumph in some personal ideal. Wherever your status you can lend authority.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get busy early as there are preparations to make, more than you can do singlehanded; share your anticipations, enlist help.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make this a day of inspection, set guidelines for those under your supervision, review your home and its conditions.

Capricorn (Dec. 23-Jan. 19): Take all that is coming your way—it's payoff or harvest time for your past efforts. Add to your reserves.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take a good look at where you are in your relationships; resolve to enrich your life with more wisdom.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Take matters in hand for a normal day's adventure in the art of living, to see how much satisfaction you can get from the ordinary.

Senior Citizens at Hearing

The Ontario Municipal Board hearing into the building of a senior citizen drop-in centre on Trenton's Centennial Park was delayed yesterday afternoon when a lawyer failed to appear. But on hand to watch proceedings were three senior citizens, Arthur Bata, Mrs. Ruth Porritt and Cliff Lawcock, president of the Trenton Senior Citizens Club. The hearing was rescheduled for this morning.

Lawyer Unavailable, Hearing Is Postponed

TRENTON — Wednesday promised to be a big day for Trenton's senior citizens, but their long-anticipated chance to come out in force to speak for their recreation centre fizzled.

Approximately 100 seniors came for a 2 p.m. Ontario Municipal Board hearing at the community gardens here yesterday . . . only to hear the hearing would be postponed until this morning. And with the delay came more pretty harsh words directed at a Trenton lawyer by the OMB hearing chairman D. S. Colbourne.

Plans for a $25,000 senior citizen drop-in centre, planned for Centennial Park, were delayed last fall when approximately 69 residents came out against the town's plans to rezone park property to allow construction of the building.

Wednesday, Reginald Martin, representing the town who are opposing location of the centre in the park, said Trenton lawyer George Bonn had been retained last fall to speak at the OMB hearing on their behalf. However, last week, Mr. Bonn advised his clients he might be delayed at a trial in St. Thomas, Ont.area.

He sent the letter to the OMB and requested postponement of the hearing.

At the start of the 2 p.m. session, Mr. Martin read Mr. Bonn's letter to this effect, to hearing chairman Colbourne.

Mr. Colbourne reminded the gathering that OMB hearings are not designed for the benefit of one individual or set of individuals, rather, for the benefit of the majority.

He termed the content of Mr. Bonn's letter "extremely distasteful", further stating certain phrases have been "taken as a threat". He was referring to the statement that should the hearing proceed in his absence and should the OMB vote in favor of rezoning, an immediate appeal would be made.

"It's an affront to this board," he added.

Mr. Bonn's letter, as read by Mr. Martin, said he was advising his clients to appeal the town's refusal to postpone the hearing. He said he had contacted K. A. Andrews, principal hearing officer for the OMB in Toronto last week, advising he might be delayed. Belleville lawyer J.D. Tremleman, representing the town in its bid to rezone the land, said the matter had been dragging on for some time and the town felt further delays would be detrimental to the cause of Trenton's senior citizens.

While the town is prepared to give the land to the Trenton Senior Citizens Club, the seniors are gaining the total cost through public solicitation and are prepared to carry out much of the construction work themselves.

Mr. Templeman said if the hearing were delayed further Mr. Martin indicated April was the earliest date open to him — work by various recreation electricians, carpenters and others in the club would be delayed into winter then.

Plans would be virtually frustrated if further delays were caused, Mr. Templeman said.

Mr. Colbourne adjourned the proceedings for 10 minutes, following which he announced a recess until 10 a.m. this morning.

Following the adjournment, Cliff Lawcock, president of the Trenton Senior Citizen's Club, expressed disgust at the various delays that have held up construction of the centre.

This has been a dream going on for 2½ years. This is just another way of holding it up," he said.

"We've been pushed around for too long. It's about time something was done."

Following Mr. Lawcock said he had issued a mass invitation to club members to attend the hearing and voice their support to the rezoning application.

More than $20,000 has been raised for the structure, but a fund-raising came to a halt when organization was filed with the OMB. However, if the rezoning bid is successful following the hearing, officials feel the remaining funds will come in rapidly and work could start as soon as the frost leaves the ground.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices on the Toronto stock exchange were slightly higher in active mid-morning trading today.

The industrial index, considered a major indicator of market trends, was up .51 to 228.51, golds 1.52 to 218.49 and base metals .57 to 109.76. Western oils, however, were off 1.75 to 260.56.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 808,000 shares compared with 790,000 traded by the same time yesterday.

Among sectors of the market, recording gains were beverage, communication, chemical and oil refining stocks while banks, general manufacturing, trust and loan and construction and material issues were lower.

Declines, however, led advances 141 to 107 while 282 issues were unchanged.

Canadian Cablesystems rose ¼ to 13½%, Westeel ½ to 23½%, Moore Corp. ¾ to 35¾%, Imperial Oil ¾ to 44½% and Canadian Management ¼ to 16¾.

Falconbridge Nickel slipped ¾ to 20%, Thomson ¼ to 26¼, Whonnock A ¾ to 10¾, Cara Operations ¼ to 19¾ and Canadian Breweries ¼ to 25¾.

Texas Gul was up ¾ to 47¼, continued heavy trading that has been in evidence for about a week. Officials of the company said "there is no truth" to rumors of a new ore body or extension of the existing one in the Timmins, Ont., area.

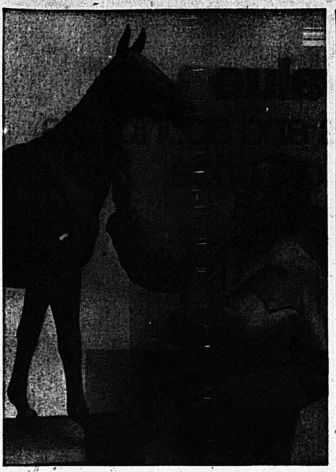
Driver Education Courses Dropped



NAPANEE — Driver education courses in Lennox and Addington county high schools are the first casualty of provincial curbs on educational spending.

The Lennox and Addington school board voted Monday to drop driver education after budget discussion revealed that estimated expenditures for the year are higher than the ceilings set by the ministry of education.

Trustees said they regretted dropping what they consider a valuable course if the board did not have to operate under the provincial ceilings, the course would be retained, they said.

Hastings county board of education begins its budget deliberations at its next meeting, Feb. 26.

For the next two years we will really feel the crunch," said director of education Eric Bimson, one of the ministry's spending curbs.

Cut-rate Hotels and Rooms Proving Problem for Police

VANCOUVER (CP) — The boy, barely into his teens, jumped startled from a wooden chair, ran to the door and held it open no more than he had to.

"What do you want?" he asked shakily.

The policeman said he noticed the door was ajar and wondered if everything was all right.

Through the crack on the hinged side of the grimy green door could be seen a glimpse of a man in his 50s—the boy's father perhaps?—lying naked on the sagging mattress of an iron bed. He was unshaven and even the single, bare lightbulb hanging from the ceiling was bright enough to dim pain in his eyes and to highlight the beads of sweat pouring down his cheeks.

"Yes, it's all right," the lad replied, visibly relieved that the constable had no more serious business with Room 37.

He quickly shut the world from the room.

Vancouver's downtown core is dotted with third-rate hotels and rooms that, like magnets, draw the criminals, the drug pushers and the users, the runaways and the prostitute. For the police, they are a perpetual headache.

Here, old men in shabby clothes, or men down on their luck or out on drugs, sit almost motionless with expressionless faces for hour upon hour, watching the stream of people passing by outside.

Rooms for Rent. Daily, Weekly, Monthly, read the signs outside. Centrally Heated. Hot Running Water.

Inside: "The management will accept no responsibility for . . . ." "It is forbidden to loiter in the hallways . . . do not stub cigarettes on the carpets."

As the policeman continued his tour of the hotel where he had come upon the boy and the older man, he turned to a to accompanying reporter and said the two-storey place is a haven for hypes—drug addicts—and criminals.

"I'll wager that just about everyone registered in this place right now has a record," he said, brushing his hand along a coil of fire hose to check for concealed drugs.

"I'm amazed where you'll find drugs in these places," he said. "Under the carpet, on top of doorjambs, in the toilets, beside trash cans."

In the washrooms the constable checked inside the cisterns, on the ledges and under the seats for drugs.

"Gee, they've cleaned this place up since I was last here," he said, looking around the green-walled bathroom with its chipped, iron tub and tarnished copper piping.

In the top floor lobby, the officer checked the registration book. An elderly, round-shouldered clerk was co-operative, giving more information about tenants than the officer needed.

The row of vacant-faced men, sat there, watching the policeman's every move. Nobody spoke.

It's hard to talk to the people who live in these hotels because most have a past to hide or a present they want no one to see, a social worker explained. But Gideon, a French - Canadian, said he didn't mind talking.

He lives in a little room with flower-pattern wallpaper and a square of shabby brown carpet on the linoleum floor. There are, he said, 25 other rooms just like his in the small hotel.

He said he'd been a laborer, millworker, cook, tractor driver and a handyman, and now he's just checking around Vancouver to see how things are.

He's 43 but looks 10 years older.

"I was drinking for a while a few years back," he said with a hoarse chuckle. "Drinkin' makes you look old.

"You know, once I had a bit of money and I went up to this fancy hotel in Calgary and I was gonna stay there, just for the hell of it. I got inside and it was real strange. It made me feel funny. You know, it was fancy and everyone was dressed up.

"They all kind of looked at me in a funny way. I got mad and told them what they could do with it. I guess I was drinkin' a bit in those days, you see—and went down to the east end and found a roomin' house."

Gideon, the philosopher, put his hands around his beer glass and contemplated the foam.

"That's the point, you see. You get so bloody used to staying in $4 rooms that you can't go any place else."

He Feeds Mosquitoes, What They Eat Is Him

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — When Bill Dean yells, "Supper time," the visitor is more likely to hear the beating of thousands of tiny wings than the thunder of charging feet.

For Mr. Dean spends the entire year, even in the cold air temperatures, being bitten by thousands of mosquitoes.

It's all part of his job as an insect-rearing technician in the biology laboratory of Simon Fraser University.

The problem is that mosquitoes are choosy about their diet. In fact, they'll eat just our thin, fresh blood, preferably of the human variety.

So once a week Mr. Dean rolls up his sleeve, thrusts his arms into the cage and it's supper time for the mosquitoes.

"I've been bitten so many times by mosquitoes I don't even react any more," he said, explaining that he's been interested in insects since he was a small child.

"Most kids at some time or other are interested in beetles and things," said the English-born technician.

"I just went a step further and began to raise them."

His parents encouraged his interest. Mr. Dean said, until "Dad put his foot down the day I infested the house with ants. From that day on, ne and my insects were relegated to the shed at the bottom of the yard."

After leaving school, Mr. Dean got a job as an insect technician trainee at Liverpool University, then moved to British Columbia in 1962, getting a job at SFU.

His charges at the university number in the millions—two-toothed grain beetles, wax moths, parasitic moths, flies and locusts—besides the mosquitoes.

His colleague in the laboratory is Marcelino Horta, who was employed in a similar job in Portugal.

But when Mr. Horta's turn comes to feed the mosquitoes, the routine is slightly different.

"They just won't bite me," he said. "And when I'm on duty, they feed off shreen guinea pigs, whether they like it or not."

But Mr. Dean says he loves his work.

"It's a nice, pleasant place," he said. "And the scratch is pretty good."

Family Life Session Feb. 19

The family life education series, sponsored by St. Thomas Church will concentrate on teenagers at its next session, Feb. 19, in St. Thomas Parish Hall. The meeting open to people of all denominations in the city, will begin at 8 p.m.

Discussion will be sparked by a film and a four - member panel. On the panel will be a mother and a father of teenagers, and two young people, a boy and a girl.

The family life series is designed to cover the difficulties of all age groups within the family, from infancy to old age.

Epidaurus Once Greece's Lourdes and Mayo Clinic

EPIDAURUS, Greece (CP) — Visitors are nothing new to this village on the Saronic Gulf in the Peloponnese. They were coming here 24 centuries ago from all around the Mediterranean. Then Epidaurus was revered as the birthplace of Aesculapius, the Greek god of healing and medicine, and the village became a health centre and spa with fountains, wells, a hospital, sanitorium and mental hospital.

To the ancients of the Mediterranean, Epidaurus was a kind of Lourdes, Mayo Clinic and Baden Baden combined in one. The gifts and fees of patients brought wealth to the area and in time a legible, theatre, sports stadium and other structures were built.

Little remains of them today, however, except for some foundation stones, mosaic paving, Corinthian columns, a number of statues and the theatre, the best preserved in all of Greece.

A museum houses statuary and stone tablets which list the names of patients, their illnesses and cures. Tribute is paid to milk and honey and healing herbs for certain stomach disorders. An early form of faith treatment that was used to cure mental illness is also recorded. It consisted of placing poisonous snakes in cells with patients who didn't know that the fangs had been removed.

But the open-air theatre, the single most important attraction in Epidaurus today, exists in almost all of its old glory—a gigantic fan of tiered stonework rising row on row into the trees and hills behind it. Tragedies, comedies and operas are presented at a festival which has been staged every summer since 1954. The theatre seats 14,000 and the acoustics are so fine that each syllable can be heard perfectly, without amplification, in the top row.

Guides who shepherd tourists through Epidaurus refer frequently to a guide book written 1,600 years ago by Pausanius, an ancient Greek.

Pausanius was a doctor who travelled much of Greece on foot, by donkey and boot over a decade in the second century AD.

Through the writings of Pausanius and his descriptions of Epidaurus, the German archeologist and Greek scholar, Heinrich Schliemann, was able to locate the healing centre. Digging unearthed the buildings towards the end of the Victorian era after they had been buried under earth for centuries.

Pausanius was the reference, too, when Schliemann set about in 1871 to try to find Troy. After months of digging, a copper pot holding more than 9,000 gold and silver objects was turned up.

Again with the aid of Pausanius, Schliemann located Homer's Mycenae in the eastern part of the Peloponnese not far from Epidaurus. The royal death masks of the kings of Mycenae were found under 19 feet of earth, along with gold, silver and jewels. Much of this treasure now may be seen in the National Archeological Museum in Athens.

His contemporaries criticized Pausanius for misspellings, mixing up names, and for mistakes in research. But J. G. Frazer, one of his translators, believed that "without him the ruins of Greece would for the most part be a labyrinth without a clue, a riddle without an answer."

Scattered among his descriptions of markets, temples, and fountains are earthy comments and anecdotes. In relating the history of the Olympics, for example, he tells about a woman who dressed as a man so that she might train her son. Her deception was revealed when she jumped a fence. Elsewhere he comments on the statue of a runner that was so realistic that "stallions go wild for it, not only in spring but every day of the year."

The most recent translation of Pausanius is that of Peter Levi, published in paperback in two volumes by Penguin in 1971. One covers central Greece and the other southern Greece and they are available in Canada.

Ottawa Imposes Controls

Crude Oil Exports Require Licences

OTTAWA (CP) — With dramatic suddenness, the federal government announced Thursday night that it is imposing controls on the rapidly-accelerating flow of crude oil to the United States.

The move came as the virtually-insatiable U.S. appetite for energy threatened to leave Canadian refineries short of oil next month.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said export licences will be required for oil for the first time since 1959. The National Energy Board would monitor the exports and ensure that enough crude oil was kept in Canada to meet the needs of domestic refineries.

Board spokesmen indicated there may be interim cuts in exports next month, when oil supplies may be temporarily insufficient to meet both Canadian and U.S. demand.

Board member J. C. Stabback said petroleum companies, most of them subsidiaries of U.S. corporations, have not guaranteed March supplies for Canadian refineries. They had agreed only on Feb. 1 to supply all the needs of Canadian refineries this month.

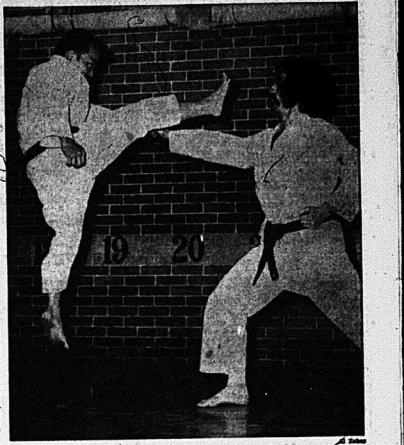
"We didn't want to leave the situation where we might not know until midnight March 1 whether we would have sufficient supplies for Canada," Mr. Stabback said. "The board wasn't willing to go through that again."

Mr. Macdonald said the board will hold public hearings to determine a procedure for meeting longer-term domestic needs.

Robert Howland, energy board chairman, said Canada has a plentiful supply of oil for the long run, but much of it is in deposits that cannot be brought into production before 1980. The problem was to control exports until then.

Board statistics show that just over two million barrels a day of crude oil and equivalent petroleum products now are being produced. Exports—all to the U.S.—consumed 1.2 million barrels a day while Canadian demand for western oil totalled 850,000 barrels daily.

A special board study released Thursday night declares flatly: "Production from all sources in Canada will not be able to supply the potential export and domestic market demand after 1975."



Present sources, in fact, "will be unable to supply the domestic market by 1986." Beginning either in 1979 or 1982, depending on whether a conservative or liberal forecasting formula is used, there would be no surplus from present sources for export.

The board, however, predicts that relief will come in the form of increasing amounts of oil extracted from the Athabasca oil-sands and the beginning in 1980 of the flow of oil from the Mackenzie delta.

Thursday's announcement marks the formal reversal of a 14-year government policy of encouraging oil exports. In 1959 a royal commission recommended an end to restrictions on oil exports, and for much of the next 14 years, the only restrictions on oil exports were pipeline capacity and U.S. quotas. The United States refused to drop the quotas unless the Canadian government guaranteed that the flow of energy-oil southward would not be increased to serve eastern Canada.

But severe U.S. shortages this winter forced President Nixon last month to remove, in effect, the quotas.

The regulation of oil exports is expected to have only a slight impact on present export levels. The temporary March 1 restrictions are expected to be minor, while the longer-term export levels could increase by about 1.75 million barrels a day in 1980. After that, they would drop to 1.1 million in 1982 and then resume their climb, reaching 2.75 million in 1985.

Jordan Plot Foiled

BEIRUT (AP) — Security forces loyal to King Hussein of Jordan have smashed a plot by Palestinian guerrillas to seize control of Amman, the Jordanian capital, while he is in the United States, says the Beirut newspaper An Nahar. The newspaper says Black September, the radical organization responsible for the massacre of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics, organized the plot.

Calley Verdict Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army Court of Military Review upheld today the murder conviction of Lieut. William L. Calley in the 1968 My Lai massacre of South Vietnamese civilians and approved the sentence of 20 years at hard labor.

Police Keep Guns

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto's 4,600 policemen will be allowed to carry their service revolvers when off duty, Chief Harold Adamson said Thursday night.

Helicopter Downed

SAIGON (AP) — A big United States helicopter on a peace-keeping mission was shot down today north of Saigon, and five Americans were injured. The CH-47 Chinook helicopter was the first U.S. aircraft downed in Vietnam since the ceasefire began Jan. 28.

Dollar Holds Steady

LONDON (AP) — The United States dollar held steady today as a measure of stability returned to currency markets after weeks of turmoil and uncertainty. The dollar was well above new par value set after devaluation was announced Tuesday. There was little indication, however, that speculators were taking their profits from the billions of dollars worth of foreign currency they bought last week. Trading was described as dull and quiet nearly everywhere.

Viet Cong Party Flops

SAIGON (CP) — The Viet Cong threw a party Thursday night and some of those who received official invitations are still nursing a hangover. It wasn't because of the beer and champagne, because most of them never got anywhere near the punch bowl. The party-poopers were the South Vietnamese security police who stopped most of the would-be revellers at the gate. "It was a deplorable situation," said Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin.

Pilots Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's coast pilots went on strike at midnight Thursday night as the result of a dispute with the Pacific pilotage authority over wages and conditions of work. The authority says the 30-per-cent pay increase pilots are seeking is "grossly inflationary." Pilots now average $36,000 annually.

First Served Place Sought for Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario was a "good customer" of Western Canadian oil when the West could not export its products and should now be "first cabin oil fields. He said they sometimes paid an extra $100 million a year to buy western oil instead of cheaper oil from foreign countries.

He was commenting on an announcement in Ottawa that the National Energy Board will start controlling crude oil exports to the United States March 1 and later work out a policy on developing Canada's oil supplies.

Federal energy policy has established the Ottawa River as a boundary. Areas east of it buy cheaper oil from Venezuela and the Middle East. But Ontario, west of the river, pays extra transportation costs from West-ern Canada, said Mr. McKeough.

"Ontario supported this policy as part of the price for the development of these fields in the West at a time when they couldn't export to the United States," Mr. McKeough said in an interview.

"Now, when a shortage has developed, as a highly-paying and good customer, we should be first served and at a good price," he said.

He said there will be pressure to raise oil prices and "there may have to be a price control on oil. As a Canadian, I don't think our prices should simply be governed by a situation that has deteriorated so badly in the United States."

Postal Workers Accept Contract by 3 to 1 Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal workers were to have a contract offer today that will mean almost a year after results of a national vote made public Thursday.

The workers' accepted an agreement worked out three weeks ago by a margin of 73 per cent to 27 per cent and part-time workers agreed to it by a margin of 66 per cent to 34 per cent.

Under the agreement, to be signed today with the government informed of results shortly after, the workers will get an increase of 65 cents an hour in regular pay retroactive to Sept. 1974.

After receiving $400 in retroactive allowance and an initial increase, the contract calls for a 14-cents-an-hour increase 10 months from the date of signing and a further 15 cents an hour five months later.

When the last contract expired in March postal clerks were receiving $3.24 an hour and letter carriers $3.15.

In effect the agreement ends the threat of a national postal strike for the duration of the contract.

Even so the agreement was hard-fought—as much inside the Council of Postal Unions as between negotiators on either side of the bargaining table.

Even while the agreement was being considered by the workers, national officers were urging both acceptance and rejection of the terms.

Roy Bourne, president of the powerful Letter Carriers' Union of Canada and a co-chairman of the council, was urging rejection by the workers.

James McCall, the other co-chairman, and Jim Mayes, chief union bargainer, were urging acceptance.

"It's going to be one of those days, I can feel it."

Food Bills Can Be Halved

The statement said the Ottawa test showed grocery bills to feed a family of four can vary from $50.50 to $68.50.

It gives examples of cheaper cuts, intermediate and gourmet menus, all nutritionally adequate.

"We are not suggesting that all Canadian families should eat the moderate menu," said Mr. Whelan. "Perhaps they be very valid reasons for a budget to buy convenience foods, particularly where finances and the more expensive forms of food.

"The choice is the consumer's.

"What the study does show is the wide latitude that exists for Canadians to eat cheaply or expensively. Even the moderate diet is not the cheapest nutritionally-adequate diet that can be bought."

The moderate menu includes such things as stewed chicken, sausages, fish sticks, meat loaf, macaroni and cheese, baked beans and meat balls and gravy for dinner.

An intermediate menu would have roast chicken or pork chops, baked fish, beef stew, cheese souffle, braised flank and pot roast.

The rich folks could have tinned fried chicken, roast loin of pork, salmon steaks, beef tenderloin, veal cutlets, club steak and a prime rib of beef.

Sunday lunch on the moderate menu might be tomato soup, meat-vegetable pie, peanut butter sandwich and baked apple.

Three sporting more could have canned vegetable soup, delicatessen sandwiches, lettuce and stuffed baked apple.

The big spenders could have vichyssoise, cream chicken and mushroom, patty shell, asparagus and Dutch apple pie.

The statement said all three menus feature the same basic ingredients but the type of form, processing and packing of items differed.

Savings were made by cutting out expensive forms of convenience foods, forward planned, out-of-season fresh fruits and vegetables, baked goods made by substituting flour such as skim milk powder for fresh milk and eggs.

The test was done by home economists of the agriculture department.

Whelan Gives Meatballs and Gravy Menu

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan says a family's food bill can be cut in half if it contents itself with cheap hamburger meatballs and gravy instead of prime rib of beef for Sunday dinner.

The minister released a statement showing the results of a survey in Ottawa that indicated how "there is room for housewives buying" bargain forms of food."

A Commons committee is investigating the reasons for the increasingly higher cost of food in Canada.

Potter Denies Charge Davis Doesn't Back Him

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Health Minister Richard Potter today denied he is not being supported by Premier Davis of his government colleagues in efforts to restructure the province's health delivery system.

He refuted the charge made last night by Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon who said Dr. Potter should be fired unless soaring medical costs are brought under control.

"Dr. Potter's usefulness in his present post is certainly in question," Mr. Nixon told Liberal association convention delegates in Hensall, in the western Ontario riding of Huron.

"No one doubts his commitment to a sound system of delivering and paying for health services. He has not been supported by his colleagues in government or the premier."

Dr. Potter, now recuperating at his Belleville-area home after spinal surgery in Toronto, called the statement "ridiculous".

"I have the whole-hearted support of my colleagues and the premier," he said.

Dr. Potter also termed "ignorance" Mr. Nixon's call for a new minister to shake up the health department and set up means of negotiating fee schedules with the medical profession. Guidelines already are taken soon.

There would be an efficient method to audit and spot-check billing procedures to "weed out the few crooks" among doctors, said Mr. Nixon.

"It only displays Mr. Nixon's ignorance as to what has been going on in the ministry," said Dr. Potter.

"If I were interested enough to bring himself up to date, . . he wouldn't have delayed himself to have been put in the position of making such ridiculous statements.

"I think very few people in Ontario are unaware of the (financial) constraints that are being introduced . . . in order to bring rising health costs under control," said the health minister.

There has been much publicity about the constraints we

Rare Book Found

In a bonful of books acquired recently by collector Larry Lightstet was one volume entitled History of the Rebellion of Westford, the story of a 19th century rebellion in the southern Irish county. Written by an interested soldier, George Taylor, the book was published in 1864 by The Intelligencer when it was owned by Mackenzie Bowell, before he became Canada's fourth Prime Minister. Mr. Lightfoot, of RR 1, Belleville, says it is the first book he has come across published by The Intelligencer in seven years of local auction - scouring.

John Huffman: Good Care for a Classic

Antique Ambulance Unique

Antique dealerships should be like any other private enterprise — anxious to market an item as soon as it is acquired.

Only with antiques there's sometimes apparently the risk of becoming attached to an acquisition.

At least that's the case with John Huffman, of Tweed.

Ruth, is a Belleville - area antique dealer;

The Huffman's latest acquisition is something out of the ordinary, even in a business that deals in the curious and extraordinary — an ambulance.

A 1948 Cadillac hearse, in its own right a qualifies as an antique. It is a vintage LaSalle, dated 1939, the year Cadillac quit turning out the series, says Mr. Huffman.

The Huffmans purchased it — in perfect running order, including the siren, complete to original stretcher from the Deseronto volunteer fire department. The department had owned it 13 years. Before that it was believed used by an ambulance service in the Tamworth area.

Mr. Huffman says there are few such models around; as a collector's item it is worth some money, and immediately after they bought it one eager purchaser showed up.

Problem is Mr. Huffman has formed a definite liking for the vehicle he calls a "real showpiece".

And, for the present, he's hopeful that's the role for which he'll retain it — until maybe next fall, he says as he carefully manoeuvres the vehicle outside the Highway 2 Huffman premises near Point Anne Lane.

Then more people can view it, he plans to offer it for entry in the public parades Belleville may stage in the warmer months ahead.

Indians Encouraged To Assert Themselves

Ontario's native people must build a more positive attitude toward themselves, their language and their culture, Moira Secondary School students were told Wednesday.

The directive came from Alton Bigwin, an Ojibway Indian from the Mersville Reserve north of Cobourg. An educational officer with the Ontario ministry of education, he was in town on the invitation of the school's 73 Tyendinaga students and their Indian officer, Leslie Claus. Mr. Bigwin came to outline to Moira students the ministry's promotion of native studies at all levels of education in the province.

A former Toronto school principal and teacher of Cree in Quebec, Mr. Bigwin is now chairman of the special groups section of the curriculum development branch of the ministry of education.

Not only do native studies improve the Indians' feeling of self-worth, they broaden the non-native person's understanding of Indian people, he said.

The native studies programs now are being introduced in Ontario schools, both reserve and public, across Ontario, tell both Indians and whites who the Indian is and what his ancestors accumulated native value systems are.

"The erosion of Indian values is directly due to white influence," said Mr. Bigwin.

The Indian value system is based on sharing and a communal spirit. While society fosters competition, a dog-eat-dog attitude, is time oriented and future oriented.

The talented Indian who enters white urban society is shocked by the coldness and morely orientation of whites, said Mr. Bigwin.

In southern Ontario, Indians have chosen to become a part of the white environment. There is no industrial or commercial development on native reserves to create employ. In Indian land is used by Indian settlements off the reserve and return at night.

Fifty-four per cent of Indian children are educated in public schools off their reserves and the remaining 46 per cent attend Department of Indian Affairs schools on the reserves.

At the beginning of any native studies program, it must be acknowledged that Canadian Indians are a mosaic of people of many different origins. There are many tribes, cultures and languages to consider, said Mr. Bigwin, not just one package of native people.

Each reserve is different said Mr. Bigwin and was started originally solely for protection of the native people.

In Indian society knowledge was passed from father to son orally. Nothing was written. Because they had no written accounts of their lives, much Indian history was lost and modern literature about the native people was left open to bias. The ministry of education, the Ontario Human Rights Commission and various women's organizations have been trying to rectify this by having people read and evaluate school books on Indians. The objective is to eliminate books that have an erroneous impression.

Native studies is now part of the grade 11 history course in Moira. In some schools in the province it is now a full year's credit course, with North York the first having an extensive program.

The aim here is to integrate a native component into the history in all secondary schools grades from nine through 13.

der which the ministry is operating this year".

But doctors now are working closely with the ministry, and also with such as the Ontario Medical Association, Ontario Council of Health and the Ontario Physicians and Surgeons "in reviewing the methods of payments to physicians".

The system of fee payments needs much study, which is now under way, he said.

"There is no instant cure to our problems," said Dr. Potter. "And we cannot take advantage of the experience of other governments which have various methods of payments to doctors."

He said his concern is "that we do not allow ourselves to be railroaded into program changes which are not, in fact, improvements."

"It would appear Mr. Nixon is much more interested in the political politics of it than in helping develop the most efficient health delivery system in an economical manner — which is our objective."

He said it was "rather unusual" to hear Mr. Nixon make his announcement when he was a very staunch supporter of the present cost-sharing program now being introduced when I was opposing it as a back-bencher".

As a backbencher, following his first election in 1967, Dr. Potter was often in the spotlight as an outspoken critic of his Conservative government's programs.

Text of Mr. Nixon's speech was released prior to delivering it in Toronto and selected by candidate for a provincial by-election.

Dr. Potter returned h o m e two days after a three - week stay in a Toronto hospital where he had undergone surgery to correct an old back injury.

A ministry spokesman described the operation as "successful" but tired after a long period of convalescence.

NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE THAT the Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville proposes, at its first meeting on or after Monday the 12th day of March, 1973, to pass a By-law to stop and close part of the Road Allowance shown as Wallbridge Crescent (formerly Wallbridge Road) as shown on Registered Plan No. 148, in the City of Belleville, and more particularly described as follows:

ALL AND SINGULAR that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate, lying and being in the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, and being composed of part of Wallbridge Crescent (formerly Wallbridge Road) as shown on Registered Plan 148, now registered in the Registry Office for the Registry Division of Hastings (21), and which said parcel or tract of land may be more particularly described as follows:

PREMISING that the Easterly limit of Lot 38, as shown on Registered Plan 148 aforesaid has an assumed astronomic bearing of North 12 degrees, 21 minutes West, according to a Plan of survey dated June 27, 1967, signed by Ronald Benn, Ontario Land Surveyor, and relating all bearing herein thereto;

COMMENCING at the most South-Easterly corner of that portion of Wallbridge Crescent immediately South of and adjacent to Lot 38, which is was closed by City of Belleville By-Law No. 6533 (which point is 42.3 feet measured 12 degrees, 21 minutes East from the most South-Easterly corner of Lot 38 aforesaid);

THENCE North 12 degrees, 21 minutes West, along the Southerly production of the Easterly limit of said Lot 38, a distance of 42.3 feet, to the most South-Easterly corner of Lot 38 aforesaid;

THENCE along the Northerly limit of Wallbridge Crescent on a circular curve to the right having a radius of 1005.7 feet, an arc distance of 80.58 feet, (the chord equivalent of which is 85.25 feet, measured on a bearing of North 69 degrees, 56 minutes, and 02 seconds West) to the most South-Westerly corner of Lot 64, as shown on Registered Plan 148 aforesaid;

THENCE South 12 degrees, 21 minutes East, along the Southerly production of the Westerly limit of said Lot 64, a distance of 46.57 feet to the most South-Westerly corner of that portion of Wallbridge Crescent (formerly Wallbridge Road) immediately South of adjacent to Lot 64 aforesaid; which was closed by City of Belleville By-law No. 6538;

THENCE on a circular curve to the left having a radius of 971.37 feet, an arc distance of 83.10 feet, (the chord equivalent of which is 88.01 feet, measured on a bearing of North 69 degrees, 56 minutes, and 02 seconds West) to the Point of Commencement.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE THAT the said Council proposes at the same time by the aforesaid By-law to authorize the sale and the conveyance of the part of the said Road Allowance so stopped up and closed, to the abutting Owners at a price to be fixed by the said Council, or if the abutting Owners do not exercise their right to purchase within ten (10) days of the passing of the said By-law, to any other person or persons at the same or a greater price.

THE Council or a Committee of Council will hear, in person or by his or her Counsel, Solicitor or Agent, any person who claims his or her lands will be prejudicially affected by the By-law, and who applies to be heard.

THE proposed By-law, the Plan showing the lands to be affected, and the description of the said lands, may be examined at the Office of the Clerk of the City of Belleville at the City Hall.

Students Said Less Militant

Student militancy in the United States has passed its peak, principal N. D. Read of Bayside Secondary School says.

The situation never reached as serious proportions in Canada as in the United States, but whatever fighting spirit did exist, it is now dying out.

Mr. Read, with Jack Shields principal of Trenton High School, has returned from the annual convention of the National Association of Secondary School Principals in Dallas last week. About 18,000 principals from Canada and the United States were present.

"There is no question that Ontario, and Hastings county in particular, are in the vanguard in the variety of types of education we offer, the options and techniques," said Mr. Read. "We didn't go looking for that; we went looking for new ideas."

Mr. Read said the school system here is both educationally sound and progressive.

Student militancy has declined in recent years, says Mr. Read, "because we have learned to cope with it."

Teachers have learned to listen to students; they have something to tell us. They don't need militancy because we will reason with them."

Mr. Read found a new climate at the principals' convention this year. In 1967 and 1969 he found American principals "terrified" about the issue of race and student protest. "This is gone," said Mr. Read.

American schools are becoming more vocational than they were in the past, Mr. Read said. He attributed the new attitude to reaction to permissiveness in the past.

And part of the reason may lie with the students.

"They are more conservative than we are," he said.

YMCA Gets Grant

The Belleville Family YMCA has been awarded a grant for $10,000 for Outreach programs.

The federal grant is to be used by the Y to diffuse their services across the city in five areas using additional staff and existing facilities in those neighborhoods.

The YMCA, after being refunded from the United Way fund raising campaign, was urged by the United Community Services (administrators of the campaign) to place more emphasis on programs of this kind.

The areas to receive the special attention were determined by approaching school boards and the city's recreation department.

Public meetings are to be held in each of the areas which are Prince Charles area on the west hill, Parkdale, Holy Rosary area and the area serviced by Queen Alexandra Public School.

In each case, the Y intends using the social facility or community centres to provide programming which will be conducted mainly in the evenings.

The LIP Grant will provide $39-a-week pay for four staff members and $100 weekly for a co-ordinator. The program will continue until the end of May when the Y hopes community people will take the programs over on a volunteer basis.

A similar program in the Hillcrest area, to be continued in the new grant, was cut off by early funding run out.

A spokesman for the Y could not say what type of programs would be offered but said a series of public meetings in the neighborhood would give area residents a chance to say what they would like to see. For complete information as to time and place contact Di Dalmandies at the Y, 962-9622.

To aid in the continuing process of the program, a member of the Y board of directors will be assigned as a liaison officer to the areas and it will be his responsibility to work with set up and management.

Highway Section To Be Rebuilt

The Ontario highways department will rebuild Highway 14 north from Stirling to Marmora within the next five years.

This was made known to Hastings county council members Wednesday in a communication received from Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins through the ministry of transportation and communications.

The letter said pre-contract engineering for the first 7.2 miles between Stirling and Springbrook was now under way and, if schedules are met, it was expected the revised right-of-way would be cleared using local dry labor and the acreage relocation of utilities during the winter of 1973-74.

The work between Springbrook and Marmora will not follow immediately after completion of the Stirling-Springbrook section but may reasonably be expected to be completed within the next five years.

Marmora area residents have been campaigning for several years and a year building of Highway 14 for ago the department took the position that it would be reconstructed within five years.

On Wednesday's meeting of county council, Rawdon Reeve Ray Short said he had been told by Mr. Rollins that the reconstruction would commence at the northern limits of Stirling near the Legion hall building.

He said there was no mention made of a possible bypass around Stirling.

"We handle all details. Appraising, Advertising, Inspections, Financing Negotiating. Why guess at it? Let us do it for you professionally."

To cut down on rising deaths and serious accidents in the department of national defence has set 1975 as the target date for completion of an intense safety program at military bases throughout Canada. Safety Drive at Air Base

TRENTON — The high rate of accidents and loss of lives among the military and civilian defence employees has led to the establishment of a special three year safety program now in effect at CFB Trenton and other centres.

Called DND Safety Target 75, the program is aiming at a 25 per cent reduction in accidents among national defence personnel by 1975.

A report from the office of the minister of national defence, states that each year more than 100 military and civilian defence personnel lives are lost, plus 7,000 who suffer serious injuries through accidents. The annual cost to DND of accidents exceeds $35 million," the report reads.

The message to all military and civilian personnel "unhappy statistics are made worse by the fact that they need not have happened. Most of them were preventable. They're human suffering and money these figures represent are cause for deep concern."

Other messages being forwarded at the start of the special safety campaign point out that specialized accident prevention programs have brought about good records.

But to alleviate the overall accident situation, safety management and training, accident investigation, reporting and analysis, safety inspections, publicity and detention, plus control of various hazards will be emphasized.

The first of various safety items being placed on display throughout the military base here, prior to the start of the intense safety target program.

Not Worth It

BRIGHTON — Provincial police in Brighton had to let four people drive off in a car reported stolen from Buffalo, N.Y., when police in that city Wednesday refused to proceed with charges.

A 1969 Dodge convertible, reported stolen from Buffalo Feb. 9, was stopped on Highway 401 for routine questioning by OPP constables Robert Creighton and Tom Hall.

Subsequent checks with the U. S. police informed the OPP the four occupants were wanted on outstanding charges believed by the OPP to be minor.

A spokesman for the OPP detained Brighton that they were not going to proceed with charges and would not come to Canada to retrieve the car.

A spokesman for the OPP detachment this morning said "we had no alternative but to let them go with the car."

No Area Government Until at Least 1976

Regional government will not come to the Bay of Quinte area at least until 1976.

This was assured members of Hastings county council Tuesday evening by Donald Irvine, parliamentary assistant to the treasurer of Ontario, as he spoke to a closed meeting of area municipal representatives.

One of the purposes of the meeting was to inform Hastings officials at first hand how the proposed regional government system for the area east of Metropolitan Toronto might affect this county.

Following the meeting, councillors said there was a spirit of question and answer period but no indication of what the boundary lines for a possible Quinte area regional government might be.

Rumor has it, however, that such an area might include townships south of Highway 7 and extend east possibly as far as Kingston.

Under the Oshawa-centred regional government for the area east of Toronto, seven municipalities in east Northumberland county would be added to Hastings for administration purposes.

At Tuesday night's meeting, however, councillors learned that amalgamation of area municipalities into larger areas of administration was being strongly advocated by the province.

In fact, the inference gained was that unless local municipalities took such action on their own it might be directed by the province.

Possible amalgamations hinted were county villages uniting with the townships in which they are situated.

Bancroft Reeve John S. Hatton said he was certain that local municipal officials could come up with something that would be satisfactory.

"Marmora and Lake Reeve Graham Bell said he expected that one day his municipality and Marmora village would have one local government administration.

But Rawdon Reeve Ray Short wanted no part of a marriage between urban and rural municipalities.

"I don't agree," he said. "It would mean asking a debt-free rural municipality to help pay for urban services," he said.

Reeve Cecil Woods of Madoc township said he once had the same idea as Reeve Short about amalgamation.

But he said he had since been assured that existing debenture payments would be sorted out.

Reeve Bell added that there was a possibility of provincial grants to assist in debentures where amalgamations took place.

Manpower Calls

OTTAWA (Special) — A plea to have toll-free telephone service installed in Canada Manpower Centres was made in the House of Commons Thursday by Hastings MP Jack Ellis.

During the question period, Mr. Ellis said such a service would be of great benefit in his riding where employers are sometimes 100 miles from their contacts.

Robert Andras, minister of manpower and immigration told Mr. Ellis he would consider the request.

Near and Far

There is a touch of irony in two recent news reports from the Prince Edward County board of education meeting in Bloomfield: it appears that on the one hand Grade 13 students, some 55 to 60 of them from Prince Edward Collegiate, are off on a three day excursion to New York in mid-May, while on the other a county parent complains that the board's refusal to provide bus service for his daughter was not justified by the reasons stated.

Thus while the senior boys and girls can go off to the big city, with all its attendant hazards (we trust they know about the mugger haunts as Central Park, not to mention the sidewalks), the board evidently considers the road leading to the D. Tomsett farm from county road 4 unsuitable for the school bus.

Happily though the matter is still open. Following discussion, board chairman Clare McFaul said the situation offered "enough variables" to warrant further study. Perhaps Mr. Tomsett's daughter will get her bus ride yet.

Meanwhile, we are the president of the students' council of Prince Edward Collegiate has been asking the board how many students will be permitted to accompany the group to New York?

How many indeed would be considered enough for such a trip? Say one for every ten students and that would make five or six. Yes, New York is a far cry from Picton, so far as atmosphere and security are concerned.

For all that, it is an exciting prospect. And educational too, which of course is the prime reason for it all. As for the dangers, keeping together and the exercise of common sense should make for a stimulating and yet safe enough time all round.

Bridge Links

How far in the future it may be we cannot tell, but we believe it is only a matter of time before Belleville and Prince Edward County are linked by something more substantial and functional than the present Bay Bridge.

Adding his voice to the many who have been urging such a project upon the provincial authorities is Picton Mayor Harvey McFarland who also has on his mind the concept of a network of bridges linking our shores with the United States.

Mr. McFarland outlined his ideas some time ago and gave further substance to them earlier this month when he told a council that had discussed ferries with United States officials. He said he believed the Americans would co-operate in such a venture at no extra cost to Canada.

The bridges the Picton mayor has in mind would link Clayton, N.Y. with Wolfe Island across to Amherstview, then Kingston and finally as he put it, "across to our place here."

We think of other great bridge links, like those at the Straits of Mackinac in Michigan, the Florida Keys, and in Sweden there is a new bridge between the mainland and either the island of Oland or Gotland — we are not sure which. There are others of course to honor, like the Thousand Islands bridge and Vancouver's harbor bridge.

The link Mayor McFarland contemplates is an ambitious one, but it is one with many positive aspects, from the provision of much-needed employment to creation of closer tourist and business ties with the United States. It is a creation of tomorrow, but we should be thinking of it in practical terms now.

Citizen Voices

City Council's approval of a recommendation that would have the effect of stopping multiple family housing construction in the city's old B district is a step in the direction of more citizen and municipal autonomy over unrestricted development in Belleville.

It is a tribute also to those citizens who once again have demonstrated their active concern for the community and who are banded together in groups such as the Keep Belleville Beautiful Society.

If in years past this community tended to be on the apathetic side, this is certainly not the case today. Participatory democracy has its place here and many share actively in its precepts. Belleville is the better for it — a more interesting and stimulating place.

U.S. Currency Over-Extended

World Monetary Talks Expected in Wake of $ Slump

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The current world financial crisis, based on the declining value of the United States dollar in international money markets, came at the end of the event which largely encouraged it, the costly war in Vietnam.

International currency crises are always complicated to understand. But the ones which have taken place since 1967 have been related primarily to the over-extension of the world's leading currency—the United States dollar.

The most recent crisis, like the one in 1967, began in Western Europe where money speculators began to trade in hundreds of millions of U.S. dollars against West German marks and Japanese yen.

The underlying reason for this, is that neither the mark nor the yen were supported by huge overseas defence expenditures or defending massive imports from other countries, which has been the fate of the U.S. dollar through the late 1960s and early 1970s.

Rather it has been the bumper earnings from German and Japanese exports, in very high demand in the United States domestic market, which has given strength to these two currencies. To which, add the movement of about $80 billion so-called "Eurodollars" within the European Common Market.

These are basically U.S. dollars, earned by U.S. and European multi-national companies within the booming European Common Market which are either re-invested by them or by European central banks.

In 1971, the estimated annual cost of guns, ammunition, food and clothing for Vietnam, the consumable supplies of any war, was $30 billions.

Add this to Eurodollars at work abroad, but not in the domestic U.S. economy, plus such high costs as maintenance of U.S. troops, bases and equipment overseas and you have an approximate figure of $125 billions Satisfie the American economy.

Nor are enough dollars returning to the American domestic economy from U.S. exports. The deficit of $8.3 billions in the U.S. balance of payments is the highest in American history and was found in part under which Washington did something drastic.

What it did, during an unusual midnight announcement, was to devalue the U.S. dollar by 10 per cent, a move which it first took in August, 1971, but then after waiting months to do so.

For American industries and workers, devaluation was an essential and positive move. U.S. exports will now be able to compete—where cost is concerned —against aggressive West German and Japanese imports.

These in turn will cost more to buy in the United States. So, for that matter will many of our goods.

In August, 1971, it was difficult up to that time, almost impossible, for the average U.S. businessman-oriented U.S. federal government to devalue the great American dollar. But the pressures outlined above, and the with the Vietnam War still under way—forced President Nixon's hand.

What Nixon met did on Aug. 15, 1971, placing a ten-per-cent surcharge on exports into the United States, added strength to the seven per cent dollar devaluation of that summer. But surcharges are trades-restrictive and reminiscent of the 1920s when the tariff barriers which prevented free trade were a major cause of world depression.

The Europeans will be happy with a cheaper dollar. They have said since the first big crisis in 1967 that their currencies and economies outlived it and take the brunt of attacks on the U.S. dollar—since its troubles reflected the troubles and mismanagement of the U.S. economy, not theirs.

Everyone including Ottawa, now waits for a new international monetary conference.

"How cat that out, David."

Dollar Crisis and National Self-interest

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Foreign Editor

Devaluation of the United States dollar offers a temporary respite from a bitter international quarrel over currency rates but it does not eliminate the threat of a world trade battle in which countries seek to dump inflation on their neighbors' doorsteps.

As one veteran observer noted, the spirit of the 1944 Bretton Woods agreement is dead. The great yearning of the major powers to support economic stability through widely-supported fixed currency exchange rates has given way to the supremacy of national self-interest.

Instead of struggling against inflationary pressures at home through domestic belt-tightening, political leaders find it easier and more popular with voters to try to export the problem of inflation by cutting the price of currencies rather than through a heightened increase in the price of exportable products.

But as the U.S. has discovered since its last currency cut in 1971, the advantages can be short-lived. Countries struggling to defend their own currency are able to arrest defences from all sorts of import controls or currency controls simply by allowing their currencies to float on the world markets—with skillful central bank intervention.

The result is erosion of the system of fixed parties. A new system is under discussion with the hope that an acceptable plan may be ready before the end of May. The current, overriding wave of national self-interest challenges the ability of the architects to provide an effective program of currency stability.

In previous years the advocates of world trade expansion always coupled currency stability with steady reduction in trade barriers. The theory behind the U.S., as the Western world's greatest economic power, to provide leadership in more liberalized trade.

President Nixon has indicated he wants authority from the U.S. Congress not only to reduce American trade barriers but to raise them. He wants to use the American market as a club against the major surplus powers, mainly Japan, if they do not co-operate in reducing the U.S. American trade deficit.

Many trade experts maintain that deficit exists mainly because U.S. exports are no longer competitive. Japan, West Germany and many other countries can boast the Americans in prices. The same goes for many of these supply countries can control their economies—and their force—with such skill that they can restrict production cost increases.

Nixon maintains that if Japan and other import barriers are lowered, American exports will increase.

But as Japan industrial expansion, Japan has built up huge foreign cash surpluses, giving it enormous economic strength. The challenge before Japan is to negotiate trade concessions which would widen her markets to foreign goods.

The alternative may be a series of American protectionism that may hurt not only Japan but many other countries which depend on the American market for their prosperity.

Strike Views

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I heartily agree with Harry Bull's letter. He seems to be one of the few people who have any idea of the reasons for the present strike by the Belleville letter carriers. There are many more people who feel the same way.

I also note Mr. Buckley has another invisible quisle in his mind. The conflict between the Belleville letter carriers and the postal office department over the Christmas mail is not a conspiracy with the views on high-ups connected with the government. It seems to me you could find much more of public interest to get to print. I never read a work newspaper that some of them would.

Irish Problem Continues To Hold World Stage

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service A

With the guns quiet in Vietnam, the world's two oldest trouble spots seem as far away as ever from finding solutions. The Middle East, exploding into the Israel-Arab confrontation, is quiet for the moment, if that's the word.

Ireland remains bloody, incorrigible. Its problems apparently insoluble.

Two events could alter the relentless course of Ulster's civil war, the sectarian killings and the Irish problem itself: the end of electoral gerrymandering and the Irish Republican Army.

But despite the very bad news —about 600 killings now since 1969—the extremists, IRA and UDA (Ulster Defence Association) no longer have it to themselves.

There are the British white paper on Northern Ireland due anytime, and the outcome of the suddenly-called national election in the Republic of Ireland. Neither result, (if the British are tough on Protestant Ulstermen in the white paper, or if a re-elected Irish Prime Minister Lynch is conciliatory), will satisfy the extremists.

But despite the very bad news —about 600 killings now since 1969—the extremists, IRA and UDA (Ulster Defence Association) no longer have it to themselves.

There are the British white paper on Northern Ireland due anytime, and the outcome of the suddenly-called national election in the Republic of Ireland. Neither result, (if the British are tough on Protestant Ulstermen in the white paper, or if a re-elected Irish Prime Minister Lynch is conciliatory), will satisfy the extremists.

Second, the Ulster Defence Association is now as much involved in the British occupying forces as the older and once tougher IRA. The huge British army contingent in Ulster has been very successful at finding and confiscating weapons caches of both extremists' organizations. If extremists take a new terrorist initiative after the white paper comes down, the UDA could become more powerful than the IRA has been traditionally.

For what it's worth, editorial lots in both Ulster and Eire are hinting that a separate and independent Ulster might result after all. Ireland's Prime Minister Lynch is showing less and less militancy for an early integration of north and south.

The British might be prepared to let Ulster go, in the inevitability of giving up other places, Cyprus, Kenya, India and Palestine, where murderous months and years preceded independence.

Conner Cruise O'Brien, distinguished Irish author, politician and former UN diplomat has written a book in which he says frank book to the effect that Ireland is historically more British than Irish, and argues that the discrimination of Ulster Protestants against northern Catholics is the key issue to be resolved.

His country has shown less interest in the welfare of Northern Catholics than was the case, but more concern with the increasing militancy of the IRA. There have been times when it was clear that southern Ireland was their base and home.

The world at large is tired of Irish politics, appalled at Irish inhumanity, staggered by Irish stubborn refusal to let reason can be concluded, the Middle East kept at least quiet, men against men, Arab against Israeli and Jewish leaders can talk to and negotiate with each other. But the Ulster what is wrong with the Irish?

That tragic and so-far unresolved issue needs publicity as the absolutely worst example of history of Northern Ireland, Mr. Brian Whitaker says.

And even he said recently, "we're long past the stage of Protestant domination. We've got to peace. That'll never happen."

"I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord." Psalm 122:1

The very fact that you are here a bit of Lenny organization as to why you aren't attending some church on Sunday, perhaps now badly you need to be there. It may not be the only place you can find God, but His house is still a pretty good place to meet him. Today, pray for God's guidance as you read Lord's day be in the sanctuary to support God's work. You will feel so good that you gave him the day.

Macaulay Charisma

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park

There is a man in the province today who could be the answer to the Ontario Liberals long search for leader.

He would at least make the most dynamic and forceful leader the party has had in decades. And there would be a reason as never before why he could defeat the Davis government.

There is, of course, one chance in the world he would not be the man for the job.

A while ago a few of us had a farewell party for one of our friends who had served the party well.

One of those on hand was Robert Macaulay, the former minister of everything who retired from the provincial scene from politics in 1964.

In the late years spent he left here Macaulay has been a tremendous success in the legal field and is now one of the most prosperous.

But neither physically nor in character has he apparently changed at all.

He is still that bundle of energy, full of fun and full of ideas—how-how to get them through.

He gave a little, impromptu speech. This had all the old Mackay humor, wit, friendliness and grace, imagination and was always to the point.

It was the old Macaulay. And by the end of the evening you knew that what the Liberals of Ontario need is a leader who has been a man born for politics, the absolutely natural leader who privately still had his sparkling wit.

With this you couldn't help thinking what a tremendously good Liberal leader he would make.

True, he has been a life-time Conservative.

But that was as much chance as he had of being born in the first place.

Most importantly he is a leader. He was born to lead. He was born to look and to speak and to inspire confidence. He was born to be a man who knew how to lead and to himself accept to be a leadership role.

Of course he will never see this as such a leadership role as head of the Liberals.

In fact he won't do things this way. It could happen in Britain. Today it might even happen in Quebec. But not in Ontario.

Ontario doesn't do things this way. It could happen in Britain. Today it might even happen in Quebec. But not in Ontario.

Ontario Rejects Offer to Assist In Ending Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario has refused a federal offer to cross constitutional lines and help solve the 94-month strike by 3,200 elevator builders, Labor Minister John Munro said Thursday.

As a result, the dispute "remains the clear responsibility of the Ontario government to solve," he added, referring to the premier of Ontario.

Expanding outside the House on an earlier Commons exchange, Mr. Munro said the federal government is willing to lend mediators and offer other services to Ontario and other provinces to help end the dispute.

"The strike has had serious effects across the country [but major negotiations are taking place in Toronto, with some Ontario intervention, and any settlement there is expected to set the pattern for the rest of the country.

Mr. Munro said provinces are responsible for their own workers under the constitution and the federal government could not intervene without an invitation.

"The economic implications of the strike are very serious," Mr. Munro said. "We're prepared to help. All it would take is an invitation."

But overtures to Ontario in directing federal willingness to get involved have been unheeded, Mr. Munro said.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North), who prompted the Commons exchange, said "since there are a number of reasons the federal government should enter the dispute."

Thousands of federally-funded Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. apartment units had been stalled by the strike; hundreds of construction workers were receiving federal unemployment had been laid off.

The strike was a national one and the health of Canadians was at stake. Older residents of tall buildings were unable to manage long flights of steps.

At the very least, the federal government could convene a meeting of labor ministers to discuss the strike.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis, however, said the federal government "clearly should not get involved." The matter was strictly provincial and the Commons Speaker, Lucien Lamoureux, should not have allowed the subject to be raised.

The dispute is between the International Union of Elevator Constructors and five manufacturing companies that hire the union's members.

The companies argue that they must have a free hand in the ways of producing elevators and in factories. The union says the livelihood of its members would be threatened if it can not have a say in that production.

The Nova Scotia government has suggested an interprovincial agreement to set up an industrial inquiry commission to seek a solution. All Atlantic provinces have agreed.

In the meantime, apartment builders say they are losing as much as $250,000 a day because completed buildings stand empty. A group of Ontario realty and construction firms is suing the union and the companies for $47 million because of the effects of the strike.

Finance Minister Macdonald (PC—Cape Breton-East Richmond) asked Works Minister Jean-Eudes Dubé whether he will see that elevators in federal buildings can be repaired and serviced. Mr. Dubé said his reply can only be like that of Mr. Munro, that elevators fall under provincial jurisdiction.

But Mr. Macdonald urged the minister to "get off his butt" and do something about elevators in federal buildings.

CP News Roundup

Good Guys In Prison

MONTREAL (CP) — Louis Laberge says of his life in prison.

"You meet a lot of good guys, quite a difference from lawyers and judges."

Mr. Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor, is serving a one-year sentence for contempt of court. He was allowed a one-day leave from jail Thursday to attend a meeting with Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer.

Mr. Laberge was jailed last month with Marcel Pepin, president of the Quebec teachers Corp. for urging certain hospital workers to ignore injunctions ordering maintenance of essential services during a public service strike last April

He refused under repeated questioning from reporters to reveal the content of his discussion with Mr. Cournoyer.

Mr. Laberge said he was well treated in prison.

"It's not exactly like one's image of a jail, but rather a dormitory - type arrangment where several rom may sleep in the same room."

He said Pepin and Charbonneau are his cellmates.

Mr. Laberge drove to Montreal from Orsainville prison near Quebec City shortly after his release Thursday morning and was scheduled to drive back Thursday night after the meeting.

Wrote Book

TORONTO (CP) — Two Ryerson Polytechnical Institute students are doing something about the high cost of school textbooks.

They wrote one of their own.

It costs $1.50 and has replaced the regular textbook that cost $6.

New Graphics is a 25-page book on computer design written by Trey Cote and Norm Gardiner, third-year journalism students. It already is being used by second-year students.

To See Latta

EDMONTON (CP) — Attorney-General Merv Leitch has asked Edmonton police to interview Keith Latta, a former law professor now serving a life sentence in Drumheller penitentiary for non-capital murder.

Latta, a professor at Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., was convicted of the murder of Bob Neville, a travel agent and school trustee found shot to death in his Edmonton office June 13, 1971.

Mr. Leitch said Wednesday he ordered the interview following a "request" from the Latta family.

Latta has exhausted all avenues of appeal against his conviction, including the Supreme Court of Canada. The court refused their file on the case last month after studying and reviewing documents. The case had been shot by a paid assassin.

Flag Displayed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian flag was displayed for the first time in the Commons Wednesday.

The House agreed unanimously Wednesday to display the flag.

There was applause from all sides of the House as Speaker Lucien Lamoureux drew the attention of members to the flag.

But a Conservative MP attempted to spoil the cheer by giving the Union Jack equal billing.

Then Liberal Leader Trudeau moved that the Union Jack be placed in the corridor since the flag was not a symbol of the country.

Mr. Trudeau said Canada's flag "is linked to no other country" and unanimous consent to let the motion come to a vote.

11 Arrested

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police arrested 11 persons on 12 drug charges Wednesday night after conducting searches in the city's North York, Etobicoke and Scarborough.

They also provided for "disciplinary action against employees who knowingly or consistently fail to operate within the principles and ethics" agreed to by the broadcasters and police.

The C.A.B. is an association of private broadcasters in Canada.

Claude Beaudoin, president of the Federation Professionelle des Journalistes du Quebec, attended the meeting of the press freedom committee and criticized the guidelines as an infringement on journalistic freedom.

"This is unacceptable," he said. "The right of the journalist as a witness must be conserved in times of crisis."

Jean-Paul L'Allier, Quebec communications minister, said the guidelines were "open to misinterpretation."

The media must be allowed to function normally, no matter what the situation, with no interference from police or the public.

Mr. Pelletier had told the committee Tuesday an "action plan" existed for times of crisis, which would "direct" newsmen in their method of informing the public so that news may be presented in a much more measured and realistic way, avoiding sensationalism as much as possible."

Algae Purifies

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Metal pollution can be cleared from small lakes by using algae as a natural mop, a University of Toronto botanist said Thursday.

Dr. P. M. Stokes told 225 fellow researchers that algae, itself considered a form of water pollution, can be cultivated in lakes to soak up toxic metals, then removed by nets.

Impossible

TORONTO (CP) — Police Chief Marshall Adamson said Thursday it is impossible to man all police cruisers with two men.

He told a meeting of the police commission that 1,400 additional men would be needed at a minimum extra cost of $30 million a year.

Since the murders of two policemen here this year the police association, policemen's wives and the borough of East York have united for a two-man cruiser system.

Chief Adamson said:

"If I could get all the money, there's no way I could get 1,300 men. I could get a lot of time, and even if I could I couldn't train them."

Protests

SAIGON (CP-AP) — Brig. Gen. Fehmi Saguoglu, chief of staff of the Canadian military delegation to the International Commission of Control and Supervision, was reported to have refused to attend a Viet Cong reception Thursday night after South Vietnamese police blocked the chief Indonesian ICCS delegation from attending.

"I had to wait for the second one hour," Lt.-Gen. Dharsono of Indonesia said, "and still they did not let me in."

Change Asked

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee A. Iacocca, president of Ford Motor Co., proposed Thursday that 1975 federal emission standards for automobiles be suspended for a year and replaced by state-by-state by state accept California with interim standards not requiring catalytic converters.

"As of today . . . we see no practical way to meet the 1975 emission standards for our products in time to produce 1976 models," Iacocca told a New York Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

He added that as far as meeting the even tougher 1976 requirements, the company's situation was "impossible."

Study Damage

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is studying reports from high water levels on the Great Lakes and working on long-term plans, Public Works Minister Jack Davis told the Commons Wednesday. Bill Knowles (NDP—Norfolk-Haldimand) said erosion of "catastrophic proportions" is occurring along the high water in Lake Ontario. Wallace McCutcheon (PC—Simcoe East) said damage will be of "enormous proportions" if the current spring breakup of ice is under way. Mr. Trudeau said the government recognizes the situation is serious.

Lignite Report

TORONTO (CP) — An envi- ... al study team, in a r... ort Thursday, concluded Ontario had no need for lignite-generated hydro power in the years Ontario Hydro said that the project would be justified if there is improved pollution standards in the northeast.

The 14-man committee, appointed May 8, 1972, by Resources Development Secretary A. B. R. Lawrence, had drawn some strict guidelines for protection of the environment in the event development occurs of the coal-like lignite deposits in Ontario, 60 miles south of Jeves Bay.

But Mr. Lawrence said at a news conference that he could not say whether any of where, or if, the project will begin. He said only that Onakawana "will be the first deposit to be considered of the escalating demands for hydro power."

Treaty Signed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Cuba-Canada shipping treaty signed and published Thursday contains a time limit of 12 months to prosecute political hijackers from the island.

But External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp says the article on political hijackers is so tightly drawn that it would only apply to "one hijacker in a thousand." He says the Cubans think the same way.

The treaty, signed to that effect Thursday by Cuba and the United States, was tabled at the Parliament Buildings by Mr. Sharp and Vice-Premier Menzies Rodriguez, Cuban Officials who spent two years negotiating the treaty remained behind the ceremony.

Mr. Rodriguez made a one-day flying visit to Ottawa from Havana for the signing, which was witnessed by Ambassador Ernesto Dihigo and followed by an official luncheon.

Broadcasters Accept News Curbs by Police

QUEBEC (CP) — The Canadian Association of Broadcasters (C.A.B.) and the Association of Chiefs of Police of Canada have accepted a "working document" that would give police the right to "make the decision on the release of news" in times of crisis, a broadcaster said Thursday.

Aurele Pelletier, vice-president of Tele-Capitale, operators of television station CFCF in Montreal, provided a Quebec legislative committee with a copy of the document, which he said contained "guidelines" for co-operation between police and news media.

Sections of the guidelines call for "day-to-day advance planning" as a basis for police-media co-operation and for ceding to police the "right to make the decision on release of news for publication because of investigative and legal requirements."

Man Tried To Buy Township

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — Ever ... cussed of buying an entire township in Ontario?

Somebody did.

Alex Carruthers, Conservative member of the Legislature for ... said Thursday he doesn't know if it was a joke but a person, whom he didn't, approached him last September saying he represented a group interested in buying Hope township, a 36-square-mile area west of here with almost 4,000 residents.

The MPP said the group was aware it would have to buy properties from individual owners—they could not buy a township as a unit.

"The plan apparently was to develop it as residential and industrial complexes," said Mr. Carruthers. He has heard nothing from the group since that September contact and "I don't expect to hear from them now."

No major towns are located within Hope township which stretches west from here for 10 miles along Lake Ontario.

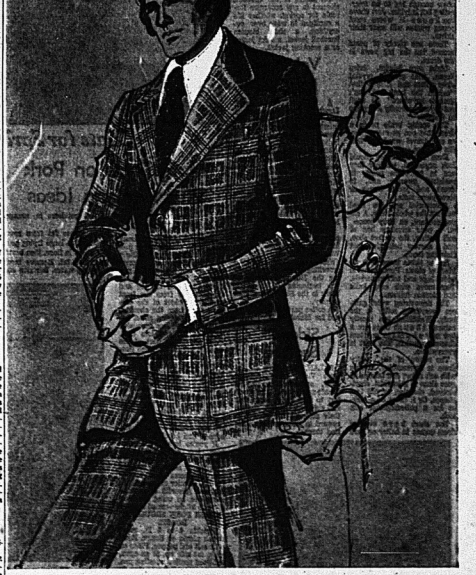
But it does contain a number of villages as well as many private estates, including Rathmore, the former residence of the late Governor-General Vincent Massey.

Also, Rutherwood and its 200 acres were sold last year the selling price was $600,000.

Hutterite Control Bill Will Vanish

EDMONTON (CP) — A 25-year-old bill that even the government admits is a violation of human rights will be kicked out of the statute books of Alberta this week.

With the repeal of the Communal Property Act, the 7,200 black-clothed members of the gentle, prosperous sect of Hutterites will, for the first time since 1947 be treated in almost every way as equals with the other 1.3 million residents of the province.



No longer will Hutterites have to ask for cabinet permission to buy land. No longer will Hutterites—and the small Doukhobor sect—be subject to restrictions found in the statutes of the province that force the two sects to have such a distinction in current statutes.

The bill has united Hutterite sects and the various branches in their determination to repeal it and they won't be treated exactly the same as other Albertans.

They still farm what Municipal Affairs Minister Dave Russell calls "godawful" land in Crowsnest rural areas.

In addition, although their name is coming out of the statutes, they will still be mentioned in the terms of reference of an advisory committee, expected to be set up as a liaison between the sect and the government.

It's Artsfest '73! And Women Prevail

Artsfest 73, a Quinte Arts Council production, is going to be in the hands of women.

At least from the standpoint of organization and getting the show on the road.

According to Ernst Kneisel, chairman of Artsfest 73 the Quinte Arts Council production will have an all girl managing committee.

Olga Allen will be business manager.

Other committee chairwomen are Mary Shipton, Artsfest Program; Beverley Semmungal, Ticket Promotion and Advance Sales; Marjorie Midlane, Box Office; Joan Guthrie, Promotion and Avertising; Diana Aitken, Public Relations; Irene Hipkin, Contributions; Liz Rolston, Community Relations.

Media consultants will be Michele Scoffin, a Loyalist College student, and the two sole male members of the managing committee, Brian Olney and Barry Howard.

Artsfest 73 will kick off with a Variety Show, directed by Dorothy Calvin, April 3 in Bataws following which it will be presented at Centennial High School on April 5, 6 and 7.

Bridal Wardrobes Chosen For Spring Brides Now

Spring brides are busy concentrating on their wedding gowns and travel clothes they will take on their honeymoon.

Brides planning their honeymoon wardrobes should know what the trends are for spring.

Gone are the kicks, costumes, hard chic and nostalgia. It's time to look pretty. Skirts show enough leg to be interesting but ladylike. Just above the knees is where most young women will wear their skirts.

There are plenty of pants around, but the big news is the dress.

Light airy fabrics, crisp linens, neat prints, crystal clear colors and shapes that "caress the body but don't grab it anywhere" all spell out the new serenity and poise in fashion.

The spring bride needs a dress that can go many places and travel wardrobe that fits into one suitcase.

Even her separates should look organized, whether they are in monotone pales, in matched sweater sets, in dress and jacket teams or three-piece suits.

Accessories are the final act, not the whole show. A silver pendant, a fancy brooch, a lei, a neat envelope bag of soft leather, the perfect shoe, and a narrow belt give that finishing touch.

Spring skirts move with all kinds of pleats. Pants move in wider legs and soft materials. Tops move with easy hints and blouson fullness.

The flattering waist gathers everything softly to the body. Waistlines are mostly natural, though there are a few new chemise and tent shapes to watch. The shirt is everywhere.

The return of the pretty dress is newsmaking, abloom with soft colors and fabrics. It goes alone in shirtwaist, short-sleeved, chemise, or full tent shapes. Or it takes on a jacket for a pulledtogether suit look.

The short bare evening dress comes in halter or bare slip shapes. Watch for the short blouson dress, often off-the-shoulder, with full sleeves, or cut it in a long shirtdress in crepe or silk.

There's much less of a layered look in separates, more careful co-ordination, more calculated mix and match. It adds up to a stronger total picture.

The jacket is the constant element in any separates formula for spring, whether it's a cardigan to wear over everything, a short blouson baseball jacket, a shirt jacket or a smoking jacket.

Honeymoon outfit consists of cotton knit dress in machine washable beige with matching jacket with contrast stitching and tucked detail in applique hemline, cropped jacket.

Valentine Pot Luck

A Valentine pot luck Luncheon opened the February meeting of the Women's missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Belleville.

Mrs. H. Yorke and her committee convened the luncheon and the program. A duet was sung by Mrs. W. Mantle and Mrs. M. Barlow accompanied by Miss F. Hallman.

Mrs. C. Hiiner announced the World Day of Prayer to be to be held March 2 at St. Michael's Church.

Miss Matthews asked that prayers be sent with Mrs. J. M. Burnett, president of the Women's Missionary Society (West Division) who will be travelling to India and attending the 75th Anniversary of the beginning of Christian Work in the Bhil area of that country.

A coffee party is being planned for March 28.

More Facts on Pork Plus Cooking Ideas

Prepared by
MARJORIE ELWOOD

In a smoked picnic a ham? Not really. It's a ham processed and smoked similarly to a ham; however most markets call it a smoked picnic shoulder. But a real picnic, of course, is from the leg and the picnic is from the front part or shoulder of the carcass. Cuts from the shoulder are worth knowing this because they are less expensive than the leg and fine cuts. From the upper part of the shoulder comes the fresh Boston Butt (shoulder roast); round bone shoulder chops; blade chops and cottage rolls (this is sweet pickled only or sweet pickled and smoked); also cubed pork for stews and chop suey. From the lower part of the shoulder comes the fresh picnic with shank on or off, and smoked picnic roasts, bone-in and boneless.

If you're looking for economy, buy a port shoulder roast. They are faster than ever meat selection because hog producers are producing leaner, meatier animals. Find out how flavorful a shoulder roast can be using any one of these kitchen-tested recipes.

FRESH PORK SHOULDER ROASTS

Sprinkle 4 to 5 lb. roast (fresh picnic or Boston Butt) with salt and pepper. Place on rack, fat side up, in an open, foil-lined shallow roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer in centre of thickest muscle so the point does not touch any bone. Roast in a slow oven of 325 degrees until internal temperature is 170 degrees to 175 degrees for medium done and 180 degrees for well done. A shoulder roast (butt or picnic) of 4 to 6 lbs., bone-in, will take about 4 hours; boneless will take about ½ hour longer. If roasted unbrowned, the roasting time should be increased 30 per cent. Served with pickled peaches, crab apples or mustard pickle.

Smoked picnic shoulders and cottage rolls may be cooked in water. Place in a deep saucepan; cover with hot water. Cover and simmer over low heat until fork tender — 4 to 6 hrs. A picnic will take about 35 minutes per lb. and, will register 170 degrees internal temperature on a meat thermometer. If preferred, the smoked picnic shoulder and cottage roll may be cooked in a covered roasting pan in a 325 degree oven add ½ cup water to pan. Whether simmered or baked in the oven, both these cuts of meat may be glazed after being cooked. Remove roast or casing from meat, then slash ¼-inch deep in diamond pattern. Then spread apple jelly, fruit juice or your favorite brown sugar glaze mixture. Stud with whole cloves. Bake in a very hot oven of 450 degrees about 15 minutes.

It Goes On— Women Profit

Women's lib?

According to experts women will continue to be more aware of their situation and bettering their "places" in society. In fact, it's believed that due to the movement many structure will change even more so, than it already has. Children are getting a different viewpoint of male-female roles and the importance of the individual regardless of sex.

Will life be easier? Not necessarily so, but honesty might be more prevalent in all facets of society.

Overcoming restrictive barriers in areas of jobs, and families will play an important role in the future search of the individual.

Euchred Again

At the euchre party, sponsored by the Belleville Lodge, recently held in Thomasburg, with 15 tables in play, the winners were: Mrs. Lucy Robinson, Mrs. Hazel Albert, Archie Wickens, and Earl Johnston.

The door prize was awarded to Stan Lockwood. The next card party, will be on February 27th.

Ann Landers

Daughter's 'Zoo' Causes Mother's Loss of Appetite

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter and her husband moved into a small apartment that looks and smells like a zoo.

They have five tropical fish tanks in the living room, a cage full of African desert rats and two hunting dogs that have the run of the place. I'm afraid this is only the beginning because they just can't resist stray animals. Soon they will have the place full of cats and skunks and whatever else they decide needs a home.

Well, you might say, "that's their problem." True, but it has also become my problem because our daughter keeps inviting her dad and me to dinner and I can't stand going into the place, let alone eating a meal there. It is filthy and stinks to high heaven. I wouldn't be able to swallow a bit. Worse yet, I do not trust myself to keep my big mouth shut.

I'm running out of excuses. Hurry your advice.—Utah Dill Emma

Dear Dilly: You don't need an excuse. All you need is the gumption to state the facts. Tell your daughter the animal odors in her apartment kill your appetite. Make it clear that you are not being critical. What it's her home and she can keep pigs in the kitchen if she wants to, but until they get a larger place, you'd appreciate it if they'd come to your house.

Dear Ann Landers: Rumors and propaganda aside, do you know of any scientific evidence that cigarette smoking during pregnancy can be damaging to an unborn child? A great load of anti-tobacco balderdash has been unleashed of late and we'd like to know what's what.—Please—Open Mind In Montana

Dear Open: There is, indeed, some solid scientific evidence to support the charge that cigarette smoking can produce harm to an unborn child. Dr. Nevil Baker, professor of child health at the University of Bristol in England, did a 14-year study which involved 17,000 births. He said-cigaret smoking was one of the principal causes of problems in the developing fetus.

The British study revealed a 25-per-cent increase in deaths of newborn infants, a markedly lower birth weight, and a doubled risk of congenital heart defects among babies whose mothers smoked during pregnancy.

Dr. David Rush of the Columbia University School of Public Health collaborated with Dr. Edward Kass of Boston City Hospital in a recently published study of pregnant women in Boston, and their findings corroborated much of the British study. So, if you're pregnant, girls, do your baby a favor. Don't smoke.

Dear Ann Landers: I was not happy with your advice to the reader whose close friend had died. It seems these two women had exchanged books over the years and she went to the home of her friend's daughter the day after the funeral and asked if she might browse through her mother's library and take the books that belonged to her. The answer was a hard set-down from the daughter and a closed door in her face.

I agree with your advice that the woman should not let the matter drop, but I question the propriety of going to the daughter's home the day after the funeral. Would it not have been better to wait a week or two?—J.S.H., Jr., Boston

Dear J.: I received dozens of letters pointing this out—and most of the critics were from the home of the bean and the cod. You Bostonians have an unerring sense of propriety. Thanks for writing.

Zambian Letter Read for WMC

MARMORA — An interesting letter was read from Mr. and Mrs. Dave Slauenwhite of Zambia, at the monthly business meeting of The Women's Missionary Council of Marmora Presbyterian Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Slauenwhite are friends of Mrs. David Gagnon, the pastor's wife.

The scripture and devotional was taken by Mrs. Gagnon. Mrs. Don Martin read the monthly WMC bulletin at the meeting held at the home of Mrs. Paul Woodcock. It was announced that congregational women will be in charge of services on Sunday February 16 to observe National WMC Sunday. Miss Meg Lewis of the Peterborough Bible College will be the speaker and soloist at the morning service and will assist at the native country, South Africa in the evening.

The next meeting will be held on March 6.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Is a good athlete a 'cold' person?

2-5

NO; not if "cold" means aloof and unresponsive. Even a "hot" performer such as a long-distance runner, swimmer, tennis star, etc., is a better athlete because he can respond to victory, defeat or whatever else may result from his competition. Team players, of course, are rarely both good and "cold." Look at their cameraderie; the way they slap backs in victory or console each other after a defeat.

Do happy husbands knock marriage?

SURE; and probably the more they "put the knock" on marriage, the happier they are. Of course, the happy husbands are just making conversation. They say at times ever the freedom of bachelorhood. Sometimes they are jealous, but the husbands giving a good-natured dig to marriage and their "ball-and-chain" make sure their voice and attitude indicate they wouldn't change places with the most carefree bachelor.

Are children cruel to each other?

NO; although they are so open and honest in their dealings that they do seem cruel to each other. It is just that youngsters have not yet learned all the niceties and diplomacies adults must use in their relations with each other. Being blunt is one of the privilleges of being young; and it is a "license" that is only too quickly revoked when parents admonish a child with: "Tommy! You shouldn't say things like that."

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — A girl was mugged and robbed of $48 by a dog. Police said the girl was walking along the street when the dog attacked her from behind and then ran off with her wallet.

Successful Living

Marriage Means Sharing Listening and Growing

By DORIS CLARK

Marriage is a sharing. Handled right, it can mean individual growth and fulfilment greater than you have ever known.

Sharing calls for listening. Listen when your own dear one blows of steam about the day's events. Really listen — not with one eye on the TV or one hand stirring the gravy. Then be sure he takes some time to listen to you.

When the day's work is done and there are a few precious hours to spend together, better not leave it all to chance! Some research has it that the family that shares a hobby together stays together. It could be a special game you both enjoy.

* * *

Dear Doris: During a hospital stay, my daughters decided to tidy up my dresser and linen closet. Needless to say, I loved it. Could you or your faithful readers help me out?

It is called "The Ironing". The author is Catharine Sawada. — Still Looking.

Dear Still: Well, we can at least join the hunt; although our library sources haven't yet come up with The Ironing. Perhaps another reader knows your love of said poem; also, perhaps her daughters haven't yet had a chance to do a well-meant clean-up.

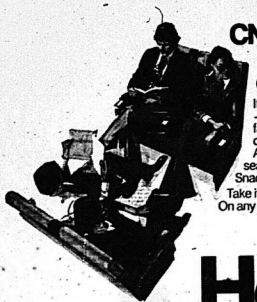
Incidentally, we are also looking for the song "Deacon Brown", which goes: "But don't you tell! I'm sure you won't." — Anybody?

* * *

Dear Doris: My wife has been asked to be part time church secretary, a paid position. But I am already the one who takes care of assigning church rooms for different activities, and I am on the church's official board. Won't it look like a clique?

I feel that if she takes this on, I should resign. People use every excuse possible for staying away from church. I don't want them to think we are running things, between us. — Church Volunteer.

Dear Volunteer: Well it sure would be stretching it to think that some part time office work and the keeping track of meeting rooms would represent a combine.



* * *

Don't husbands and wives belong together to many a choir? Are there not men in teen activities and their ladies in the church kindergarten or on the session?

Don't borrow trouble. Small talk, if any, has no right to attention. She, or you, could broaden the circle instead, by finding helpers to turn out church letters or pinch hit about the room assignments. Or whatever.

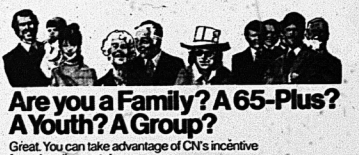
CN coach travel is so very easy to take.

It's our most economical accommodation — especially with our many discount fare plans. Yet, CN coach travel is as comfortable and convenient as can be. And perfect for families. With big roomy seats, wide aisles and picture windows. Snacks and beverages at reasonable prices. Take it nice and easy. Take a CN coach. On any of our trains throughout Canada.



Travel when the fares are lower.

All it takes is a little planning.
And all that means is checking a CN Red, White & Blue fares calendar to make sure you go on the right day. A Red Bargain Day, when the cost of CN train travel is lowest. And at this time of the year, there are lots of those around.
Think about it. If you plan, you save!

How long since you've been on a CN train?

Are you a Family? A 65-Plus? A Youth? A Group?

Great. You can take advantage of CN's incentive fare plan discounts!

Anyone in these categories can get savings that vary according to the day of travel. They're available anywhere on CN lines when the regular Adult Red fare in coaches is $9 or more. No standbys. Advance reservations can be made when you travel with CN. Ask about them and see.

CN Dayniters. The seats are something else.

And the price is almost too good to be true. Dayniters are our new coach-type accommodation. Attractively furnished, they feature reclining seats with padded leg rests. Room to stretch or snooze. Retractable meal trays at each seat. All for just a few dollars more than the regular coach fare.

Dayniters. Something else to look forward to. Now on the Montreal/Vancouver Super Continental and the overnight Cavalier between Montreal and Toronto. This summer we'll also have them on our Maritime trains and on the Toronto/Vancouver Super Continental.

Arrive happier, take the train.

CN train travel offers something for everyone. So come. Travel CN for a change. A nice change. For business, for pleasure. Anyway you take it, you'll arrive happier.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, Feb. 17

Aries (March 21-April 19): Be explicit in all your comments. If you are not sure of what you want, wait for more information before asking anything.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): This can be a census day for skeletons in the closets, as old enemies are reappearing. Positive moves are not favored.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Disclaimers amongst your familiars is calming. It is anybody's conjecture what will come next, or who will precipitate local crisis.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Asking for help, expecting cooperation in purely personal projects merely stirs confusion. Take care of routines early.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Move promptly to confirm and settle the gains and improvements of recent days. Close out uncertain details while they're fresh.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Collect, letter together for coherent presentation whatever reports of recent progress may be feasible.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Sudden insight into the nature of both problems and achievements comes now with prayer and quiet thought.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Let go of the past, even recent incidents you did not like, and keep body for granted can lead to disappointment. Competitive activities offer the most useful rewards.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Occasionally you meet somebody who sees through all your schemes—now is such a time; assume that you can mislead nobody.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Taking relatives or friend anybody for granted can lead to disappointment. Competitive activities offer the most useful rewards.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Make a clear distinction in your own mind as to what is yours and what belongs to your partner.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your home life, personal affairs are one world; your business, career enterprise another, and be a separate area of concern.

Police OK Wage Hike

TRENTON — Town police-men last night signed a two-year contract agreement with the Trenton Board of Police Commissioners, that guarantees them no per cent contract increase by 1974.

Constable Roger Dingman, president of the Trenton Police Association said negotiations with the commission had been carried out since expiration of the old agreement at the end of 1972. He said the association was well pleased with the terms of the agreement, indicating good co-operation with the commission.

The 8½-per cent increases for the 20 odd association members who form the force and includes civilian secretaries, will be in two stages.

First increases go into effect as of Jan. 1, 1973, the remainder on Jan. 1, 1974.

Following is a breakdown of salaries for each rank. First figure is the 1973 salary, followed by the 1974 salary. Brackets indicate the salary levels at March 1973, at time of the last agreement.

Staff Sergeant and Detective Sergeant: $12,138-$13-771 ($11,188) Sergeants and detectives: $11,391 - $12,018 ($11,652); Patrol Sergeant, $11,035-$12,521 ($10,771); First Class Constable, $11,339-$12-203 ($10,451); Second Class Constable, $10,753-$11,407 (9-911); Third Class Constable, $9,506-$10,160 ($9,149); Probationary Constable, $8,165-$8,859 ($7,325), and civilian secretaries, $6,-900-$7,822 ($5,777).

No figures were made available concerning the five-per cent increases in salary for Chief Detective Sergeant Security Chief R. J. Rutherford. As non-association members, the chief officers come under the commission's annual budget for the department.

This budget is now in the hands of the three commissioners who are expected to deal with signing of the 1973 operating budget within the next few weeks.

But while everyone on the department seems in for a salary increase, the three commissioners — chairman Robert Campbell, Judge W. S. Lane or Mayor Eugene McDonald — voted to keep their honorariums at the 1969 annual figure.

Speakers Move On

Peter McCabe of Nicholson Catholic College and Stephen Gallagher of Centennial Secondary School will represent Hastings County in a debate competition in Napanee next Friday at the county wide public speaking contest.

Peter, 18, discussed "The Home Book of Quotations" one day to finish first in the preparred division of the county finals, held at Centennial. In the impromptu division, he, also 18, placed first among five contestants.

Runners-up were Sandra LaChapelle, 18, of Centennial, prepared, and Lauvelle Callaghan, 17, of North Hastings, impromptu.

The talkouts are sponsored by the Ontario Public School Trustees' Association and Ontario Hydro. Mrs. Fay Barnett, education assistant in the Quinte associated school group, was convener.

Judges for Thursday's competition were Mrs. Doug Burr, Mrs. Jean Hutchings and Murray Somerville.

For Long Service

MWO W. A. (Bill) Valance receives the Canadian Forces Decoration for 12 years' service from Ottawa District Militia Commanding Officer Col. J. K. Gillespie at last night's annual inspection of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. MWO Valance is attached to A Company, based in Belleville.

Trenton Police Chief Requests Reinforcement

TRENTON — Trenton Police Chief David Saunders last night told members of the Trenton Board of Police Commissioners an additional constable is required so that another officer can take over duties in the detective office.

Chief Saunders said the force needs an additional man for the detective office, indicating several more experienced officers could be given a chance to alternate and get experience in that division.

Overtime work by the police has been a concern to the board. The chief said an extra officer would cut down on the increasing criminal investigation overload, but not eliminate it.

The chief's budget was not made available pending agreement by the three-man commission who will study the contents over the next few weeks before reaching an agreement for 1973 fund-budgeting.

However, some of the highlights were discussed.

As well as tentative acceptance of tenders for two new cruisers, Chief Saunders recommends purchase of a new 11,700 radar unit to replace the antiquated set that is 10 to 20 years old.

This suggestion met with approval by commission member Mayor Duncan McDonald who said "we need something to clean up the speeding" in Trenton.

He said the speeding situation is also bad on the main roads, but on short stretches. Cases, such as one with two patrol cruisers now on duty at all times he sees as reason why we can't be using radar."

The present set is 10 out of date, it has a tendency to break down each time it is used. The new set recommended by the chief, is the very latest in advanced radar detection equipment, similar to sets now in use by police in surrounding municipalities.

Another matter of importance discussed at the commission meeting held at police headquarters last night, were the illegal renovations of the station. At present, costs are approximately $3,200 are anticipated for renovations to the central police reception area.

Plans call for development of an open space concept, with room for telecommunications, desk officers, reception, and a storage room for lost articles.

Discussion of Y Dominates Meeting

In the first sitting of the new board of directors for Belleville's United Community Services it was apparent Wednesday that a priority for the board would be the controversy between themselves and Belleville's YMCA.

No mention of the Y discussion was included on the agenda for the meeting but it managed to consume the majority of board attention.

Hugh Pepper, unanimously elected to the position of president of the board, in an opening statement, paid tribute of the direction of the Y now and the efforts they are making to comply with UCS requests to update their programming, he could "make a very strong case on their behalf."

Mr. Pepper said in fairness to the YMCA, which will hold its annual meeting in mid-March, they "should be aware of how they will stand next appeal time."

If they are going to remain outside the appeal, the air should be cleared of any speculation and they should be able to begin making plans for an independent fund drive."

The UCS and The YMCA attended a day-long meeting in early January to discuss directions the Y could take.

From this meeting, the Y was committed to preparing a report within six weeks. Three weeks have passed by, to make a repo rtandd ahteh

The board of the UCS decided last night that a casual "phone call" be made to the Y to find out if the Y is going to make a report and that the report be made as soon as possible so a UCS decision could be made.

Some members of the UCS board were concerned "they would look foolish" if they reversed the decision on the Y without the Y making an application for the reversal.

Commenting that UCS approaching the Y to have a meeting, one member said it was "their move not ours."

Mr. Pepper added the board that they stop using the "we, they" attitude and that both parties must work together for a final answer.

The Y will be approached to set a suitable time for a meeting. This meeting will be followed by a special meeting of the UCS board and a final full-board meeting to come to some decision.

Seniors' Centre Said Illegal

TRENTON (Staff) — Lawyer George Bonn, representing approximately 75 residents who are against construction of a senior citizens' recreation centre in Centennial Park, said at a public hearing Thursday, construction of the building would contravene all parks board recommendations to keep the land free of buildings.

He also pointed out, because only, senior citizens who are members of the club will be allowed use of the centre, it goes against all policies for public use of the parkland.

"This would be spot-zoning at its worst," he said, adding the adjacent lawn bowling club now in the park does not conform with present zoning.

Town lawyer J. D. Templeman argued that opposition to the rezoning was primarily based on esthetic and ethical grounds.

These objections are less significant than anticipated," he said, breaking them down into three categories.

He said these include opposition on the grounds the centre would mar the appearance of the site, that it would obstruct the view of nearby residents and would be in contravention of town parks board policy.

Mr. Templeman argued rezoning would not be a departure from present zoning trends of the past 20 years.

"It's a mild departure from existing zoning," he said, pointing out already permits community centres.

He added a light note, saying zoning also permits horse stables or cemeteries on the land.

"That's just it," Mr. Bonn retorted. "This would be rezoning to allow a recreation centre for a select group of citizens. If it was for all senior citizens, it would be different."

He was referring to Trenton senior citizen club president Cliff Lowcock's morning letter to council. The club has a membership of 187, of whom about 125 are active.

Mr. Bonn said, "The centre will be used by fewer than 140 active members out of a population of 14,000. This does not fit in with present bylaws."

Mr. Lowcock said there are approximately 1,200 senior citizens living in Trenton but his club has been forced to turn away prospective members "as there aren't the facilities for them in present accomodation at the community Drop-In Centre Lodge on Ontario Street. Mr. Templeman later referred to the meeting place as "desperate and temporary."

Reginald Martin, speaking on behalf of those opposed, said the hearing for site was always intended to be a park. He said residents in the area have fought rat problems on the former swampy land that required several years of landfill.

He said a building would detract from the esthetic value of the park and would obstruct the view of the bay. Mr. Martin said he wanted to make it plain the 90 people who signed the petition against the drop-in centres were objecting only to choice of site, not to the building or the purpose of the proposed structure.

Hearing chairman D. S. Colbourne repeatedly reminded both legal spokesmen the Ontario Municipal Board was not sitting on the matter to question whether or not the parks fall under — the town's or the park board's — and simply is interested in the proposed use of the land.

"It's not for me to determine who owns the land. If that's your intention, take it to another jurisdiction," he said.

Both lawyers kept trying to introduce evidence concerning ownership.

Deno Gattuso, town recreation director, said the drop-in centre would be a "special use of the land," that it is only available with the building to be in an open area. He added it is parks board policy that such buildings come under its management.

Earlier in the hearing, the more than 100 in attendance were told the 185-by-162-foot, split-level brick structure, estimated to cost $85,000, has been designed to blend with residential housing in the area. Mr. Lowcock said it would not be used as a home, simply a recreation facility for club members.

The hearing concluded, Mr. Colbourne stating a decision would be forwarded to the town as soon as possible.

Constable Commended

A young Bellevillian, sentenced with the provincial police in Sudbury, Ontario, has won commendation from the Canadian Humane Association for heroism in saving a child's life.

Constable Larry Reid, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reid, Bonnyview Drive, Mr. Reid is a captain instructor in the force with the city fire department.

Constable Reid won the award for saving the 3-year-old Joseph Larivierre, of Heyden, owner Sault Ste. Marie — from drowning in the Root River in full spring flood late last March.

The officer was off duty and washing with his wife — the former Joan Scott, of Roslin — when he heard the boy yelling for help. So after the youngster had twice disappeared under the current, Constable Reid kicked off his shoes and went swimming after the boy, pulling him to safety.

Constable Reid served as a civilian radio despatcher at the Belleville OPP district headquarters before leaving Moira Secondary School.

Some 18 months later he joined the force and has been a provincial police officer for almost four years.

Hasty Pees Promised New Gear on the Way

Annual inspections provide occasion for slightly sharper creases, extra finishing touches to shiny boots and glittering brass, Ottawa District Commanding Officer Lieutenant-Col. J. K. Gillespie was not disappointed with his annual inspection of the 110 men of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment last night.

Accompanying Col. Gillespie was Lt.-Col. Edward Kinnon, Senior Staff Officer for the Ottawa Military District.

After the march - past, led by the 2872 Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Cadet Corps Band under the command of Capt. E. A. Killingbeck, Col. Gillespie told parade members the regiment was in store for the regiment.

"The equipment will be here in a few months or three years," he said, "but it is coming." He said his views were issue exclusively earmarked for the militia.

"With our Vietnam and Laos commitments being on a my change — but it is very encouraging," said Col Gillespie. Equipment will include trucks and infantry and communications gear, new uniforms, uniforms and basic infantry weapons, including the FN rifle and possibly SMGs.

"As a result of conferences of different defence associations, representatives have been made to increase militia pay to some parity with the regular force," he said, "and this increase will mean we will be implemented which will make militia service more attractive — and more attractive to stay longer than has been the case."

Col. Gillespie charged the officers with the responsibility of assisting in the recruiting and training of cadets.

"Don't believe it is solely your Commanding Officer's responsibility to recruit," he said. "I regard each of you as a professional recruiting officer."

MWO Bill Valance was presented the Canadian Forces Decoration for 12 years' service by Col. Gillespie and A Company's Regimental Sergeant-Major Ken Redmond and his Chief Warrant Officer's crowns.

A Company, based in Belleville, was commanded by Maj. Ron Wilson. B Company, based in Peterborough, by Maj. Ken Bell. Capt. Killingbeck is the Regiment is Col. J. A. Richardson.

Boat Builder Picton Based

PICTON — Loch Sloy Holding Ltd., and William Duggan, director of economic development for Prince Edward County has officially announced location of a new industry, Hallowmade Boats Ltd.

Negotiations for establishment of the boat building industry at Loch Sloy Holding Ltd. in Picton have been under way for many months according to Mr. Duggan. An agreement was completed in late November.

Harvey McFarland Jr., a spokesman for Loch Sloy Holding Ltd., said he is "very pleased" with the park's first industry and with prospects for the area in general. New boilers have been ordered from Nagamon Industries Ltd. so that each league at the former Camp Picton can be treated individually. Reconstruction of services is underway in the first building and will be started in the rest of the park as required.

Hallmaster Boats will employ approximately 25 persons in its first year of operation, rising to an estimated 40 employees over a three-year period.

The perch release issued yesterday by Loch Sloy Holding and Mr. Duggan stated that the new building materials have been moved into the park and investigations are to be in a full production again "almost immediately."

The company is eligible for training grants available to industry, including manufacturers in designated areas and is hiring staff.

Trial Ride Sunday

The Land O' Lakes Voluntary Fire Department's annual snowmobile trial ride is scheduled for Feb. 18 this year Bill Carey reported that the organization is hoping to get 200 participants. The route goes from Northbrook to Tamworth and along the CPR right - of - way to Elm Tree, through the woods to Ken-sador Lake, north to Henderson Road and through the Lake Ontario Park. It covers about 46 miles.

Metro Garbage Coming?

By JIM WATTERS
Intelligencer Toronto Bureau

TORONTO — A Toronto newspaper today reported Canadian Forest Products Ltd. is considering a site near Belleville for receiving refuse from Metro Toronto.

Originally, the Harrington Lake Mines north of Ex-chester, was mentioned as the most likely candidate for the landfill site.

Canadian Pacific plans to haul up to 500,000 tons of garbage a year after Metro Toronto council approves the plan.

A Canadian Pacific spokesman said an announcement on the site selected by the company will be made within a week.

He did not confirm the newspaper report mentioning the Belleville area as the preferred location.

Metro Council said Canadian Pacific has narrowed its considered locations to one site. He would not say in which direction from Toronto the site is situated.

Five Hurt In Crash

FENWOOD GARDENS — Five Prince Edward county youths were taken to hospital yesterday afternoon with injuries received when their car left the road, striking a tree at Highway 14 at Fenwood Gardens.

David Colton, 15, of RR1, Consecon, driver of the vehicle was taken to Kingston General Hospital where he is listed in the intensive care unit with head and internal injuries.

Driver of the car, 18-year-old Wallace Colton, of RR1, Consecon, suffered shock, lacerations and a fractured collarbone and was taken to Belleville General Hospital.

Ronald Colton, 15, of RR1, Consecon, was treated for concussion.

Constable R. Dowsley of the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1,000.

Deputy-reeves Will Serve Their Full Term

New deputy - reeves from the 13 Hastings County municipalities which elected such officials for the first time in December will serve out their full two - year terms at county council.

This was assured Wednesday when county members voted to proceed with the county private bill before the legislature to increase the number of council members but not impact the present composition of county council.

The county's private bill tog the legislature was initiated in December after a meeting of the municipal act touched the number of electors required to petition 13 municipalities to elect deputy-reeves.

This resulted in increasing the number of county council members to 47 — a number many felt was more than required to administer county affairs.

The private bill to go before the legislature calls for the election of a deputy-reeve only when the number of electors reaches 7,500 and would reduce the number of councillors to 38.

Currently, the municipal act calls for election of a deputy-reeve when the number of electors reaches 1,000.

Thomas Jennings, deputy-reeve of 13 municipalities which sent a deputy-reeve to council in 1973, said Tuesday he opposed the private bill and a resolution indicated if the matter went to a vote.

But a motion to terminate was awarded with the motion from Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen and Madoc Reeve George Lyons to proceed with the private bill "but delay implementation of its provisions until 1976 and 1980.

The motion got almost unanimous support from council with only Reeve James Palmer, Tyendinaga Township, a vote. Four of the 47 council members were absent.

The view expressed by many councillors was that the deputy-reeves had been elected by the ratepayers under the terms of existing act and county councillors had no right to say what was right.

Reeve Allen said council had no time to bring in its private bill before the municipal elections.

"We have no right to say deputy-reeves cannot sit on council," she said. "We have the right to limit the size of the council, but that is all."

Reeve Frank Pearce of Belleville Township took the same stand and in lighter vein said the whole matter could be settled without the necessity of a vote.

"I suggest we leave the deputy-reeves here and send the reeves home," he said.

French Connection Line Gives Sabres 4-1 Edge

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Buffalo Sabres, the French Connection line intact, stormed over New York Rangers 4-1 Thursday night in what was expected to be an epic realignment of the National Hockey League's highest scoring trio.

Coach Joe Crozier had indicated after obtaining Norm Gratton in a deal with Atlanta Flames Wednesday that the 21-year-old right winger would likely be teamed with his former Montreal Junior Canadien linemates, Gil Perreault and Rick Martin.

The unit had been the scourge of Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series goaltenders for four years ago and Gratton had been coveted by Sabres' general manager Punch Imlach for just that reason when he was 19 in the draft two years ago.

But the Ranger's No. 1 draft choice in 1970 moved on to Atlanta Flames in the expansion draft last June, and subsequently to the Sabres in a trade for tough Butch Deadmarsh who fitted better into the Atlanta plans than did Gratton.

LINE STILL NO. 1

Crozier indicated shortly after the trade was announced that regarding the Perreault-Martin-Gratton unit was uppermost in his plans.

But he apparently had a change of heart before Thursday's game and for the opening whistle with the Rangers at Buffalo, the old standbys were ready—Perreault and Martin along with new coach Don Gallinda.

In the only other scheduled game, Boston Bruins' defensive stumbler, Bobby Orr, was also there. The young defenceman was coaxed and assisted on the other two goals at Philadelphia in a 3-1 victory over the Flyers that stretched Boston's unbeaten streak to six games—their longest new coach Don Gallinda.

Buffalo victory moved them alone into fourth place in the East Division, two points ahead of Detroit Red Wings who are in Oakland tonight against California Golden Seals. In the only other game, Vancouver Canucks entertain Atlanta.

"I've no immediate plans to break up the French Connection," Crozier told reporters prior to the game. And, true to his word, they played together throughout the game.

Robert scored unassisted at 1:41 and Perreault at the 14:34 mark and the Rangers were nailed with their second straight loss after snapping their unbeaten string to 16 games.

GAP CLOSED

The loss, combined with Boston's win, left the Rangers 12 points behind Montreal Canadiens, leaders in the East, and just four points up on the Bruins.

Jean Ratelle cut the Buffalo margin in half with his 29th goal of the year in the second period, but Gratton, the latter on a power play effort with Gene Carr, Mike Rogers and Tracey Pratt, completed Buffalo's scoring late in the third period.

"Maybe tomorrow, maybe after the first shift tonight, I'll applied Crozier to pre-game queries on his plans for Gratton.

Then again, maybe I'll just leave them (the French Connection) alone."

Leave them alone, he did. Gratton was used sparingly on a line with Meehan and Jim Lorentz, getting only two shifts in the first period and one in the third when he scored.

The Rangers, although hurrying, carried the play to Buffalo much of the game and held a 31-24 margin in shots.

With the two goals against New York, Buffalo's high-scoring unit now has a league-leading 197 points, including 87 goals.

It marked the fifth victory for Buffalo in six encounters with the Rangers this season. Previously they had managed only two ties in 12 meetings with the New Yorkers since joining the league three years ago.

Derek Sanderson got the rapt-berry from 16,689 Buffalo fans in his first visit to the City of Brotherly Love since being sold $1 million by Philadelphia Blazers of the rival World Hockey Association to the downtown earlier this month.

Added security men surrounded the Boston bench to cut a quick halt to any demonstrations, but they would have had to put out to better use on the ice in front of Philadelphia goalie Doug Favell where the controversial centre had the last laugh.

Sanderson was instrumental in setting up Mark's 40th goal of the season with the game only 12 seconds old. Boston's rookie Greg Sheppard added to the Boston totals before Gerry Desjardins' score with 1:37 left to go, who remained second in the NHL West, one point ahead of Minnesota North Stars.

Lady Wrestler

The lovely 5-foot-7 blonde drama major stepped in to wrestle Southern California College's Taylor Perryear.

"I was very ready for this," said Miss King later. "I even cut my fingernails."

Perryear was really ready for physical contact, you could tell by the way he spokesman for Cal Lutheran, had then. Kathy defeated after 10 seconds—before Perryear could make contact.

Kathy wrestled a little over 120 pounds but wrestled in the 119-pound class because the Kingsmen were without star wrestler Jeff Schneider, out with a knee injury.

Without support, the wrestle in that class, Kathy said she would in hopes that the SCC wrestler would show up.

Perryear was "more than ready to tangle," said Coach Jim Hazelton, so Kathy, defacto.

SCC won the contest 35-22. Kathy's other vital statistics remain: 36-24-36.

Hull Counts Four Goals As Jets Club Cougars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was just like old times in Chicago—Bobby Hull and a sell-out crowd.

The 33-year-old left winger, who performed 15 years with Chicago Blawks of the old National Hockey League before jumping last summer to the fledgling World Hockey Association, did what 8,127 fans packed into the 9,000-seat Amphitheatre had come to expect from him.

Now player-coach of Winnipeg Jets, Hull scored four goals and picked up two assists to pace the Western Division leaders to a 7-3 win over Chicago Cougars.

Elsewhere, New England Whalers edged Los Angeles Sharks 4-3, Cincinnati defeated Saints blanked Ottawa Nationals 3-0 and Houston Aeros held off fast-closing Alberta Oilers 5-3.

Winnipeg, with a nine-point lead over runner-up Houston, entertains Edmonton Oilers while New York Raiders are at Philadelphia Blazers and Los Angeles at Quebec Les Nordiques.

Hull scored the first two goals of the game and the Jets never looked back. After a slow start, he brought about by various court actions that tried to prevent him from playing in the new league, the Golden Jet now has 36 goals.

BOBBY HULL

Norm Beaudin tallied twice in the second period and Steve Coddle added the other. Rick Morris scored both Chicago goals.

Tim Sheehy, with two goals and an assist, paced New England's attack as Jim Boston fans as the Whalers climbed to within two points of Eastern Division leading Cleveland Crusaders. The win ended a four-game losing streak.

Larry Pleau, Tom Earl, John French and John Cunniff scored the other New England goals. Gary Veneruzzo, Allen White, J. P. LeBlanc, Steve Sutherland and Ted McCaskill shared the Los Angeles scoring.

Mike Antanovich's two goals spearheaded Minnesota's offence in front of 5,543 St. Paul, Minn., fans as goalie Mike Curran posted his third shutout of the season. It was the first game this year in which the Nats had not scored.

Houston almost blew a 4-1 lead in the final 15 minutes of the game but only after goaltending by Don McLeod held the Oilers in check as a 4,468 Edmonton fans provided them vocal support.

Ted Taylor, Brian McDonald, Gord Labossiere and Frank Hughes gave the Aeros their seemingly invincible lead by 8:28 of the third period.

Veteran Bill Hicke had been the lone Alberta scorer until the final period.

The Oilers suddenly caught fire and closed to within one goal of Houston when Bob Falkenberg and Rusty Patenaude beat McLeod and kept the play in Houston's end of the ice.

Taylor's second goal of the night and 33rd of the year, with just over a minute remaining in regulation time, took some of the pressure off Houston.

Vadnais Mistaken For Bank Robber

BOSTON (AP) — Carl Vadnais, a defenceman for Boston Bruins of the National Hockey

CAROL VADNAIS

League, was taken into custody by Philadelphia police for the second time in as many days in the city, the Boston Herald-American reported Thursday.

The Herald American said Vadnais was lounging in the lobby of a Philadelphia hotel Thursday afternoon when four FBI agents took him to a local bank where a robbery had just occurred.

According to the report, Vadnais fit the physical description given of the robber.

After a five-minute stay at the bank, he was released.

"While I'm waiting in the bank I'm saying to myself, 'What if someone makes a mistake and thinks it's me?'" Vadnais was quoted as saying.

Eddie Johnston, one of the Bruins' goalies, said he recommended Badeaux to the bank, and "Carl was a little nervous. He got his little shaky."

"Who wouldn't?" Vadnais said.

Laver Giving Tennis Pros Pain

TORONTO (CP) — A series of "serious" matches is planned in the tie-breaker that decided the second set.

Unseeded Jaime Fillol of Chile pounced on a quarter-final berth—the furthest he has gone in the WCT playoffs—when he played a second serving game without losing a point. He drew level at 5-5 with a service break to set up the tie-breaker.

Fillol used his speed to eliminate Alexander because "I knew I was not going to beat him by stroking . . . he covers court very well, his reaction is as big."

Because who, like Fillol thought he was victimized by line calls, said "though I was playing all right but too many of them were coming against me."

Stockton was the first game point of his match then overcame the distractions of a bank of lights going out and what he termed a bad call on his service.

"It was stupid that I should lose my concentration because of something that was not my fault. I was doing everything I could to win."

The call came with the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) champion leading 5-0 and 15-love and Stockton had still three of his six games.

Stockton said he "just went five games without hitting a first serve." He settled down to hit the last six games of the second set.

Crampton Holds Lead In San Diego Open

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bruce Crampton, the 37-year-old Australian who scored consecutive triumphs in the Phoenix and Bing Crosby tournaments, and son, Thursday took a share of the first-round lead in the $300,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open golf tournament.

Crampton fought mud and goo, struggled with uncooperative putts during a driving rain with a 67, matching the five-under-par efforts of 23-year-old rookie Tom Kite and former collegiate football star Jerry Pate.

All played the North course at the 6,887-yard Torrey Pines. It was out that wasn't scheduled to be used in the tournament.

Officials, however, were forced to shift half the 144-man field to the course because of rain and hail caused a two-hour delay and made it impossible to get the entire field around a single course.

Half played the more difficult, 7,067-yard South course, which the South course Thursday's play and some players who went on to the South course were severely displeased with the prospect.

Terry Dill, a PGA rookie, said Jim Weichers.

"The ones who play the north course on Friday have an advantage," said Dill, who shot a 69 to put the rub of the green. "He needed only 25 putts

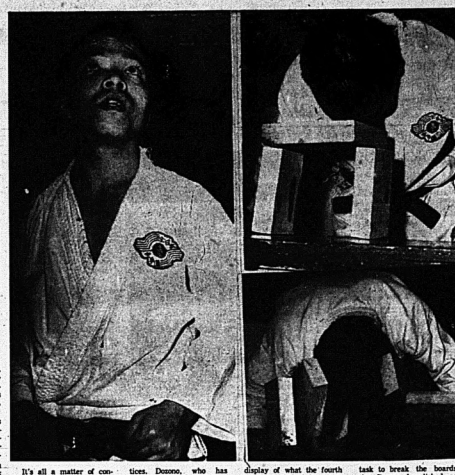
Juvenile's Loss-- Bobcats' Gain

The Western Tire Juveniles' loss has been the Belleville Bobcats' gain.

The Tiremen were eliminated in three straight games from the OMHA playdown series with Kingston meaning that three members of the team, at least, will be participating with the Metro Junior B team on a regular basis.



Forwards Peter Smrke and Jim Richardson along with defenseman Joe Edwards took part in Wednesday's 2-1 win over the Toronto Young Nationals and Bobcats' coach Moe Hunter has indicated that the trio will remain with the team for the remainder of the regular season and the playoffs.

Smrke centred a line with Rob Foster and Mike Watt against the Young Nats, while Richardson held down a wing on the Rick Meagher — Andy Ricketts line. Edwards drew accolades from both Hunter and manager Jim Matthews for his play in that contest.

The constant calling up of Juvenile all-stars has been rumored to be a sore spot with some of the Bobcats regulars this year. Darryl Cole and Wayne McGeachy have left the team during the course of the season.

Hunter, however, feels that the addition of the players will be for the benefit of the team. "I think the guys understand" he noted, "We can't have one or two players jeopardizing the playoff chances of the other 23."

The Bobcats will be attempting to gain ground on fourth place Oshawa when they face St. Mikes in a 9 p.m. game at the Memorial Arena.

It's all a matter of concentration as Kenno Dozono demonstrated to the Belleville Bobcats after one of their Wednesday night practices. Dozono, who has been skating with the Metro Junior "B" club for several weeks, exchanged a demonstration of their skills for a display of what the fourth dan black belted instructor could do after 17 years of learning the Japanese sport of karate. It's no simple task to break the boards Dozono used to demonstrate, as the members of the Bobcats discovered when they tried to work the same feat.

Karate Expert Uses Hockey To Improve Conditioning

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

"Hockey and karate are very similar sports," said Keno Dozono the fourth dan black belt instructor at the BCI karate school. "Both sports need very good conditioning, speed and balance."

"You need strong ankles and wrists," said the 25-year-old Japanese instructor. "They are all similar. Concentration is important in both sports. In hockey, when you pass you have to see where the other player is or you lose the puck."

"Hockey is a very rough sport — smashing. If you're not in good shape, you get injuries — the same in karate."

Dozono is not just talking off the top of his head when he speaks about Canada's favorite winter sport. He has been skating since last October and the schedule he has chosen this past winter is a gruelling one.

"My main purpose in playing hockey," said Dozono, "is to improve my speed and the strength of my ankles and my balance." Dozono is not practising the sport of hockey because he has fallen in love with the game, which he has, but to improve his performance in the defensive sport of karate in which he owns his first legalty.

The instructor who received his fourth dan black belt when he went back to Japan in 1970, has been using Ernesth the compulsory karate exercises at the home of Les Williams, the BMHA referee-in-chief, since August. It's an ideal situation for Dozono since he can "learn about hockey from him".

Since December, Dozono has been out on the ice seven nights a week, sometimes by his own admission till 1 a.m. Monday's and Wednesday's he practices with the Belleville Bobcats, while on Tuesday he occupies the Dick Ellis Rink for a game. Until the end of January, Dozono practiced skating as well as his karate, usually with the members of the underground hockey league, while Friday's saw him out on the harbor ice. Saturday, Wellington Arena is the scene of his education. Sunday's, he skates with an UIC group.

Dozono, who originates from the south of Japan, but studied in Kyoto since he was eight - years - old, was in the practice of going to Kingston, Ottawa, Toronto, Montreal and Hamilton to teach karate, "till I started hockey." Now, "I want to have practice by myself," said Dozono.

Dozono, who came to Canada to study medicine at Queen's University at the end last year, "didn't think about teaching karate in Canada."

But the interest was there and he was drawn into forming a club and instructing.

He does plan, however, to return to Japan this August for further karate training and while overseas will be trying for his fifth dan. But he will be coming back to Canada, and "if I have the chance, I will work out with the Senior "A" boys."

Dozono, who has demonstrated his various karate skills to both the Bobcats and the Quinte's says of the Senior "A" club, that "they need to lose weight."

"The most important thing (for an athlete) is weight," said Dozono. "if you're five or 10 pounds over your best condition, you can never play hockey. This is my idea, and it came from karate."

"My movements never have had a fast reaction. In karate you also need reaction, this means speed." According to the karate instructor even a slight weight increase over an individual's optimum condition affects his performances in whatever sport he participates in.

The coach of the Miami Dolphins (Don Shula), ordered all his players to lose weight," said Dozono. "He's a good coach to be able to find the players' problems, whether psychological or physical. If a coach can't find out the problem of his players then he is not a good coach."

Dale Beckwith, a brown belted student of Dozono and an instructor of those club members with lower belt rankings, will be one of the members of the club demonstrating the skills acquired over many years of hard work to the hockey fans assembled at the Belleville Bobcats' game "B" game Sunday night.

Along with six or seven members of the Belleville Karate Club, Beckwith will display some of the movements performed by the karate students.

Beckwith, however, thrysh not worried about how the karate demonstration will be received, said, "everywhere we've gotten a good reception," still does see a problem.

"There is no way you can convince a people that the sport is not fakery," said Beckwith, "and the more unbelievable it looks the less they believe. There is no one to find the club's base membership to make it believable." The brown belted club instructed instances in which karate experts have cut arrows shot at them from a bow, or had broken spears which opponents had tried to impale them with.

Jones Lucky Member Of Quintes '200 Club'

While the Belleville Quintes have the week off, their booster club hasn't been resting.

The "200 Club" organized to help defray expenses for the local Senior A hockey team moved from Jones of 41 Moira Street East in Belleville as the lucky member for February.

Mr. Jones was presented with a cheque of $200 by alderman Jean Smith Thursday night. The next selection will take place on Thursday, March 15.

The Aces face Belleville by a single point and have six games in hand in the battle for the final league playoff spot.

Jesse Closes Curling Gap

SHILO, Man. (CP) — Otto Kreppa of ColdLake, Alta., maintained his hold on first place in the fifth Canadian forces national curling championship Thursday, downing his sixth win against one loss.

But with Andy Anderson of Ottawa and defending champion Earl Jesse of Trenton, Ont., close behind, there was a good chance that a playoff will be needed after the final round of the tournament today.

Anderson beat Tom Welch of Cypress Hills, Man., 13-3 while Jesse first downed Garry Marr of Baden-Soellingen, Germany, and then skipped Red Schramek of Gabotville, Que., 10-3. Both Anderson and Jesse have 5-1 records.

Kreppa gained his sixth victory by downing Schramek 12-4. The winless Gerry Newcombe of Moise, Que., suffered his fifth and sixth defeats, losing 12-4 to Welch and 11-9 to Marr.

Godson Fifth In Scoring

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The battle for the scoring title in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series continues between linemates Mike Draper and Gary Bloom of Orillia Terriers, although several other players have a chance to overtake the leaders.

Statistics released today give Draper, who leads in the point list, a one-point edge in the race. He has 36 compared with 37 for Milroy, leading in assists with 48.

Rod Bloomfield of Owen Sound Downtowners has 35 points, two more than Gerry Moore of Orillia. George Godson of Belleville Quintes is fifth has with 32 points.

The statistics include last Sunday's games.

Hoffard Paces Wilson Win

Jamie Hoffard led Wilson Motors to a 6-2 win over Modac in the opening game of the best-of-three Trent Valley hockey semi-final Thursday.

Hoffard counted four goals to become the top Wilson scorer this season. Other markers went to Dave Meagher, Eric Coates, Trevor Powell and Tim Mulroney. Scoring for Modac were Bob Gray and Darryl Wood.

Women's Darts Saturday

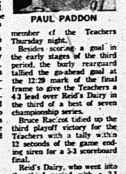
There will be some pointed competition at the Royal Canadian Legion this Saturday.

The Legion will be holding an open darts tournament with 25 teams from across the province competing. Included in the competition are teams from Kingston, Trenton and Ottawa.

The Original Knight SOLUMBAR TABLES When To Pick Up Or Hand

By Mrs. Richard Alden Knight

The schedule of Solumar Periods, as printed below, has been prepared by Mrs. Richard Alden Knight's Solumar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.



The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours approximately. The Periods shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Use Eastern Standard Time.

Paddon Paces Teachers To Third Quinte Win

Paul Paddon, elected most valuable defenseman in the Quinte Hockey League, proved to be an equally valuable member of the Teachers Thursday night.

PAUL PADDON

Besides scoring a goal in the early stages of the third period the burly rearguard aided the go-ahead goal at the 12:29 mark of the final frame to give the Teachers a 4-3 lead over Reid's Dairy in the third of a best of seven championship series.

Bruce Rae-Cost tallied up the third playoff victory for the Teachers with a tally within 12 seconds of the game ending siren for a 5-3 scoreboard final.

Reid's Dairy, who went into the third period with a 3-1 lead on goals by Ron Pountey, Denny Tompkins, and Ted Waite, were defeated in the final frame by a four goal outburst by the educators. Dave Bell tallied the game's first goal for the Teachers' benefit while Mike Dellack provided the other third period score.

Family Bowling

Teamwork was the key to the Family Twosome Bowling Tournament held last weekend at the Belleville Bowl - O - Drome.

Bob Deline and son Bobby won the beginners boys class while the girls section went to Yvonne Mandl and Marie Louise.

The boys bantam B crown went to George and Billie Jack Im, while the mother and daughter team of Myra Sorsky and Judy Ronsky topped the girls division.

Roland Munskittrick and son John were champions of the Bantam A boys section with Bob Deline and daughter Lola winning the girls event.

In Junior A boys play it was Glenn and Bryce Hamilton topping the field, while Jack Calnan and daughter Terry took girls honors. The "B" titles went to Larry and Bob Hector and Glenn and Nancy Hamilton.

Ron Jardine and Steven copped the senior boys title, while the girls section was won by Roland and Jane Munskittrick.

Dailey Collects Points As Well As Penalties

Bob Dailey has been providing more than muscle for the Toronto Marlboros in the season.

Although his 126 minutes in penalties places him among the Ontario Major Junior A leaders in that departic at, he is also among the top scorers. The former Trenton midget all-star has counted seven goals and 40 assists this season to rank 41st among the Junior A scorers.

Dukes Attempt To Lose Trophy

The Army, Navy and Air Force Club will be trying to win a hockey game, but lose a trophy Saturday night.

The ANAF Dukes currently hold possession of the furlined thunder mug as losers of last year's exhibition hockey game against the Royal Canadian Legion.

Playing for the Legion team will be Floyd Crawford, Bruce Hawkins, Carl Rosenberger, Jean Paul Lamirande and others. Incuded in the Dukes' alignment will be Bob Taylor, Pug Kellar, Doug Murray and Bob Brooks.

The game will begin at 9 p.m. in the Belleville Memorial Arena with proceeds going to minor sports.

Madoc Carnival Trio

It's winter carnival time once more at Madoc — and this trio of pretty teenagers have extra cause for cheeriness. On the spot for snow-sculpture contest at Centre Hastings Secondary School yesterday were Michelle Lahey, 16, standard carnival queen, flanked by princesses Noreen Pigden, 18, and Debbie Declair, 17. They reign through a weekend of winter events. For details see first page, second section.

Railway Contract Talks End As Non-ops Leave Negotiations

MONTREAL (CP) — Contract talks between Canada's major railway and three union groups representing about 50,000 employees ground to a halt Friday and it could be some time before they restart.

Bargainers for 55,000 non-operating employees broke off negotiations with the railways Friday and advised Labor Minister John Munro the "companies were unwilling to submit an offer acceptable for a settlement."

The shopcraft workers and the railways then agreed to a request from Labor Minister Art Gibbons to suspend their talks until a solution to the non-ops problems could be found.

The United Transportation Union (UTU) which represents running trades such as trainmen, firemen and conductors, said it probably will suspend negotiations as well.

"It is now up to the labor minister to act in due course," a spokesman for CP Rail and Canadian National said.

In Ottawa, a labor department spokesman said a telegram from Dick Smith, chief negotiator for the Associated Non-Operating Employees, informing the minister of the breakdown, arrived too late for an immediate official decision.

He said the department will wait for Mr. Gibbon's report on the bargaining and that "the talks will likely go now to the regular conciliation procedure involving an officer or a board, more likely a board."

Mr. Smith said late Friday night the union will write a letter to the minister explaining the dispute, and asking him to "let the law take its course."

The union leader said the decision is up to the minister and he can either appoint a conciliation officer or a conciliation board. "But we want to leave the option to him," Mr. Smith added.

The contracts for the three union groups expired last Dec. 31.

Negotiations for a new two-year agreement started in November and, at the request of, both sides, Mr. Gibbons was appointed mediator for the non-ops and shopcrafts talks.

John Clark, president and spokesman for Division No. 4, Railway Employees Department which represents the 20,000 shopcraft workers, said progress has been made and he hopes to be able to resume bargaining next week.

Talks between the non-ops and railways foundered on pension, job security, wage and sick benefit issues, Mr. Smith said.

The non-ops include truck drivers, telegraphers, clerks, dispatchers, maintenance laborers, telecommunications workers and sleeping-car porters.

They are seeking a 26-to 30-per-cent wage increase for the two-year contract. Their current average hourly wage is $3.25.

Their pension demands include maximizing employee contributions for a two-per-cent, pension-benefit formula giving a retired employee a pension based on two per cent of his average salary in his last five years of service multiplied by the number of years worked.

The shopcrafts, responsible for maintenance of motive power and rolling stock, want wage increases of 25 per cent in the first year and 25 cents an hour in the second. Their current average hourly wage is $3.65.

The UTU is seeking 15-per-cent wage hikes for each year of the contract, increased job differentials and some work rule changes.

The railways are aiming for work-rule changes.

Oil Policy Criticized

OTTAWA (CP) — Government plans to control oil exports from Western Canada spurred opposition MPs Friday to press for details on guarantees given the East, which depends on foreign oil imports.

Energy Minister Trudeau replied that negotiations with the United States on the security-of-supply question are continuing. He said he will refer the question of an oil pipeline to Montreal to Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, who was not in the House.

Mr. Macdonald announced Thursday night that crude oil exports will be controlled starting in March to assure supplies to domestic refineries despite increased demand from the United States.

Under the national oil policy, Western Canada will supply crude to refineries west of the Ottawa Valley, Quebec and the Atlantic region receive oil by sea from Venezuela and the Middle East.

Mr. Macdonald has said Ottawa and Washington are still discussing how the two countries would share oil resources in case these offshore supplies are cut.

Metro Council Bars Highrise

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto city council voted 11-1 Friday to repeal a controversial bylaw permitting construction of an apartment-hotel complex development despite the threat of an injunction by the developer.

The bylaw, approved in 1971, permits the construction of four apartment towers and 28 townhouses and involves the demolition of 48 houses.

Nine aldermen walked out of the meeting rather than risk participating in action by discussing the repeal. The other two members of council did not take part in the discussion.

Mayor David Crombie was the only supporter of the motion, which called on Cadillac Development Ltd., from going ahead with its project near Toronto's High Park.

The repeal action will be challenged by the developer and will likely get its first court airing next Wednesday.

When the council meeting ended, City Solicitor William Collier told council that because the matter is before the court, aldermen and members of the public, who spoke could be cited for contempt.

Bahamians Sought
Canadian Girl Kidnap Victim

LUCAYA, Grand Bahama Island (AP) — Scores of Bahamians joined police in a search today for the kidnapped four-year-old daughter of a Canadian banker and the two men who swept her away at gunpoint. The search extended to all airplanes and boats leaving this tropical island.

Police said Friday the masked men, believed to be Bahamian natives, broke into the posh home of Robert and Joan Spencer, formerly of New Glasgow, N.S., Thursday night. They snatched the Spencer's daughter Andrea from her bed and fled in the family auto after demanding $250,000.

It was the second kidnapping ordeal for Spencer and his wife Joan in a little more than a year. In January, 1972, Mrs. Spencer was abducted by an American who demanded $300,000, but she escaped by jumping from the getaway car.

Spencer, 40, is the manager of the Royal Bank of Canada in nearby Freeport. He formerly worked with the bank in Toronto and Regina.

John Crawley, chief of the Bahamian criminal investigation department, said the Spencers had received "four or five phone calls" from the kidnappers wanting to make sure the ransom money is available.

"The Spencers have the money ready," said Crawley, who was flown in from Nassau to take charge of the investigation. "We're waiting to see when the kidnappers want delivery."

Although police were keeping silent, a friend of the family, who asked not to be identified, said Spencer and his wife were sitting on the covered patio at the rear of their home Thursday night when one of the kidnappers appeared out of the darkness.

The friend said Spencer fought with the man and had pinned him to the ground when a second man jumped in and held a pistol to Bob's ear."

The friend said Mrs. Spencer tried to run into the house and lock the doors, but the two men pushed Spencer in and one of them ran upstairs and grabbed Andrea, who was sleeping.

The kidnappers said they wanted $250,000 for the girl's return and told the Spencers they would be in contact, the friend said.

The Spencers have lived seven years on Grand Bahamas Island, about three miles wide and 100 miles long and covered by bush. It has a population of 12,000.

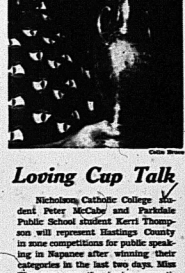
Premier's Father Dead

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Grenville Davis, 80, father of Premier William Davis of Ontario, died Friday night here. Mr. Davis, a well-known lawyer for 50 years, was former Crown attorney in Peel County. He is survived by his wife, Vera, the premier and his daughter, Mrs. William Dale of Mississauga, Ont., and Mrs. William Endress of Toronto.

CP Line Blocked



CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — The CP Rail main line between London, Ont., and Chatham was blocked early today by a freight train derailment 15 miles east of here. No one was injured and the cause was not determined. A CP spokesman in London said a quarter mile of track was chewed up when 20 cars of a 72-car westbound train left the tracks. The cars were believed carrying trucks to Detroit.

Rebel Leader Killed

SANTA DOMINGO (AP) — Francisco Caamano Deno, rebel leader in the 1965 Dominican civil war, and two other guerrillas were killed by government forces Friday, the army announced. The military said the three men were shot by soldiers hunting insurgents who were reported to have landed in the Dominican coast Feb. 4 from Cuba with plans to overthrow President Joaquin Balaguer.

Elevator Employee Assaulted

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — An Acme Elevator Co. Ltd. employee, here to do emergency repairs, was dragged from his motel room and beaten Thursday night, police said.

Const. Randall of Pickering, Ont., was not seriously hurt.

He told police his attackers, wearing hoods, fled when his shouts attracted other motel guests.

Earlier Thursday two men were remanded in Hamilton to March 15 for trial on charges of assaulting James Stephen of Toronto, another Acme employee, last week.

Frank Burke, 48, of Toronto and Ernest Shaw, 45, of Newmarket, Ont., were released on bail of $500 each.

Last Friday talks attempting to settle the country-wide strike of elevator constructors against five elevator companies, including Otis Canada, were adjourned. The strike began last September.

Canadian Prisoner Freed in Saigon

SAIGON (CP) — Canadian volunteer teacher Marc Cayer, looking pale and drawn and wearing clothes a couple of sizes too large, arrived in Saigon today on his way home to St. Raymond, Que., after five years of detention by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

Walking slowly, he was flanked by Canadian military police and other officials, he strolled slowly at first across the tarmac at the nearby Tan Son Nhut air base to a waiting Canadian limousine.

Once he waved to reporters after alighting from the International Control Commission (ICC) aircraft that brought him to Saigon from Hanoi, with a one-night stopover in the Laotian capital of Vientiane.

But he spoke to no one, and at one point when he was chased by about 30 photographers and reporters covering the landing he looked on the verge of tears.

"Small wonder," commented one Canadian official. After all he has been confined after five years of captivity."

He was driven from the airport to the villa on the new International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) in downtown Saigon, accompanied by two Canadian diplomatic advisers, V. G. Turner and Rene Francis.

He will stay at the Canadian delegation's villa until he flies home to Canada, probably Monday.

"It's his decision," said Francis, who had accompanied Cayer on the flight from Hanoi to Vientiane. "He just arranged for the first available flight which is Monday."

Record Cold Snap Hits Quinte Area

A sun pot wintry weather, coldly sharp as a polar bear's teeth, hit into the Quinte district yesterday, leaving its mark as the coldest winter night to date.

But there's relief on the way.

Weather forecasts today were predicting a warming trend for the district that will boost temperatures and make for a milder Sunday.

Winds, up to 30 miles an hour increased the chill factor Friday but died down in early last night before the mercury started s k a ting downward.

In Belleville, a low of 14 degrees below was registered by 6 a.m. today. Previous low was Jan. 31 when temperatures dipped to 12 degrees below.

At CFB Trenton weather office a low of 16 degrees was recorded.

There was one weather peculiarity. At Bancroft, usually in the coldest spot in the Quinte district, the Natural Resources Ministry ranger station today reported a low of 16 below.

But the cold snap was no record.

The CFB Trenton forecaster reported the lowest temperature for the day on the weather station's books was 26 below, set in 1934.

The bright, but bitter, weather conditions were part of an Ontario - wide cold spell that saw temperatures dip to as low as 42 degrees Friday morning in Northern Ontario's White River district.

But the sharp edge of the snap was expected to be blunted today as warmer air moves in overnight from the north, said the CFB Trenton forecaster.

High temperatures m a y reach into the twenties Sunday, he said.

Income Tax Pointers

For further information; call the District Taxation Office. If you live in a toll area, ask your long-distance operator for Zenith 0-400 and your call will be placed without charge.

Q. Is it correct, there was no change for the 1972 taxation year in the rules for calculating personal exemptions for supporting wholly dependent children?

A. That is not quite correct. Prior to 1972, if a child's net income exceeded $950, that child would not usually qualify as a dependent for income tax purposes. For 1972 and subsequent years, that income limitation has been changed.

Q. In what way has the income limitation changed?

A. Perhaps the simplest way to explain the new rule is to deal with wholly dependent children under 16 years of age first, then with children 16 years of age or over at the end of the year.

If a dependent child is under 16 years of age, the personal exemption is $1,000 to $300, provided the child's net income for the year is not more than $1,000. However, if the child's net income is more than $1,000, but not more than $1,600, the exemption of $300 must be reduced by one - half of the child's net income over $1,000. If child's net income for the year is greater than $1,600 the child is not qualified as a dependent.

Q. How about the exemption for a child who was 16 years of age or older at the end of a taxation year?

A. If the net income of the child for the year is not more than $1,000, the allowable personal exemption is $550. Where the net income of the dependent child is over $1,050, but not over $1,600, the exemption of $550 must be reduced by the amount of the child's net income over $1,050. If the child's net income exceeds $1,600, once again that child is not a dependent for income tax purposes.

Q. I am a widow supporting a 16-year-old son who is in receipt of an orphan's pension as well as other pension benefits totalling $950 for the year. I understand that I can no longer claim the full exemption of $550 married for each other, the deduction is allowed to be in the custody of the woman.

Q. I am divorced and am supporting an 18 - year - old daughter who is attending university. She resides in my domestic establishment during vacation time. She had no income during the year. Can I claim equivalent married exemption even though she does not reside with me during the whole of the year?

A. Yes. A dependent child who is attending school or university will be considered as having been supported in your self-contained domestic establishment.

If the dependent person's income is in excess of $2,000, then the full exemption cannot be claimed. Your married equivalent exemption will be $1,200 ($1,800 less $400) and not $1,350.

Q. I am supporting a common-law wife and her child in a self-contained domestic establishment where I also reside. Last year I claimed equivalent married exemption for the support of my four-year-old daughter and was allowed an additional $300 exemption in that my common-law wife was regarded as a full-time housekeeper. Is the claim the same for that year? Can I deduct baby-sitting fees as an unmarried man who is supporting a child?

A. The answer is "no" to both questions. With the new deduction of "Child Care" expenses, the allowance for a full - time housekeeper was discontinued. There is no deduction for child care expenses. In a situation where a child of a woman and a man who were living together without being married to each other, the child is deemed to be in the custody of the woman.

Quinte Construction Association vice-president Brian Holmes (l of r) congratulates Cam Walker, president and business agent of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners Local 572, Cam Walker, head the QCA big union would extend the 1973 contract over another year.

Members of the Local 572 gave unanimous support to the contract extension Feb. 8 and their decision was brought before the QCA last night.

"We are extremely pleased," said QCA vice - president Brian Holmes. "With this coming out so soon as it has it could give a real boost to commerce and development in this area.

"What you're doing with the carpenters can hopefully be repeated with other construction trades," he said. "You're very brave people to make the stand you have." He said it showed maturity and a high degree of responsibility with respect to the economics of the area.

Union president Cam Walker said, "We can't afford to rock the boat at this time — we're looking forward to better things.

"We're hoping this will bring more work into the area which we need critically," said Mr. Walker. "We're not giving up anything as far as our Local is concerned — it's a good thing for all parties concerned."

An amicable settlement last year gave delegates access to $5.99 an hour effective May 1, 1972 and to $6.49 an hour effective November 1, 1972. Under the year's extension the $6.49 rate will remain and the previously negotiated $6.34 an hour until the extension expires April 30, 1974.

Story Not Convincing

A Wellington area man says he drank half a bottle of whisky while waiting to be taken to Belleville police station for a breathalyzer test. He'll lawyer, pleading in provincial court Thursday, said the man Thomas Lickers, 23, was not impaired when city police pulled him off the road because his poor performance on several tests for intoxication at the station.

Judge J.L. Clendenning took the word of Constable Gary Hamilton, however, and fined Lickers $100. The police officer testified Lickers displayed symptoms of drunkenness after he was stopped on Pinnacle Street last Dec. 14 for making a wide turn off Dundas Street.

Lickers, who pleaded not guilty said he downed half a mickey of whiskey while sitting in the back seat of Constable Hamilton's cruiser. Asked why, he told the court: "I did not have enough time to be drunk."

Sheep Farm Problem

Whatever the origins of our local wolves they are not coyotes, although they may have come to be known as such. We are reminded of this fact by a letter from a primary school student.

* Our dictionary tells us that a coyote is a small wolf of the western prairies of North America. This in turn raises another question: from the misty past of our horse operas viewing days — in many an epic under the Arizona or New Mexican sun, the coyotes, if recollection is true, were part of the wildlife. But the southwest is not prairie country so how come?

Even those in the know locally acknowledge that the term coyote is a borrowed one, as witness Rawdon township farmer-trapper Ed. Colden's remark about "coyotes or wolves — or whatever you want to call them."

We refer to reporter Harry Mulhall's interesting article on the problems sheep farmers face from predators — wild dogs as well as wolves. Indeed Mr. Colden says 50 percent of the problem is dogs running at large.

The full extent of it is reflected by the fact that one area sheep farmer last year lost his entire crop of 32 spring lambs and in this case the prime blame is placed on the wolves. Still, there is optimism that trapping is bringing the situation under control — a significant factor when it is realized that if the few sheep farmers we have are discouraged, to the point that they may quit, then we are made further dependent on imports.

Sheep farms are indeed scarce enough in these parts and where they do exist they merit our interest, as well as the support of the agricultural and food-growing industry. We may not be in the same league with the British Isles, Australia and New Zealand, but it would be interesting to know just how much Canadian lamb and mutton ends up on home dinner tables, and how much is channelled into the production of woollens for domestic use.

Waste Management

Timely is the move by Hastings county, along with the municipalities of Belleville and Trenton, to tackle the problem of waste.

Tweed reeve Barbara Allen's warning serves as an indicator of the urgency behind establishment of a waste management committee. She suggested that if nothing were done to curb society's throw-away propensities we could be buried by the year 2000 under a sea of garbage.

We were reminded also in recent days of the current population trend which, if unchecked, will result in a doubling of the number of people now on earth by the year 2006.

The pressure on world resources is enormous and we are faced with this twin threat — what to do with waste and how to ensure that even by 2006 there is enough of everything in the way of food and resources to go round.

After Vietnam

If the decline in the power of the U.S. dollar is a blow to the country's trading prestige, devaluation nevertheless is realistic. However there must surely be a feeling of optimism in the country now that U.S. involvement in the war in Vietnam is at last at an end and the prisoners are coming home. There is so much that needs to be done on the domestic scene: in the sphere of law and order and urban renewal for instance. Many schools and higher education at institutions in the U.S. have been strapped for money and there will be opportunities now to remedy this situation. Finding jobs for men leaving the armed services is another problem. All in all it is a formidable task, but one that is not beyond this most resourceful of all nations.

A Matter of Perhaps $100 Million

Bilingualism Experiment: A Costly Catastrophe

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Turn to the fine print of Language Commissioner Keith Spicer's recent report to Parliament discovers how stunningly sensitive Canadians are about bilingualism, and speculate on the increasing cost — and continuing failure — of the federal government's nineyear effort to coax the country to speak both French and English.

Continuing failure, because Mr. Spicer himself terms language teaching "a countrywide catastrophe".

And the promotion of bilingualism is almost totally a teaching effort — how else is there to learn English or French? — in the schools and in the government's own language classes, all federally financed.

The visible cost is easy to pin down.

It is there in the Finance Department Estimates:

* For the Secretary of State's Department, "Official Languages Program," $88 million with $83 million of it going to the provinces for language training.

* For the Public Service Commission's language schools, $19 million.

For the Language Commissioner, $1,300,000.

There is no attempt to account for time lost on the job by civil servants taking government language courses at public expenses.

And there is no way of calculating the cost of such bilingual "spinoff" costs as labelling consumer goods in two languages and hiring — as is more and more becoming the practice in government service and out — of two men, one English, one French, to do the same job.

So never mind the "hidden" costs which are anyone's guess. Just take the "bare" figures in the Estimates, the $88 million plus $10 million plus $1 million and you have close to $100 million.

In the new Estimates, due this month, the figure of course will climb as it has every year since former Prime Minister Pearson launched the two - language effort with the $10 million Royal Commission in Bilingualism and Biculturalism.

But enough of the coarse financial facts.

And a good deal more than one - half of his 278-page report — in fact, 169 pages — deals with these sensibilities in the form of "complaints" over the use or non-use of either of the two languages.

The English filed 94 complaints, or 15 percent.

The French accounted for 517 or 85 percent.

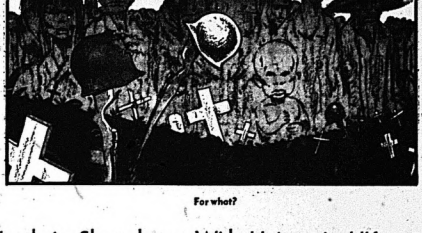
Additionally, Commissioner Spicer did 23 "special reports" on language performance in federal agencies in all sections of the country.

The "complaints" tell the story, though:

Item: An Anglophone in Quebec asked if the Official Languages Act "could be used to impose the erection of signs in both languages along the Trans-Canada Highway," telling Quebec and New Brunswick as examples where bilingual signs would be "useful". Mr. Spicer informed him the answer was no.

Item: Four persons staying in (a Montreal) hotel reported an English daily newspaper was left outside each room in the morning with a slip of paper on which was written: "A French language paper is available on request". The complainants objected that French guests had to make a special request, while English guests got their paper automatically. So what happened? So now nobody. English or French, gets a paper.

Item: The Ottawa telephone book, the Official Regional Income Tax office for information in bilingual. English employee took the call and passed it to a bilingual colleague. The complainant alleged that the latter answered in French, but, instead of offering help, lectured him on the increased work and expense of bilingual service." What happened? The deputy Revenue Minister asked the Language Commissioner to apologize on his and the department's behalf.



Item: Following complaints, "at Niagara Falls the Revenue Department said there was not sufficient demand for a bilingual service on a 24-hour basis, so only two hours out of a total of six million had used French and asked customs and immigration service in that language." What resulted? "The Language Commissioner could not see why nobody, English or French, gets a pap..."

Item: "At a dinner in Lyons, France, where he was guest speaker, the Language Commissioner suffered "bemused embarrassment" when a lady handed him a book of matches from the Canadian embassy with the words 'close the cover before striking' in English only." So what's missed? The Undersecretary of State undertook to have the offending book matches present in future a bilingual warning.

Complaints, complaints, complaints, hundreds of complaints left the Language Commissioner hard at work checking every one of them but making no dollar estimate of the cost of it all.

For what?

Heath in Showdown With Unions in UK

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The British government's current confrontation with the Gas Workers Union has ignited speculation that Prime Minister Heath might be tempted to call a snap election on the issue of who runs the country—the government or the unions.

If Heath is spoiling for a showdown with the powerful trades unions, the issue of the gas workers strike action could provide his best opportunity so far if it leads to a protracted stoppage and increasing public hardship.

Ironically, the gas workers can put up a better argument to justify their action than can most of the dozens of unions attempting to crack the government's resolve to hold to its strict anti-inflation policy. They have a notable strike-free record and have not been directly concerned with workers in similar industries who have gained greater pay increases.

But, unlike the teachers, the civil servants and Ford workers—also in the front wave challenging the government's authority on age policy—they have the capacity to bring the country virtually to its knees, disrupt the vital export trade, cause great hardship and broad unemployment.

Before their campaign of industrial action was a day old, 2,000 workers were laid off as factories closed in the face of mounting gas supplies. And the publicly-owned British Gas Corp. warned that one-quarter of Britain's 17 million population—some six million persons—could be laid off if the dispute is prolonged and gas supplies shut off.

To illustrate its firm stand against the gas workers, the government has taken the unusual step of refusing the traditional annual supply of gas demands and has warned it will use police if needed to limit the number of pickets who want to persuade colleagues not to work.

Such tactics moved Anthony Wedgwood Benn, Labor opposition spokesman on trade and industry, to suggest that Heath's government was waging "civil war" against the unions for electoral purposes.

But although some individual unions seem eager to attempt to corner the government on the pay-freeze issue, there are indications the Labor opposition party and the all-powerful Trades Union Congress (TUC) are less keen on forcing a general election now.

After all, several polls indicate Heath enjoys broad public support for his attempts to bring the economy to heel and the Conservative party seems generally agreeable to an election battle on the issue of who runs the country.

And Heath, suddenly abandoning his policy of flexibility to wage-price controls, in effect invited a large chunk of the Labor party's policy by deciding to invoke them.

This has left the Opposition in a difficult position. Although Labor criticizes details of the government's policy as unfair, charging it is not strict enough on profits and soaring food costs, it cannot oppose the idea in principle. Labor leaders, in fact, concede privately that if a Labor government was elected it, too, would have to have some form of incomes policy.

Miracles and Rebirth Are Still in Evidence

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In this age of materialism it is well to relax from time to time, forget the worries of daily life and the agitation after money, power and prestige and turn the mind to something more profitable and placid.

I found it interesting to read about some natives of Ethiopia who in a very unusual way, practised the white man's religion. Entire villages in the province of Wallamma practised a new way of life. The sick were healed, the blind received sight and the cripples could walk.

How did all these come about? The answer was found by a doctor, Robert S. Hoyt, Alt, MD, who also holds degrees from the University of California and medical pathology, tells the story. He went to Ethiopia to investigate and found that prior to Mussolini's invasion of that country some white missionaries worked among the natives, translating the gospel into their dialect and printing some 35 converts.

When war broke out, they were forced to leave in haste and forgot to tell their converts that the day of miracles was past. So these natives really believed, prayed and things were beginning to happen.

That miracles do happen is also the testimony of those who at one time or another had the good fortune to attend the Bathyn Kuhiman services in Pittsburgh or on special occasion in Toronto. Others may know about it through their physiotherapist or by reading her book, "I Believe in Miracles". Incidentally this book is a best seller and is available at most Christian book stores. Her work, by telecasts cover most of the United States.

But to come to the point, the seemingly impossible happens as her ministry is proved genuine as man ravaged by cancer is healed, a man on a stretcher and a cripple stumbles in on crutches. But before the service ends they leave with no need for the crutches.

The authenticity of such healings are often verified on the spot by medical men of science.

Clair B. King, MP, past president of Stark County Medical Society, Ohio, and other doctors, after witnessing some healings and investigating other cases have given written testimonials in support of the ministry.

People seeking cure came from Australia and Japan, Canada and Finland.

Miss Kuhlman admits she is helpless but all credit goes to God.

One newspaper reporter described her as a "radiant young woman who is filled with laughter, who does not believe in a gloomy religion."

The interesting question why some people do get healed while others don't, she has stated but not all the answer. The real answer to this mystery is in the hands of God.

Physical healing is only one aspect of her ministry. The most evangelically - oriented churches, she claims, want the spiritual healing of the individual, that is the salvation new birth. The regenerated person has received new life in believing and accepting Christ as all sufficient in life.

Coyotes Western

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In the paper there was an article "Coyotes Common on Farms" that said a coyote ravaged a flock of sheep and two dogs.

I have to say that a rabid coyote will not come that close to a house and will not go into a kitchen.

Coyotes do not live around Hastings County. They live out west.

Elevator Firms' Strike Hits Hard

By DON O'BEARN
Queen's Park

In the elevator constructors' strike, which was renewed here a few days ago, the labor department has faced, and still may be facing, one of the best test problems it has had to handle, certainly in recent years.

This strike has had an exceptional impact.

Right across the country construction has been held back or made tremendously expensive. Completion of hospitals has been delayed for months, in high-rise commercial buildings business is affected and in public housing projects in some cases tenants are practically floor-bound.

The impact, not to the community must have been fantastic.

But beyond this there has been a unique aspect to the strike in that on its own it has had the ability to bring certain of our economic activities to a stop; a capacity that most other strikes don't have.

If there is a rail strike, for example, there are still roads and planes to keep goods moving.

When the letter carriers go out there is inconvenience, but communications do not stop.

But when elevators go out there is the ability to shut down areas that they affect come to a stop.

The conundrum that faced the labor department and ministers of labor, therefore, when it do in a situation such as this.

The strike carried on for six months. It was publicly said that both sides appeared to be stubborn, though it did seem that there was some flexibility in the management but that the union was on a "power drive and was unyielding.

The government people, being close to the situation knew the strength of the union, and were being done.

And their various attempts at settling on the only real tool available to them, conciliation, were fruitless.

But just how could they get the industry back at work?

This was left to Ryder — a hospital or a public service utility. It was a private industry.

And never in Ontario had a strike been met by legislation aimed to force a private industry back on the job.

Yet in this case the private industry was imposing more havoc than many public utility operations.

By the time this is read possibly there may have been some resolution to the problem.

But whether there has or not it certainly has given a guideline.

This is that we need some power in our labor laws to force people back to work where the economy is being critically weakened.

Perhaps not to impose compulsory arbitration as has been done with any government action in this area to date.

But at least back to the bargaining table, and out of bed to work, the approach that has been used through Congress in the U.S.

Coyotes Common on Farms

Coyotes are common on farms in Hastings county, according to Ontario Department of Lands and Forests officials.

Coyotes are not native to Ontario, but have migrated from the west and north in the past 30 years, according to Ken Abraham, district biologist with the department.

Mr. Abraham said coyotes are not a threat to humans, but can be a problem to farmers who raise sheep.

Coyotes are not as large as timber wolves, but are larger than foxes, he said.

Church Is Now Facing Crisis In Largest Catholic Country

By DENNIS REDMONT

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazil is the largest Roman Catholic country in the world, but by a church group finds that Protestant ministers now outnumber priests.

It also says:

—Voodo religion is on a sharp rise, especially among young people.

—Dozens of seminaries and parochial schools are closing, on the verge of bankruptcy.

—More than 40 percent of the Roman Catholic priests in Brazil are foreign-born.

"The fact is, there is a crisis," says the Most Rev. Avelar Brandao Vilela. He is primate of Brazil, archbishop of Salvador—and was elevated to cardinal last week by Pope Paul VI.

"There's a crisis today, and it will also exist tomorrow, as long as man is man and as long as different answers are needed for questions which were not posed in other days."

The winds of change which swept through the Church after the Vatican Council, however, have hit Brazil with particular vigor.

A decline in priestly vocations matched with an increase in population has given Brazil one of the lowest ratios of priests to laymen in the world: one for every 6,000 persons.

The survey by the Roman Catholic Center of Religious Statistics and Social Investigation shows a steady drop since 1968 in the number of priests in Brazil, to around 11,000 today. The number of parish priests dropped from 9,000 in 1969 to under 8,000.

Christenings, marriages and funerals celebrated by Protestant churches doubled between 1956 and 1969. The number of Protestant ministers rose to 17,000, according to figures from Brazil's justice minister.

The total of Catholic Church defenders—bishops, parish priests, friars, monks and catholic school professors—has risen to 16,000.

Sociologist Pedro de Assis Ribeiro de Oliveira, who conducted the study, blames the decline on "secularism" and dis-orientation in regard to their specific mission."

Many complained of "policies like discipline" or that the Vatican acts as "a mindsaver for Middle Ages." Other priests were terribly short on clergy.

Preachers of Pentecostal sects travel the interior of Brazil, like oldtime American circuit-riders. Justice ministry figures show a total of three million Protestants, but Baptists and Methodist leaders place the number in around 10 million. Brazil's total population is 100 million.

"The main reason for the poverty of Brazilian Catholicism is the ignorance of the people and the search for God in the supernatural," says Archbishop of the city of Campinas, Most Rev. Antonio Magalhaes. He asserts this reaglied not only in the rise of Protestantism but also in a revival of such cults as Africanism and Umbanda, Brazilian voodoo or Spiritism.

Umbanda, from a Bantu African word meaning "sacred," was brought to Brazil by slaves shipped here to work on Portuguese colonial plantations. This mixture of worship of Christian saints and African deities has been adopted increasingly by many whites and disaffected Catholics.

"Umbanda is the Brazilian national religion," asserts Jose Ser Santana, a Spiritist priest from Osasco, a San Paulo suburb.

Census records show that over one million Spiritists. Private surveys indicate many nominal Spiritists attack and all white magic ceremonies "just to be on the safe side," as one sociologist puts it.

What are the Roman Catholics doing?

"The Brazilian people have a very high degree of religiousness," says the secretary of the bishops conference, the Most Rev. Ivo Lohrscheider. It is hard to speak about secularization here. There is much 'popular Catholicism' or 'popular religion' which deserves our attention and respect. There are many positive values which should be developed and enriched such as devotion to faith, belief in the absolute. But the negative aspects—fatalism, lack of superstition and so on— can and must be eliminated. We are pursuing a pastoral effort at evangelization and conversion."

Cardinal - designate Brandao observes: "We must urgently define our goals. We must discover and try new pastoral techniques. We must allow the people in Brazil to break a certain skepticism which seems to be set to move into an era of expansion."

Many bishops have opted for crusades, a Brazilian version of the retreat-seminar launched in Spain two decades ago as a sort of "faith refresher". Several dioceses have set up permanent and prechristening courses for those who want to receive the sacrament of confirmation before this deepens the faith.

Education of Spirit Required Most of All

By REV. GORDON C. SMYTH

The writer of Second Peter advises Christians to "add to your every effort to supplement your faith". In the opening chapter of his New Testament letter he includes a detailed catalogue. He informs readers that if they add such qualities to their faith, they will be kept from "being ineffective or unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Mr. Edgar Wright, head of research of the Toronto Board of Education, has been reported as stating that good jobs could no longer be guaranteed to graduates today, and that obtaining out is perhaps not so reprehensible.

Mr. Wright is quoted in the Globe and Mail as saying: "There are a fantastic number of alternatives for youth — travel, social service, doing what they consider important. Our society is prepared to let and give people three or four years off."

The age of automation is producing a leisure society faster than the western world faster than most people realize. To believe a political promise of full economic employment is to believe in a fool's paradise. The word "work" requires a fresh definition if the emerging leisure society is to be really effective or fruitful.

The stamina of the rising and older generations needs to be improved to cope with the unprecedented situation in which we find ourselves. Education of the spirit is required most of all. The well to — remembered importance of duty, the enlargement of life through sympathy, and the polite and clarity of vision inspired by humility.

We tend to act, not under the compulsion of duty but from motives of self-interest. We do as we like, not as we should. We act too much but we do little. We emphasize our own rights and forget others' living up to their responsibilities. The greatest pleasure is what you are after, do what you want. If you find satisfaction in self-aim, do what inmost conscience says you ought. Only then may your produces real strength and decisiveness of character or adds to the solidarity of mankind.

Duty is linked to sympathy. It does not mean feeling sorry for the poor, lonely, sick or sad, but identifying with them as best we can. It means the credo attributed to Francis of Assisi: one of the most attractive of prayers that we may not only seek so much to be consoled as to console; to be understood; to be loved. For in giving we receive; in pardoning we are pardoned, and dying we are born to eternal."

With regard to sympathy, Magnridge makes a point that applies to one's attitude to the underprivileged, whether in our own locality, country or overseas. He makes the point from his knowledge of Mother Teresa and her Missionaries of Charity, whose work in Calcutta, on assignment from the British Broadcasting Corporation, he made a most remarkable man for television watchers back home.

Mr. Muggeridge has written: "Mother Teresa is fond of saying that welfare is the opposite — an admirable and a necessary one — whereas what Christian love is for a person. The one is kind, decent and cheerful about a man who was also God."

This Muggeridge observes, "Herein lies the essential difference between the welfare services and the love of Christ."

And so, in addition to the value of duty and the enlargement of life through sympathy, let us seek the clear and clarity of vision inspired by real piety. Indeed, in the whole range of the spirit Christ occupies a place by himself, a place for us. May I be so bold as to commend my own attempt to interpret him "The Human Face of God"?

Actually, I leave it to the book reviewer in the February issue of the Presbyterian Record. Rev. T. M. Bailey has been kind enough to say: "It is not great in scope as a life of Christ must have a spring board added to the depth of study. Later, Mr. Smyth does not attempt to plunge into the deep but frees a high board. He takes the reader by the hand and helps the non-swimmers to the water. For that reason, his book will be a help to many, especially school teachers, in gathering at the river of God."

Titled, "The Human Face of God, it may be obtained in Belleville at The James Texts, Ltd.

Anglican Archdeacon Jail Chaplain 31 Years

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Father Frederick Payton went to prison at the start of what promised to be a brilliant career in the Anglican church.

Thirty-one years later, he still is at the Prince Albert penitentiary doing a job which he considers "one of the real challenges faced by the church today."

Archdeacon Payton, regional chaplain for prairie prisons, arrived in Prince Albert in 1942, "for five or six months" as a temporary experience."

At the end of those first five months, he said, he stay for 10. "I'd just got my feet wet," he explains.

He still hasn't left—and, if he has his way, he won't leave for another job. He has received an indefinite extension of his retirement date.

The archdeacon said his is one of the loneliest lives a man can lead. Before the days of a regional chaplain who ministers to other church flocks, he was virtually cut off from his own church.

His dingy office, with barred windows, is in the heart of the prison and is always busy. While private interviews are in progress, prisoners take their coffee outside and sit in the pews.

He listens to men, and they listen to his advice. He says his job used to be "a matter of a letter from an ex-convict signed: 'Your prodigal son'."

Archdeacon Payton has learned to cope with all the contingencies of prison life.

When visiting prisoners carried bombs the Banned Bomb Inside chapel, he persuaded the priest to pause into his new guitarra style in the Protestant chapel—a stroke of practical ecumenism.

Every day, the archdeacon walks down a hall ringed by doors, to the chapel and his office. He leaves at noon so the prison can be locked up for the day, returning most afternoons and some evenings.

Four times a year, he travels to all other prisons in the province.

Archdeacon Payton stayed in prison when other opportunities in the church were open to him because "the ministry of the church is for all men in places like this."

"The men in here have very real spiritual needs," he said. "There is a hunger for someone to relate to, with trust.

"I'm not a member of the custodial staff, not a member of the administration, so they can be prisoners' friends."

He tells his parishioners that, "despite the presence or absence of material barriers of walls and bars, all men are prisoners.

"The Lord loveth men out of prison, but this" . . . is not limited to stone walls and iron bars. It includes "all who are conscious of the invisible prisons which confine and torture them."

A graduate of the University of Toronto, where he edited The Varsity and founded the first national organization of student newspapers, Archdeacon Payton holds a doctorate in theology from St. John's College in Winnipeg.

"Churchmen were once appointed to prisons if they failed in other responsibilities," he said.

Signal From Above

YORK, England (CP) — Passengers on a London-to-Newcastle express were shown the Queen's prayer when Rev. Robert Middleton realized the train would not be stopping at York station for part of its route. Middleton fell to his knees as the train is aved York, praying it would slow down. To the passengers' amazement, the train was halted for a few minutes by a red signal—only 100 yards from the station platform.

New Horizons Program Discussed in Tweed

The New Horizons Program was the topic of discussion at the February meeting of the Tweed Senior Citizens Club, No. 398, with 77 members and 3 visitors present.

Guest speaker Reverend James Allman, a former minister at Denbigh explained the program stating that there was ten million dollars over a 2-year period for Senior Citizens of Canada from the federal government in Ottawa. It is to be used for people retired from the labor force.

He suggested the club appoint ten persons to act as directors, make assessments and apply to the government for the selected project. The program can be funded up to 18 months and if successful a review of the program can be re - negotiated and further grants issued.

Mr. Allman gave an example of projects already funded: a film history of Canada; Diala Friend, and food co-ops among others.

Other business at the meeting included a communication from the Advisory Board in Napanee regarding a meeting held there.

Another letter was in regard to a Rally for Seniors at Queen's Park Toronto.

Miss Patricia LeSage and Reuben Vance were presented and informed members of the eventual bond, they hoped to compile of a departing era.

Mr. and Mrs. Harries Jenkins celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on February 7 and they were honored with an anniversary cake.

Lucky prizes were won by Mr. A. Kleinsteuber and Mrs. E. Jardine.

SLICK TRICK

Experiment with laundry bleach to see if stains on plastic dishes can't be removed. A solution of one part bleach to three parts water usually fades the stains, but not the original color.

Second Glance

OUR BAY ON THE BAY: 1909

"Belleville contains a number of good hotels, including the Quinte, the finest hotel in any city of this size in Ontario." — The Daily Intelligencer, 1909.

* * *

Did you know Bridge Street West, was the location of one of the many up-to-date hotels for which Belleville was noted, the Windsor Hotel?

"It occupies a large handsome stone building filled with modern conveniences, is lighted by electricity and has telephone connection and comfortable accommodation for nearly fifty guests," the special Industrial Souvenir Number of 1909, put out by The Daily Intelligencer informs its readers.

"Its bar is considered good, as is also its large staff of assistants. Nothing is too much trouble from the proprietor himself down to the bell boy that could add one iota to the comfort of their patrons. Mr. Lee Ketcheson has a long experience in this line of business and knows how to retain the favor he has won."

"The hotel is popular as the headquarters for horsemen of this district as well as many other men who have dealings in or about the city."

Another favorite hotel in Belleville is the Dominion House, situated on Front St. This building is a substantial three-storey brick edifice, with dimensions of 60 by 100 feet. It is lighted by electricity, heated by steam, comfortable, and has well-aired rooms.

"The utmost satisfaction is guaranteed in every particular and the rates are $1 per day and upwards."

Another hotel on Front St. was the New Balmoral Hotel under the joint proprietorship of Mr. Carroll and Mr. Johnson. It assumed proportions which would cause to suppose the house to be of many years establishment. It may be termed a "new" house of quality . . .

"Messrs. Carroll and Johnson are both enterprising business men, and to their splendid business methods and popularity may be attributed the favor they have gained in the city and amongst the travelling public. An important feature in connection with the hotel is the accommodation afforded for horses in the barns, clean, and well ventilated at the rear of the house."

On Front Street also was the Queen's Hotel. It was established by Tom Powers. It had 24 comfortable airy guest rooms, inviting dining room, excellent mess, and comfy fireside parlors. "The office and sample rooms have been constructed with a view to the greatest convenience for the guests and the rates are $1 a day." Mr. Hugh Collins was a proprietor there.

Mr. J. R. French was a proprietor of the Bay of Quinte House, at 230 Front Street. "Conducted along progressive lines, it has never failed to attract a generous share of public favor."

The Alboth was one of the oldest in Belleville. It kept up with the times . . . and was one of the attractive hotels of the city. It was conveniently situated on Front Street in a capacious three-storey building, with comfortable accommodation for 40 guests. At the rear of the hotel were splendid stables, affording accommodation for 250 horses.

Mr. Thomas Haslip who became the proprietor, was born just outside the city limits. For five years previous to entering that occupation, he was engaged in the butcher business and prior to that he had been for nine years in the general cattle and hog shipping business."

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Windsor, Belleville Academy of Toronto's Medical Office Assisting training program on February 10, 1973. Miss Windsor graduated and received her cap, school pin and certificate at ceremonies held in Toronto's Park Plaza Hotel.

Resolution Discussion

A lively discussion on resolutions in Sidney South recently took place with Mrs R. Windle convening.

The current resolution pertaining to snowmobiles was read.

Mrs. Windsor felt work should be done on a resolution pertaining to school buses.

Roll call was in the form of "what our community needs."

Combined resolutions include a social evening on February 28 in the Sidney Township Hall.

Nude Bathing Ban

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Nude bathing in Lake Victoria was banned because "this state of affairs causes great concern to members of the public," an official said.

Record Land Use

TORONTO, (CP) — The amount of new land used for industrial purposes in the Toronto area reached a record last year, John Hopkins, president of the Metropolitan Toronto Industrial Commission, said "Just over 1,700 acres were utilized by industrial developers for speculative building, new plants and expansion of growing local firms. This total represents a substantial increase over the 1971 figure of 627 acres," he said.
